K-PAX

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:58 - Released 10/26/01

First off, I must say that I feel K-PAX is an unfortunate title for Iain Softley's alien visitation movie starring Kevin Spacey and Jeff Bridges, because every time I hear it I can't help thinking of feminine hygiene products. But I guess the title is the responsibility of novelist Gene Brewer. That aside, the film is a thoughtful update of Eliseo Subiela's 1986 film Hombre Mirando Al Sudeste, or Man Facing Southeast, about a mental patient who claims he is from another planet and leads his psychiatrist and most of his fellow patients to believe him. Brewer's story, adapted by Charles Leavitt, serves as a choice showcase for the talents of the ever-versatile Spacey, 1999's best actor Oscar winner (American Beauty), who gives a performance that could possibly garner him another nomination. And Bridges turns in an equally powerful turn as the doctor who learns from his patient. The story has some trite old movie traditions, but Softley downplays the more obvious clichés, generally achieving a balance between wisdom, emotion, and humor.

When Prot (rhymes with "wrote") first appears at Grand Central Station, he looks just like any average person. Well, actually, he looks exactly like Kevin Spacey. But then he makes the age-old mistake we have all made at one time or another. He says to a police officer, "Wow, I forgot—your planet is really bright." This statement lands him in the Manhattan Psychiatric Hospital under the care of Dr. Mark Powell (Bridges), who at first assumes Prot is simply delusional. But when his new patient shows signs of not being human (he is unaffected by huge doses of medicine, shows no emotion except for occasional bemusement at the human race, and knows things about astronomy that astronomers are just now discovering), Dr. Powell begins to take him more seriously. With the infinite patience of superior intelligence, Prot explains that he is a 337-year-old visitor from the planet K-PAX, which is located about 1,000 light years away in the constellation Lyra. K-PAX has 2 suns, 7 purple moons, and a bountiful supply of truffles.

At the expense of his relationship with his wife Rachel (Mary McCormack) and children, Mark begins spending more and more time on Prot's case, trying to find out who this guy is and what happened to cause him to have these delusions. Meanwhile, Prot's interaction with his fellow patients causes many of them to make major progress, eventually turning them into normal, well-adjusted people who all want to accompany him back home, which he has stated will be very soon.

While the story of K-PAX is generally uplifting and whimsical (with a few dark overtones), its text is burdened with tired old conventions too obvious for director Softley not to notice. For instance, as in so many doctor-patient movies, the doctor has unresolved psychological/family issues that are suddenly cured by his association with the patient. Furthermore, the residents of the psychiatric hospital are really more like a bunch of funny, eccentric people than actual mental patients; rather than crafting well-developed characters (like the ones seen in One Flew Over The Cuckoo's Nest), Leavitt has simplified them to stereotypes intended merely to further the plot. But the performances of Spacey and Bridges do a lot to counteract the film's weaknesses. Spacey has a nice sense of wonder at all he sees and hears, and if nothing else it's amusing to see him crunching down a banana, peel and all. Moreover, Bridges, an immensely capable actor in a thankless, second-fiddle role, brings humanity and credulity to his character. ★★★★½

THE LAST CASTLE

Rated R - Running Time: 2:11 - Released 10/19/01

The latest film from movie critic-turned-director Rod Lurie, who helmed one of last year's best films, The Contender, is David Scarpa's story The Last Castle, adapted for the screen by freshman Scarpa and veteran Graham Yost (who's written episodes of HBO miniseries From The Earth To The Moon and Band Of Brothers and feature films Speed and Mission To Mars). Starring Robert Redford (doffing the producer/director hats for this one) and James Gandolfini (The Sopranos, The Mexican), it tells the story of a military prison taken over by its inmates in an unlikely but nonetheless gripping tactical battle full of chess-related references.

Redford stars as highly decorated and published combat veteran and 3-star General Eugene Irwin, who has recently pleaded guilty to a charge of disobeying orders and therefore faces several years in the U.S. Military Correctional Facility, nicknamed "The Castle" for its uncanny resemblance to the Cinderella Castle at Walt Disney World. "Most castles are built to keep people out," he states in an opening voiceover. "This one was designed to keep people in." While the prison's commandant, Col. Winter (Gandolfini), and virtually all its inmates are respectful of Irwin's distinguished career, they are also aware that when he enters the USMCF, he becomes just another prisoner, equal to them all. Although at first he states his desire to simply "serve his time and go home," the men begin telling him of atrocities that have occurred in the prison, including the "accidental" murders of inmates by the guards with rubber bullets, ordered by Winter. "When those bullets hit you in the head, the lights go out," one prisoner states.

After watching a friendly inmate (Clifton Collins Jr.) be murdered in exactly this fashion, Irwin decides to rally the men and take control. He assembles a varied group of former officers, including ex-helicopter pilot Clifford Yates (Mark Ruffalo), whose father spent 6 years with Irwin in the famous "Hanoi Hilton" prison during the Vietnam War. When Winter hears of this, he makes a deal with the jaded and opportunistic Yates to sell the general out in exchange for a shortened sentence. What follows is a literal game of "Capture The Flag," with the prison troops using various makeshift weapons (rocks, Molotov cocktails, homemade catapults) to overcome the colonel's command and the success of the mission riding primarily on Yates's allegiance. Under the capable hand of director Lurie, the film progresses from sweatily realistic tension to heart-pounding improbability.

I have complained before about Redford's inability to express emotion; that is perhaps why this role of the coldly calculating, battle-hardenend veteran, an ancient stereotype seen in all military movies, is so perfect for him. As Irwin, he exudes quiet confidence (not only in himself, but in his men) and thereby inspires them to great lengths. Gandolfini is equally effective in the role of the corrupt and sadistic warden, an ancient stereotype seen in all prision-related movies. Also on hand, and also effective, are Delroy Lindo as Irwin's friend and fellow general on the outside, and Robin Wright as his emotionally distant daughter. The action is exciting and realistic, except where it is grossly unbelievable, which is during most of the final reel. The unlikely nature of the events and the occasionally overblown writing style are generally outweighed by the quality of the performances, however, and if you're into prison movies, military movies, or stuff blowing up, you'll probably not regret dropping the admission price on this one. ★★★★

As horror movies go, 13 Ghosts is one of the better ones I've seen lately. Mind you, it's still full of dumb characters who keep doing dumb things, but at least it attempts to try something new. A remake of the 1960 version written by the late Robb White, updated by Neal Stevens and Richard D'Ovidio (Exit Wounds) and directed by newcomer Steve Beck, the movie features a fantastic setting (a house that resembles the inside of a huge glass clock) and not one, not two, but 12 different spectral baddies, each with his/her own tragic circumstance. This concept yields an enjoyable variety of make-up jobs, and although the numerous villains don't really have specific characterizations, the sheer number provides a pleasing break from the mundane horror formula.

Central to the story is Arthur (Tony Shalhoub), a recently widowed father of two who is trying to move on after losing his beloved wife (Kathryn Anderson) in a fire. Although he's having problems paying the bills, Arthur hires a cook/nanny (Rah Digga), a strange choice indeed, since he only has two children, a teenage girl (American Pie's Shannon Elizabeth) and a pre-pubescent boy (Alec Roberts). Maybe he just wanted to have a sista in da house. At any rate, everyone thinks the troubles are over when a mysterious lawyer shows up and informs Arthur that his rich, eccentric uncle Cyrus (F. Murray Abraham), a renowned ghost hunter, has left him his fabulous, Frank Lloyd Wright-esque glass mansion in his will. I mean this place is like a huge hall of mirrors, with glass floors, walls, and ceilings, not to mention a complex system of gears, pulleys, and cables which seem to work independently, moving walls and opening and closing doors after its own agenda. Unfortunately, the lawyer neglects to tell Arthur and family that the house is actually an elaborate machine designed to open the "eye of hell." A minor memory lapse, no doubt.

The four family members begin a tour led by one of Cyrus's former assistants (Matthew Lillard), who begins to explain the house's horrible secret. Imprisoned in the basement rooms are the disgruntled spirits of 12 people who died horrible, painful deaths, visible only through special "spectral viewers" which look like those really geeky glasses you wear when using a power saw. Thoughtfully, Uncle Cyrus left several pairs lying around the house so his benefactors could tell when they're being pursued by a headless, bloody torso or a huge, snarling, WWF-looking dead guy with railroad spikes sticking out of his neck. However, inscribed in Latin on all the glass panels are numerous containment spells which keep the ghosts in their cells until the machine opens the doors and lets them out. When the kids turn up missing, the horrible truth becomes evident: the machine is in motion, all the exits are sealed, and Arthur must get past a dozen freaks (plus Unkie Cyrus) to get them back.

In addition to the incredible set that serves as the centerpiece of this film, which is without question its most enjoyable quality, there are also some amazingly truthful performances (atypical for the genre) by Shalhoub, Lillard, and, of course, Abraham. It is unfortunate that director Beck didn't choose to do something more, characterization-wise, with his 12 villains; it would have been interesting to see each of them with more to do than just look menacing and say, "Grrrr!" However, if nothing else the film provides a nice showcase for the talents of make-up artists Howard Berger (The Cell), Victoria Down, and Charles Porlier, and their staffs, and for the production designs of Sean Hargreaves and his set people. ★★★★

IRS Seeking Taxpayers Who Are Due Refund

The Internal Revenue Service is urging more than 5,700 Maryland taxpayers, whose income tax refund or advance payment checks have been returned to the agency, to act now so their checks can be processed and mailed to them by Dec. 5.

The agency's list of undelivered checks this year includes more than 4,300 advance payment checks the IRS started issuing to Maryland taxpayers in July. There is extra urgency for taxpayers to act quickly on these checks by Dec. 5. After that day, taxpayers can't get an advance payment check. Instead, they'll have to claim it after Jan. 1 on their 2001 tax returns.

The returned advance payments' total is nearly $1.5 — an average of nearly $345 per check. These returned advance payment checks represent less than one quarter of one percent of the more than 1.9 million advance payment checks previously mailed to Maryland residents this year.

In addition, another 1,343 tax refunds were returned to the IRS from this year and previous years. These "regular" tax refunds are worth over $1 million — an average of over $776 per check. Approximately 1.8 million "regular" refunds are successfully sent to Marylanders each year.

"The advance payment checks add a unique dimension this year," said IRS spokesman Sam Serio. "But our goal remains the same: We want this money back in the hands of Maryland taxpayers as quickly as possible."

Taxpayers whose names appear on the undelivered refund lists should call the IRS toll-free assistance line at 1-800-829-1040.

The added urgency for the advance refund checks is because the Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2001, which authorized these payments, says the checks cannot be issued after Dec. 31, 2001. That means there won't be enough time to process claims made after Dec. 5. However, those eligible for an advance payment check — who don't receive it before the end of the year — can claim it as a credit on their 2001 tax return starting in January.

"Those who are eligible for a check will still get their payment, but they'll have to wait longer for it if we can't get their check to them before the end of this year," Serio said.

There are many reasons that refund or advance payment checks might not reach taxpayers, but it's often because a life change causes an address change. If an address changes, and neither the IRS nor the U.S Postal Service is notified, a check sent to the last known address will be returned to the IRS.

According to the Postal Service, about 43 million Americans move each year, which equates to more than 800,000 address changes each week.

To ensure the IRS has their correct address, taxpayers who have moved since filing their last tax return are urged to file a Form 8822, "Change of Address," with the IRS. The form can be downloaded from the IRS web site at www.irs.gov or can be requested by calling 1-800-829-3676.

This was the first meeting of the 4-H year, so new members were introduced. The club sang an opening song, and old business, including the Buckwheat Festival, was discussed.

Officers were elected in September. They are: Hannah Myers, president; Eric Durst and Kaylan Fike, vice presidents; Travis Mersing, secretary; Scott Fields, treasurer; Tracy Fields, reporter; Brittany Stemple and Marissa Bachtel, song leaders; and William Dixon and Zack Bowen, game leaders.

Every year at Halloween, the Pioneers hold a haunted trail or a haunted house, but this year they are doing something different. While younger members trick-or-treat on Halloween, older 4-H members will portray community helpers and American symbols as a special salute to America. They will be in Stacy Fint's yard along Rt. 50 for everyone to see as they drive by.

Speakers Noted For Alzheimer's Awareness Month

The Alzheimer's Association, Western Maryland Chapter, will kick off National Alzheimer's Disease Month this November with a couple of special local events.

In November 1983, President Ronald Reagan proclaimed November as National Alzheimer's Disease Month. This month raises awareness of the disease, highlights people with the disease and their families, and emphasizes the importance of finding treatments, preventions, and a cure.

Mona Butala, OTR/L, education coordinator of the Alzheimer's Association, will speak at the Goodwill Mennonite Home, Grantsville, on Wednesday, Nov. 7, from 2 to 3 p.m. She will speak on the topic of "Memory and Aging."

Allegany County Health Department will host another event on Thursday, Nov. 8, from 5:30 until 8:30 p.m. Michael Stevens, LCSW-C, will speak on "Pathways: A Family's Introduction to Memory Disorders." The health department is located at 12500 Willowbrook Road, SE, Cumberland.

Persons wanting additional information may contact the Alzheimer's Association at 1-800-696-6830 or visit www.alzwmd.org.

REPUBLICAN WOMEN DONATE TO SCHOOLS — As part of President George W. Bush's initiative "No Child Left Behind," the Southern Garrett County Republican Women recently held yard sales to raise money to donate to the southern elementary schools and Southern Middle School. The organization raised $827, and approximately $100 will be spent at each of the schools. Dennett Road Elementary School received 20 Maryland state flags for the classrooms, and Broad Ford Elementary received a check to purchase books for its library. In the above photo, from the left, are JoAnne Glotfelty, who was in charge of the fund-raiser; Gary Galloway, principal at Dennett Road; and Judy Wilt, secretary of the Southern Garrett Republican Women. Garrett CC Sets Variety Of Small Business Courses

The Small Business Development Center at Garrett Community College has slated several courses designed to improve the performance and effectiveness of small-business owners and managers. The courses will meet in the college's Continuing Education building on the McHenry campus.

These courses, each of which has a fee, are designed to flow from the free "Expansion and Growth" small business roundtable workshop of Thursday, Nov. 8 (see separate story). Attendance at the roundtable workshop is not required to participate in the courses listed below.

"Delegating with Ease" is set for three consecutive Tuesdays, Nov. 13-27, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. The course, will be taught by William Crawford, executive director for the Cumberland chapter of the American Red Cross. During the course students will discuss management approaches to delegation; selecting which tasks or decisions to keep and which to let go; taking an organized, logical approach to handing off work, communicating the delegating assignment clearly from the worker's point of view; and anticipating potential resistance and addressing it effectively.

"Effective Performance Appraisals" is scheduled for four consecutive Mondays, Nov. 12 through Dec. 3, from 6:30 to 9 p.m. The course will be taught by James White, a relationship manager with M&T Bank. The course is designed to help participants develop skills to effectively communicate with subordinates regarding their job performance. Topics will include using the right approach to appraise performance, identifying the appraisal steps, setting useful objectives, documenting employee performance, preparing for the meeting, assessing marginal performers constructively, fair and legal appraisals, the year-end appraisal, and creating an employee development plan.

"Problem Solving" will meet over the course of four consecutive Tuesday evenings beginning Nov. 13 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Facilitated by former GCC business student Denise Gerard, the course will help participants evaluate options, project consequences, and determine the best approach to resolving problems. Students will learn methods for identifying the true problem, defining the problem, using various methods for generating solutions, deciding the proper course of action, implementing a solution, and evaluating the solution. Throughout the course, students will use case studies to observe the problem-solving process.

Purple Coneflower Enhances Immunity

The purple coneflower was the most widely used herb in the U.S. during the nineteenth century. This flower, which is one of several from the species Echinacea, is native to the Great Plains. It was used by American Indians to treat everything from coughs to snakebites. During the first half of this century, Echinacea was listed in the National Formulary, a book of "remedies" that generally were recognized as being useful. With the advent of antibiotics, the herb fell from widespread use by most physicians.

Echinacea seems to enhance a nonspecific type of immunity. The herb stimulates the body to make chemicals that fight illness caused by bacteria, viruses, and fungi. Numerous studies have shown that the herb does enhance immunity. One such study involved persons who were prone to have upper respiratory infections. Study participants were given either fresh juice from Echinacea purpurea or a placebo two times a day for 8 weeks. Those who received the herb had about 40% less illness. They also had 40 days between episodes of illness as compared to 25 days in the group that received the placebo.

Mindful of the Moment

There is a thought that goes something like this..."Yesterday is a cancelled check; tomorrow is a promissory note. What will you do with the treasure that is today?" Truly, it is thought-provoking when we consider the energy we spend regretting the past and worrying about the future.

We often hear stories of those who were frantic because they missed their plane, only to find that maintenance problems had delayed its departure. How about that job you didn't get, only to find a better one? We must learn from the past and plan and trust God for the future, but the time that is today will never return.

Didn't the Creator make the world around us just for our enjoyment? Yet, if we are to enjoy the moment, we must possess the peace of mind that only faith in God can provide. Proverbs 12:25 warns us..."An anxious heart weighs a man down."

Enjoy each moment in God's house this Sabbath day as you experience the serenity of His sanctuary. The Heavenly Father's love and mercy can be with you each moment of every day.

COMPENSATING THE ALTRUISTIC

November 4, 2001

Background Scripture:
Matthew 5:1-16.
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 24.

The Mount of the Beatitudes on the Sea of Galilee between Tiberias and Capernaum is probably my favorite spiritual spot in all the world. It is both physically beautiful and spiritually uplifting to me. It is traditionally the site where Jesus delivered the Sermon on the Mount. I quite realize that Jesus may never have set foot there—but that doesn't diminish it one little bit for me. I also realize that the so-called Sermon on the Mount was probably not a sermon at all, but a series of teachings which Jesus may have delivered all at one time or on separate occasions.

Matthew tells us that, sitting down on the mountain, Jesus began not to preach, but "opened his mouth and taught them, saying...." (5:2). Even Jesus' seated posture is the proper one for a teacher of Israel in Jesus' time. The term, Sermon on the Mount, is not mentioned in any of the four gospels, but is a name that came to be applied to this passage at a much later time. While I realize that some sermons can teach us and some teachings may inspire us, the purpose and methods of preaching and teaching are generally different and generally call for different responses from us.

Many years ago, I came to what was initially a disturbing discovery about Matthew 5: one of the strong themes that runs through the Sermon on the Mount as well as other teachings of Jesus is the principle that altruism, giving without the expectation of reward, always brings us some compensation. No giving in the name and spirit of Jesus Christ goes without reward. Virtually nothing that Jesus asks us to be or do does not give us something in return. Meekness is reward with the inheritance of the earth (5), giving mercy results in receiving mercy (7). "Rejoice and be glad, for your reward is great in heaven..." (12). And so on.

Getting In Giving

So what is wrong with that? Nothing, except that I had thought that the way of Jesus Christ meant total self-sacrifice. But I have come to realize that I was wrong on both counts. Self-sacrifice can never be total self-giving, even if our reward is simply the knowledge that we have done the right thing. Jesus himself was rewarded by God for his sacrifice on the cross. So there is always some 'getting' in 'giving' for God has designed the cosmos that way. Jesus' teachings put 'giving' and 'getting' on a much higher plane.

Followers of Jesus are promised blessedness, but what is it. The Greek word which Matthew uses here when used in pagan literature denotes the highest stage of happiness and well-being. The

A STAR! Program Still Strong in the Community

A STAR! in Western Maryland, the AmeriCorps program of Frostburg State University, is recognizing its seventh year of service and dedication to the local area. Since 1994, 122,772 community members have benefited from the dedication of 215 members who have graduated from the program.

Program director Lori Wilson describes A STAR! as a "a rural decentralized AmeriCorps program." The staff of approximately 40 members devote their time and services to nearly 20 agencies throughout three counties in western Maryland. Members have the chance to enrich the lives of others through improving literacy, bettering the living conditions of the elderly, and working with the environment, among other areas.

Working with A STAR! is a full-time position for members of the program. Those members, faced with the rewarding challenge of helping others, are discouraged from taking on other jobs or attending school full-time. The mandated 1,700 hours performed by members over the course of a year is compensated with a stipend of $9,300.

"Our members range in age from 19 to 50 and come from many different educational backgrounds," said Wilson. Though it takes mature dedication to meet the high expectations set by A STAR!, members are only required to be 18.

Three AmeriCorps members dedicate their time by tutoring at the Department of Juvenile Justice Youth Centers. Members offer tutorial services ranging from art to computer technology with youth 14 to 18 years old.

"A STAR! has been doing a fantastic job for us," said Heiko Pein, site supervisor for the Department of Juvenile Justice Youth Centers. "There are many things we wouldn't have been able to do without their support."

According to Wilson, the AmeriCorps members make a difference in the community on an individual basis, illustrating that one person can truly make an impact. Yet the community is not the only one benefiting from A STAR! Members walk away gaining rewards that cannot be found with most jobs. "I love being able to see the members develop," said Wilson. "Sometimes they start out shy and are reserved, but by the end of the year they have developed professionally."

Aside from the satisfaction of participating in a community outreach program, A STAR! members receive an education award at the completion of one full year of service. Each receives $4,725 to be used for furthering his/her education or towards paying off student loans.

The AmeriCorps program shares the Braddock House on Frostburg State University's campus with the other National Service programs. The program enjoys the chance to integrate with the campus. "We enjoy giving back to the university in appreciation for the support it gives to A STAR!," said program coordinator Sean King.

For more information on the A STAR! in Western Maryland program or to become an active member, persons may call 301-687-7599 or visit www.americorps.org or www.frostburg.edu.

GCMH ACQUIRES NEW MAMMOGRAPHY UNIT — Garrett County Memorial Hospital's Radiology Department recently acquired a new mammography unit. This acquisition allows GCMH to provide area women with the most current mammography services available. The new unit features better image quality and more accurate automatic exposure control. It also uses a different type of compression, making the mammograms more comfortable for the patient. "Our new unit meets the stricter requirements for mammograms that will be implemented in 2002 by the Food and Drug Administration," said Mike Reed, director of radiology. Mammography, done in conjunction with breast physical examinations, reportedly provides the most accurate diagnosis of early breast cancer. The barriers to having a mammogram that have been cited by women vary, but often include lack of insurance coverage or the means to pay for the screening. In Garrett County, free screenings are available to eligible women through the health department's Breast and Cervical Cancer Program. Garrett County women age 40 and older who meet the financial eligibility requirement can get a free mammogram at the GCMH through this program. In addition, if further follow-up testing or treatment is needed, the program will link those qualifying women with the Maryland State Diagnosis and Treatment Fund, which will provide this free follow-up care. Pictured with the new unit, from the left, are Becky Parks, program coordinator of the Garrett County Health Department Breast and Cervical Cancer Program; Reed; and mammographers Jennifer Warner, Mary Norwish, and Rosalee Finch.

Friendship greetings and gifts were shared with the guests. The Worthy Matron shared with members and visitors a recipe for "Friendship Bread." All in attendance received a loaf of "friendship bread" baked by Emajane Marks, Past Matron.

Following the Friendship celebration, a 25-year award ceremony was held honoring Norma Hesen and Wilda Hile. Lillian Reckner, Past Matron and sister, presented Hesen with her 25-year pin, and longtime friend Joy Lou Fogle pinned Hile. The Worthy Matron presented a program going back in history to 1961 and 1976, respectively. The Worthy Matron presented the honorees with corsages of gardenias with white, pink, green, and gold trimmings.

The Worthy Matron thanked: her substituting officer; the refreshment committee of Geraldine Baumann and Debra Taylor; Lillian Reckner, Past Matron, for her special music during the meeting; and Emajane Marks, Past Matron, for baking the loaves of bread.

The Worthy Matron's closing thought was "Eternal Friend." The next meeting will be Nov. 6 at 8:00 p.m., and Patricia Knepp, Deputy Grand Lecturer, will make her official visit. Signs and passes will be given. The meeting is open to all OES members.

Aspirin May Lower Ovarian Cancer Risk

In a recent column we indicated that taking a daily aspirin is now accepted as an important way to prevent heart attacks and strokes. Now, new research is suggesting that taking aspirin every other day or at least three times a week may also prevent ovarian cancer. Because doses are not taken daily, the risk for stroke or major bleeding may be reduced as well. Women who took aspirin at least three times weekly for a minimum of 6 months had a 40% lower epithelial ovarian cancer risk when compared to non-aspirin users. Evidence is also mounting that colon cancer may be prevented by aspirin. Larger studies are needed to confirm these findings. A role for aspirin in preventing other cancers also may be discovered.

Ovarian cancer often is difficult to treat because catching the cancer in its early stages is rare. According to the American Cancer Society, approximately 23,000 new cases are diagnosed annually, and 14,000 individuals die of the disease each year. As with any medicine, taking aspirin without your doctor's knowledge may not be in your best interest. Regular use of aspirin does carry risks including an increased chance of bleeding, particularly in the stomach or intestines.

Garrett County SKIES

by Dr. Bob Doyle
Frostburg State Planetarium

THE SUN — In early November, the sun shines for 10.5 hours each day, which falls back to 9.4 hours in late November. November sunrises are at 6:47 a.m. (start of month) while November's end has 7:19 a.m. sunrises. During November, the sun's peak height drops from 35 degrees on the 1st to 28 degrees as November ends. (30 degrees is one-third from the horizon to the top of the sky.) During November, sunsets drop from 5:16 to 4:54 p.m.

THE MOON — The moon is full on November 1, rising at dusk and hanging in the sky all night long. This is the Hunters' Moon, providing extra evening moonlight for the next five nights. The moon appears near the planet Saturn on the evening of the 3rd and close to the bright planet Jupiter in the late evening hours of November 5. The moon shrinks to half full in the morning sky of November 8. Your last chance to see the morning moon will be on the 13th, when the moon is low in the eastern dusk, appearing above and to the right of the brilliant planet Venus. The moon will reappear low in the western dusk on November 17. The moon appears near the planet Mars on the 21st. The next evening the moon will appear half full (like a letter "D) in the southern evening sky. For several evenings before and after this "D" shape, the moon is at its best for spotting its craters and mountains with binoculars or telescopes. November ends with another full moon; this second full moon of the month is called a "blue moon." A "blue moon" occurs every several years; the term "once in a blue moon" means very rarely.

THE BRIGHT PLANETS — Our five nearest planetary neighbors appear as points of light that shine more steadily than the twinkling night stars. But if a planet appears very close to the horizon or if it's windy, even the planet's light may flicker. In November, the planet Mars is low in the southwestern evening sky. The planet Saturn can be seen in the east in mid evening. Above Saturn is the 7 Sisters star cluster, resembling a tiny dipper. Around midnight, the bright planet Jupiter appears low in the east. At dawn, both Saturn and Jupiter are still visible. If you have a flat eastern horizon, you may catch sight of the brilliant planet Venus. In early November, the planet Mercury appears close to Venus.

NOVEMBER'S BEST SIGHTS — In the early evening the Summer Triangle is prominent in the western sky. The triangle is a large group and features the bright white-blue star Vega at the lower right corner. In the northeast, the golden star Capella is the first bright winter star to appear. To the right of Capella is the 7 Sisters star cluster, resembling a tiny mist of fireflies. Late in the evening the bright star group Orion surfaces in the east. Orion's most striking feature is his belt of three stars in a row.

NOVEMBER ASTRONOMY ACTIVITIES — For the first three Sundays of November, the Frostburg State Planetarium will present "Deep Space Mysteries," with free public showings at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. Also featured is an informal tour of the sky at dusk and at dawn using our planetarium projector. The Frostburg State Planetarium is just off the front lobby of Tawes Hall. The Cumberland Astronomy Club will meet on Friday, Nov. 16, at the La-Vale Public Library at 7:30 p.m. All interested sky gazers from the tri-state area are welcome.

Dr. Bob Doyle directs the planetarium at Frostburg State. Since the mid '70s, Doyle has been writing sky columns for beginners who would like to identify the brightest stars, planets, and sights in their backyards. To ask questions or get a free brochure, call the FSU Planetarium at 301-687-4270 and press 4. Doyle also hosts "Skywatch," a brief program on days of the week and sky sights that airs on weekday evenings just before 9 p.m. on WFWM, Frostburg State's radio station that transmits at 91.9 FM in western Garrett County and at 96.3 FM Oakland. Dr. Doyle's e-mail address is rdoyle@frostburg.edu.

Garrett Offers Program To Help Find Ideal Job

"Envisioning the Ideal Job," a presentation by Judy Carbone, who is a certified career/life coach, has been scheduled for Thursday, Nov. 15, from noon to 1 p.m. at Garrett Community College in Room 314. The free program is designed for anyone seeking employment, making decisions about a future career, or considering a career change.

The presentation will address what it means to work from the heart, focusing on an individual's interest, values, and skills, and considering both limiting and empowering beliefs, according to GCC Career Services coordinator Stacie Upole. A question and answer period will follow the presentation, and members of the Garrett County branch of the Association of American University Women (AAUW) will provide desert snacks.

Carbone has worked since 1985 with people planning their careers and searching for employment. She is affiliated with Working From the Heart Inc., a not-for-profit organization committed to helping clients "create and find meaningful work, nourish self and spirit, and live an integrated life." Before joining that organization Carbone was a career consultant at George Mason University, Fairfax, Va., and prior to that she was program director of the Career Center at the University of Maryland, College Park.

Carbone holds a bachelor of arts degree in psychology from the George Washington University, Washington, D.C., and a master's degree in general counseling from University of Missouri, Columbia. She has completed the Coaching Certification Program at the Hudson Institute of Santa Barbara facilitated by Frederick M. Hudson, author of Life Launch: A Passionate Guide to the Rest of Your Life, The Adult Years, and The Joy of All.

WARM THE CHILDREN

Providing New Winter Clothing For Needy Children

For the fifth year, The Republican is asking for your help. Without it, many Garrett County children will go cold this winter.

Just what is The Republican newspaper's WARM THE CHILDREN FUND?

The Republican's Warm The Children Fund is, basically, neighbors helping neighbors. We here at the paper are asking for monetary donations (tax deductible) from you, the readers. The collected funds will be used to purchase new winter clothing for Garrett County children in need. Because the newspaper administers the program, there are no added fees or overhead costs. Every penny donated is used to buy the winter items.

How are needy children being identified?

A special core of volunteers is working right now to identify those in need this year. Those selected for applications will be receiving them soon. (Please do not call for the service. If you have been selected, you will soon be notified.)

How will the children's clothing be purchased?

Volunteers will take the families shopping at Wal-Mart or through the J.C. Penney's catalog store in Oakland, or at the Ames in Frostburg. The children, with the help of their parents, may select their own new coats, hats, sweaters, long johns, jeans, boots, pajamas, or other needed winter items, spending up to $100 per child.

We need two things: volunteers and donations.

To volunteer as a shopper in Oakland, please contact Linda Thomas at 301-387-6203. To volunteer as a shopper at Ames, please call Lisa Broadwater at 301-895-5827 or 301-746-8223. For general information, you may call Mary McEwen at the newspaper office at 301-334-3963.

THE REPUBLICAN

To make a donation, please complete the coupon below, cut it out, and mail it along with your tax-deductible contribution to the address noted. All checks should be made out to Warm the Children Fund.

Please make your donations before November 30, 2001. Those collected after November 30 will be saved for next year's campaign.

Band member Settle is son of a preacher man

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Matthew Settle

Q: I am very impressed with Matthew Settle, who portrays Lt. Spiers in HBO's Band of Brothers. Any info on him would be appreciated. –N. Pursifull, Mahwah, N.J.

A: Settle, who turned 32 on Sept. 17, is a native of Hickory, N.C., and the son of a Baptist minister currently based in Tennessee.

At 19, he moved to New York and worked odd jobs while studying acting, then eventually moved to Los Angeles, where he made his professional acting debut in Shaughnessy, a 1996 TV pilot that went nowhere.

Settle really clicked as a young man with a sinister secret in the 1998 horror sequel I Still Know What You Did Last Summer, followed by a well-received performance as young Bugsy Siegel in the 1999 TV movie Lansky. His work in the films U-571 and The In Crowd boosted his profile even higher, leading to his Band gig.

Coming up: the movie thriller Final Guardian and the big-screen adaptation of the literary best seller Divine Secrets of the Ya-Ya Sisterhood.

Q: No one I have found has been able to answer this question: On the British comedy series Keeping Up Appearances, what do the letters "FH" on Onslow's cap stand for? –Barbara H. via e-mail.

A: Several Anglophiles have written to say they have wracked their brains for an answer, to no avail. That's because the cap in question is from Geoffrey Hughes' (Onslow) personal collection. While he was in New Zealand promoting a show, the actor was given the cap by a fan who was a lorry driver for Fulton Hogan Ltd., a local asphalt and road-building company. (Thanks to kuacentral.com, a Website dedicated to all things Hyacinth, for providing that elusive answer!)

Q: On As the World Turns, are the actresses who play Lily and Rose really twins? They really look alike and both are superb! –Maxine Goen, Bloomington, Ind.

A: Wow. Clearly Martha Byrne, who plays both roles, really deserved that daytime Emmy she won!

Q: What is Cokie Roberts' real first name? –L. Clarke of Illinois.

A: Brace yourself: When she was born, the daughter of former Speaker of the House Hale Boggs and Louisiana Congresswoman Lindy Boggs was christened Mary Martha Corinne Morrison Claiborne Boggs.

Q: Surely I can't be the only person who wonders who Madylin Sweeten plays on Everybody Loves Raymond. Her name appears every week, but where is she? –J.F., Lima, Ohio.

A: Sweeten plays Ally Barone, Ray and Debra's daughter.

Conviction Leads To Jail Sentence For Oakland Man

An Oakland man who pleaded not guilty to charges stemming from a July assault was nonetheless convicted and handed a five-month jail sentence during a recent session of Garrett County District Court.

David Allen Smith, 35, was convicted of second degree assault and reckless endangerment by visiting Judge Paul Stakem. Sheriff's deputies had arrested Smith after he had allegedly stopped his car in front of a Mtn. Lake Park woman's residence, yelled profanities at her sons in the yard, then punched her in the face when she tried to intervene. A second charge of second degree assault, filed on behalf of one of the woman's sons, resulted in a "not guilty" verdict.

In other district court news, a McHenry man was handed two months in jail after he pleaded guilty to breaking into the MLP residence of an acquaintance in May and to shoplifting some small items from an Oakland store in August.

Victor Frank Gardea Jr., 21, received a total of a two-year sentence, all but two months of which was suspended, a $100 fine, and two years of supervised probation, plus an order to pay $350 in restitution to the MLP homeowner. Additional charges of first- and third degree burglary, disorderly conduct, and two counts of destruction of property were not prosecuted by the state's attorney's office.

Sheriff's deputies made the burglary arrest after Gardea broke into the home to demand a resident repay a debt allegedly owed him. In doing so, he destroyed a door to the residence. Oakland police officers later arrested Gardea after the Dollar General Store manager detained him at the store's exit with several unpaid-for items hidden inside his jacket.

James Lamar Smith, 25, Oakland, pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct and was handed a 60-day sentence, all but 10 days of which was suspended, a $200 fine, one year of supervised probation, and 60 hours of community service. Additional charges of destruction of property and entering a vehicle with malicious intent were not prosecuted.

Smith's July arrest by state police troopers came after he entered the cab of a county roads grader parked overnight along a local road. Reportedly intoxicated at the time, Smith allegedly ripped out the grader's radio and discharged its fire extinguisher, all the while drawing a small crowd of onlookers who blocked traffic during the incident.

Clinton Ray Harvey, 26, Oakland, pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated (DUI), while a marijuana possession charge was placed onto the stet docket. He was handed a 60-day sentence, all but four days of which was suspended, fined $455, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 40 hours of community service.

State troopers jailed Harvey in June in the wake of a traffic stop near Arrowhead. A search that followed his DUI arrest uncovered an alleged marijuana cigarette and a packet of rolling papers in his car.

Leroy Bruce Robertson Jr., 21, Cumberland, pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and was handed a 30-day suspended sentence, fined $300, placed on six months of supervised probation, and given 40 hours of community service. His August arrest by state troopers came after a traffic stop along Interstate 68, when a consent search located a smoking device bearing burnt suspected marijuana residue. An additional charge of drug paraphernalia possession was not prosecuted.

Cynthia Marie Upole, 21, Oakland, pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct and was handed a 30-day suspended sentence, six months' unsupervised probation, and 60 hours of community service. She was arrested in August at the scene of a loud party by sheriff's deputies who had already issued a warning to the revelers to quiet down. When they returned a second time, an allegedly intoxicated Upole yelled continuous profanities without complying with specific requests to stop.

Roy Allen Runner, 30, Tunnelton, W.Va., pleaded guilty to possession of drug paraphernalia and was fined $400, while an associated marijuana possession charge was not prosecuted. The charges stemmed from his August arrest by sheriff's deputies who had been called to check on a disorderly subject in the Swanton area. As he was about to be searched, Runner voluntarily turned over two metal smoking pipes.

Sandra Kay Murphy, 31, Terra Alta, W.Va., pleaded guilty to misdemeanor theft scheme and was handed a 30-day suspended sentence and ordered to complete 60 hours of community service. Six counts of misdemeanor theft were not prosecuted. Murphy's August arrest by state troopers came after an investigation of her activities as a fashion company sales representative when she accepted checks from customers but neglected to deliver the purchased goods.

Floyd McKelvey Entwistle, 44, Essex, pleaded guilty to drug paraphernalia possession and driving while intoxicated (DWI) before Judge Stakem, who handed down a six-month suspended sentence, an $810 fine, and two years of supervised probation. An additional marijuana possession charge was not prosecuted.

Entwistle was arrested by state troopers after a DWI traffic stop in McHenry. A subsequent vehicle search located a partially burnt suspected marijuana cigarette. His passenger, Rebecca Lynn Wheeler, 36, Pittsburgh, pleaded guilty to drug paraphernalia possession and was fined $305. An additional charge of marijuana possession was not prosecuted.

Jordan Craig Gray, 21, Midland, was handed stet ruling on charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia. His July arrest by sheriff's deputies came after a traffic stop along Hutton Road when a K-9 scan of his vehicle led searchers to uncover a container of suspected marijuana and a smoking pipe.

Carl Bert Sliger, 33, Friendsville, was handed a stet ruling by Judge Burnett on charges of violating an ex parte order and telephone misuse via repeated phone calls. Sheriff's deputies jailed Sliger in August on allegations of making repeated phone calls to his wife's home and workplace.

Jessica Renee Lyons, 19, Oakland, was not prosecuted on a second degree assault charge stemming from a September domestic altercation with her boyfriend. The sheriff's deputy's charging statement indicated that she had punched the alleged victim in the face.

Brooke Ashley Fridley, 20, Morgantown, was not prosecuted on charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia. Her July arrest by state troopers came after a traffic stop on I-68, when a search uncovered suspected marijuana and a smoking device in the vehicle.

DWI/DUI Hearings

Several DWI and DUI cases were heard in district court recently.

John Faveron, 31, Md., pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a six-month sentence, five months of which was suspended, and was placed on one year of supervised probation by Judge Burnett.

Rodney Thomas Pike III, 30, Md., pleaded guilty to

Flockhart Named Finalist In World Essay Contest

Christie Flockhart, a senior at Northern High School, was recently notified by the Institute for International Sport, that she was one of 40 finalists of the Feinstein Enriching the World Essay Contest.

Along with more than 2,000 other World Scholar-Athlete Game participants, she had to submit an essay, prior to arriving in Rhode Island for the games this past summer, about her involvement in community service.

She is a member of the varsity volleyball, varsity basketball, and varsity tennis teams. She is the 2001 WMIL doubles tennis champion with partner Heather Lander.

Flockhart's plans include attending Davis & Elkins College and majoring in psychology. She will also be playing volleyball for the D&E Senators.

She is the daughter of Bill and Sandi Flockhart, McHenry.

The third World Scholar-Athlete Games, held this past July, brought together participants from 151 countries and all 50 states. Located in Kingston, R.I., on the campus of the University of Rhode Island, the Institute for International Sport was founded in 1986.

The institute uses sport and the cultural arts to promote goodwill among future world leaders.

BROAD FORD STUDENTS HONOR SEPT. 11 VICTIMS — On Oct. 11, students at Broad Ford Elementary School participated in a school-wide program in honor of the victims of Sept. 11. That morning there were 550 flags displayed on the school grounds. During the program, students recited the Pledge of Allegiance, and the school chorus sang several patriotic songs. Alexis Brenneman, pictured above, led the chorus in singing the national anthem. After the program, each student received a flag to take home.

Former National Legion Head To Speak In Oakland

A veteran of the Korean War era, Smith served in the U.S. Air Force from 1951 to 1955 in the 19th Bomb Wing, 20th Air Force. He saw duty as the non-commissioned officer in charge of the electrical department at Shaw Air Force Base, Sumter, S.C. After leaving active duty service Smith and his brother ran an electrical company that performed commercial and residential work, and he also served as a rural mail carrier. He retired in 1995.

Smith was inaugurated as National Commander of the American Legion on Sept. 7, 2000, 45 years after the exact date he initially joined the veterans organization. His service to the American Legion includes 20 years as Post Adjutant, 24 years as a member of the national board of directors, and four years as national commander.

At the district level, Smith has served as vice commander and commander. At the state level (North Carolina) he has served as vice commander, Membership chairman, Commander of the Internal Affairs Commission, chairman of the Americanism Commission, and chairman of the Children and Youth Commission. Smith and his wife Helen reside in Benson, N.C., and the couple have three children. He attended Meadows High School in Benson, N.C., and the U.S. Army's Electrical Engineering School at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.

Officers from the American Legion of Maryland and District offices are expected to be on hand as guests of Post 71. Admission is by paid-up membership for 2002 in Proctor Kildow Post 71. For further information, persons may call the post at 301-334-2228.

New Md. College, Financial Aid Guide Available

Copies of the new Student Guide to Higher Education and Financial Aid in Maryland are now available in the Financial Aid office of Garrett Community College. The publication contains information about enrollment, tuition and academic programs of public and private two- and four-year colleges in Maryland, as well as information about financial aid programs available to Maryland residents.

Twenty-four tuition assistance programs administered by the state are detailed in the publication, most of them designated for full-time students. Under a new Part-Time Grant program, for the first time financial aid will be available to part-time students who are simultaneously enrolled in a secondary school and an institution of higher education.

"High school students who take six college credits in a semester can now receive financial aid to help defray tuition costs," explained Pat Bennett, GCC's Financial Aid director. "They must be seeking a degree and must complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA)." The minimum Part Time Grant award is $200, and the maximum award is $1,000.

Bennett also pointed out that the Hope scholarship for community college transfer students provides an annual award of $3,000 to eligible students who have earned at least 60 credits at a Maryland two-year community college and who are transferring to a Maryland four-year college or university.

In addition to the Guaranteed Access Grant, Senatorial and Delegate Scholarships, Education Assistance Grant, and Distinguished Scholar grants detailed in the publication, other career-specific grants and scholarships are listed. These include scholarships available to students planning careers in the following fields: nursing, physical and occupational therapy, child care providers, teacher education, optometry, science and technology.

To obtain further information about any of these financial aid programs, or a copy of the booklet, persons may call Bennett at 301-387-3083.

Coin-operated music-making machines were being made in the 19th century. They were music boxes, player pianos or phonographs. The jukebox as we know it was not made possible until the automatic-changer system was invented and electrically played records were made. The modern jukebox era began in the 1930s.

The machine, with records stored in a rack, was first made by Wurlitzer in 1933. A record was picked out by a mechanical arm, placed on a turntable and then played. Other makers followed Wurlitzer, and by the 1940s the jukebox had been glamorized. Colorful designs in plastic or glass were incorporated into the front of a sleek, modern cabinet with shining metal and lights. A glass "window" made it possible to see the record move into place and turn as it was played.

Jukeboxes remained popular in bars, drugstores and other meeting places into the 1960s. New technology later made other types of music-making machines possible. Collectors seek vintage jukeboxes of earlier years for both looks and nostalgia.

Q: I inherited some pastel-colored bowls that resemble Fiesta ware. The rims have a rope-like design. The bowls are marked "California Mission Bell Pottery."

A: Your bowls were made by Metlox Potteries of Manhattan Beach, Calif. The pottery's Mission Bell pattern was manufactured for Sears & Roebuck from 1935 to 1938. The pattern might also have been marketed nationwide through the early 1940s by other department stores, including May Co. stores. Metlox made Mission Bell dinnerware and kitchenware in six deep colors and three soft pastels. Mission Bell cereal bowls sell for about $15 each.

Tip: Wooden boxes, toys or decoys should not be kept on a fireplace mantel or nearby floor area when a fire is burning. The heat dries the wood and paint. Unprotected wooden items placed on warm TV sets and stereos might also be damaged.

Traveling With — Or Without — Your Cat

Q: My husband and I are visiting relatives for a few days this Thanksgiving. Should we take our cat with us? Or will she be all right at home?

A: To take your cat, or not to take your cat? Either option is acceptable — provided you make plans for your pet well in advance.

Your cat can be left alone for a long weekend — up to three days — as long as he or she has no medical condition. Leave enough food and water out to cover your time away, as well as plenty of toys. Make sure that any item that could present a danger to the cat — including plants — is kept well out of his or her reach.

If your trip will take a few days longer, consider hiring a cat sitter — a responsible neighborhood child, or a friend — to stop by, feed the cat and play for a short while. If your cat needs to take a daily pill, or has special medical needs, boarding him or her at the vet is a better option.

Some owners aren't able to leave their cat at home or at a boarding service. If you decide to travel with your cat, let your relatives know right away that you'll be bringing a pet.

On the trip, bring food and water for the cat, as well as a litter box and a leash. Make sure the cat wears its I.D. tags, and keep him or her in a travel crate while the car is moving. Stop frequently and take the cat out on the leash so it can stretch out.

If your cat gets extremely anxious or agitated while in the car, talk to your vet before the trip about giving it a sedative or anti-anxiety drug.

A final note: Please, be a good guest. If your relatives can't have the cat in the house — because they have allergies, dogs or whatever — make other arrangements.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

- It was nearly 20 years ago, in 1982, that a man in suburban Los Angeles tied 24 weather balloons to his lawn chair in an attempt to fly. A pretty successful attempt, too — he made it to 16,000 feet, alarming air traffic controllers and pilots in the process.
- There is a kind of parasitic wasp that uses a spider to aid in reproduction. A week after the egg is laid on the spider, the wasp larva causes the spider — it's unclear how — to weave a hammock where the larva can cocoon and pupate. Once the hammock is ready, the spider gets a lethal injection and is consumed by the larva.

- Donkey meat, it is claimed, is even more flavorful than horse meat.
- The huge snake of South America, the anaconda, breeds in an unusual way. A single female mates with several males at once, and their bodies become intertwined — this is called a mating ball. And a mating ball can last as long as six weeks before the participants disentangle themselves and go their separate ways.

Officials Recommend Flu Shots To Help Head Off Anthrax Panic

by Carolyn Taschner
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON — A cough, a sniffle, a mild fever: It looks like the flu, but it could be anthrax.

To avoid confusion, Maryland health officials are urging people to get their flu shots this season, even though that vaccine itself is scarce right now.

"It will sort of ease the crowds at hospitals" if fewer people come down with the flu, which will make it easier for emergency room staffs to handle other cases, said J.B. Hanson, spokesman for the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene.

Those cases could include anthrax, real or perceived. But that's not the reason to get a flu shot, officials said.

"No, the flu shot will not keep you from getting anthrax, but it might help you and your doctor more quickly diagnose what's causing the sniffles and the sneezes," said Eric Baugh, medical director for CareFirst BlueCross BlueShield.

"The symptoms for anthrax and the flu are similar," he said. "If you've had a flu shot, you're less likely to be infected by the common flu bug."

State health officials said that their latest call for flu vaccinations is not a reversal of a previous policy, which urged healthy people to delay vaccination so the elderly and ill could get the earliest doses of what has been a limited supply.

"We're not telling other people they can't have their shot," Hanson said. "There is a responsibility to each other that those who are most in need will be served first."

But county health officials were surprised at what they called mixed signals from the state.

"Why would you say everybody go and get your flu vaccine when it hasn't even been shipped yet?" asked Vicki Duke, nursing director for the Howard County Health Department.

"We're being told to only administer to the high-risk population. It's not available for the worried well," she said. "It's a shame that we don't have the supply of the flu vaccine to vaccinate everybody."

Still, health officials agree that immunizing against flu could help ease anthrax fears.

"If you could immunize people for the flu, you would be running a lower risk for worrying about anthrax," said Erika Schwartz, an internist and trauma specialist in private practice in New York.

Schwartz said it is critical for a doctor to get a good patient history to make a proper diagnosis, finding out where their patient works and if they have come in contact with someone who had the flu or if they could have been exposed to anthrax.

Two postal workers died from inhalation anthrax last week after they were exposed to the bacterium in the Brentwood mail processing facility in Washington where they worked.

One of those workers, Joseph P. Curseen, went to Southern Maryland Medical Center last Sunday and was sent home by doctors who diagnosed his symptoms as the flu. Curseen died Monday of anthrax.

Duke agreed with Schwartz that doctors should be sure to get their patient's history. She said that, because symptoms of inhalation anthrax look like the flu, it would be easy for patients and doctors to get worried needlessly. But Duke also said patients should not panic at the first sniffle.

"You have to have a credible threat to make you think you've had exposure to anthrax," Duke said.

Schwartz said it is "a new world; we've got to learn the new rules." But some old-fashioned techniques can help.

"I'll tell you, taking a (patient) history is not a new rule," Schwartz said. You have to ask and be proactive as a patient and you have to be proactive as a doctor."

Accident Youth Passes GED With High Score

Chance C. Lipscomb, 17, of Accident recently passed the General Educational Development (GED) test with a score of 307.

Lipscomb's score indicates a very high level of skill achievement, according to the Western Maryland Consortium in Oakland, where he attended classes to prepare for the examination. Classes of graduating high school seniors are used to set the passing mark for the GED test. A passing score on the test represents the 30 percentile of a typical class of graduating seniors. Lipscomb's score of 307 indicates that he achieved equivalency with the top 15 percent of a typical class of high school seniors.

Although Lipscomb took the test at the Mineral County Vo-Tech Center in Keyser, W.Va, it is the same test that is administered nationwide.

Study Says State Stream Habitats Severely Damaged By Acid Rain

by Penny Riordan
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS - More needs to be done to protect Maryland's streams from acid rain, environmentalists say, citing a new study showing that the state's streams have not recovered since the Clean Air Act of 1990 was adopted.

Emissions from power plants that cause acid rain are carried by weather patterns across the East Coast and adversely affect stream habitats in western and southern Maryland, despite the regulations imposed by the Clean Air Act.

As much as 18 percent of stream miles, or about 12,000 miles, throughout Maryland have low fish and invertebrate counts from acid rain damage. Both factors measure stream health, according to the study released by the Clean Air Task Force last week.

In fact, as much as 28 percent of stream miles in Maryland may be considered chronically acidic or acidic after rainfall, said Ronald Klauda, a Department of Natural Resources stream expert.

Emissions have been in steady decline since changes were made to the Clean Air Act in 1990. However, national emission standards must be lowered even more, said activists who support the study.

"I think there is work that needs to be done on both the federal level and the state level," said Kim Coble, a scientist with the chesapeake Bay Foundation, which supported the study results.

"We have been hearing about acid rain for a number of years. I think there's a certain amount of complacency with regards to the issue," she said.

People aren't paying attention to the problem anymore, Klauda agreed. "Everybody thinks the problem has been solved," he said.

When people see a stream that looks healthy they don't realize that the number of fish and other smaller organisms are a better indicator of stream health.

"There are some streams in Maryland where there are no fish at all," Klauda said.

Environmentalists and government officials agree acid rain is still a problem, but divide when talking about solutions.

Senate Bill 556, sponsored by U.S. Sen. Jim Jeffords, I-Vermont, would further reduce sulfur dioxide, nitrogen oxide, carbon dioxide, and mercury emissions by power plants.

The standards would be set by the Environmental Protection Agency in order to have a nationwide guideline for emissions.

Electric utilities like the concepts sketched out in the bill, said Janice Lantz, spokeswoman with Allegheny Energy Supply. However, she advocates a go-slow approach to the changes.

"There has to be a reasonable time for complying with the level of reduction," she said, cautioning that the full results of the amendments made in 1990 are unknown.

"We really need to wait and see if the laws we have in place are working appropriately."

Oakland Man Exonerated Of Various Charges

An Oakland man was deemed not guilty during a recent session of Garrett County District Court of a number of charges filed at the time of his July arrest.

James Elden Lewis, 37, had been jailed by sheriff's deputies after a staff member of Fresh Start Day Care made allegations that he had driven his van recklessly onto the facility's property and reportedly took his child without the mother's prior knowledge or permission. The charging statement filed by the staffer alleged that Lewis had grabbed her wrists and held her during the course of the incident, and had put a group of children standing in front of the building in danger by his driving.

District Court Judge Ralph Burnett exonerated Lewis of all charges, which entailed five counts of second degree assault, and one count each of disturbing the peace and negligent driving.

A "not guilty" verdict was handed down to Brian Harman, 34, Oakland, the defendant in a domestic assault case. Harman was exonerated when his alleged victim declined to testify in court, invoking her marital privilege. Harman's August arrest by Oakland police officers came after he reportedly slapped the woman and pinned her against her car during an altercation outside her workplace.

The decision not to testify by the alleged victim led to Judge Burnett passing a not guilty verdict on charges of second degree assault, false imprisonment, disorderly conduct, and disturbing the peace.

Phone Number Changes Noted At Health Dept.

Three offices of the Garrett County Health Department — Mental Health Services, Addictions Services, and Environmental Health Services — have relocated to the new GC Health Center located along Memorial Drive. Each office's phone number has changed as a result of the moves, and the new numbers are:

- Mental Health Services — 301-334-7680.
- Addictions Services — 301-334-7670.
- Environmental Health Services — 301-334-7760.

Additional Health Department offices will be moving to the new Health Center in coming weeks.

Farming On The Mountaintop

Two Local Families Receive Century Farm Awards From Lt. Governor

Lt. Governor Kathleen Kennedy Townsend recently presented Century Farm Program designations to families in Maryland who have farmed the same land for more than 100 years. The Ralph P. Miller family, owners of Twin Hill farm, located south of Oakland along Mason School Road, and Walter, Martha, and James DeBerry, whose farm is located just north of Oakland along Rt. 219, were two of nine recipients honored this year for "their commitment to farming and leadership in preserving agricultural land," according to a spokesperson for the Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA).

"These are the real leaders of Maryland's Smart Growth efforts," Townsend said of the recipients. "By continuing to farm, these families are preserving farmland which provides food, fiber, and a strong economic base for all of our citizens now and in the future. Maintaining the best in rural living and a high quality of life for all Marylanders depends upon people like these."

Twin Hill Farm, nestled in the foothills of Backbone Mountain, consists of 357 acres of fertile fields and hardwood timber, along with an abundance of deer, turkeys, and squirrels. The farm, established by Edwin W. and Martha Thomson Miller on October 12, 1878, was a dream come true for the young couple. They bought five military lots, which consisted of 250 acres, for $1,400.

Edwin, with the help of his brothers and father Phenis, built a large farm house and bank barn a few years later. The Millers raised five sons on the farm. Edwin's untimely death from a sawmill explosion, however, forced his oldest son Hurley, who was only 14, to assume the patriarchal role in the family.

He, his mother, and younger brothers worked the farm together and kept it in operation. Hurley later bought his mother's and brothers' shares of the farm. He also purchased 150 more acres to add to the farm.

Hurley lived and worked on the farm for all of his 84 years. He raised 13 children, all of whom were born in the farm house. In 1974, Hurley's son Ralph and his wife Glenna bought the entire farm to settle the estate after Hurley's death. All of Twin Hill Farm is still in the Miller family.

Ralph and Glenna raised three children on the farm: Monica, Ty, and Bridget. The couple also have two grandchildren. The Millers and their youngest daughter live in the original farm house built by Ralph's grandfather, though they have remodeled it over the years. The couple said that raising livestock and crop and tree farming, along with cutting logs into lumber at their band mill, keeps them busy.

"It's a good life," Ralph said, "and I am proud of my family, farm, and country."

The 157-acre Walter F. DeBerry farm was established in 1886 when Clark DeBerry bought three military lots of about 50 acres each. Clark and his wife Jane Margaret had three children.

The farm is currently owned by four of their grandchildren. Robert Anderson inherited 25 acres, while Martha, James, and Walter F. inherited the rest. Walter F. is the current operator of the farm. He raises about 25 head of Hereford beef cattle and cows a year, while 20 acres of the land is rented to a neighbor, who uses the land to grow grain, mostly corn.

Walter F. noted that one of the more interesting aspects about receiving the Century Farm Award is that his father, Walter Sr., was born on the farm and lived there for 99 years and 9 months, which is almost a century in and of itself.

Walter Sr. and his wife Mae grew peas for a cannery, plus corn, oats, and barley. They also raised beef cattle, dairy cows, pigs, and chickens. The DeBerrys' three children worked with their parents on the farm. Walter F. would work his job at Bausch and Lomb, and then help his parents on the farm after his shift.

Walter F., James, and Martha do not have children and are not sure yet who will inherit the family farm from them.

The Millers and DeBerrys received certificates, and plaques that read "Maryland with Pride: A Century Family Farm," which they may display along the road near their farms. They also received copies of the resolution that Senator John Hafer presented to the state senate in recognition of "the distinction of a century of continuous family owned farming and for providing nourishment to your community and the nation. The entire membership extends its best wishes on this memorable occasion," Hafer wrote in the resolution.

Recognition of this year's families brings to 112 the number of farm families honored since the program began in 1994. Past recipients from Garrett County are Harry and Pauline Faucett, Oak Ridge Farm, and John Paul Roth.

To certify a farm as a Maryland Century Farm, an application must be submitted to the MDA with documentation demonstrating that the farm meets the following qualifications: The farm must have a minimum of 10 acres of the original holding and annually gross over $2,500 from agricultural product sales, and ownership must have remained in the same family for over 100 consecutive years. For further information, persons may call the MDA at 410-841-5882.

Butler Is Guest Speaker At Annual Farm Bureau Banquet

John Butler, past state representative of the Farm Bureau and guest speaker at the recent 64th annual banquet and meeting of the Garrett County Farm Bureau, spoke about the enthusiasm people should have for one another in light of the recent Sept. 11 terrorist attacks.

President W. Brooks Hamilton of the Garrett County Farm Bureau was master of ceremonies at the Oct. 25 event. A report was given on the success of the ice cream booth at the Garrett County Fair. This year, 700 gallons of ice cream were sold and approximately $4,000 was made. The monies will be used for Ag in the Classroom, the farm queen scholarship, and various other education needs for the community.

Farm queen Sarah Pysell was unable to attend the banquet, because she was in Louisville, Ky., at the National FFA Convention.

Five resolutions were passed by the present members. Those resolutions are as follows:

- The Garrett County Farm Bureau thanks the Garrett County commissioners for the Right to Farm law and the tax differential available to farms in the ag preservation program.
- The Garrett County Farm Bureau supports legislation to have farms in ag preservation without regard to the mineral rights issue.
- The Garrett County Farm Bureau urges the Department of Natural Resources to institute a black bear hunting season in Garrett County.
- The Garrett County Farm Bureau urges the state government to provide adequate funding to help farmers comply with the Nutrient Management Law.
- The Garrett County Farm Bureau requests that the state Department of Transportation provide funding for the Oakland 219 bypass.

The officers elected were Delmar Yoder, president; Donald Ringer, vice president; Paul Miller, director, Accident area; William Bishoff, Friendsville/McHenry area; Delvin Mast, Grantsville/Bittinger area; Terry Hauser, Oakland/Red House area; and Willard Broadwater, Swanton/Deer Park area.

The Women's Committee chairperson is Rebecca DeBerry-Tasker, and Kristen Enlow is the co-chairperson. Representative to the committee members from the Accident area is Kate Fratz; from the Friendsville/McHenry area is Garna Enlow; from the Grantsville/Bittinger area is Anna Colmer; from the Oakland/Red House area is Cathy Sanders; and from the Swanton/Deer Park area is Kay Steyer.

The Farm Bureau is now taking orders for its annual Florida citrus sale. Offered are oranges, grapefruit, tangelos, and orange juice concentrate. To place an order, persons may call 301-746-8616 by Nov. 23.

The bureau thanked Gary Fratz for his work with Ag in the Classroom. The trailer visits various schools and teaches children about agriculture, food and nutrition, and aquaculture. Members were invited to visit the trailer while it is in the schools.

Debra Barnard was also thanked by the members for her work on the women's committee. She was the past chairperson for a number of years.

THE HUNTING LEASE AGREEMENT

Today almost all-hunting leases are, and should be, finalized with a written agreement. The written agreement serves as a contract that protects agreed upon rights of sportsmen and landowners. The importance of a well-thought out written lease agreement cannot be overemphasized since it forms the foundation for a successful hunting lease program. Many of the conflicts that arise between hunters and landowners can be prevented and a good relationship maintained by having a written lease. Effective hunting lease agreements protect the interest of the landowner, but are flexible enough to allow enjoyment of the property for hunting by sportsmen.

The following are considerations and suggestions to consider when developing a lease agreement that should be helpful to landowners who are considering a hunting lease program:

Considerations

1. References - Landowners who are unfamiliar with sportsmen or sportsmen groups should not hesitate to ask for references. References may be from landowners who leased to sportsmen in the past, conservation officers, or key community leaders.

2. Organized Sportsmen - Hunting clubs should be organized, governed by self-regulating bylaws, and have a contact person.

3. Lease to Local Sportsmen - Local sportsmen usually are more visible and can spend more time on the property providing greater protection and property improvements. This is a positive public relations effort that eliminates the potential for local resentment caused by leasing to "outsiders." Lease income may not be as great from local sportsmen as compared to others, but the intangible benefits are greater.

4. Proof of Liability Insurance - Sportsmen should pay for liability insurance (with the landowner listed on the policy) and provide proof of coverage by giving the landowner a copy of the insurance policy and receipt of purchase. This helps to transfer a large portion of liability to sportsmen. Landowners should also make sure that policies cannot be canceled. Requirements for liability insurance may be written into the lease agreement.

5. Establish Open Communications - An open channel of communications prevents potential misunderstanding between landowners and sportsmen.

6. Annual Meeting - Landowners should meet with sportsmen annually to discuss concerns or modifications to the lease agreement. At the annual meeting (preferably in the summer) landowners should also inform sportsmen about any major land management practices that will significantly alter the hunting habitat (e.g. a clear-cut in an area where hunting stands are or will be erected). This will prevent future misunderstandings and conflicts.

7. Restrict Number of Hunters - For safety and enjoyment, the number of hunters should be restricted.

8. Incorporation - Hunting club representatives (e.g. president, secretary-treasurer) cannot legally represent the entire club when signing a lease agreement, unless the club is incorporated. If the hunting club is not incorporated, every member of the club must sign and date the lease agreement.

9. Practice a Liability Risk Reduction Program - In addition to requiring the hunting club to purchase an insurance policy, landowners should practice a risk reduction program that reduces all known hazards on the property. Accurate records should be kept of all efforts made to reduce or eliminate known and potential risks to hunters. If a libel suit is ever filed, you will have a record of efforts taken to make conditions on your property safe. Hazards that cannot be reduced should be identified and explained to sportsmen with a map and written description. Other considerations to reduce risk are the following: No ATVs, or require additional rider insurance policy from sportsmen; No portable climbing tree stands; Avoid single-strand cable gates or have them clearly marked; and Require all sportsmen to have passed an approved hunter education course and show a certificate of completion.

10. Written Rules - Consider developing written rules aimed at preventing accidents and protecting property. Make sure that all hunters are aware of the rules. You may want to have hunters sign a statement that they have read and understand the rules.

11. Review by Attorney - When the written lease agreement is complete, but before either party signs it, landowners should have an attorney review the agreement. This helps to clarify that the agreement is legal and binding.

12. Up front Payment - Lease payments should be made at the beginning of a hunting lease period. This allows the potential for investing these funds and accruing interest.

13. Policy on Permanent Structures - Permanent structures established by the lessee such as buildings, sheds or cabins may or may not be an asset to the landowner. Landowners should decide if and what types of permanent structures are allowed, and what happens to these structures when the lease is terminated.

14. Vehicle Restriction - Landowners may want to restrict the use of four-wheel drive vehicles, or limit their use to existing roads.

15. Notification of Presence - In order to know when hunters are on the property, landowners may require hunters to check in and out or notify the landowner in advance in writing or phone.

16. Automatic Hunting Lease Renewal - Landowners who are pleased with the lessee may want to provide for an automatic lease renewal. If the lessee knows that they will have hunting access to the land for several years, they are more willing to provide improvements to the land.

17. Arbitration - Disputes may arise even with the best thought out lease agreement. Some leases specify for arbitration of disagreements with neutral arbiters agreed upon in advance by both parties. Arbiters may be local attorneys, conservation officers, or other mutually agreed upon individuals.

I have sample hunting leases available at my office upon request (301-334-6960).

Notes from Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

This Monday morning I had a surprise visitor from, believe it or not, Egypt. Not an Egyptian, but 100% American. He was surprised and touched by his Egyptian co-workers at a multinational company in Egypt on September 11. He said that they had streams of tears on their faces when they told him how sorry they were about the terrorist attacks in New York. Joe Volanokis is only back in the USA for a few days and then he will return to Egypt for a few more months. When he is back here he visits a couple elderly aunts in a nursing home in West Virginia, and he always stops by the farm. He said things are a little scary but he feels pretty safe. Besides me he also visited Ruth DiPaolo and the Bass family, and he got a chance to see most of the kids. My girls missed the bus here so they rushed up to the Bass house to catch the bus and visit with Joe.

My Claire and cousin, Matthew Bass and Robbie and Blakely Glotfelty were pretty tired after a very big band day on Saturday. First they practiced marching in the snow and then on to the bus to a competition down in West Virginia. Northern won its division as well as a number of special awards. Claire spent Saturday night with her buddy, Angie Kamp, and attended church service at her great grandmother's church (Linnie Miller Buckle), which is the Maple Grove Church of the Brethren. Then it was on to a shopping trip to Somerset, so she missed the first frenzy of snow sport activities with her younger sisters, Caitlin and Mere, who dragged their sleds on a couple hills as well as taking them back to Diehlmans' house to give Hannah and Claire their first taste of winter this year. Although it is not very unusual to have the first snow of the season in October, it is somewhat rare that it amounted to enough to go sledding. I saw something that I never saw before when Mere took her small plastic sled down a short flight of steps from our deck. Joe V. was surprised how they have grown up, but not enough to prevent them from enjoying the first snow. Most adults were not as excited as their kids. It just meant scraping windshields, etc.

Aunt Helen Englar is still staying with "Pappy" Dale, and she has succeeded in getting him to start to eat. It is time to fatten him up. We are so happy to find him improving, as it has been a long haul for him. Aunt Helen, who is from Westminster where snow is a rare event, was as excited about it as the kids. She said how pretty it was, a sentiment that Pastor Pat Pittsnogle echoed. She was raised in Winchester, which also is a far more temperate climate than Bittinger.

Personally, I thought the snow was too thin to be really pretty. I like big snowflakes, which is the kind of snowfall that forms pillows on trees and fences, and not just a light glaze. I believe I did predict an October snow in this column a while ago. My Caitlin hopes the school will have the first snow day prior to November 13. In one of her classes at Northern Middle School, whoever comes closest to the date gets some extra credit points. Caitlin's guess is the earliest.

The wooly worms are few and far apart. The only ones I spotted on our farm have a small black band on both ends of a long middle patch of brown. I still do not know how you are supposed to interpret them, but my guess is that a couple months of winter weather before and after a real winter in December, January, and February, with not too much in November or March. The only fuzzy worm I saw this fall was a pale green one. Although I was tempted to use him for a fur collar for one of my nature dolls, I just allowed him to crawl away.

Rob Vagnetti's famous chili was the feature at Bittinger Lutheran Parish congregational meal prior to the interdenominational evening service on Sunday evening at the fire hall. A good turnout of people for the service included those from the Lutheran, Mennonite, and Brethren churches in the Bittinger area.

Al Feldstein presented an overview of the Jewish faith at Wednesday's Bible study at Emmanuel.

A reminder of the Turkey Dinner at Northern High cafeteria on November 3, between 4:30 and 7 p.m. to benefit the Lutheran Braille Workers. If you prefer to get your dinner to go, it is a perfect chance for an easy dinner party without any cooking. The cost is $6 for adults and $3 for children under 12.

Ruth DiPaolo got home safe from a Caribbean cruise. I guess the terrorists did not consider the potential for terror on a ship filled with upscale older Americans. The bad news is her indoor cat, Putsy, has disappeared. If anyone has or has seen her gray one-year-old kitten with white paws, please contact her at 301-245-4198, as she is frantic about her loss of Putsy. She was last seen across from Ruth's house on Rock Lodge Road at Accident-Bittinger Road. She really loves her animals. Her dog Sassy spent the vacation time with the Glotfeltys, who take excellent care of her. Prior to coming home she spent a couple days with her friends, Betty and Ellis Sacra, in Partlow, Va. After arriving home she received a call from Betty on Monday morning telling her of the death of her mother, Ethel May. Betty, Ellis and Ruth had visited her on Saturday at the nursing home in Orange, Va.

Linda Hewitt contributed to my nature art supplies with a whole bunch of her orange Japanese lanterns and even a few plants to transplant. I plan to make a few into mini jack-o-lanterns for a few special trick-or-treaters.

On Monday I can't seem to get my top sources of news on the phone. Where are Sally, Ellen, and Patty? Maybe they had a lunch party that I didn't get invited to. It is so annoying to have to dial an area code for a home close enough to just yell to. I believe the community news correspondents deserve a pay raise for those extra three digits, when you multiply as many phone calls that are necessary to get enough news to fill a decent-sized column. It is only 2:20 p.m. and I am exhausted. I feel like I need a nap, but I can't do that, as you never know when I might get some return calls from my messages I left on about five machines earlier today. I don't think most people even play back their messages unless they are expecting an important call. I rarely do it myself because the old dull messages are still there and I don't know how to get rid of them. Maybe the kids will know, as they seem to be so much better with modern technology than I. I have trouble even changing channels on the TV. I seem to try for hours to turn up the volume on the TV, but when they come home they can fix it simply by pushing the turn-down volume.

So this week it is a little slow on news. By one 1:00 this afternoon, the snow had disappeared with all but a trace. But it seems like it has driven away the birds at my feeders. Even the black-capped chickadees that were dining on Saturday. I thought that they would stay around all winter.

While Patty and Steve Diehlman took a weekend break from parents' duty, Patty's parents, Pat and Lew Nesick, Towson, took over for them. Besides just minding little Claire and Hannah, they even took their granddaughters and my Meredith to Accident Elementary School Fall Festival of Fun (used to be Halloween Social). Even though the name has been changed, a lot of kids still dress up for it. But I will never forget the costume parade to choose the winning costumes. It was a very big deal! I can't believe that

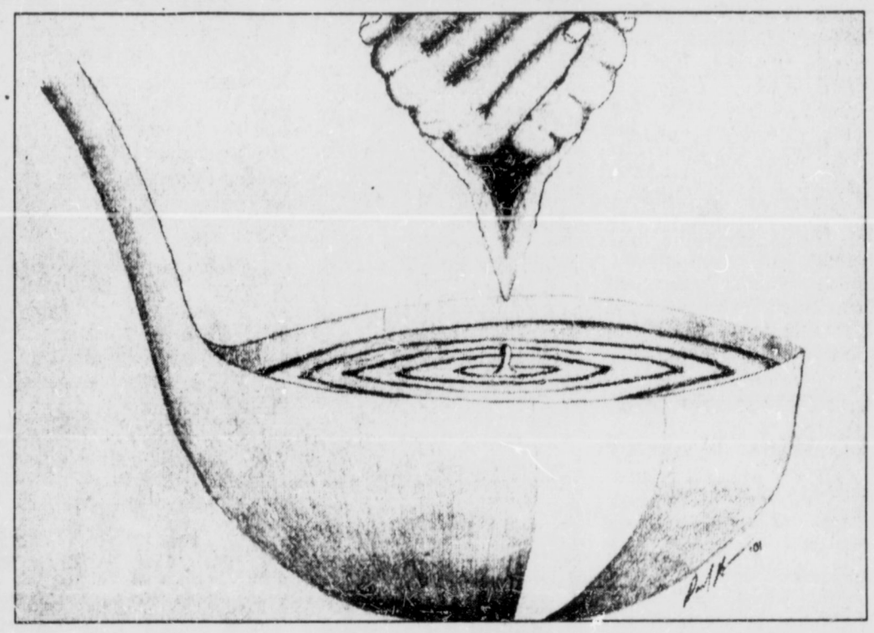
THE NEXUS OF VERBAL AND VISUAL ARTS will be explored during "Serving From the Ladle," a Garrett Community College Art Gallery exhibit that opens this Monday, Nov. 5. A selection of poems of local poet Debra Wolf served as the inspiration for a number of local artists and art students, who took her words and created their own interpretations in the visual realm. "Rolled Back," above, was sketched by Accident resident David Higdon, while "Serving From the Ladle," below, was drawn by Frostburg resident David Best. The poet and the artists will be on hand to greet the public during a gallery reception set for Saturday, Nov. 10, from 7 to 9 p.m.



Poetry, Visual Arts Combine In GCC Display

"Serving From the Ladle," a Garrett Community College Art Gallery exhibition set to open this Monday, Nov. 5, combines the poetry of local author Debra Wolf with local artists' illustrations that have been inspired by the poems. The display features 25 poems and pictures with varying simple subjects and a focus on elements of poetry. The public is invited to meet the poet and a number of the artists at a gallery reception set for Saturday evening, Nov. 10, from 7 to 9 p.m.

Wolf has an extensive background in poetry, having read, written, and taught in the field for 22 years. She studied poetry formally at the University of Baltimore, where she received her bachelor of arts degree. Continuing on in her studies, she obtained her teaching credentials from Lee University in Cleveland, Tenn. Shortly after returning to Garrett County, she began conducting poetry workshops in public schools in Pennsylvania, Maryland, and West Virginia. She is currently serving as an adjunct English instructor at GCC.

This is Wolf's first exhibition combining her words with artwork, assisted by local artists and art students who lent their creative talents to produce artworks for the poetry. A mini-collection of Wolf's poetry, featuring poems highlighted in the exhibition, will be available at the gallery.

The title sketch for the show, "Serving From the Ladle" was created by Frostburg resident Dave Best. Photography for "Guide," a river poem, was taken by local teacher Linda Martin. Sketches for a selection of Easter poetry were created by local art teacher Carolyn Collen-Dubose and GCC fine arts student David Higdon. A free verse poem was illustrated by Garrett student Kalle Rattasepp. Paintings for illustrations of title, simile, metaphor, personification, rhyme, rhythm, and repetition were created by local artists Ron Skidmore, Carl Heselbach, Ada Peachey, Chip Evans, Richard Hill, and Naomi Wolf.

The GCC Art Gallery is open to the public from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday, and on evenings and weekends during special events. For more information, persons may contact the college's art department at 301-3873024. The exhibition is made possible in part by a grant from the Garrett County Arts Council and the Maryland State Arts Council.

GALLERY TO HOST RECEPTION — The rainy-day depiction (shown above) of the Oakland train station and a steam engine by Charles P. (Chip) Evans is one of dozens of paintings to be displayed at a reception for participating artists, members of the Garrett County Arts Council, and the public on Thursday, Nov. 8, from 5 to 8 p.m. at the Gallery along Alder Street in downtown Oakland (see story).

Arts Council Slated To Host Artist Reception

The Garrett County Arts Council is honoring local artists and artisans, as well as council members, with a reception on Thursday evening, Nov. 8, at the Gallery at 206 E. Alder St. in downtown Oakland, from 5 to 8 p.m. The public is invited.

More than 100 regional artists and artisans have displayed their work with the Garrett County Arts Council in the 16 months since the gallery opened for business, according to Steve Schlosnagle, executive director. "We invite these talented individuals to meet one another and to mingle with council member and the many supportive arts advocates we know as friends," Schlosnagle said.

The Garrett County Arts Council operates as a nonprofit membership organization. "While our primary funding source is the Maryland Arts Council," Schlosnagle said, "we also rely on funding from local government and from the generosity of foundations and members. On November 8, we hope to express appreciation directly to those who support us and help make our work possible."

The purpose of the council, according to the director, is to "aid, advise, and coordinate activities dedicated to the promotion of cultural arts in Garrett County and to integrate such activities into the life of the community."

In addition to operating the Gallery on Alder Street, the council annually disburses over $30,000 in grant awards to help other local organizations present public arts activities, according to Schlosnagle. Additional council projects include coordination of the annual Heritage Craft Festival, production of an annual literary journal and weekly newspaper column, presentation of an annual performing arts showcase, and collaboration with the Maryland Humanities Council, Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, and Garrett Community College in presenting the Chautauqua program at Deep Creek Lake.

"The Garrett County Arts Council observed its 25th anniversary this year," noted Schlosnagle. "The former director of the Maryland State Arts Council recognized us as 'one of the finest local arts councils in the state' and characterized our record as 'a model for other counties.' We now recognize our outstanding participating artists and our loyal and generous members and friends. Because you make our work possible, we cordially invite you and yours to join us for an evening of exchange and fellowship on Nov. 8."

Local Youth Recognized For Service Work

During the past year, 100 area youth who attended after-school sites in Loch Lynn, Kitzmiller, Grantsville, and Oakland served their communities through the Learn and Serve Program, administered by the Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families.

"We have outstanding youth in Garrett County who do remarkable things everyday, and who make a positive impact upon our quality of life," said Susan Athey-Oxford, president of the Partnership for Children and Families. "Too often adults fail to recognize [the youths'] contributions."

The students' work, however, caught the attention of the Governor's Office of Service and Volunteerism and the Maryland Youth Service Action Committee who selected the Learn and Serve participants as Honor Row recipients.

The students were invited to attend a Baltimore Ravens' football game at PSINet Stadium on October 7 in Baltimore. During the game, the youth were featured on the stadium's SmartVision screen, in recognition of their community service.

The youth clocked more than 4,000 hours in service learning and made a positive impact in the community, according to Athey-Oxford. The students participated in various activities, such as observing Make a Difference Day, creating cards and baskets for senior citizens, singing to residents in nursing homes, planting a "victory garden," collecting canned food for the House of Hope food drive, and making bagel bird feeders for the town parks and dog treats for the Animal Shelter.

LOCAL YOUTH WELCOMED BY RAVENS — Local youth who participated in the Learn and Serve Program were rewarded for clocking more than 4,000 hours in service learning with an invitation to attend a Baltimore Ravens football game at PSINet Stadium, Baltimore, on October 7. During the past year, the youth participated in various after-school activities, such as singing to residents in nursing homes, collecting canned food for the House of Hope, and planting a "victory garden." They were recognized during the game for their hard work with a message on the SmartVision screen (shown above): "The Baltimore Ravens welcome Garrett's Promise to today's game." The Learn and Serve Program, which is integrated with Garrett's Promise, is administered by the Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families.

"Service-learning experiences provide opportunities for students to learn about their communities, explore career possibilities, and work with diverse groups of individuals," said Karen Ray, Service Learning coordinator for the Garrett County Board of Education.

According to Athey-Oxford, "high quality service learning allows students to take leadership and ownership over the projects performed. Students learn important school, work, and life skills, such as working as a team, organizing and scheduling activities, and problem solving when given increased responsibility for the success of projects."

The Learn and Serve Program, which is integrated with Garrett's Promise, is a collaborative endeavor between the Partnership, the Health Department's Outreach Services, AmeriCorps, the Board of Education's Service Learning Program, and Community Action.

Colonial Society To Hold History Essay Contest

The Maryland Colonial Society Inc. has recently announced its annual essay and web page contest for Maryland high school students and classes. The theme of this year's contest is "The Constant Guardian ... Maryland Firefighters and Police in Review."

Students can choose to write on this topic in a number of ways: by researching the early beginnings of either Maryland fire or police protection, including writing about a specific event such as the Baltimore Fire of 1904; by writing about a prominent individual in the advancement of fire or police protection; or by writing an overall view of the history of either profession from its early organization to the present.

The society is offering prizes of $150 in each of the following categories: best essay based on the above theme (must be between 1,000 and 1,500 words); best individual web page based on the theme; and best class web page based on the theme.

Contest winners are also offered the opportunity of a summer internship in Maryland history at the Maryland State Archives. The contest is open to any interested Maryland high school student or class, and teachers are encouraged to use the contest as a class assignment.

The contest is being administered and judged by the Maryland State Archives. Prizes will be awarded at Maryland Day ceremonies on Monday, March 25, 2002, at the Mitchell Courthouse in Baltimore.

Details of the contest and its rules can be found on the archives' web site at mdsa.net, under Education and Outreach.

Trust Inviting Applications For Preserv. Grants

The Maryland Historical Trust (MHT), an agency of the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development (DHCD), is accepting applications for Fiscal Year 2003 historic preservation and museum assistance grants. These grant programs are funded through the MHT Grant Fund (the Maryland History Investment Fund) and include grants for capital and non-capital historic preservation, preservation incentives for local governments, and museum development and general operating support. Available funding in current Fiscal Year 2002 is approximately $4 million and it is anticipated that a similar amount will be available for FY 2003.

Nonprofit organizations and local jurisdictions may apply for historic preservation grants to fund capital projects. Business entities and individuals may also apply for capital historic preservation grants when preservation of the property serves a high public purpose. Eligible projects include the acquisition, rehabilitation, or restoration of historic property in Maryland.

Only nonprofit organizations and local jurisdictions may apply for historic preservation non-capital grants.

County governments and the City of Baltimore may apply for preservation incentives for local governments (PILG) grants that provide direct funding assistance to support the expansion of a county's local historic preservation programs.

Nonprofit museums and those operated by local governments that have been in operation for at least three years may apply for museum development grants (including mini grants) and museum general operating support (GOS) grants. Museum development grants provide assistance with education and tourism initiatives and professional development. Museum mini grants (up to a maximum amount of $5,000) provide assistance with museums' evolving professionalism. Museum GOS grants provide operating support for heritage museums. In FY 2002, museum GOS grants ranged between three to five percent of a museum's operating budget.

The application deadline is November 30, 2001, for all Intention to Apply forms. Full applications for capital, non-capital, and PILG grants are due on January 31, 2002. Applications for museum development, museum mini, and museum general operating support are due on March 15, 2002. The project selection process will begin in March of 2002 and grant awards will be announced after July 1, 2002. The maximum grant amount is $50,000; however, certain applications may be for grants up to $75,000.

A dollar-for-dollar match is required of most applicants for capital projects and of all local jurisdictions for non-capital projects. Counties must provide a match for any grant program; however, those that do include a match will be more competitive in the selection process. MHT funding priorities for FY 2003 include projects that creatively interpret and provide increased access to information about Maryland's heritage.

For information, applications, and copies of the open project selection criteria, persons may contact the appropriate MHT staff member — Nicole Diehlmann at 410-514-7625 or diehlmann@dhcd.state.md.us (non-capital projects); Claudette Sherman at 410-514-7633 or sherman@dhcd.state.md.us (capital projects); Scott Whipple at 410-514-7635 or whipple@dhcd.state.md.us (PILG); or Mary Alexander at 410-514-7622 or alexander@dhcd.state.md.us (museum development, mini, and GOS grants). Applications are available on the Internet at www.marylandhistoricaltrust.net under "documents" or at www.dhcd.state.md.us.

I did not win any of the many great door prizes for which I had bought tickets. I was sure that I would win the Bob Brenneman handmade muzzleloader at the Bittinger picnic, and was surprised that I did not win the beautiful quilt raffled by the Garrett County Arts Council during Autumn Glory. I still have hopes for the porch glider from Northern High Band Boosters and for the baby beef benefiting the county 4-H program. If not that, then possibly the Publishers Clearinghouse will come through big time. Ha Ha.

A subject that I did not get into last week's column was the most exciting thing around this house and probably at other homes that collect Monarch caterpillars and watch them make chrysalises. Then the big excitement of the emergence of the butterfly. I saw one in the reception room of Dr. Margaret Kaiser's office. There are many in the elementary school classrooms. Mere's classroom (Mrs. Stewart's) had seven, with one ready to hatch. We can see his wings. It is an exciting time. I must get ready to paint when they are finally emerged. I have to find some various orange and black colors. I plan to paint them on some beautiful pieces of fabric given to me by Mikal McCartney. That is a whole different can of worms, as you need a large surface to lay the fabric out on and stretch it. My favorite job in New York was when I painted fabric for special costumes. I do not have a picture to copy, but just free form fantasy of butterfly wings, as I never usually see the performance.

Sally, Lenny, and Torrey Poholsky visited Lenny's mother Mary at Armstrong Hospital in Kittanning, Pa., after she suffered a severe stroke. Then they turned south for the Maryland high school soccer tournament at Boonsboro. Unfortunately, they continued to lose, but winning is not just what soccer is about. Also from Bittinger at the soccer game were Sam and Ellen Housley and Margaret Wagner to cheer Brent on. Leah Stanton met them at the game on the way home for a weekend visit.

Friday evening the Poholsky family celebrated at Torrey's winning Hot Stove League baseball team's banquet at the Cumberland Holiday Inn. The team was sponsored by Doerr Construction. They enjoyed spending the evening with Jay and Patty Rice and son Jason.

A sad funeral was held at my house this evening for Mere's bunny, Thumper. Mere's father chose a Bible verse for the occasion (Ecclesiastes Chapter 3). Would like to put this writing in the paper, but please take it from the Bible and read it. I can't read those immortal words now but with tears. I can think of many other words to include. Now it is time for my tears every minute of the day. I can't believe it possible that someday it may be possible to laugh again and even smile. I can't seem to remember how to smile anymore.

But I see outside my window now a big gang of hungry birds, house sparrows, and even my chickadees are back and demanding their bird seed. I can't do that job for myself. I don't like being dependent on anyone, but that is my new life lesson.

I think I spoke too soon about Mere's homework being no problem. This Monday evening she has an enormous amount. She broke down on her first task of language assignment. She really got upset, but after calming down, she did fine. I told her that she could do it and breeze through her math. Thank goodness she does not have any soccer tonight. The Olympics are a big distraction for our family. We enjoy all the sports, and each sport has a unique charm.

MARYLAND DEPARTMENT OF THE ENVIRONMENT

Notice of Intent to Establish a Total Maximum Daily Load (TMDL) for Biochemical Oxygen Demand (BOD) to George's Creek in Allegany and Garrett Counties, Maryland

Section 303(d) of the federal Clean Water Act requires Maryland to: (1) identify waters, known as water quality limited segments (WQLSs), where technology-based effluent limitations and other required controls cannot achieve water quality standards; (2) for each listed water, establish Total Maximum Daily Loads (TMDLs) for pollutants preventing the attainment of water quality standards; and (3) offer an opportunity for public review and comment on the proposed TMDLs.

George's Creek was identified on the State's 1996 list of WQLSs as impaired by nutrients, a potential cause of low dissolved oxygen. Upon consideration of additional data, the Department determined that the waterbody is not impaired for these substances. However, pursuant to Maryland's Antidegradation Policy reguiation, the Department is establishing a TMDL for George's Creek for biochemical oxygen demand (BOD) to assure that dissolved oxygen standards are maintained. The TMDL sets the maximum load limit for this parameter. The TMDL also reflects load allocations to point sources, nonpoint sources and a margin of safety that accounts for uncertainty in the procedures used to estimate the TMDL.

Once established by the State, the TMDL will be subject to approval by the United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). The Established Protection Agency (EPA). This established TMDL will support the measures needed to attain water quality standards in George's Creek.

OPPORTUNITY FOR PUBLIC REVIEW AND COMMENT

The draft TMDL document is available by written request to Ms. Sheila Franklin at the Water Management Administration, Maryland Department of the Environment, 2500 Broening Highway, Baltimore, MD 21224, or by telephone at 410-631-3599*. For technical information please direct your request to Melissa Chatham, Technical and Regulatory Services Administration at the same mailing address or by telephone at 410-631-4893. Anyone wishing to review the draft TMDL and supporting information may call Ms. Franklin during normal business hours. The draft TMDL is also available from the Internet at web site http://www.mde.state.md.us/tmdl. Copies of the draft TMDL have been placed in the Frostburg Branch Library (301-687-0790), the George's Creek Regional Branch Library (301-463-2629), the Westernport Branch Library (301-359-0455) and in MDE's Library.

Written comments concerning the draft TMDL document may be submitted to the Department on or before November 26, 2001 and should be sent to Ms. Franklin at the above address or e-mailed to sfranklin@mde.state.md.us. If the Department determines there is sufficient interest, a public hearing on this matter may be held. All comments received during the comment period will be considered and the draft TMDL document may be revised accordingly prior to its final submittal to EPA for approval.

Second Prostate Cancer Screening Is Scheduled

Because of the overwhelming response to a prostate cancer screening held in September at the Garrett County Health Department, a second screening is being offered at the Grantsville Community Outreach building of the health department on Tuesday, Nov. 20, from 5:30 until 6:30 p.m.

The facility is located along Hershberger Lane.

Although the second leading cause of cancer death among men, prostate cancer is a highly curable disease if detected early, a spokesperson said. Prostate cancer screenings are a factor in lowering the death rates from the disease.

Several local agencies are working collaboratively toward the goal of fewer deaths in Garrett County caused by prostate cancer, the spokesperson said. They are Garrett County Memorial Hospital, American Cancer Society, Garrett County Health Department, and the University of Maryland Statewide Health Network, along with Dr. William Becker.

It is highly recommended that men who meet the following criteria be screened. These are also the criterion to be eligible for the Grantsville screening. The man must be age 50 and older, or age 40 and older if he is African-American or has a family history of prostate cancer. He should not have had a prostate specific antigen (PSA) blood test or digital rectal exam in the past 12 months. The participant should have never had prostate cancer or any other prostate problems in the past.

Because of the limited availability, appointments must be made for the screenings. The cost is a suggested $5 donation to help with processing expenses. For more information or to make an appointment, persons may call the Garrett County Health Department at 301-895-3111 or 301-334-8111.

"THOSE MAGNIFICENT MEN IN THEIR FLYING MACHINES..." (and women, of course). A week's respite because of bad weather on the originally scheduled date was just what the doctor ordered, as bright sunshine, clear blue skies, and T-shirt temperatures made Sunday's Autumn Glory Fly-In at the Garrett County Airport a rousing success. The family event drew areophiles of all ages who enjoyed over 90 scenic airplane rides, visits by vintage aircraft and Maryland State Police medevac helicopter Trooper 5, and the eagerly anticipated candy drop. The plane shown above is making the ever-popular "candy drop" run on the McHenry field. The 1941 Stearman biplane shown at the right lifting off into the wild blue yonder belongs to local resident Jason Synder, who provided scenic rides throughout the day-long event. Proceeds from the Fly-In were donated to the Sept. 11 Disaster Relief Fund.

Two Bears Killed During Separate Incidents Friday

Two black bears displaying reported threatening behaviors were shot and killed on the properties of two local residents during two separate incidents Friday. The property owners themselves, one a McHenry area farmer and the other a Friendsville area resident, shot the animals on their own property.

Neither man faces charges, as it is a property owner's right to shoot a bear on his or her own property that is posing an active threat to a human, livestock, or pets, said Heather Lynch, spokesperson for the Maryland Department of Natural Resources.

The first incident occurred early Friday morning at Todd Friend's farm, located along Oakland Sang Run Road approximately one mile north of Mayhew Inn Road. On Thursday Friend noticed that one of his five sheep — a pregnant ewe — was missing, and found its remains several hours later that same evening. He reportedly called OAKLAND CAN CALL TRAIN STATION ITS OWN after a recent $100,000 donation from Solipsys, a high-technology defense firm located in Prince George's County. The funds will be used to pay off the mortgage on the station, which is only a fireproofing and insulation project away from being completely restored. Solipsys donated $40,000 to the restoration effort last year. "When we saw how carefully our money was spent on the project last year and how appreciative the community was, we decided to donate again this year," Solipsys executive vice president David Buscher remarked. "The station is a natural tourism draw, and when you can bring in tourists, you bring in money to your entire business community." Oakland mayor Asa McCain, left, and Buscher are shown taking in the view from the structure's second-story window facing Liberty Street.

Commissioners Hear Alliance's Plea For Center

The Garrett County commissioners this week heard from representatives of the Southern Garrett Youth Alliance asking for help in developing a youth activities center in the county. The commissioners indicated that they would help the group secure grant money, but first it needed to clearly define its goals.

Yvette Nutter, spokesperson for the alliance, explained that her group was composed of parents, church leaders, community leaders, and members of organizations who wanted a place where area youth could participate in various age-appropriate activities.

"The county's long overdue for a youth center," said Nutter. She told the commissioners the county offers few activities for young residents to participate in, especially on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights, when teenagers like to "cruise the loop" in their cars in the area between Treasure Island parking lot and Southern High School, near Mountain Lake Park.

As a result of the lack of structured activities, Nutter explained, young people, perhaps due to boredom, too often resort to loitering, drinking, smoking, using drug, and engaging in sex. Her group, she said, wanted a safe environment where youth could go, which would, perhaps, deter them from those temptations.

Nutter reported that the alliance held a public meeting last week, seeking input on a youth center. Local officials from Oakland, Loch Lynn, Accident, and Mountain Lake Park attended the meeting and voiced their

Stewart Performing Today For United Nations, President Bush

Amanda K. Stewart, local trombonist and currently a sophomore at the Juilliard School in New York City, will perform this afternoon for President George Bush and the General Assembly of the United Nations. She is part of a brass quartet consisting of two trumpets, a tenor trombone, and a bass trombone. They will present a selection of hymns and fanfares from 2:15 to 3:15 p.m. at the Church of the Holy Family on 47th Street in New York.

H.E. Professor Ian Hall, who is the ambassador from the United Kingdom and Northern Ireland to the United Nations, selected Stewart for the performance. Ambassador Hall has given numerous lectures at the Juilliard School.

In March of this year, Stewart won the United States Army Band's Eastern Trombone Workshop's international collegiate classical solo competition held at Fort Myer, Va. She won a fellowship to the Music Academy of the West, and spent two months this summer playing and studying in Santa Barbara, Calif. She is continuing her studies with Joseph Alessi, principal trombone for the New York Philharmonic Orchestra in New York.

She is the daughter of Brad and Patsy Stewart, Oakland, and a 2000 honor graduate of Southern High School.

P.G. Defense Company Donates $100K To Train Station Effort

Solipsys Corporation, a small high-technology defense firm based in Laurel, made a $100,000 donation to the Oakland Train Station restoration effort last week. The largest single donation ever received through the Garrett County Community Action Committee, Solipsys's contribution comes a year after the company made a $40,000 donation to the restoration campaign and will be used to completely pay off the mortgage on the structure.

"We are happy to participate in the restoration of this historic building which is the centerpiece of Oakland's successful revitalization effort," Solipsys executive vice president David J. Buscher said as he presented the $100,000 check to Oakland mayor Asa McCain at the station. "When we were considering various projects for donations, Oakland's Main Street Program manager Glenn Tolbert told us how hard Mayor McCain and others had been working to turn things around in a community hit by unemployment and other economic problems.

"We're a small business, and like to help other small businesses," Buscher said. "We felt a donation here would get the most bang for its buck by going to a central tourist destination like the Oakland Train Station, because tourism has a spin-off effect benefiting small

Well-Known Penn Alps Founder Dr. Alta Schrock Dies At Age 90

Grantsville icon Dr. Alta Elizabeth Schrock, 90, who was best known for founding Penn Alps and the Spruce Forest Complex, died Wednesday, Nov. 7, 2001, at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland.

She spent her life working for the good of others, and her name is known throughout the region. She was the founder of Penn Alps Craft Shop, Spruce Forest Artisan Village, and 16 other community organizations in Garrett County and the surrounding countryside.

Born April 3, 1911, on Strawberry Hill Farm, near Grantsville, she was a daughter of the late Alvin C. and Amelia (Miller) Schrock.

She was a lifelong member of Springs Mennonite Church. She was a graduate of Salisbury High School and received her A.B. degree from Waynesburg (Pa.) College, master's degree from Kent State University, and a Ph.D. degree in biology from the University of Pittsburgh.

Her desire to help others took her across the globe. During World War II, she was a matron and practical nurse in three Civilian Public Service Camps, and following the war, she aided Mennonite refugees with their documents and place-

DC Mountain Partners Pledge To Hospital In Honor Of Heises

The Deep Creek Mountain Resort Development Partners and Helmuth and Evelyn Heise were honored at a special "kick-off" reception last week, as Garrett County Memorial Hospital released initial plans for a major hospital expansion/renovation project.

As the largest major contributor toward the funding of this project to date, the Deep Creek Mountain Resort Development Partners have pledged a total gift of $300,000 to the hospital's foundation. The Deep Creek Mountain Resort Development Partners have made their gift in honor of the founders of Wisp, Helmuth and Evelyn Heise. Appropriate recognition in the new facility and actual naming of the new emergency department will be planned and announced at a later date. The Deep Creek Mountain Resort Development Partners include Gary Daum, Eugene Frazee, Karen Myers, and Robert Rudy.

According to GCMH president Don Battista, the hospital project will include a new and expanded emergency department, additional space for laboratory and radiology services, a larger registration area that allows patients to be seated while

A PLEDGE OF $300,000 for a multi-million dollar expansion/renovation project at Garrett County Memorial Hospital was made last week by the Deep Creek Mountain Resort Development Partners, new owners of Wisp Resort, and the gift was made in honor of the founders and previous owners of the complex, Helmuth and Evelyn Heise. The pledge was the unofficial kickoff of a capital fund-raising campaign by the GCMH Foundation, about which more information will be released soon. The above photo was taken at a reception held at the Wisp last week. Pictured from left are DC Mountain partners Karen Myers, Gene Frazee, and Gary Daum, and Mr. and Mrs. Heise. Kitzmiller Gets $213,679 Grant From MDHCD

Another major step toward making Kitzmiller an attractive community for tourists has been taken with the approval of a $213,679 grant from the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development.

Some of the money is to be used for the removal of several dilapidated buildings, while the remainder is earmarked for residents to use in rehabilitating their homes.

Mayor Nancy Brady said that the awarding of the large grant was a very exciting event for her small community of 200 people. "We have been working hard in this community to make things better, and the residents keep saying that they want to see some real changes. Well, this grant will make those highly visible improvements possible rather quickly," she said.

In addition to the most recent grant, Kitzmiller has also been the recipient of other monies, including

Westernport Fire "Under Control," Per Alco Dispatch

A wildfire that had burned up to 350 acres of woodland just southeast of Westernport yesterday was described as "under control" late this morning by the Allegany County fire dispatch office. Firefighters from five different companies remained on the scene as of this morning "monitor ing hotspots," the dispatcher said.

The blaze broke out at approximately 1 p.m. Tuesday afternoon in a wooded rural area approximately ½ mile southeast of Westernport near Horse Rock Hill. The conflagration was initially reported as 10 acres in size, but fueled by extremely dry conditions and shifting winds of 10-15 mph and exacerbated by a number of

Savage River Reservoir Closing To Public As A Safety Measure

The Savage River Reservoir will soon be closed to the public, following security measures taken by the Upper Potomac River Commission. The Dam Safety Division of the Maryland Department of the Environment requested that the precautionary steps be taken in the wake of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks.

"The Upper Potomac River Commission apologizes for any inconvenience and asks the public to understand the present need for heightened security," said James H. Taylor, commission superintendent. "The commission will reopen the Savage Dam areas to the public as soon as it can reasonably do so."

In order to deter possible terrorist attacks to the dam, Taylor announced that the following measures will be taken to ensure the dam's safety:

- A motion sensor will be installed on the main control building.
- Fencing will be installed in the following areas: 518 feet of fencing from the crest of the Savage Dam to the parking lot at the control building, 225 feet of fencing at the weather station boat ramp area, and 93 feet of fencing at the Dry Run ramp area.
- New lighting will be installed on the crest of the dam, lighting both upstream and downstream. Five poles will be installed with dusk-to-dawn lights, and three new dusk-to-dawn lights will be installed around the main control building.

The Maryland State Police have also been patrolling the dam area several times daily as an added precautionary measure since the Sept. 11 event.

Additionally, access to the fenced-off areas will be will be through gates. The commission will not permit public access to the fenced-off areas until further notice, and trespassers will be prosecuted, said Taylor.

The Maryland State Police have also been patrolling the dam area several times daily as an added precautionary measure since Sept. 11.

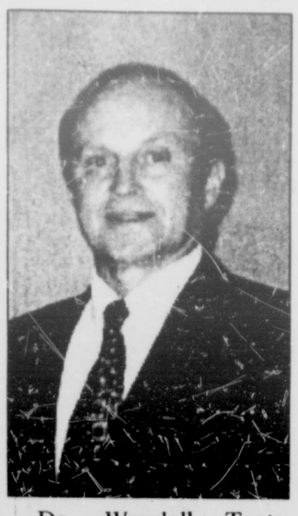
County School Superintendent Receives Award



Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent of Garrett County Schools, was recently awarded the Florence Beck Kurdle Award for Community Activism and Achievement, for the recent move of the board of education offices from the building along Fourth Street to part of the M&T Bank building along Second Street in downtown Oakland.

This award, named in honor of the former chair of the State Economic Growth, Resource Protection and Planning Commission, recognizes the personal and/or professional accomplishments of an individual who has helped make Smart Growth a reality in Maryland.

Other members of Teets's project team were Oakland mayor Asa McCain, Del. George Edwards, Sen. John Hafer, Garrett County commissioners Fred Holliday, Wendell Beitzel, and Ernie Gregg, and assistant school superintendent Dr. Brenda McCartney. Dr. Teets was presented the award at the 7th annual Smart Growth awards ceremony by Gov. Parris N. Glendening.

"I accept this award on behalf of the board of education, the county commissioners, and the town," Teets said. "I am very appreciative of this, but this was definitely a joint effort. This was an excellent opportunity to spur economic development and bring 60 people downtown."

The State Economic Growth, Resource Protection and Planning Commission, established in 1993, annually presents awards to individuals and organizations that advance Maryland's Smart Growth goals. The awards honor efforts to stop sprawl development, save natural resources, support and strengthen existing communities, and save public dollars that would otherwise build costly new infrastructure to support sprawl.

This year the commission received 36 nominations and selected 11 for recognition.

ANOTHER CHAPTER 13 CHAMPIONSHIP, their 10th Tournament of Bands chapter title in the past 11 years, was captured by the Northern High School Marching Band at the chapter finals in Martinsburg, W.Va., on Saturday. The win propelled the band back into the Atlantic Coast Conference Group I championships, which will be held this weekend in Scranton, Pa. In winning the Group I Chapter 13 title, Northern outscored Westmar, Southern, Williamsport, Musselman, Hedgesville, Frankfort, Martinsburg, Boonsboro, and Jefferson high schools. Amanda Bell received the overall Best Drum Major award, and the guard received third place overall. The band also won the Best Music and Best Marching trophies in Group I. Pictured above are the senior members of the band, who were also recognized at last Friday's home football game. Pictured front, from left, are: Jarred Clevenger, Amanda Bell, and Todd Foley. Standing, same order, are: Jamie Dumire, Brandy Fike, Jenny Kirkham, Christy Holler, and Stephanie Frazee. Other seniors not present for the photo are Amanda Hahn, Steffanie Kahl, Megan Sisler, and James Thomas. The band, under the direction of Bill Robinson, will depart for Scranton this Friday and will compete on Saturday at about 11:30 a.m.

SHS Band Wins Second; Going To ACC Tourney

The Southern Garrett Marching Band recorded its highest score of the season and placed second in Group II competition Saturday at the Chapter XIII Tournament of Bands Championships, hosted this year by Martinsburg (W.Va.) High School. The score was high enough to qualify the band for this weekend's Atlantic Coast Conference Championships, which are held in Scranton, Pa.

The band finished second only to Allegany High School, earning a score of 86.1, and drum major Suzanne Gilbert once again received the Best Drum Major specialty award. Allegany, ranked among the top few bands in the entire Atlantic Coast Conference, was awarded a score of 93.5. Musselman High finished third with a score of 83.45.

The SGMB, under the direction of Richard Clever and Duane Salisbury, will leave for Scranton this Saturday and compete early on Sunday.

"Our goal was to qualify for the TOB Atlantic Coast Championships, and we did," Clever said. "We closed with a very solid performance.

"Our kids have worked very hard all season, and we are really looking forward to our performance on Sunday," he said.

The band has qualified for the ACC championships numerous times since becoming a field show competition band under Clever in the 1980s.

The board will meet in closed session from 4:05 to 5:30 p.m. and reconvene in open session immediately thereafter. Time is set aside at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. for public comment and participation on any topic.

The public is invited to attend.

West Virginia Man Arrested After Pursuit

A West Virginia man was arrested after he fled Garrett County sheriff's deputies and a chase ensued through western Garrett County into eastern Preston County late Tuesday night.

Timothy Scott Stonesifer, 21, Corinth, W.Va., was operating a red Chevy cavalier on Hutton Road when a deputy verified his high rate of speed through the stationary radar he was using. According to the deputy, the vehicle failed to stop after he activated his emergency equipment.

A pursuit continued through Corinth, W.Va., on Route 7 to Alpine Lake Road. The pursuit then turned onto Alpine Lake Road and back again onto Route 7, heading eastbound. The vehicle was eventually stopped by deputies in Corinth.

Stonesifer was taken into custody and was transported to Kingwood by the West Virginia State Police, police said. Charges are pending in reference to the pursuit by the sheriff's department.

Also assisting in the pursuit were Oakland City Police, Maryland State Police, Terra Alta Police, Preston County Sheriff's Office, and West Virginia State Police.

In other police news, two people were arrested and charged with driving under the influence of alcohol (DUI) by sheriff's deputies.

Jerry Hobert Shillingburg, 53, Terra Alta, W.Va., was stopped by deputies on Hutton Road Saturday around 11 p.m.

He was arrested and charged with DUI and failing to drive right of center. He was later released.

Deputies made another traffic stop around 2:30 a.m. on Sunday on Oak Street, Oakland.

The driver of the vehicle, Donna Jean Park, 35, Oakland, was arrested and charged with DUI and failing to drive right of center. She was later released on her own recognizance.

Oakland's Main Street Christmas Seeks Vendors

The Oakland Main Street program is once again gearing up for "Christmas on Main Street" and organizers of the event are looking for food and craft vendors to sell their goods.

Persons wishing to participate by selling hot drinks, food, or crafts, should call Connie Margison at 301-334-2571 or leave a message at 301-334-0676.

Santa and his live reindeer highlight this two-day event scheduled for Friday, Nov. 30, and Saturday, Dec. 1. Free pictures with Santa, along with other offerings are presently in the planning stages.

As a grand prize drawing for the area, hundreds of dollars of Greater Oakland Business Association (GOBA) bucks will be awarded to area shoppers who sign up at participating sponsors. Winners will be announced during the weekend of the Christmas on Main Street event.

Sponsors will receive a decorative box for customers to enter the drawings along with radio and print mention of the business. GOBA bucks will only be redeemable at participating sponsors and must be redeemed by Dec. 24. The cost of sponsorship is $30.

Persons interested in the sponsorship should also call Margison for more information.

D-DAY VETERAN AWARDED MEDAL — Finzel Road resident Austin McKenzie is shown above with the Jubilee of Liberty Medal he received recently in recognition of his service during the June 1944 invasion of Normandy. The medal was presented by Rep. Roscoe Bartlett on behalf of the Regional Council of Normandy and the Governor of the Province of Lower Normandy. Initially minted in 1994, the medal was presented to Normandy Campaign veterans who returned to France for the 50th anniversary observances of Operation Overlord. As many veterans could not travel to Normandy, the province's governor authorized that the remaining medals be presented in the U.S. An ammunition supply truck driver with the 175th Service Company, 175th Regiment, 29th Infantry Division, McKenzie landed on Omaha Beach late on the first day of the invasion. He escaped serious injury just a few days afterward when his vehicle, loaded with ammunition including mortar shells and bullets, was hit by enemy fire four miles inland. A lighter moment of the war is pictured below as McKenzie, left, and two of his Army buddies embark in search of some well-deserved R&R. The Avilton native is the son of Lola and Ray McKenzie, who supervised a Civilian Conservation Corps camp located near the Savage River.

ment when entering the United States.

She was the coordinator of a neighborhood center in Berlin, Germany, in 1952. During that same year, she was involved in postwar voluntary service and relief work in Germany with the International Refugee Organization, Church World Service, and Mennonite Central Committee, where she was director of a five-woman team.

Dr. Schrock was a professor of biology at numerous colleges and universities. She taught at Frostburg State College from 1960 to 1977; Goshen College, Goshen, Ind., from 1946 to 1948; American University, Washington, D.C. from 1944 to 1946; University of Pittsburgh, 1943; and Bluffton (Ohio) College from 1940 to 1941.

While teaching at Goshen College, Dr. Schrock was co-founder and director of the Mennonite Youth Village for Underprivileged Children. During that same year, she was also a co-founder and charter member of the Churchwide Child Welfare Committee of the Mennonite Church.

The development of the Springs Historical Society, Springs, Pa., began in 1957. The next year, Dr. Schrock founded two long-successful events in Springs, Pa.: the Springs Folk Festival and the Springs Museum of Early Settlers.

In 1958, she was the founder and consultant to Penn Alps Inc., Grantsville, which provided a ministry to area residents, with particular emphasis on marketing artists' handiwork. The ever-popular restaurant and craft shop were opened along U.S. Route 40 in 1959.

Dr. Schrock also operated in the capacity of editor. She served as editor of The Casselman Chronicle, which was published by the Springs Historical Society, from 1961 to 1976. From 1964 to 1977, she was also editor of the annual publication, The Journal of the Alleghenies.

She also spread her work to the southern end of the county, when in 1965 she was co-founder and board member of Garrett County Community Action Committee Inc.

In 1977, she became president and founder of the Casselwood Corporation, which was formed to provide training and employment for area residents, and to produce furniture of quality and integrity using native hardwoods.

She also played a key role in the foundation of the Spruce Forest Artisan Village and the annual series of summer concerts, Music at Penn Alps.

Throughout her lifetime, many honors and awards have been bestowed on her. She has been inducted into the Maryland Community Action Hall of Fame and the Maryland Women's Hall of Fame, 1991. She also reigned as Golden Ambassador to the Autumn Glory Festival in 1990. Dr. Schrock was also awarded an honorary doctor of humanities from Waynesburg College and doctor of humane letters from Frostburg State University.

She was preceded in death by three sisters, Beulah May, Anna Catherine, and Emma Lucille Kinsinger.

She is survived by five sisters, Naomi Green Sigler, Orpha Shrader, Ada Schrock, and Elnora Schrock, all of Salisbury-Springs, Pa. area, Evelyn Kaufman, Moundridge, Kan.; one brother, Allen Schrock, Springs; and close friend, Corinn Jordan.

Friends will be received at the Newman Funeral Home, Grantsville, on Friday, Nov. 9, 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m. A service will be conducted at Springs Mennonite Church on Saturday at 2 p.m., with the Rev. Steven Heatwole officiating.

Interment will be in the Springs Cemetery.

Expressions of sympathy may be directed to either Springs Historical Society or the Springs Mennonite Church.

A more personal account of Dr. Schrock's life and accomplishments will be featured in next week's edition of The Republican.

DARNESTOWN TEENS DONATE TO SANTA — A truckload of brand new toys was presented to Lou "Santa Claus" Stouffer this week by a group of 13-year-old girls from Darnestown, Md. The girls are students at the Mary of Nazareth School. They traveled four hours with the load of toys to personally present them to the mountaintop's own Santa this week. While a number of their classmates went to New York City for a trip, these girls said they wanted to do something different. "We just wanted to help someone," one of the girls said. The toys are new in their boxes, left over from a bought-out toy store. The Brandon Construction Corp., owned by one of the teen's parents, was renovating the store for a new Rite Aid, and the owner, Joe Guillespie, gave the construction crew the toys to distribute somewhere. "We looked for months for someone to give these to," said Gail Brinegar, an organizer of the project. Rich Orr, a local realtor and friend to the Brinegar family, suggested Stouffer. "This is just perfect," Brinegar said. Stouffer, who with his wife Lola works all year to gather toys and clothing for area children, said he was very grateful for the donation. Pictured from left are Krista Sheehan, Kristin Fink, Leah Scanlan, Anastasia Zakielarz, Santa, and Nicole Delullis.

Judge Burnett To Speak For Veterans Day

The Honorable Ralph Burnett, Garrett County District Court judge, has been designated the main speaker at the annual Veterans Day program. The program is scheduled for 11 a.m. on Monday, Nov. 12, at the Garrett County Courthouse, Oakland. Weather permitting, the program will be held outside on the courthouse terrace; otherwise, it will be held inside the courthouse, under the dome.

Burnett served as a 1st lieutenant in Korea from 1966 to 1968 in the U.S. Army's 4/7 ACR. He is a member of the American Legion, Proctor Kildow Post 071, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the Vietnam Veterans of America.

The judge received a J.D. from the University of Baltimore Law School in 1972 and was Garrett County state's attorney from 1974 to 1978. In December 1993 he was appointed District Court judge. The Southern Garrett High School Band, bagpiper John Grant of the Garrett Community College Pipes and Drums, the VFW Post 10077 firing squad, and the Proctor Kildow Post 071 honor guard will also participate in the program.

Carl Rebele, 2nd vice commander of Proctor Kildow Post 071, will lead the program.

Immediately following the event at the courthouse, the post's honor guard will convene at Wal-Mart, Oakland, to perform a flag dedication program.

The public is invited to attend both programs.

State Jobless Rate Inches Up; County's Drops

Employment reached a record high level for the month of September, while simultaneously, the need for temporary workers continued to diminish employment. This decline was, however, minimized by both the withdrawal of seasonal workers from the job market and by the re-entrance of school system employees. The interaction of these labor market movements caused unemployment to inch up slightly, rising from 3.9 percent in August to 4.0 percent in September. Maryland's unemployment rate remains lower than the nation's 4.7 percent level.

Meanwhile, Garrett County's jobless rate dropped to its lowest level in years, from 5.7 percent in August to 4.8 percent in September. The September 2000 rate was 6.6 percent.

Local unemployment rates either declined or remained unchanged in 16 of Maryland's 24 jurisdictions.

During September, continued reductions in seasonal jobs caused employment to decline as anticipated. Even with this decline, employment, at 2,776,651, was a record-setting level for the month, exceeding last year's worker count by just more than 52,910 people. The movement of workers out of the job market helped to compensate somewhat for this decline, holding the unemployment increase down to about 3,900.

Recall activity in education and transportation services during September helped to override the impact of normal seasonal reductions in construction and in select retail trade and services industries.

Bears Killed

DNR, but as it was already after 8 p.m. when the DNR Wildlife and Heritage Office "bear team" at Mt. Nebo were made aware of the sheep kill, Friend requested that the agency's wildlife biologists meet him at his farm the following morning.

Friend secured his remaining four sheep in a barn for their protection for the night but, at approximately 1:25 a.m. Friday, he heard a commotion coming from the structure. He looked outside to see several sheep running from the barn, and went outdoors to investigate. He reportedly saw a bear dragging one of his sheep from the barnyard, and shot the animal twice with a rifle, striking it in the chest and leg. The bear traveled approximately 400 yards from where it was shot before it died.

A necropsy performed at Mt. Nebo located partially digested sheep remains in the intestines of the 345-pound bruin.

The second incident occurred at Friday night at a Friendsville Addison Road residence. At approximately 7 p.m. Greg Lytle reportedly heard his wife — who had just walked out the basement door holding their child — screaming just outside the house. Lytle and his dog, a terrier mix, exited the home. What Lynch termed as a "stand-off" ensued between the bear and the dog, with approximately 20 yards separating the pair.

Lytle then fired his rifle, killing the 150-pound bruin with one shot to the head.

The Lytle family had believed that a pet goat missing since July was taken by a bear, although DNR never was able to confirm that a bear was involved. The goat's remains were never located, Lynch said. After Friday's shooting, the family was asked to remove a bait pile from their yard, reportedly used to attract deer and other wildlife, that was in place at the time of the incident.

After reviewing the Natural Resources Polic report, Garrett County State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch declined to press charges.

SERVING YOU FOR OVER 11 YEARS!

One in a Million...

Garrett County lost one of its most remarkable citizens yesterday when Dr. Alta Schrock of Grantsville breathed her last, concluding a long life of nearly immeasurable service to her God and to literally thousands of people.

One might think of Alta as the Mother Teresa of Garrett County. She was a woman of great vision and was unwavering in the pursuit of her goals, which always centered on improving the quality of life for other people. But while her pursuit of these goals was relentless and often demanding, she was able to attain them with a rare, Christ-like humility. Her interaction with others along the way was always graced by goodness, courtesy, and genuine caring, which was certainly a major key to her success. It was difficult for people to not want to assist her. But she had little interest in personal recognition; in fact, she was rather embarrassed by it.

Her influence and the fruits of her many decades of labor reached people well beyond the borders of Garrett County, however. She was practically a legend throughout the region, and one of her many endeavors was serving people overseas through mission work.

She was one of the most multifaceted persons ever born, and she utilized each and every one of her talents in service to others. She was an intellectual giant. As mentioned, she was a great visionary. She was also a writer, an historian, a scientist, a manager, an environmentalist, a promoter, a preservationist, and a teacher. She had a tremendous love of culture and the arts, and via the Penn Alps complex provided an opportunity for artisans to create, and for throngs of people to come and enjoy those creations, be they woven baskets, pieces of pottery, or classical music.

Retirement was practically a foreign word to her. Despite her advancing years and accompanying health problems, she never stopped working, never stopped dreaming, never stopped smiling, and never stopped caring.

Only about one in a million live the kind of life that Alta lived, and undoubtedly she departed feeling like there was so much more to do. But each and every Garrett County resident, plus thousands of non-residents, are in some way, directly or indirectly, better off because of this solitary life. And the same can be said for future lives, as the results of her work will remain for decades to come.

It was truly an honor and a privilege to have known her.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

As the program director for the Garrett County and Allegany County Office of the Epilepsy Foundation of the Chesapeake Region (EFCR), I am writing today to share with you a story of the generosity that thrives in this community. I would like to call attention to a local businessman who has given of himself — through both the donation of his time and of his financial resources — to improve the lives of others around him.

Bill Roszell, owner of Garrett Automotive, has selflessly taken it upon himself to become an active supporter of EFCR and the people whom we serve. Mr. Roszell continues to believe that epilepsy support services are truly beneficial to the people who receive them, and he has generously seen to it that the services provided in this community succeed. EFCR has recently enjoyed donations from the Men's Christian Softball team through Bill and his wife Sharon as well as Bill's presence at local support group meetings.

As a regional non-profit organization EFCR rarely receives such gifts, but Mr. Roszell's gifts have not consisted of merely writing checks. Recently, a family whose child participates in EFCR's programs encountered problems with their car. Without reliable transportation, it is impossible for their child to attend necessary medical appointments. When we turned to Mr. Roszell for assistance, he paid for new tires for the family out of his own pocket. It is this commitment and selflessness that have prompted me to write to you.

Over the past several weeks, Americans have pulled together in so many ways because, in light of recent events, it is clear that we are all neighbors and we all rely on each other. Mr. Roszell's actions have shown those of us affiliated with the Epilepsy Foundation what being a neighbor and supporting each other really means. Thank you, Bill, for reminding us that heroes aren't just on the news; they are right next door as well.

Sincerely,
Sara Hoffman
Program Director
Epilepsy Foundation for the Chesapeake Region/ Abilities Network

To the Editor:

As so many of us did, I felt a profound sense of loss and grief yesterday morning when I learned that Dr. Alta Schrock had died. Those feelings were soon softened by the thought that Dr. Schrock could finally rest with the angels after so many decades of work. Within moments I realized the folly of my thinking. Dr. Schrock at rest is somewhat of a contradiction in terms. It seems to me that, as the immense spirit that is Alta broke free of that frail form, she may have looked at God and said, "Well, now we can get back to work."

I for one will always find those compassionate, intelligent blue eyes twinkling a challenge at me from a sunny summer sky. I have no doubt that she will be among us.

Accident

To the Editor:

You recently issued a challenge to local churches to donate $400 to the ailing Garrett County Meals on Wheels Program.

At our November meeting, the Junior Woman's Civic Club voted to make a $400 donation and extend a challenge to all the other area civic organizations to do the same.

Our group has fewer than 20 members and works very hard all year to raise money for local organizations. Being able to help such a worthy program when they need us most makes it all worthwhile.

We hope other civic organizations will meet, or better yet, beat our donation and help feed our area seniors.

Sincerely,
Members of the JWCC

To the Editor:

There was a public meeting held at Broad Ford Elementary last Thursday. The topic of discussion was the need for a youth center. Those of you who were not able to make it, or did not know about it, missed a great meeting. We had a turnout of 33 people — youth and adults.

Included in the attendance was Bud Otis from Congressman Bartlett's office; Delegate George Edwards; Dave Beard, who represented the Mayor and Town Council of Oakland; Roger Shaffer, who represented the Mayor and Town Council of Loch Lynn and the Loch Lynn After School Program; Richard Carlson, the Mayor of Accident; Police Chief John Sines; Deputy Corley and Chuck Nolan from the Sheriff's office; Mary Dale, representing the Oakland Planning Group; Ken Witte from Mtn. Lake Park; Kelly Wade, a reporter from Southern High School's newspaper, The Acorn; as well as other parents and youth.

Almost everyone who signed in at the meeting left willing to move this project forward. Mr. Otis, who represented Congressman Bartlett, told us that Congressman Bartlett wanted him to convey to us that we had 100% of the congressman's support. He also told us that there is money available and they would help us secure funding, but we had to start at the local level, which we intend to do. Chuck Nolan and Deputy Corley said they were told to tell us that Sheriff Sanders supports our effort and would do what ever they could to help us. The same for Police Chief John Sines, The Mayor and Town Council of Oakland, Roger Shaffer, Mary Dale, and Ken Witte. I sincerely thank everyone who came to the meeting, and who spoke and offered their support.

We are looking for more volunteers. We invite the participation of our young people. We are willing to listen to their suggestions and hear what they have to say. We encourage more adult participation, especially those who are willing to give of their time, donate their services, and make monetary donations. If anyone owns a building or facility that is not being used and is willing to donate it to use as a youth center, I'm sure there would be a tax advantage involved. We'd love to hear from anyone who wants to become involved in making this project a reality. We especially need someone who is willing to give of his or her time and services to help us set up a non-profit organization.

To volunteer in any capacity, you may call me, Yvette Nutter, at 301-334-1223.

Again, thank you to everyone who came to the meeting and committed themselves to this project. Remember: It takes a village!

Yvette Nutter

Teaching The Values That Make America Strong

Editor's note: American Education Week is November 11-17. The following is a guest editorial written for this national observance.

by Bob Chase
President, National Education Association

The national response in America's classrooms to the destruction and loss from terrorist attacks on the U.S. has been nothing short of magnificent. This year's celebration of American Education Week (Nov. 11-17) must begin with a salute to the New York City teachers and school staff who risked their lives lo lead local children to safety, and to the critical role other educators are playing in reclaiming the nation's spirit.

This American Education Week, I urge the nation to take a moment to recognize that public schools are on the frontlines in this new era because it is in classrooms, more than any other place, that we create and nurture the citizens of tomorrow.

As President Bush said, the terrorists attacked America because they despise our values. We will defeat this enemy by arms and law, but also by holding fast to the values that define us as Americans.

America is defined not by its wealth and abundance, but by our freedom, our liberties, and our commitment to an open, tolerant, democratic society.

In the months and years ahead, it is our challenge to guide an entire generation of young Americans to understand the freedom and ideals that our country represents.

Our schools are superbly suited to this task. For two centuries, public schools have been preservers and transmitters of America's ideals. In our schools, generation after generation of native-born and immigrant students have been taught America's core values.

In first grade, we teach our students to face the flag respectfully and to pledge allegiance to "one nation, under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all." And that is just the beginning. For 12 years, through study and discussion of American history, literature, and government, we nurture citizens and patriots.

Public schools never stopped teaching values. We teach them explicitly, and more important, we model values. Everything we do and say in front of our students is a values statement — and those values include the all-American values of honesty, responsibility, self-discipline, and love of country.

Public schools also stress one other value that is especially urgent today: tolerance and respect for people of different colors, cultures, and faiths. In our most diverse public schools — often with children from dozens of countries — teaching students to cooperate and excel in a multicultural setting is a powerfully important lesson. As a student at one remarkably diverse high school told me: "We all get along — all of us. If anyone tried to act prejudiced or to hurt someone, the other kids just wouldn't allow it."

This student may not realize it, but she is a "combatant" in the civilized world's struggle against terror and hate. So are her teachers.

The success of America's homeland defense will depend on more than metal detectors and sky marshals. It also will depend on the values taught in America's public schools.

Bob Chase is a middle school teacher.

State Of Maryland Preparedness

by Colonel David B. Mitchell, superintendent, Maryland State Police, and General James F. Fretterd, adjutant general, Maryland National Guard

No one would argue that our nation was forever changed when terrorists struck without warning on September 11, 2001. Since then, Marylanders and citizens across our country have been on edge, concerned about their safety and what could happen next.

A primary goal of terrorists is to cause unrelenting fear. Osama bin Laden said that was his plan for Americans. President George W. Bush said in his speech to Congress that it is imperative that Americans live with freedom from fear.

Our mission is to do everything we can to ensure the safety and security of Maryland citizens. We will accomplish this mission with diligence, vigilance, and competence.

Our diligence is unrelenting. Led by Governor Parris Glendening and Lt. Governor Kathleen Kennedy Townsend, our preparation for acts of terrorism began long before September 11. A detailed protocol to coordinate federal, state, and local resources has been established through periodic meetings of a terrorism forum that we jointly chair. We are part of a team reviewing statewide response readiness to ensure that any changes in threats facing our country can be dealt with appropriately in Maryland.

All Maryland state troopers were trained last year about weapons of mass destruction (WMD) and what to do in the event of an emergency. The Maryland State Police has a full-time WMD coordinator who works with local law enforcement and fire departments. A retired FBI expert has been hired by the state police to coordinate Maryland's Terrorism Network, which communicates the latest intelligence information to federal, state, and local police agencies.

The Maryland National Guard has fielded a Weapons of Mass Destruction Civil Support Team (Light) for the past few years. This 22-person unit is comprised of citizen-soldiers well trained through their military positions and civilian jobs to respond to terrorist actions.

Our vigilance is unceasing. State police and the Maryland National Guard maintain a heightened state of alert in the air, on Maryland roads, and in our communities. We operate around-the-clock command posts at our Special Operations Division and our Criminal Enforcement Command to respond to leads and calls for law enforcement assistance. We maintain a constant presence at the FBI command center, coordinating information and responses. We operate Emergency Operations Centers (EOCs) at the Maryland Emergency Management Agency (MEMA), as well as the Maryland Army National Guard.

When Governor Glendening ordered increased security at our airports, troopers respond immediately until the guard's citizen-soldiers were trained and deployed to Baltimore-Washington International Airport, as well as airports in Hagerstown and Salisbury. Troopers remain at the Salisbury and Hagerstown airports and at other locations that could be potential targets. State police experts in commercial vehicles are conducting intensified inspections of drivers and shipments passing through the state. They have assisted Baltimore Police with truck inspections during large public events.

Our competence is unbending. Our state troopers and military personnel are highly trained, dedicated, and courageous. They are ready to meet any challenges that await us. Those same qualities are shared by the thousands of other police officers, fire and rescue personnel, hazardous material responders, and health officials in Maryland, who are working together to keep our state safe.

Our primary concern in all we do is the safety and welfare of all Marylanders. We hope our diligence, vigilance, and commitment will reassure our citizens that Maryland is still the best state in which to live, work, and raise a family.

ARMISTICE DAY

On the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month of 1918, the warring powers of the world entered into an armistice, effectively ending World War I. The day was observed for the next 36 years. Congress passed a law in 1954 transforming Armistice Day into Veteran's Day. It was a typical American move to disconnect something from its history.

Veterans of all wars surely deserve a day, but it is a pity that the day had to be the old Armistice Day. In my youth there were still people who commonly referred to November 11 as "Armistice Day," mostly because they were old enough to feel a connection themselves with World War I. The sense of historical continuity lost, the original name of the day lost, the message of that day and of the war which it concluded has also been lost.

That loss is all the more significant because the idea of an "armistice" came to dominate the world's notion of how to conclude a war. Stopping the fighting and making peace became two separate things, separate as they rarely had been before in history.

The so-called peace treaty following the armistice of World War I all but ensured that there would be a World War II, even as the peace treaty was designed to prevent another world conflagration. A mere 35 years later the attempt to make peace would, as a practical matter, be abandoned. Korea remains today in an official state of war.

I say that Armistice Day was transformed into Veteran's Day rather than that the day was merely renamed. The shift was substantial from remembering the end of a war (and thus the suggestion implicit in the name, of ending all wars) to an honoring of all who have worn the uniform of their grateful nation.

World War I gave the world an occasion to think about the effect of war in a way that no other war in history had, as 20-30% of the total male populations among the major European combatants were casualties (killed, died, wounded, imprisoned, and missing) in that war. In absolute numbers nearly 15 million men died out of a total of 105 million mobilized on both sides.

World War II inflicted another 20 million military deaths (over half of which were in the USSR). Nearly that many again were killed as civilians, including the six million Jews exterminated by the Nazis.

Making peace has become a dead-end street of its own. Those of my generation remember painfully well the so-called Paris Peace talks in the '60s and '70s which had two clear results: 1) the size and number of the tables to be used for the talks were settled; 2) the Communists bought enough time for the North Vietnamese to win the war.

Today the United Nations sends peace-keeping forces to places in open states of war. When thoughtful people have asked, "Doesn't there have to be peace before anyone can keep peace?" they have been brushed aside.

As the Lord revealed to the prophet Jeremiah, in an ironic, perhaps even bitter expression, more than 2,500 years ago, "They have healed the hurt of the daughter of my people slightly, saying, peace, peace; when there is no peace." (6:11, 8:11)

Someone asked me why I have not said more in this column about the current war against terrorism and which has already devolved into a war against Afghanistan. The reason is that what I think is contrary to the mood of the nation.

This war — and I believe it to be a war — is permanent. It will be like the wars against poverty and drugs, a continuous state of affairs. My guess is that in a few years we will have accepted a tolerable level of deaths from terrorists as today we accept a tolerable level of deaths from driving automobiles (40,000 a year, if anybody is interested). If so, then in that very sad way we shall have joined the larger world where security is a dream or a luxury.

We need Armistice Day back. We need a day to reflect upon the nature, causes, and costs of war. We need to consider the ways in which we construct peace for ourselves today that ensure war in our future. We need to come to terms with the degree to which the world hates us, and to study that fact as something other than a public relations problem.

Armistice Day asks us to think about our future through our history. Such reflection is essential to any hope for peace.

Meals On Wheels: More Than Food Delivered By Program

by Mary Sincell McEwen

Meals on Wheels, a function of Garrett County Community Action, is more than simply the delivery of hot food to about 150 elderly, homebound Garrett Countians. The program offers these people a regular visit from a kind delivery person who sometimes brings in their mail or takes out their garbage. It provides them with some human interaction every day, something to look forward to, something to count on.

"What's the weather like today, John?" asked one recipient in Oakland yesterday. John Downer is one of GCCA's drivers for the Meals on Wheels program, as well as Head Start, and he enjoys his daily circuit around Oakland and Crellin. A ride with him on that trip yesterday offered this writer a first-hand glimpse of what Meals on Wheels truly provides to many local people. John is distressed about the recent cut-back in the program, which has limited the delivery days from five per week to three.

"We shouldn't cut back now, with winter coming on," he said. "What's going to happen when we get five feet of snow? These people get scared. They are alone. And when it snows, they are really alone."

Downer, who lived most of his adult life in Fort Worth, Texas, retired in the mid-1990s and played golf for two months, he said, before getting terribly bored. He then moved to Garrett County (where he was born, incidently), and was hired by Community Action. He has driven the Head Start bus for nearly seven years now, and has delivered meals for over five.

Traveling along the back roads John takes every day to deliver food, one would think the former Texan would be pleased to have his Meals on Wheels duty days cut from five to three, especially with winter coming. He doesn't lose any on-the-clock time with the reduction, so isn't it a relief to skip the two days?

"Oh, no," he said. "I don't mind driving out here at all. The roads are always plowed in the winter. And there are some expert drivers around here who taught me how to handle the snow. It's beautiful country. And the people are so nice."

The people are the 21 homebound elderly who receive meals from John now three days each week. They are mostly women, and mostly on their own. Some have family, some don't. He greets them all with kind words and warm food. One is blind, another has multiple sclerosis. Another just had a hip replacement, and a few have terrible memory problems. But they all know John.

"Oh, John's just great," said Helen Wolfe. "We love to see him." Wolfe and her mother, Gertrude Bernard, are recipients of Meals of Wheels. Helen said that although her mother is an extremely active and healthy 96-year-old, her blindness prevents her from safely preparing regular meals. Until asked directly about it, Helen didn't mention how her own MS affects her ability to prepare healthful meals for herself. "If I'm having a bad day, I just don't feel like preparing anything. So it's nice to have the meal delivered, of course," she said. Her "bad day" can be a result of anything from numbness in her legs to complete immobility, all common with MS.

Lillie Moats in Oakland enjoys her visits with John, too. He knows who most of the family members are in the array of photographs displayed in her meticulously clean home. "I like it to be clean," she said, and John said it always is, even though she is recovering from hip surgery. When she was young, Lillie worked as a house cleaner for many years, and also took care of elderly people.

Emma Rumer lives out of town in a farm house set off the road. The walk down to the door can be quite an adventure in winter, John said.

"Sometimes the snow is way up past my knees," he said, laughing. "But I just push on through because I know Emma is in there, waiting for me."

The mother of 10 children, Emma has many loving family members. But because she lives so far out, she is often alone when winter is at its worst. "It's good to know that John is here to check on her," said Shirley Pittman, one of Emma's daughters, who in good weather is at the house every day. But because of her own health problems, traveling from her Mountain Lake Park home is out of the question when the air is frigid and the snow deep. "I just have to stay in on those days," she said.

So John Downer is the mainstay for many people, as are the other drivers in all of Garrett County who deliver the approximate 150 dinners three days per week. One man in Finzel greets the driver every day with a new joke, and another waits at the end of his lane with a basket to save the driver the walk down to his small house. All of these people have worked hard in their lives. They have reared children, served in churches and schools, been volunteers on fire departments and auxiliaries, and paid their taxes. They are eligible for food because they deserve it.

"There are no monetary guidelines for Meals on Wheels," explained Adina Brode of the Area Agency on Aging. "The recipients are basically housebound and are fending for themselves. For whatever reasons, they cannot regularly and safely prepare their own meals."

Funding for the program was cut drastically this year because a grant that had been consistently won by the organization was not awarded this year. The Philip Morris Company had been funding the program through a Senior Helpings grant of $50,000, but because requests for that grant increased greatly this year, the local project was crossed off the list. Brode said her agency is working every day to find other grant sources, but the shortfall right now has resulted in the reduction of delivery days.

Local people can help out by either donating to Meals on Wheels through Community Action (information: 301-334-9431) and/or they may attend a fund-raiser on Nov. 16 at the Grantsville Senior Center. The deadline for reservations for this event is Tuesday, Nov. 13.

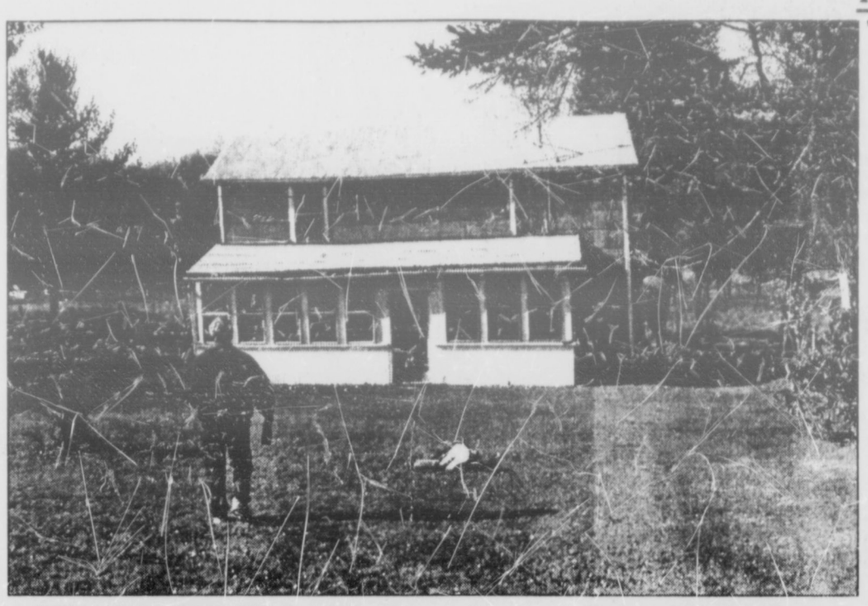
The event is set to begin at 6:30 p.m. at the senior center. Beer-tasting will be offered by Deep Creek Lake Brewery, Uncle Tucker's Brewery of Cumberland, and the Elk Winery of Mt. Airy, and hot hors d'oeuvres will be served by Taste Unlimited.

The Glade Players (Kathy Michael and Bonnie Friend on hammered dulcimer and Ken Ream on guitar) will provide musical entertainment, and the evening will culminate with a special showing of Images of Maryland, an Emmy-award-winning documentary penned and directed by McHenry resident Glenn Tolbert. The program features the photography of the late Leo Beachy, among many other Maryland photographers.

Door prizes will be presented throughout the evening, some from Maryland Public Television, producers of the documentary. Several dignitaries, including Del. George Edwards and Congressman Roscoe Bartlett, are scheduled to attend.

Gary Yoder, local speaker and humorist, will host the evening. Tickets are $50 per couple, with all proceeds benefiting Meals on Wheels.

"After five years of delivering these meals, you really get to know these people," said John. "They need this service. I hope we are soon back to five days a week."



WHAT IS AN EASY WALK NOW will soon become a wintery, drifted pathway for Meals on Wheels delivery-man John Downer, pictured here as he delivers a nutritional dinner to one of the county's 150 recipients. The owner of the home, Emma Rumer, is generally housebound when winter hits, and is sometimes alone. The regular visit from John is a comfort and a safety measure, not just for Mrs. Rumer, but for all Meals on Wheels clients. With the program being cut back to just three delivery days a week, Downer is worried about the people he has come to know over the past five years. "They get scared when there's ten feet of snow out here," he said. "They need someone checking on them all week long." See story.

A DAILY VISIT is needed by many Garrett Countians, perhaps especially those who receive Meals on Wheels. Lillie Moats is pictured above as she talks for a minute with delivery-man John Downer, who delivers food to her three days each week. The program has been cut back because of lost grant funding, as the meals used to be sent out five days each week. Community Action and the Area Agency on Aging are working hard to find new funding to restore the program to five days. In the meantime, local citizens can help by either donating to the program through Community Action, and/or by attending a fund-raiser on Nov. 16. See story.

CONSORTIUM HONORS SHOCKEY — M. Sue Shockey, Garrett County supervisor for the Western Maryland Consortium, was the guest of honor at a luncheon recognizing her retirement after 21 years with the Consortium. Past and present co-workers joined community organization representatives from the local Workforce Investment Board, Garrett County Community College, and Garrett Container Systems at Uno Restaurant for the event. Since joining the Consortium, Shockey served under three governing laws — the Comprehensive Employment Training Act, the Job Training Partnership Act, and the Workforce Investment Act. One of her many impacts on the lives of her fellow Garrett Countians came in 1996 when, in response to the Bausch and Lomb shutdown, she helped form the Dislocated Worker Center, which helped guide more than 400 ex-Bausch and Lomb employees from unemployment to employment and/or training for new jobs. Shockey also administered the Consortium's Summer Youth programs, helping hundreds of local youth get their first taste of the world of work. An active member of several local civic organizations, including the Deep Creek Lake Lions Club, Shockey has been coordinating the annual McHenry Highland Festival on behalf of the Lions Club for the past few years. Shown at the retirement ceremony, from the left, are Jim Kesselring, chairman of the local Workforce Investment Board; Peter Thomas, executive director of the Western Maryland Consortium; and Shockey. The Consortium's Garrett County reins have been handed to new county supervisor Jonathan Wynn.

MONSTERS, INC.

Rated G - Running Time: 1:46 - Released 11/2/01

Well, the folks at Pixar Studios have done it again. The Disney-affiliated computer animation company that blasted onto the scene in 1995 with the now legendary Toy Story and followed it up spectacularly with A Bug's Life (1998) and Toy Story 2 ('99), delivers another delightful piece of crisply rendered cartoon animation, complete with a touching and witty story, a talented cast, and a colorful palette of pixels fairly jumping off the screen. Although it is generally a rule in the bloated and self-recycling business of American film that yesterday's explosion of cinematic ingenuity becomes today's faded old hat, this company is still batting 1000 so far.

Written by Dan Gerson and Andrew Stanton, directed by Peter Docter with David Silverman and Lee Unkrich, and starring the voice talents of John Goodman and Billy Crystal, Monsters, Inc. introduces us to the big-city life of Monstropolis, where the streets are populated by every size, shape and color of multi-armed, multi-eyed beastie that could ever be thought up by a quivering child in the twilight of sleep. At the center of town is Monsters, Inc., an immense power plant where creatures go to work every morning harvesting the screams of little girls and boys. The screams, collected in steel canisters, contain the energy used to provide power to the entire city, and the leading scream production team are James P. "Sulley" Sullivan (Goodman), a big, blue Teddy-bear-like creature, and his partner, Mike Wazowski (Crystal), a short, sarcastic green blob with two stubby arms and legs and one gigantic eye. What starts out like a regular day for the two pals changes drastically when a human pre-schooler (Mary Gibbs) escapes into the plant through the portal that connects the giant scream production room with her closet door, and latches affectionately onto Sully, whom she re-names "Kitty." Since children are regarded as toxic to monsters (according to rumors, "even a touch could kill you"), the entire plant shuts down while a frantic search for the girl is enacted by the shadowy members of the CDA (Child Detection Agency).

Donning protective clothing, the two friends take the child (nicknamed "Boo") to their apartment to try to figure out a way to get her back home before anyone notices. What Sully and Mike don't know is that Boo was intentionally smuggled in by Randall Boggs (Steve Buscemi), a sinister creature who plans to hook her up to his new scream extracting machine and thereby finally exceed Sully as the plant's top producer.

What makes Pixar cartoons so immensely successful is not merely the crispness of the animation, which is indeed impressive, nor the work of the highly capable vocal talent, but the company's insistence on good quality screen writing. The script for Monsters, not only presenting an engaging narrative but brimming with clever asides and fabulously fun and interesting characters, is what makes the difference between simply another cute kids' movie and a truly enjoyable experience for all ages. Though the film lacks a strong adult female character, Goodman and Crystal make a spirited pair, and the childlike warblings of pre-schooler Gibbs, coupled with the irrepressibly cute rendering of the little girl by the animators, provide a surprisingly strong presence despite her limited vocabulary of recognizable words. Rounding out the cast with enjoyable supporting performances are James Coburn, Jennifer Tilly, Frank Oz, and John Ratzenberger. With this combination of vocal talent, the colorful computer work, and sparkling script, Monsters, Inc. continues the proud tradition established by the Pixar/Disney animation cooperative. ★★★★½

THE ONE

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:27 - Released 11/2/01

Ah, the pleasure of life unburdened by physics. That's what the director, the writers, and especially the special effects people must have been thinking while working on The One, a Matrix-style sci-fi thriller with futuristic overtones (although it's set in the present) which combines wormhole space travel, excellent weaponry, and up-and-coming Chinese martial arts star Jet Li (Romeo Must Die), whose main task is to beat the crap out of himself. Written by Glen Morgan and James Wong, and directed by Wong (the same team behind the silly horror/thriller Final Destination), this movie deals with the concept of a parallel universe; in fact, many of them, where everything is just about exactly the same, with events happening concurrently and all the same people doing basically the same things, except with different hair styles. I think Steven Hawking has mentioned this.

Li plays a character called Yu Law, who has discovered that when he travels to different universes and finds his double, and kills him, he (and the rest of hims in all the other universes) gains strength. The more universes he visits, and the more hims he kills, the more strength he gets, because there is a fixed amount of strength divided equally among all the remaining hims in all the remaining universes. Get it? So when we meet him, he is about to be sent to a penal colony for killing 123, count them, 123 hims (all with the name "Law," all with different hair styles) on 123 different universes. But he's so strong now, he escapes and travels to yet another version of Los Angeles to kill the last remaining him: Gabriel Law. If he is successful, he will become "The One"—whatever that means. Probably "The One with the most movie contracts." Meanwhile, Gabe doesn't understand why he's recently become Post-Spinach-Popeye, but doesn't mind that he can pick up cars and jump out of the way of bullets. He's just concerned about what's going to happen to his wife (Carla Gugino) the next time they have sex.

Yu Law (not Gabe Law) is being chased by two cops from the "multiverse," which is the central hub of all the universes. They are Roedecker and Funsch (Delroy Lindo, Jason Statham), whose names are so much fun to say, they almost make it all worthwhile, and they have to apprehend Yu Law (not Gabe Law) and take him back to the multiverse to face justice. But they can't kill him, you see. Then Gabe (not Yu) would be "The One."

I think this movie should be called Groundhog Universe. It bears many similarities to the Bill Murray film Groundhog Day, with scenes being played out more than once, with minor differences, by the same actors, with only the central character aware that it's all happening again. All I know is, if there are really multiple parallel universes, I pity all the versions of me that have to watch all the versions of this movie. While the effects are amazing (from Li picking up motorcycles and whacking people over the head with them, to everyone but him moving in slow motion, to the fascinating process of dis- and re-integration when he travels through a black hole), the acting is howlingly atrocious. With the possible exception of Lindo. The final showdown between Yu Law and Gabe Law, in which one version of Li has the decency to take off his jacket so we know who is who, is a spectacular display of effects-enhanced martial arts, but the guy can't deliver a line to save his life, nor can Guigno, his romantic opposite. Meanwhile, the script—well, let's put it this way: I've had three MRIs before, and the nurse never asked me if I've had a penile implant. And it's a damn good thing. ★★★

DOMESTIC DISTURBANCE

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:43 - Released 11/2/01

Domestic Disturbance is one of those movies that, while well-acted and reasonably thrilling, rests on a premise that stretches the very limits of credulity. Directed by Harold Becker (Mercury Rising), the blandly titled film pits nice guy John Travolta against former Psycho Vince Vaughn in a far-fetched story of familial deceit by Lewis Colick, William S. Comanor, and Gary Drucker. If the events weren't so laughably unbelievable, they would be downright terrifying.

Travolta plays Frank Morrison, a divorced boat builder from the coastal town of Southport, Maryland, whose 12-year-old son Danny (Matthew O'Leary) has developed emotional problems after his parents' breakup. Although he remains close to his dad, Danny has become increasingly distant toward his mother, Susan (Teri Polo), especially since she annouced plans to marry her new boyfriend, Rick Barnes (Vaughn), a wealthy stock tycoon who just moved to the community a few years ago. As a result, Danny has gotten into trouble several times with the police, frequently runs away from home, and has developed a reputation for lying. Through some good-natured prodding from his dad, however, Danny begins to warm up to the new man in his mother's life. But on the day of Rick and Susan's wedding, a stranger (Steve Buscemi) appears, causing Rick to be visibly distracted.

While the incident is soon forgotten by the wedding guests, we are privy to the truth: the stranger is an ex-con named Ray Coleman, who served time with Rick for racketeering years ago. Ever since Rick cut a deal for a shorter sentence and left Ray to languish in prison, Ray has been planning to track him down and either collect his cut of the money or get revenge. But things go from bad to worse when Danny secretly witnesses Rick murdering Ray and runs to his dad for help. The police find no evidence, and everyone thinks he's simply lying again. Everyone except Frank, that is.

John Travolta does some nice, credible work in this film; I always like him better as the regular guy than the lunatic killer maaman. Vaughn, returning to Norman Bates mode, is suitably menacing as Rick. O'Leary and Polo are more than adequate in their supporting roles, and Buscemi (who can currently be heard playing a similar role in Monsters, Inc.), is as creepy as ever. But the story is so full of plot holes and lapses of credibility, the script undermines the good work of its players. From the jerky way Rick treats Danny, a boy he's supposed to be trying to "bond" with, to the way he disposes of the body, to his openly threatening behavior after the truth is discovered, to the almost comical final struggle, it is hard to maintain the willing suspension of disbelief. The final reel includes many stock thriller elements, like the ol' "killer rising from the dead" staple, and achieves the goal of keeping us on the edge of our seats, but only in a, ahem, half-assed way. Insert rimshot here. ★★½ dead oak trees that had succumbed to gypsy moths in recent years, the blaze grew to cover nearly 350 acres by yesterday evening.

Under Control

Two dozen Maryland Forest Service firefighters battled the fire, along with 75 more personnel from nearly three dozen fire companies from Garrett and Allegany counties, and from Mineral County, W.Va. The Bloomington, Kitzmiller, Bittinger, and Deer Park volunteer fire departments took part in the efforts. Three firefighters were treated at area hospitals, with one being admitted for minor burns, and required 26 firefighters to seek treatment on the scene for smoke inhalation.

Before the fire was beaten back it posed a threat to over 15 homes in the fire area, at one point coming within 150 feet of one of the residences. A natural gas pipeline was reportedly leaking in the area at the time, but was shut down for repairs without incident. The fire also necessitated the closing of portions of Route 135 in the Westernport area yesterday, because of the possibility of burning trees falling from the steep hillside into the roadway.

Although currently under control, the Allegany County dispatcher warned that the fire is still subject to the vagaries of the weather. "We understand the forecast is for warm weather and shifting winds in that area for the next day or two. We're going to have to keep a close eye on things."

"By Maryland standards, this was a large fire," Maryland Forest Service fire supervisor Monte Mitchell commented. The cause of the blaze is still under investigation.

OTT Launches Project To Build Set Construction/Storage Facility

Our Town Theatre, a non-profit community theatre in Oakland, is designing a set construction and theatre storage building for its newly acquired property on the corner of Center and First streets, according to OTT board of directors president Judy Finkel.

"The theatre's planned new building will house the behind-the-scenes work that supports an ambitious performance schedule," said Finkel. "As much as we love OTT's building as a performance space, it has serious drawbacks as a storage facility. We find ourselves literally tripping over our growing collection of furniture, props, costumes, supplies, and equipment.

"In addition, set building and scene painting are extremely difficult to do within the theatre itself, since noise, sawdust, and paint don't mix well with the rehearsal process," she said.

As part of the theatre's long-range plan, the board of directors sought a property close to the original building where a scene shop and storage facility could be built. The purchase was accomplished with a major gift from Jane Avery, artistic director of OTT, with the balance coming from a special fund in OTT's budget. No debt was incurred in the transaction, Finkel said.

The original structure on the property, deemed inadequate for the theatre's needs, was demolished under the direction of Bruce Swift of RPM Construction, and Paul Everly of E-Z Excavating. Plans are under way to design and build what is tentatively named "The Backstage."

In addition to the scene shop and storage facility, the board is planning two gardens for the property — a wildflower garden in memory of Charlotte Avery, whose original gift enabled Jane Avery to purchase the Our Town Theatre building, and a memorial garden dedicated to students from the community who died young.

"It is very important to the board and to me personally that the new property be an enhancement to the community, as well as the theatre," said Avery. "We hope to create something that will address our needs and be a worthy addition to the downtown area.

"OTT is excited about how The Backstage will open up the original building for new uses and ease the burden on the wonderful volunteers who give so much time and effort in creating all that takes place in the theatre," Avery said.

Authors Item For Natl. Magazine

Lance Rhodes, director of the pharmacy at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, authored a news item in a national pharmacy magazine recently.

The October issue of Hospital Pharmacist Report contains an answer written by Rhodes in response to a "Clinical Twister" question, a regular feature of the publication where readers submit a pharmacy-related question for a response by a professional pharmacist. Rhodes's question dealt with precautions that should be taken by a young male athlete with diabetes.

AND DOWN IT WENT — A house at the corner of Center and First streets in Oakland came down in just a few hours last week, making room for a new project of Our Town Theatre. The non-profit organization bought the property and, after determining that the house was not adequate for renovation, proceeded to demolish it. The theatre's board of directors has planned to build a scene shop on the site, which will also be landscaped with two special gardens. See story.

Adorable Adoptables

DRESSED FOR SUCCESS — Crickett, a young female cat, looks as though she is wearing a tuxedo for a night out on the town. According to animal shelter personnel, she loves to play and has a great personality. Caramel, a 4-month-old mixed breed, is also looking for a good home. She should stay rather small and would make a great companion and pet. Persons interested in these two animals or any other cats or dogs may call the animal shelter at 301-334-3553.

Herpel Elected NCPA Fifth Vice President

Gerard Herpel, P.D., Accident, has been elected fifth vice president of the National Community Pharmacists Association. NCPA installed new officers and executive committee members for 2001-2002 at its 103rd annual convention, held October 13 to 17 in Philadelphia, Pa.

Herpel is a 1982 graduate of the University of Maryland School of Pharmacy. He owns two pharmacies—Deep Creek Pharmacy, McHenry, and Tri-Towns Pharmacy in Westernport.

He served as a member of the board of directors for EPIC Pharmacies in 1999. He is a past president of the Maryland Pharmacists Association (MPhA) and served on the association's board of directors from 1991 to 1999. He is past chairman of MPhA's legislative committee and past president of the Garrett County Pharmacists Association.

Herpel is also active in the community. He was appointed by the county commissioners to serve on the Garret County Health Advisory Committee from 1996 to 2000. He is a current member of the board of directors for Big Brothers Big Sisters and served as a member of the board of directors of the Garrett County Chapter of the Day of Hope for Prostate Cancer Research from 1997 to 2000. He is also involved in a number of area youth sports programs.

The National Community Pharmacists Association, formerly NARD (the National Association of Retail Druggists), represents the pharmacist owners, managers, and employees of nearly 25,000 independent community pharmacies across the country. The nation's independent pharmacies, independent pharmacy franchises, and independent chains dispense nearly half of the nation's 3 billion retail prescription medicines and account for nearly $50 billion in prescription drug sales each year, according to a spokesperson for the organization.

Stoner, Helbig, Panther Lead Rams To Win Over Sentinels

A 6-for-6, 153-yard, three-touchdown passing effort by senior quarterback Tobi Stoner was among the highlights of another major victory for the Southern High School varsity football team last Friday night when the Rams defeated Fort Hill, 29-13, and thus greatly increased their chances of making the Maryland high school playoffs. A win over the Northern Huskies this week will guarantee the Rams a spot in the postseason as one of the top eight 1A teams in the state.

Despite the fact that Fort Hill came to Oakland with a 3-5 record, Coach Fred Gregg and his staff knew that his team was in for another difficult test, as the Sentinels have a solid, long-established 2A program with a difficult schedule. But just like the two prior Friday nights when the Rams defied all of the area prognosticators by defeating both undefeated Martinsburg and once-beaten Hampshire, Gregg and company had his troops well prepared once again to take on a favored opponent.

The Rams, who were 1-4 at one time this season and seemingly completely out of the playoff picture, were evidently not intimidated by Coach Barry Lattimer's squad and the school's impressive football history, as they took the opening kickoff and marched 79 yards in 11 plays for a touchdown. It was scored on a 28-yard pass play from Stoner to senior tight end Bryson Meyers, who recorded last-second, game-winning touchdowns in Southern's wins over Martinsburg and Preston. The drive featured five carries for 23 yards by senior running back Steve Skipper. Chad Panther's conversion kick put the Rams up 7-0.

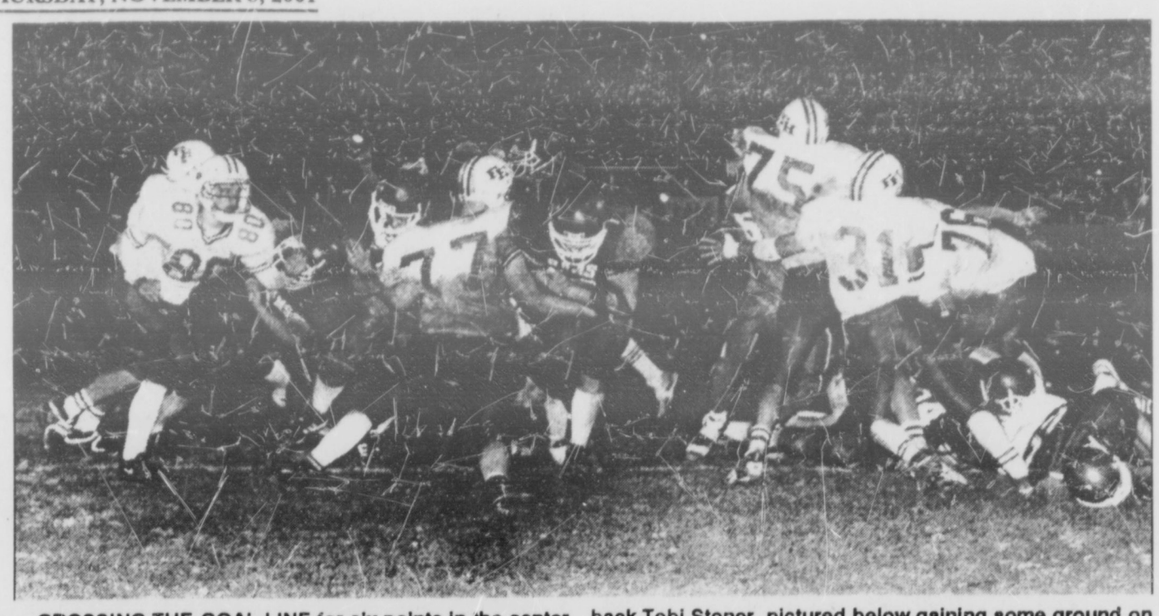
The Sentinels responded with a 65-yard, 10-play drive of their own, capped by a three-yard touchdown run by Sean Welsh. The scoring run was preceded by a 19-yard, third-down pass from Jeremy Robinson to Zack Alkire that put the ball on the Rams' three. Austyn Williams' PAT kick knotted the score at 7-7.

The Rams were stopped on their next drive, but on their first play from scrimmage after gaining possession, the Sentinels promptly fumbled the ball away, giving the Rams possession on their own 42. On the very next play, Stoner dropped back, saw Panther cutting across the middle from the left side of the line, and hit him with a perfect pass. Panther out-ran the Fort Hill secondary to complete the 58-yard touchdown play. Panther's second conversion kick gave Southern a 14-7 advantage and the lead for good.

Following a scoreless second quarter, the Sentinels cut the Rams' advantage to one point on their first possession in the third period by driving 72 yards on 17 plays, converting first downs twice on fourth down. Welsh recorded his second three-yard run for a touchdown of the evening to cap the drive. Williams, possibly the area's strongest place kicker, followed with a rare miss, however, and the Rams retained a slim, one-point edge.

The Rams began their next drive from their own 35-yard line, and ended it with a fourth-down, one-foot carry by senior fullback Joel Helbig for a touchdown midway through the fourth quarter. Stoner then completed a pass to Panther for the two-point conversion to put Southern on top, 22-7.

An ensuing short kickoff was recovered by the Rams on the Sentinels' 38, which set up another touchdown on the next play, as a scrambling Stoner fired the ball into the end zone and into the hands of Panther. Only 17 seconds had expired off the game clock since the previous touchdown. Panther booted his third PAT of the night to conclude the game's scoring.



CROSSING THE GOAL LINE for six points in the center of the photo above is Southern High School senior fullback Joel Helbig on a fourth-down-and-one-foot play Friday night against visiting Fort Hill. The Rams recorded a big 29-13 victory over the Sentinels, which was their fourth straight win, and took another huge step toward securing a berth in the state 1A playoffs. Helbig also had an outstanding night on defense from his linebacking/captain position, as he recorded 19 tackles and two sacks. Also providing an impressive performance was Southern quarterback Tobi Stoner, pictured below gaining some ground on one of his nine carries. It was through the air that Stoner really stung the Sentinels, as he completed all six of his passes for 153 yards and three touchdowns. Chad Panther was on the receiving end of two of those passes, plus a two-point conversion pass, and also kicked three extra points. The Rams will be guaranteed a playoff spot if they defeat the Northern Huskies at the Cove this Friday evening. Photos by Don Sincell Skipper finished with 79 yards on 19 carries, while Helbig added 36 yards on 11 attempts, and Stoner picked up 35 yards on nine carries. Panther had three receptions for 99 yards, and scored 17 of the Rams' points with his pair of touchdown receptions, a two-point conversion catch, and three kicked extra points. Meyers recorded three for 54 yards.

Helbig, who is also the captain of the Ram defense, more than fulfilled that leadership role, as he recorded 19 tackles and two sacks. Senior lineman Brad Palmer had a dozen tackles and a sack, while sophomore Billy Schmidl accounted for 11 tackles and one sack.

Gaining most of the yardage on the ground for the Sentinels was Welsh, who recorded a game-high 87 yards on 15 carries. Jeremy Bender had 38 yards on 10 carries, freshman Andre Pope rushed for 34 yards on seven carries before being injured in the fourth quarter, and Ryan Shope picked up 22 yards on six attempts. Josh Root was the defensive leader.

The Rams finished with a 287-204 advantage in total offensive yardage.

"Our kids played very hard," stated Coach Gregg. "A win over Fort Hill is always a feather in your cap, no matter what their record is, because they are a big school with a long, impressive history. I knew it would not be easy for us, even though they were 3-5 coming in."

Gregg said that the efforts in the trenches were once again a key to the victory. "We had good line play when we needed it," he said. "When we had to take control, when we had to make the crucial yardage, our line performed well.

"It was also great to see such a super crowd out for the game," he added. "It felt like a college-game atmosphere, and we really appreciated the tremendous support. It definitely makes a difference."

Special guests on hand for the game, in recognition of the school's 50th anniversary, were many of the members of the first football team ever in Garrett County, which took the field in 1954. Several of the former head coaches were also present.

"I know those guys really appreciated the big crowd as well," Gregg said.

There will most likely be another large crowd on hand at the Rams' final regular-season game this Friday when they take on county rival Northern at the Cove. On paper, the Rams should dominate the Huskies, who are struggling this season and have a 3-6 season. But Coach Gregg is among the first to ignore

Huskies Wallop Westmar, 40-21; Hoping To Derail Rams At Home

A four-touchdown performance by quarterback Aaron Mitchell and a 122-yard rushing tally by halfback Cheston Bachtel paced the Northern High School varsity football team to a 40-21 blowout over visiting Westmar Friday night. The Huskies hope the victory will supply some much-needed momentum to help them knock off a high-flying Southern Ram squad tomorrow night in the season closer at NHS. Northern (3-6) will host the Rams (5-4) in a battle that seems to contain a surprising twist or two every season.

"It's one of those classic Northern-Southern situations, with the roles reversed from last year," NHS head coach Phil Carr remarked. "We had come into Oakland thinking we had to win to make the playoffs, and Southern was out of the chase and playing for pride — but they knocked us off. Tomorrow night the Rams need a win to get into the playoffs, and we're playing for Husky pride. An upset would give our guys some great memories through the off-season."

The whipping NHS put on the Wildcats last Friday looked easy on the field, but was the result of "our hardest week of practice this season," the Huskies' skipper said. "The players knew what they needed to do to win, and they got what they deserved for their efforts. Westmar has a tough offense to prepare for, and our defense did an outstanding job. Our offense was able to control the ball by mounting a series of consistent drives. Going in we thought we could move the ball on their defense, but we ended up mauling them."

First Quarter

N - Aaron Mitchell, 2 run (Cheston Bachtel run); 9:26.

Second Quarter

N - Mitchell, 15 run (kick failed); 10:45.

N - Mitchell, 14 run (Trey Brenneman kick); 3:41.

Third Quarter

W - Kenny Peck, 9 pass from Bobby Alkire (Peck kick), 7:12.

W - Andrew Nicol, 21 pass from Alkire (Peck kick); 5:17.

W - Nicol, 6 pass from Alkire (Peck kick), 2:46.

Fourth Quarter

N - Mitchell, 8 run (Brenneman kick); 9:30.

N - Bachtel, 20 run (kick failed).

N - Ethan DeVore, 4 run (kick failed); 3:23.

The mauling began in the first quarter, when Mitchell capped an NHS drive with a 2-yard touchdown carry at the 9:26 mark. A Bachtel extra point conversion run gave Northern an 8-0 lead. The second quarter saw Mitchell scamper 14 yards for a score with 10:45 on the clock, and with 3:41 to play the Husky QB reeled off a 14-yard rushing touchdown followed by a successful extra-point kick by Trey Brenneman.

Even more impressive than the 21-0 lead Northern took into the halftime locker room, however, was the fact that Westmar only touched the ball for three possessions in the entire first half. "We were controlling the ball, the clock, and the game, and it showed," Carr said. "We hadn't seen our guys play with that level of intensity and enthusiasm yet this year. It was as if they finally realized what they were capable of doing."

Westmar exploded in the third quarter, as an offense powered by fearsome quarterback Bobby Alkire can do at almost any point. The sophomore passing phenom threw three touchdown strikes in less than five minutes, covering 9, 21, and 6 yards, and three successful point-after kicks helped knot the score at 21-all going into the fourth quarter.

Northern ratcheted up its game in the final stanza by answering with 21 points to run away with the victory. Mitchell scored his fourth touchdown of the night on an 8-yard keeper at the 9:30 mark, followed by a successful Brenneman PAT kick. Bachtel got into the scoring act after that with a 20-yard touchdown run, and fellow halfback Ethan DeVore capped the flurry with a 4-yard touchdown carry with 3:23 to go, giving NHS claimed a 19-point revenge over a Westmar team that had brought last season's seven-game winning streak to a halt.

Northern's offensive line was singled out for Coach Carr's kudos: "The line did a great job as a unit; we mounted 355 yards of total offense, 319 of that on the ground, because of the job our linemen did." In addition to Bachtel's game-high rushing yardage, Mitchell gained 73 yards and threw for 36 yards, and DeVore contributed 54 yards on nine carries.

The Huskies' defense got a workout from Westmar's passing game, but more than rose to the occasion. Alkire connected on 15 of 32 pass attempts, but NHS picked off two passes. Linebacker Joel Resh, who led the "grave-diggers" with 12 tackles, accounted for one of those interceptions. Sophomore defensive end Corey Fike recorded an impressive nine tackles in his first varsity start. "Our defense put together a great team effort, with very few mistakes," said Carr.

It will take a great team effort to beat Southern tomorrow night, for the Rams are on a four-game roll that has featured huge upsets over heavily-favored Martinsburg and Hampshire, a 38-0 throttling of Tucker County, and last Friday's surprise over Fort Hill.

"We know we have to be well-prepared, because Coach Gregg does a great job of getting the most out of his players," Carr observed. "He uses all his weapons rather than sticking with one philosophy, as Southern has in the past by relying on the run.

"The key, as it is for every game, will probably be turnovers. We need to hang on to the ball, and take it away from them. Southern will show us the I-formation offense they've been having success with, and Ram quarterback Tobi Stoner (#14, 6-1, 177) does a nice job of throwing the ball. He's got two fine receivers, Chad Panther (#10, 5-10, 160) and Bryson Meyers (#42, 6-4, 180).

"Meyers has turned in some big plays lately, and when you've got a guy thinking he can do what needs to be done, you've got a dangerous weapon to deal with." The coach added that Southern's offensive line is a key to the squad's success, and does an excellent job in freeing up tailback Steve Skipper (#20, 5-10, 175) for the ground game.

SHS's defense outsizes Northern, especially along the line. The Huskies will have to rely on their quickness to counter that strength, a position they've been in many times before. "The Rams have two of the best defenders in the area, defensive end Brad Palmer (#54, 6-3, 219) and linebacker Joel Helbig (30, 6-3, 210). We know we have to stop those two to be successful. Southern can run a 4-4 defense, but also likes to load the line with a 6-2, and they like to blitz. We'll have to be ready to pick up their linebackers," stated Carr.

"We're going to stick with what we've been doing for the past few years; it's worked in the past and the kids are comfortable with it. Some of our junior varsity players are going to see some good playing time, and Fike will start on the defensive line along with freshman outside linebacker Michael Wolf. Mike gives us some speed at linebacker that we'll need tomorrow.

"It would be great to cap our season with a win and, nothing against Southern, to knock the Rams off. They would feel the same way, and have done the same thing to us. It's one of those games that if you're not going to give it everything you have, and more, you shouldn't put on the uniform. We expect a large, loud crowd on both sides of the field."

Kick-off is slated for 7:30 p.m. at the Cove.

HUSKIES RUN OVER WESTMAR — Northern High's varsity football unit kicked its ground game into high gear Friday, as the Huskies rolled up 319 rushing yards and six touchdown runs en route to a 40-21 throttling of visiting Westmar. Shown above is junior NHS quarterback Aaron Mitchell (#11), who recorded four of the scores himself on keepers of 2, 15, 14, and 8 yards, being escorted by Northern fullback Dustin Wiland (#25), who has been playing with a broken wrist for several weeks. Senior halfback Ethan DeVore (#10) is pictured below in the clear (note the referee checking the action behind the ballcarrier) on his way to a nine-carry, 54-yard performance that included the game's final touchdown from four yards out. The annual Northern-Southern saga, an end-of-season rite of passage from fall to winter, continues tomorrow night as the 3-6 Huskies attempt to knock off the 5-4 Rams, who come to Accident looking to nail down a playoff bid. The battle begins at 7:30 p.m.

the record, and has spent the entire week reminding his team that things are always different with the annual county clash.

"Most of us will never forget the year that we were undefeated at 9-0, Northern was 2-7, and they beat us," Gregg said. "We're not anywhere near 9-0, so we are going to have to be just as prepared for Northern as we were for every other team on our schedule.

"Not only is this always a big emotional game, but the Huskies have gotten better with every game," Gregg said. "Aaron Mitchell (6-0, 165 junior) is a very good quarterback, and he did a great job against Westmar last week. He reminds us a lot of Nick Durst of Beall. He is a good runner, he executes well, he does a good job hiding the ball, and he really takes charge of their offense."

The Huskies' wishbone offense features the running of a trio of backs, junior Lee Yoder (5-6, 175), and seniors Cheston Bachtel (6-0, 175) and Ethan DeVore (6-0, 170). "These guys are good runners, but they are also excellent blockers," Gregg said.

Anchoring the Huskies' offensive line are junior tackle Tom Menges (6-2, 275) and senior guard Trey Brenneman (6-1, 220). "They have good size up front, and their overall team speed is comparable to ours," Gregg said.

"They try to hurt you with the run. They don't throw the ball many times, but they use a lot of play action and will throw when you least expect it, a lot like what we try to do."

The Husky 6-2, 5-3 defensive unit is led by Brenneman at defensive end, Yoder at nose guard, and Dustin Wiland (5-6, 170) at linebacker.

Gregg said his team is generally healthy, with no starters expected to be sidelined with injury.

"We look forward to the Northern game every year, and we hope we have another good turnout of fans," Gregg said.

If the Rams are victorious, they will be seeded either sixth, seventh, or eighth among the eight top 1A teams in the state, depending upon the outcome of several other final regular-season games throughout the state.

Friday's kickoff at Husky Stadium will be at 7:30 p.m.

Rams Halted In Region One Finale By Leopards

In just four seasons the Southern High School girls' varsity soccer program and its coach, Ron Petrella, have amassed an amazing overall record of 41 wins, nine defeats, and three ties, and this year the Rams advanced to the West Region championship match, making them among the top eight 1A teams in the state of Maryland. Hopes for a spot in the state tourney fell short Monday night, however, when they dropped that regional title match to undefeated Smithsburg, 4-2, on the Rams' field.

Southern earned a spot in the championship clash by defeating county rival Northern on Saturday, 4-0, also in Oakland. The Smithsburg Leopards came into the match with a perfect 17-0 record, having crushed Westmar, 7-0, in the other regional semifinal. Their record included an incredible 13 shutouts, and they had scored a total of 63 goals while allowing a total of only five scored against them.

The match between the Rams and the Northern Huskies on Saturday was the fourth clash of the season between the county's only two high schools. While the Rams won all four matches, two of them were by only one goal.

Four different Southern players each scored a goal against the Huskies, with Jenny Hickman cracking the scoreboard first with a goal at the 33:40 mark of the first half off an assist by Brittany Naylor.

After nearly 25 minutes of scoreless defense, Megan Burner doubled the Rams' lead with an unassisted goal with 8:32 remaining in the half.

Sophomore striker Sabrina Scheffel made it 3-0 about five minutes later when she scored off a feed by Robbin Gregg, another sophomore forward.

The scoring was completed by Becky Martin with a goal off an assist by Scheffel at the 26:37 mark of the second half.

The Rams finished with an 18-6 advantage in shots on goal, plus a lopsided 8-0 lead in corner kicks. Sophomore keeper Alasha Rush, who earned her eighth shutout of the season, turned away six Husky shots, while Ashley Warnick was credited with 13 saves for the Huskies.

The Huskies wrapped up their season with a 5-11 overall record.

In Monday's title contest, the Rams took a 1-0 lead when Gregg scored an unassisted goal with 17:46 remaining in the first half. Her score came right after a corner kick taken by Hickman.

The lead was short-lived, however, as Kyley Thompson scored the first of her two goals off an assist by Lisa Bellela at the 13:15 mark.

The score remained knotted at 1-1 until about 10 minutes into the second half when Morgan Church scored an unassisted goal to put the Leopards ahead for good, 2-1, with 30:19 remaining in the match. Rush nearly made a save, but the well-struck ball deflected off her hands and into the net.

There was no more scoring for about 18 minutes, but then Church made it 3-1 with a goal off a feed by Thompson with 12:22 left.

The Rams did not quit, as Becky Martin cut the lead to 3-2 with an unassisted goal with 10:11 remaining. The goal was set up via a crossing pass by Scheffel that brought the Smithsburg keeper Lauren Church out of the goal.

But Thompson responded with an unassisted goal just 19 seconds later to seal the victory for the Leopards.

The Rams were one of only two teams to score two goals against Smithsburg this season, with Catoctin being the other. The Leopards came into the match riding a five-shutout streak, and had allowed just one goal in the previous 10 outings.

Southern was out-shot by a 26-11 margin, with most of that advantage being created in the second half (14-4). Rush was credited with a dozen saves for the Rams, while Church recorded three for the Leopards.

Likewise, Smithsburg's four goals were the most scored this season against the Rams, who had allowed a total of only 10 goals in the previous 15 matches. Southern scored 51 goals in those same matches.

"They are a very skilled team with excellent speed, and they really outplayed us in the second half," stated Coach Petrella. "But I was proud of our girls for not giving up and cutting the lead to 3-2 late in the match. We had a few defensive lapses, and they capitalized on them."

Richard Daughtridge, coach of the Leopards, had high praise for the Rams. "We didn't expect to come up here and face such a power team," he said. "Southern was very fast to the ball, and they really had us on our heels in the first half. We stepped it up in the second half, got into a rhythm, and played with more confidence.

"But they (Southern) have done a great job with their program," he continued. "We played them in the playoffs in 1998, which was their first year of soccer, and they have really accomplished a lot in a short time."

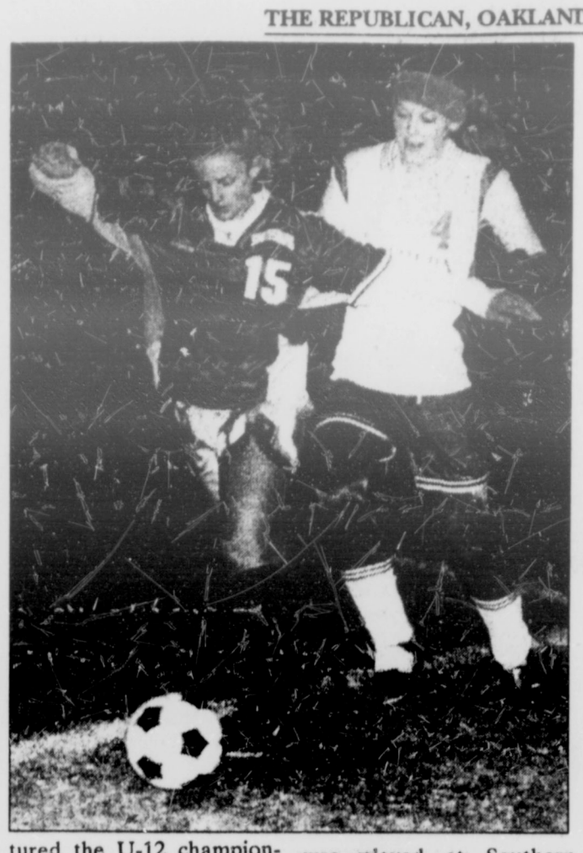
Despite the loss, Petrella was also pleased with his team's efforts this season. "I'm proud of all of the girls, especially those who have been in the program all four years," he said. "We made it into the regional final, and we scored two goals and played very well against a super team."

Petrella and his assistant coach, Bob Bonser, will be losing seven seniors to graduation next spring, but will return a strong nucleus of starters, plus several players with a lot of experience, including strikers Scheffel, Naylor, and Gregg, defenders Kristin Oxford and Laura Bonser, and goalkeeper Rush.

It was announced yesterday that the Rams have been named area champions. A more detailed story about the team will appear in next week's issue.



END OF THE ROAD - The 2001 soccer season for the Southern High School girls' varsity concluded Monday evening at home, where the Rams dropped a 4-2 decision to undefeated Smithsburg in the 1A West Region championship match. The highly skilled Leopards came to town having surrendered a total of only five goals in 17 matches this season, while scoring 63. Seemingly mesmerized by a "floating" ball in the photo above is Southern's Sabrina Scheffel. At right, Ram Jenny Hickman (#4) tries to steal the ball away from a Smithsburg attacker. The Rams finished with an overall record of 13-2-1, another Western Maryland Interscholastic League title, and the area championship. Photos by John McEwen.

MSA To Hold Award Event This Sunday

The Mountaintop Soccer Association will hold an awards ceremony this Sunday, Nov. 11, at the SHS athletic field, beginning at 2 p.m. to officially end the 2001 soccer season. Players in all age groups of the MSA youth league will be honored with a presentation of medals, and trophies will be awarded to the champions and runners-up in the U-15 and U-12 divisions. (See other story for playoff results.)

All parents, coaches, and players are urged by MSA president Ron Petrella to attend. Players are asked to wear their team jerseys.

Persons with questions about the ceremony may telephone Petrella at 301-334-1174.

Arsenal Teams Compete Well In Tournament

Teams sponsored by Arsenal Football Associates Inc., Oakland, recorded a number of victories in a recent tournament coordinated by the Mountain West Soccer League and hosted by Potomac Highland Soccer Club and Allegany Soccer Alliance.

An under-14 boys' team coached by Gary Brack earned a perfect 5-0 mark in the tourney, while an under-12 girls' squad led by Coach Melissa Anderson won a pair of matches, 5-1 and 3-2.

In the under-14 girls' division, a team coached by Rick Perry finished with a 1-3 mark, with the losses all being by close scores. An under-12 boys' team led by coaches Mel Menker and Ron Gnegy recorded a 1-1 tie and a 5-3 loss.

Arsenal will hold tryouts for winter competition this Saturday, Nov. 10, the details of which appeared in a news release last week. Persons desiring more information may telephone Mel Menker, Arsenal president, at 301-334-5906.

Jammers And Mutiny Winners In MSA League

The Jammers, sponsored by the Oakland Elks Lodge, and Mutiny, sponsored by Oakview Motors, captured the 2001 titles in the under-15 and under-12 divisions, respectively, of the Mountaintop Soccer Association Youth League.

The Jammers, who are coached by Jeff Browning, edged the Railey Realty Rockers in the U-15 title match on Saturday, 1-0, when a shot by Chad Remley careened off the fingers of the Rockers' goalkeeper. The match was played on the Southern High School athletic field.

Mutiny, coached by Bill Stuck and Paul Pacella, captured the U-12 championship by the same score, 1-0, over the Dropkickers, sponsored by Long & Foster Realty; however, the match was scoreless until there was one minute remaining in the first 10-minute overtime period. That's when Julie Swerbinsky scored the winning goal. The match was played at Southern Middle School.

All players in the MSA youth league will be honored at an awards ceremony this Sunday, Nov. 11. (See other story for details.)

Ram Freshmen Fall To Fort Hill Sentinels

The freshman football team of Southern High School was defeated by host Fort Hill, 35-14, last Thursday evening at Greenway Avenue Stadium in Cumberland Fort Hill's Tim Hodel accounted for over half of his team's points, leading the Sentinels to their seventh win in nine games.

The Rams took a 6-0 lead when Chad Everd returned the opening kickoff 80 yards for a touchdown, but Fort Hill responded by scoring the next five touchdowns.

Hodel tied the score at 6-6 with a seven-yard touchdown run, still in the first quarter. Brandon Griffin and Hodel each scored six-pointers in the second stanza, on respective carries of 15 and 25 yards. Hodel also ran for a two-point conversion, and Justin Kunis kicked for another to give the Sentinels a 21-6 halftime advantage.

Hodel added a five-yard touchdown run in the third, and Blake Hill carried the ball 20 yards to the end zone in the fourth period. Both were followed by PAT kicks by Kunis.

Southern scored again late in the game when Tyler Graham fired a 10-yard touchdown pass to J.D. Plank. Corey Bosley ran for the extra two points.

It was the final game of the season for the Rams.

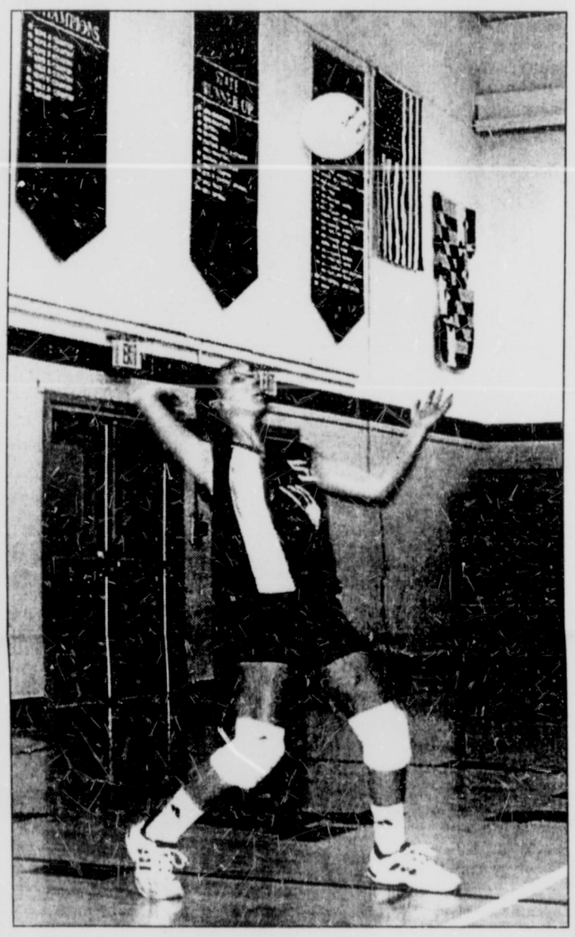
Both Garrett HS Netter Squads Sweep Into Region Semifinals

It's turning out to be a superb year for high school volleyball on the mountaintop, as both the Northern and Southern high school varsity teams crushed their respective opponents Monday night in the opening round of the Class 1A Western Region playoffs. As NHS was trouncing visiting Hancock 3-0, SHS was giving Beall the same 3-0 treatment in Oakland.

Both squads will take to the court for semifinal play tonight at 7 p.m. The #2-seeded Huskies are playing host to third seed Allegany, which was a thorn in their sides through the regular season, while the fourth-seed Rams are on the road against top-seed Williamsport. Should both Garrett teams record wins, they will meet head-to-head for the region championship later in the week at a site to be announced.



Northern trounced the Panthers 15-9, 15-9, and 15-3 before a delighted Igloo crowd. Junior Heather Lander paced all scorers with 14 points, and senior teammate Jolene Brenneman recorded 12 points, four aces, and nine attacks. Senior Nicole Sisler contributed 14 attacks and two kills, classmate Christie Flockhart had 11 attacks and one kill, and junior Amanda Frantz netted two kills on 10 attacks.

Alisha Barnard led Hancock with seven points and Danielle Bowman added five.

Southern's triumph over the visiting Montaineers was just as convincing, with game scores of 15-4, 15-6, and 15-12. Junior Jessica Sharon led all scorers with nine points, nine kills, and two blocks, while senior Erin Frantz tallied nine points and five kills. Kristen Rollman, a junior, dished out a game-high 17 assists, classmate Stephanie Niner had six assists, and sophomore Alexis Storey recorded five kills.

Beall's Holly Lease lead her squad with eight points, and Ashley Lease had five aces.

Field Raffle Winners Named

The winners of the football field raffle conducted by the Southern Garrett Athletic Association at last Friday's Southern-Fort Hill game were Betty Liller, Ron Pyles, and Sue Shockey. The winners were determined by the position of the ball at the end of each of the four quarters of play. There was no winner for the fourth quarter, as that space had not been purchased.

OAKLAND DENTIST BAGS COLORADO BULL ELK

Bill "Doc" Savage has just returned from an elk hunt in southwestern Colorado. Doc was accompanied on this adventure by his son Gordon, who now lives in Denver. It's a good thing the Savage family has a big freezer, because Bill bagged an 850-pound 5x5 bull in the high country. Gordon saw a good number of elk, but none were in range. Since their permits were only for bulls, they had to pass on cows and mule deer.

DON'T PUT THOSE FLY-RODS AWAY YET

The DNR Fisheries Service has been busy stocking area streams. This entire region has been in somewhat of an extended drought, and low flows on smaller stream are forcing crews to shift more trout to lakes, ponds, and larger rivers. The stocked trout include yearling trout in the 7-to-9-inch range, with some larger trout mixed in that are holdovers from the spring. Stocked waters in Garrett County include the Yough River, the North Branch at Barnum, and the Casselman delayed-harvest section.

A WORD OF CAUTION — WATCH FOR MOVING DEER

Last year more than 4,000 deer/vehicle collisions were reported to the state, and who knows how many more went unreported causing millions of dollars in damage to vehicles, serious injuries, and loss of life.

The potential for hitting a deer increases dramatically at this time of year. The deer are on the move because of breeding season and hunting pressure. As such, here are some things to keep in mind.

Deer standing in a field may suddenly move onto the road. Anticipate this, slow down, and proceed with caution. If you see deer crossing the road, slow down and scan for more deer. Deer travel in groups and others may be out of view. Be alert during early morning and late afternoon. Deer tend to be more active in these time periods year-round, and are often moving between feeding sites and bedding areas.

DEEP CREEK LAKE USE PLAN SHOULD BE OF INTEREST TO SPORTSMEN

DNR Secretary J. Charles Fox has approved the recently presented Deep Creek Lake Recreation and Land Use Plan. The plan was issued in June for public comment, and recommends that three studies be conducted to address outstanding issues at the lake, including recreational boat use, shoreline erosion, and water quality. The first of the three studies will begin in 2002 and will address boating and commercial use carrying capacity at the lake. The study will form the basis for possible revisions to current lake regulations. A full copy of the plan can be viewed at the DNR web site: http//www.dnr.state.md.us/publiclands/western/deepcreeklake.html.

LATE WATERFOWL SEASONS SCHEDULED

This year's late waterfowl season includes a 30-day season for migratory Canada geese. The first goose split season will run from Nov. 19 to 23 and then from Dec. 22 to Jan. 19. The daily bag limit will be one goose per day.

FISHING REPORT

This is the time of year to catch bass, pickerel, yellow perch, and walleye on Deep Creek Lake. They are catching them now with minnows and minnow imitations. The good weather has extended the season for many.

The Casselman River, though low at this writing, has a fresh stocking. Recent reports have the trout excited about wooly buggers and egg patterns. The North Branch of the Potomac has been producing big trout. The biggest fish here are coming on wet flies, though there is some action on dry flies. The Savage River has continued to fish well, producing on wooly buggers, clousers, and streamers worked through deep pools. The Yough, also flowing low, is producing good action on dry flies, particularly as hatches are coming off, which they still are.

Lakers' Preview Tourney To Tip Off This Saturday

The Garrett Community College men's basketball team will tip off its 2001-02 season against Penn State Beaver in the Lakers' own Preview Tournament, set for this weekend at the McHenry campus. Games will begin at 5 p.m. Saturday with Potomac State College facing Rockingham CC, followed by the Laker-Beaver contest at 7 p.m.

The consolation game will begin at 1 p.m. on Sunday and be followed by the championship match-up at 3 p.m.

Potomac State, which won the Western Pennsylvania Collegiate Conference, returns three top players this season, including leading scorer Joe Hardin, a 6-5 forward who recorded a 17 ppg average last year. The Catamounts finished 20-10 overall, 17-4 in the WPC Conference, and were among the final four in the Region XX, Division II playoffs.

Rockingham CC, a Division I JUCO team, has had one of its strongest recruiting efforts ever, and features no fewer than 10 players ranging from 6-4 to 6-8. They also return four sophomores from last season's 19-13 squad, including Jamie Totten (13 ppg) and Denard Stevens (12 ppg). Rockingham came on strong late in the season and finally lost in the Region X title game.

Rockingham and Potomac State faced each other last year in an opening round game, with the Catamounts winning on a last-second bucket, 85-84.

Penn State Beaver has participated in GCC's Preview Tournament the past two seasons. They finished 10-12 overall last season, but earned a trip to the CCAC championship. Forwards Jim Laskey (14 ppg) and Mike Villa (10 ppg) are among their returning starters.

The Lakers won the tournament last year, defeating Penn State Beaver, 108-57, and Potomac State in the title game, 92-79. Coach Dennis Gibson's team includes two of the top returning players in Region XX in 6-6 forward Jontae Harrington and 6-3 guard Kortaa Hall. Area standout Andrew Wass of Turkeyfoot Valley High School will be called upon to assist with scoring and defense.

Gibson sees the tournament as a good test for his young team. "This is a great field of teams to open with," he said. "Potomac State and Rockingham are both contenders for regional championships, and Penn State Beaver is one of the best coached teams that we face each year. I have high hopes for our team, but we will have to come together and overcome our weaknesses in rebounding and depth. The talent is definitely here, but we are going to have to work hard to prove it, night in and night out."

Meyers Rolls Perfect Game At Par-Matt

In the game of American ten pins, scoring a 300 game is an accomplishment that is attained by few bowlers. Jeff Meyers has done this both at Par-Matt Lanes and St. Clair Bowl, St. Clairesville, Ohio. He also has a 299 game and an 814 set in his résumé.

Meyers has been within one shot of a 300 game each of the last three times he has bowled. In the Wednesday Civic League, Jeff had a 278 game for a 726 set on October 24. Then on October 29, in the Monday Merchants and Club Trio League, he recorded games of 278 and 274 for a 771 set. Again in the Wednesday Civic League on October 31, Meyers bowled 209, 221, and a perfect 300 for a set of 730.

Southern Mat Club Season To Open Soon

The Southern Mat Club youth wrestling team is set to begin a new season, marking the 17th year this organization has been teaching area youth wrestling skills, general athletic skills, sportsmanship, a strong team concept, and the desire and dedication needed to compete, both on the mat and in life in general. The SMC is open to all area youth grades K-8, regardless of experience or athletic ability.

The club boasted nearly 40 team members last season. The accomplishments these young wrestlers achieved included several first, second, and third place team trophies at top quality tournaments in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Maryland, and Ohio. Team members also won countless individual championships at tournaments all over the East Coast, including the Eastern National Championships. Last season was also the first time ever an SMC wrestler won the prestigious Tulsa National Championships in Tulsa, Okla. "This season, the club looks to build on its past successes and hopes to continue as one of the East's premier youth wrestling programs," stated Coach Dave Taylor.

The Southern Mat Club will be holding its annual sign-up night and informational meeting on Tuesday, Nov. 13, in the Southern Middle School cafeteria at 7 p.m. All interested children and their parents are urged to attend this meeting to meet the coaching staff and learn more about what the team has to offer. For more information, persons may contact Coach Taylor at 301-334-3855 or SMC president Terry Murphy at 301-334-2369. Those interested, but unable to attend the meeting, should also contact one of the aforementioned.

Runnin' Rams Place Third And Fifth In Region I Meet

The boys' cross country team of Southern High School captured third place among 10 teams in the 1A West Region Championships, hosted by Clear Spring High School last Thursday afternoon, while the Southern girls' team, competing without one of its top two runners, placed fifth.

Sophomore Craig Conroy paced the Southern boys with an 11th place individual finish, as the team recorded 106 points. The Westmar Wildcats, who took five of the top 10 places, coasted to the team title with 30 points, followed by Williamsport with 79 points. Finishing behind the Rams were Beall with 114 points, Boonsboro with 117, Clear Spring with 131, Allegany with 170, South Hagerstown with 185, Hancock with 226, and Smithsburg with an incomplete score.

The SHS girls, led by junior Melissa Durst with a fourth place individual finish, had 127 points. Smithsburg won the team title with 54 points, followed by Boonsboro with 64 points, Beall with 79, Westmar with 104, Williamsport with 113, Southern, Allegany with 131, and Hancock, South Hagerstown, and Clear Spring with incomplete scores.

Ram teammate Natalie Durst, an All-State runner like Durst and whose presence would have most likely resulted in a higher team placing, was unable to compete because of illness.

The winning team, along with the top 17 individual finishers among the boys and 15 top finishers among the girls, qualify for the Maryland State Championships, which will be held this Saturday at Hereford High School. Durst, who recorded a time of 20:50, and Conroy, who crossed the finish line in 17:57, will be Southern's only representatives.

Durst is the defending 1-A state runner-up, and placed third in the state the previous year as a freshman.

Other members of the Southern boys' team and their finishes were: sophomore Keenan Shaffer and senior Matt Frederick, who just missed qualifying for the state event by finishing 18th and 19th, respectively; junior Nathan Rodeheaver, 21st; sophomore Jason Weeks, 37th; senior Tom Crozier, 42nd; and junior Wesley Thomas, 48th.

Junior Emily Cosner placed 18th for the Southern girls, followed by sophomores Stephanie DiSimone in 27th place, Lisa Wade in 33rd, Katie McGehee in 45th, and Amanda Sisler in 46th, and senior Elizabeth Everett in 48th.

Westmar's Sid Bittinger, who placed fourth in the state meet last year, won the boys' race with a time of 16:40, while Jordan Davis of Allegany placed second in 16:49, and Clear Spring's Ryan Davis was third with a time of 17:12.

The top three finishers in the girls' race were Rachel Armstrong of Beall in 19:38, Jennifer Patton of Westmar in 19:47, and Laura Stouffer of Smithsburg in 20:11.

The Southern boys' program, under Coach Carl Booth, has amassed five state 1-A championships, while the SHS girls, coached by Louis Newcomb, have two state titles to their credit.

GCC Students Take Part In Adventure Race

Adventure racing is a new kind of competition for athletes who want more than the "usual" challenges of marathons and triathlons. Over the past year a team of three Garrett Community College Adventure Sports students have been competing in the races that test their skills in multiple adventure disciplines.

The students — Toby MacPhee from Illinois, Eric Durante from Pennsylvania, and Franklin Wood from Washington, D.C. — have competed in what are considered "sprint distance" races, which include trail running, mountain biking, and paddling.

The trail running portions are usually distances from 3 to 10 miles through very rugged terrain with sharp elevation changes, according to Durante. Mountain biking legs are typically 10 to 20 miles long, often with very technical single-track sections. Paddling events, undertaken in canoes or kayaks, are a shorter distance, usually between 1 and 5 miles, and can be on flat water or white water.

"The races we have competed in have taken anywhere between 2½ hours to 6 hours to complete," said Durante, who has been adventure racing for about a year and a half. The GCC student noted that the challenge is heightened by a series of "special tests" included in the races, consisting of physical obstacles, mental puzzles, and a smaller section of other disciplines such as swimming or orienteering.

Training for adventure racing is like training for any endurance sport, Durante explained, except that technical skill must also be practiced to increase efficiency. "I feel that running is the most important part of my training, because it is most effective at building endurance, but I also try to include as much paddling and biking workouts as I can in my weekly routines."

Durante trains year-round, running regularly, biking when conditions permit, swimming when he has access to a pool, and "spinning" on an indoor bike.

"These guys are always training," commented Mike Logsdon, director of Garrett's Adventure Sports program. "Adventure racing is a team effort and they must stay together throughout the entire event. They take the sport very seriously and they do well in their competition."

In Loving Memory of

1982-1999

Two years have passed, and we continue to struggle with the loss of our son and our friend, DeReck Adam DeWitt, who died on November 13, 1999. While we must move ahead with our lives, we still work every day to deal with the result of that horrible moment when DeReck's life ended. But we remember him every hour, and we hope all those who loved him do too. He lives on in our hearts and our memories—his quick smile, his sense of humor, his love for his mom and family.

Take a moment to remember DeReck — his ability in auto mechanics, his dream of being a graduate with the Southern High School class of 2000, his devotion to Rusty Wallace. He was a precious part of our lives and we will never stop missing him. But because of an accident with a gun, he's gone.

In honor of DeReck, please remember to take guns seriously. They are not toys. They are deadly, and they take loved ones every single day. No one should have to endure the pain we have suffered. Be wise, be careful, be smart.

And remember DeReck.

Sadly missed by his family & friends

be a huge tourism venture for us."

The $100,000 donation was made through a unique tax credit program that returns much of the money to businesses and towns themselves. When you can capitalize on a draw like the train station and attract visitors, you can get them to participate in the local economy by spending money during their visit, and hopefully tell others about the county or even make return trips."

"It's difficult to express how important and how timely a gift of this size is to a small town like ours," McCain remarked. "This generosity on the part of an out-of-town corporation is greatly appreciated. Solipsys can count on receiving a nice plaque for their offices, their name in our brick sidewalk, and the community's genuine thanks for a long time to come." The mayor added that after the donation is used to finish paying off the mortgage, all that remains to complete the restoration effort is to fireproof and insulate the structure. Those projects could be finished by the end of this year or early in 2002.

McCain noted that he has high hopes for many potential benefits of a restored train station in both the near and far future. With the possible spin-off effects of a successful Baltimore-Washington bid for the 2012 Summer Olympics, "the county would have a great opportunity to utilize trains to bring people into the area for the white water competitions at the Wisp," the mayor said. "That would the corporation in the form of state tax credits. The program was applied for three years ago by the Oakland Main Street program through the cooperation and assistance of GCCAC president Duane Yoder. Solipsys's previous donation came under the same tax credit program. Those funds were used to provide lighting, in the form of attractive turn-of-the-century reproduction light poles, for the space in front of the structure.

A high-technology business specializing in products for defense application, Solipsys is one of the nation's top 500 fastest growing, privately held companies in the nation. Earlier this month the firm was singled out in the annual "Inc. 500" issue of Inc. Magazine for honors based on percentage growth over a five-year period. Solipsys is a member of the Small Business Technology Coalition and is active in supporting independent research and acquisition initiatives that are mutually beneficial to small business and the government as well as to customers in industry.

The next meeting of the mayor and town council is scheduled for Thursday, Nov. 29, at 7:30 p.m.

ACCIDENT

- Jo Sheffield of Devine and Sheffield, CPAs, was present to discuss the 2000-2001 fiscal year's financial report. She reported everything was in good order. She reviewed the GASB 34 Outline, but reported the town does not have to implement GASB 34 until the fiscal year 2003-2004.
- The council appointed Shawn Fratz as a member of the Zoning Appeals Board.
- The Christmas wreaths are in and are on display at the town hall. They are scheduled to be put on the poles on Nov. 20 and 21, weather permitting. They will be dedicated on Dec. 8 as part of the "Christmas in Flowery Vale" celebration.

The next meeting will be held Monday, Dec. 3, 7:30 p.m., in the town hall.

OAKLAND

- Cub Scout Troop 22 visited the mayor and town council at the recent meeting for credit in earning a badge.
- Craig Ingram reported to the council that he wishes to expand his business to a house and requested that it be considered under the special exception rule.
- Representatives from the Oakland Golf Club asked permission to expand the facility in the future.
- Doug Sisler of I.C. Electronics requested permission to use another tower.
- Dr. Brenda McCartney, representing a group of residents in the area of Second Street, presented a few issues to the council. She reported on a petition that has been made in regard to placing stop signs at each intersection along Second Street. The group also suggested more law enforcement on the street and to close the alley behind CVS. She also voiced concerns of the group regarding absentee landlords and abandoned vehicles violating zoning laws. The council has requested advice on these issues from the traffic advisory committee.
- Four residential zoning permits were approved.
- A business requested and was granted adjustments in its utility bill.
- A resolution was passed to sell the double wide mobile home located in Broadford Park.
- A resolution was passed to put some of the town's money in Miners and Merchants Bank.
- Oakland has been a Plant Community for three years and is once again applying and is trying to reach the platinum level. A committee will be formed for the maintaining of street trees. This ordinance was introduced so that all trees, shrubs, and plant life would be maintained along the streets and in the parks.
- A grant was received for 50 trees. According to Mayor Asa McCain, with this grant the goal of planting trees in all desired locations will be met.
- The council is in the process of interviewing applicants for a new city police officer.
- The council reviewed applications for a part-time zoning administrator.
- As a member of the Maryland Municipal League, the council will attend the upcoming meeting in Frostburg on Tuesday, Nov. 13.
- The council accepted the low bidder for the street sweeper. This sweeper will also clean out sewers and pick up leaves.
- The Relay for Life committee requested that it be allowed to display special banners on the light poles which now hold the "Great Small Town" banners. According to McCain, the town hopes to change the banners with each season. The Christmas banners will soon be in place.
- Christmas on Main Street will be held Friday, Nov. 30, and Saturday, Dec. 1. McCain said those involved are trying to recreate what the town had last year due to popular demand. Santa will be there for free pictures along with live reindeer. Awards of GOBA bucks will be given which may be used at participating sponsor businesses in Oakland. Food and craft vendors are still being sought for the two-day event, and interested persons may contact Connie Margison at 301-334-2571 or leave a message at 301-334-0676.

The next meeting of the mayor and town council will be held Monday, Dec. 3.

support, she said, including a representative from Congressman Bartlett's office, Bud Otis.

Otis, Nutter said, indicated that "plenty of" grant money was available to fund a youth center, and that Bartlett supported the group's efforts, but first it had to secure the commissioners' support. She then asked the commissioners for their support, advice on what the group's next step should be, and help in obtaining grant money.

Each of the commissioners indicated that he supported the concept of a youth center. "No one in this room argues the need for a center," Commissioner Ernest Gregg said. Obtaining a grant, however, was not as easy a process as Otis may have led the group to believe; specific grants are only given for specific projects, he said. Therefore, in order for the commissioners to help the group obtain grants, it first had to "define its goals more closely," such as deciding what type of building was needed, where it would be located, and who would run the center, Gregg said.

Commissioner Wendell Beitzel suggested that the group's first step could be getting specifics from Bartlett's office on monies available, since the commissioners were not aware of any specific grants available for youth centers. Commissioner Fred Holliday also suggested that the alliance approach businesses for monetary support.

Nutter said that the group was "trying to reach the community" and "to get the word out" about the proposed center. "I hope that we can work together," she told the commissioners.

Gregg said that the commissioners would assist the group in obtaining grants, after it defined its goals. He also indicated that he would attend the group's next meeting.

funding to purchase and stabilize the old company store. Additional monies will soon be sought to turn the store into a visitor's center and museum.

Long-term plans call for Kitzmiller to make the best of its location on the banks of the Potomac and its near total lack of commercial development to attract fishermen, hikers, bikers, and others who seek the peace and quiet of a small community.

Duane Yoder, president of Garrett County Community Action Inc., who wrote and submitted the complex grant, said Kitzmiller's receiving this large amount of money represents part of an overall plan for his agency to assist all of the county's municipalities in revitalization efforts.

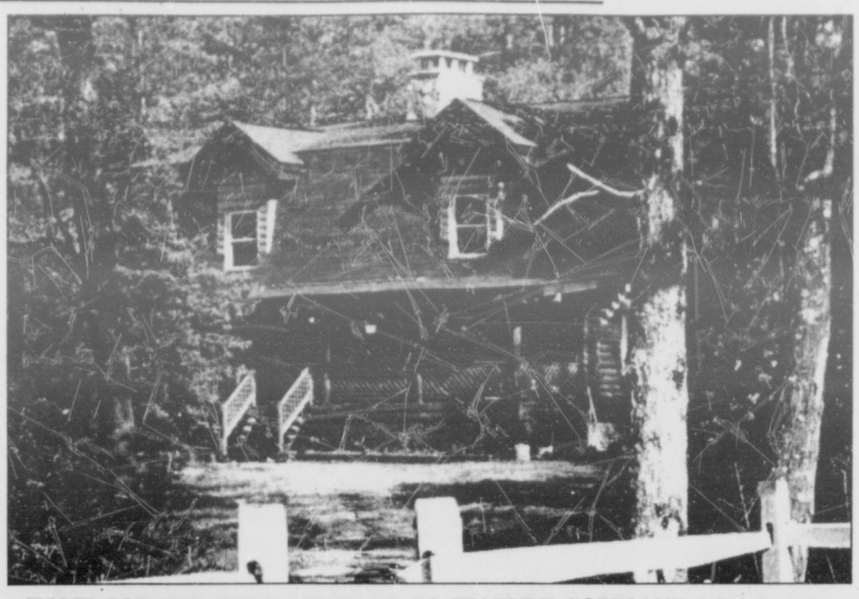
Copeland Log Home To Be On ARC Tour



HOME FOR THE HOLIDAYS TOUR TO FEATURE COPELAND LOG HOME

The 10th annual Home for the Holidays House Tours event, sponsored by the Western Potomac Chapter of the American Red Cross (which includes Garrett County), will take place on Friday, Nov. 30, and Saturday, Dec. 1. One of the six sites to be featured in this year's event will be the log home of Walt and Pat Copeland.

Built in 1994 by the present owners, the custom red cedar 2,200-square-foot residence is a Heritage Log Home, with two floors and a gambrel or barn-style roof. The Copelands bought their land in 1990 and decided to build a log garage with a second floor apartment in 1993. The couple moved to Garrett County in April of 1994 when construction on the house was started.

Upon entering the front door, guests will move into the great room with the fireplace and chimney structure in the center of the house, rising 22 feet to the roof. The dining area and kitchen are in the back under a spacious loft, and guests can see the deck from those areas. The focal points of the kitchen are the custom-made red oak cabinets and the wood-burning cook stove. The laundry and half-bath, along with the master bedroom with walk-in closet and bath, complete the rooms on the first floor.

Wide oak steps lead to the second floor, where two other bedrooms are located along with a second full bath. In the large bedroom are custom-made oak twin captains' beds with drawers underneath, a nightstand between, and an oak chest of drawers and desk. The decor consists of brass lamps and brass headboards on the beds.

As dealers for Heritage Log Homes, the Copelands use their house as a model and a place of business. Log samples and an office are located in the loft, along with a daybed to accommodate visiting grandchildren.

The home, situated in the woods along Ben DeWitt Road, is reached via a walkway from the paved parking area to the front door. Bay windows in the living room and master bedroom offer views of the surrounding forest and wildlife.

Homeowners participating in the event this year in addition to the Copelands, are Dave and Wendy Berry, Gortner; Donald and Carol Moss and Dusty and Elizabeth Huxford, both of the Blakeslee; and Bob and Anne Proudfoot, Mtn. Lake Park. St. Paul's United Methodist Church will also be on the tour.

Raffles will be held at each of the homes, with gifts donated from area businesses.

Tour hours are Friday, 4 until 9 p.m.; and Saturday, 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. Tickets, which are $5 in advance and $7 on the day of the tours, can be purchased at Proudfoot's, Gregg's, and Deep Creek pharmacies, as well as at Flowers by Webers in Oakland and Arrowhead Market at Deep Creek Lake.

The proceeds from this event will help meet the immediate needs of Red Cross projects, the spokesperson said.

"Toys For Tots" Collection Set By Realtors

Long and Foster Real Estate Inc. announced this week that it has launched its 12th annual "Toys for Tots" campaign throughout the mid-Atlantic region. Between November 18 and December 14, each of the company's 168 sales offices will collect toys for distribution to financially and/or physically disadvantaged children within their local communities.

The Toys for Tots program, founded by the U.S. Marine Corps in 1947, is an annual toy collecting drive spearheaded by the Marines in 342 communities, covering all 50 states, plus the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and American Samoa.

Persons wishing to donate may drop off new unwrapped toys at their nearest Long and Foster office. After the toys are collected and presented to Marines, they will be distributed to local churches and social service agencies, who will give them to children in their regions.

According to a spokesperson for Long and Foster, last year's national Toys for Tots campaign surpassed all records set in 1999 with the distribution of 13.8 million toys to 5.9 million needy children. Long and Foster collected more than 25,000 new toys throughout the mid-Atlantic region last year.

For more information on this year's Toys for Tots Campaign, persons may call or stop by their local Long and Foster office.

Maryland Facing Projected $1.7 Billion Deficit By End Of '03

by Christopher Sherman
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — Maryland faces a projected $1.7 billion budget deficit by the end of fiscal 2003, and legislators say it is not likely to disappear without tapping the state's cash reserves and deeply cutting into state spending.

The biggest part of the budget problem is revenues, which are forecast to fall for the first time in at least 15 years, according to figures released by the General Assembly's Spending Affordability Committee last week. Such a revenue drop is a phenomenon not seen even during the budget crisis of the early 1990s.

"Unless the governor takes action in the current budget, it makes 2003 absolutely impossible. What he has done so far is inadequate," said Sen. Barbara Hoffman, D-Baltimore, committee chairwoman.

The governor takes a different view.

"They (legislative budget analysts) are paid to produce doom and gloom scenarios. We are paid to make sure that won't happen," said Mike Morrill, spokesman for Gov. Parris N. Glendening.

But Hoffman and other legislators who remember the last recession are concerned.

Delegate Nancy Kopp, D-Montgomery, for example, said she favors deeper initial cuts, rather than the multiple rounds of belt-tightening that characterized that period.

There are more lessons to be drawn from the situation in the 1990s and the similarities to the current year.

"The states were coming off a very good revenue period," said Scott Pattison, executive director of the National Association of State Budget Officers. "Suddenly, revenue growth rates were plunging and states found themselves facing serious budget shortfalls. So far this is fitting the same pattern."

Between mid-1990 and the end of 1992, Gov. William Donald Schaefer chipped away at the budget nine times. Programs were canceled and thousands of workers laid off as the state struggled to meet the constitutional demand to balance the budget.

"We had to make cut after cut after cut," said Schaefer, now state comptroller. "If you've been through that you know it's devastating... I just don't want the state to face it again."

That recession came as a surprise to Schaefer.

When a budget shortfall was initially projected in August 1990, it was only $150 million.

One month later it grew to $249 million, and Schaefer was quoted at the time saying: "We're going to make some adjustments of $150 million to $200 million, and it'll be some pain. But it's a pain that can be taken care of with a Bayer aspirin rather than taken care of by 10 Tylenols."

Three weeks later the deficit hit $322 million.

By early December, as revenues continued to fail to meet expectations, Schaefer had cut a total of $430 million, and warned that it was going to be "devastating."

The General Assembly resisted facing the economic reality, but yielded after members saw the ugly future, Schaefer said. Legislators then cooperated in paring spending and raising taxes.

With each cut, county and local governments scrambled to readjust their own budgets.

As the recession deepened, Medicaid rolls swelled to 475,000 at the end of 1991, almost one out of every 10 Marylanders.

Looking back now, Schaefer said, the first inkling that something was deeply wrong was when sales tax revenues started to fall off.

That same indicator, measured after this year's holiday season, will likely be a clear signal of the new recession's magnitude, Pattison said.

"If retail is bad, it's going to be a tough recovery," he said. "I think it's going to be an awful fiscal year 2002."

Pattison's pessimism is gathering validity with Friday's release of federal labor statistics. The country's unemployment rate jumped 5.4 percent in October, the largest one-month increase in more than two decades. Maryland, which is a month behind federal statistics, announced September unemployment was 4 percent, a one-tenth percent increase over August.

UNITED WAY CAMPAIGN KICKS OFF — Garrett County government employees recently held a kick-off event for this year's United Way campaign. A "Break with United Way" was held in the commissioners' meeting room at the courthouse, and all persons in the building were invited to take a morning break to learn about this year's campaign. State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch, co-chair of the county employee campaign, said, "While most people know about the individual local organizations affiliated with United Way of Garrett County, there are still questions about the role of United Way. We invited all people working in the building so that the county employees, as well as the state employees who participate in the state's United Charities Campaign, could hear how the funds collected in Garrett County will be used in Garrett County." A goal of $8,000 has been set for the county employee division. Pictured from the left discussing the campaign are Commissioner Ernie Gregg, co-chair of the county employee campaign; Jeannette Rudy Fitzwater, campaign chairperson; Commissioner Fred Holliday; Commissioner Wendell Beitzel; and Welch. Any other employees or employee groups interested in a presentation should call Fitzwater at 301-533-2253.

Terra Alta Man Convicted Of Drug Possession

A West Virginia man was handed a monthlong jail term after pleading guilty to marijuana possession and disorderly conduct in Garrett County District Court last week.

Shannon Doha Lantz, 23, Terra Alta, received a 150-day sentence, all but 30 days of which was suspended, one year of supervised probation, and 40 hours of community service in Judge Ralph Burnett's ruling. Lantz's charges stemmed from his July arrest by sheriff's deputies for allegedly breaking into a Hutton Road residence. When police arrived they found Lantz sitting on a couch in the living room. A search located a smoking pipe in his pocket that bore burnt marijuana residue. Additional charges of fourth degree burglary and possession of drug paraphernalia were not prosecuted by the state's attorney's office.

In other District Court news, David Michael Anderson, 26, McHenry, pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana and was handed a probation before judgment (PBJ), a 30-day sentence with all but two days suspended, a $200 fine, and one year of unsupervised probation. Additional charges of two counts of drug paraphernalia possession and several assorted motor vehicle violations were not prosecuted. State troopers jailed Anderson after a September traffic stop, when a search uncovered a bag of suspected marijuana in his pocket, and a smoking pipe, a cigar casing filled with suspected marijuana, and a packet of rolling papers in his car.

Terry Wayne Graybill, 50, and Karen Renee Graybill, 42, both of Adamstown, were sentenced after entering guilty pleas on charges stemming from a July traffic stop by sheriff's deputies. Terry Graybill's driving under the influence (DUI) conviction drew a 30-day suspended sentence, a $355 fine, one year of supervised probation, and 40 hours of community service, while Karen Graybill's drug possession charge drew a PBJ, a $300 fine, and one day of unsupervised probation.

The Graybills were arrested when a search stemming from a DUI arrest uncovered a smoking pipe bearing suspected burnt marijuana residue in their truck. Additional charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia faced by Terry Graybill, and marijuana possession faced by Karen Graybill, were not prosecuted.

Scot William Dale Kelly and Justin David Michaels, both 19-year-old Oakland residents, were both handed stet rulings on attempted felony theft and conspiracy to commit felony theft charges. The two were arrested by the Oakland Police for attempting to break into the cash register of the Tropical World store while the owner was momentarily away from the front counter.

Donald Clark Finnegan, 25, Accident, was handed a stet ruling on a second degree assault charge that stemmed from a July domestic-related incident. Finnegan had been arrested by state troopers for reportedly assaulting his girlfriend at their residence.

Thank You!

We would like to thank everyone who attended the benefit dance for Andy Haskiell on October 27. It was a great success. We would like to especially thank the Terra Alta VFW for the space and Mark Falkenstein for his music. Without them this would not have been possible. A special thank you to everyone who donated so generously and still are. It is greatly appreciated. The support of all of Andy's family and friends has been tremendous. Again, thanks to all of you!

Mike & Angie Rogers, Scott & Karen Doerr, and the Haskiell Family

All is quiet on Normandy Beach. Where bombs bombarded the shore, seagulls sail the sky. Waves have long ago washed away blood and erased the footprints of those running for their lives off landing barges, for many their last steps. The ominous roar of tanks has given way to the rhythmic roar of the sea. Echos of rifle fire and the screams of wounded comrades and dying friends have drifted with the ocean breeze, but are still etched painfully in the memory of those who were there.

Wars have begun and ended in many places throughout the world during the last century, yet memories never end for those men and women who participated in the horrors of combat. Memories never end for the families of men and women whose entire lives have been overshadowed by the ravages of those memories.

This Veterans Day may we pray that the peace of God that passeth all understanding will quiet the hearts and minds that still rage from the ravages of war.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

PUT OUT YOUR HAND

Nov. 11, 2001

Background Scripture: Matthew 5:17-48.
Devotional Reading: Amos 5:4-16..

Recently, in the Zurich, Switzerland airport, we were among the thousands of stranded air passengers during the September 11 terrorist tragedy. Valere's heart medicines would be exhausted the next day, but, going to the airport pharmacy we were very pleasantly surprised to purchase these medicines for about one-half their cost in the USA. Getting them for less rather brightened our day.

Some look for bargains in Christian discipleship, wanting more benefits for less commitment. Recently, someone told me that Jesus had "repealed the Ten Commandments! Because of Jesus we're under grace," he said, "not the law." But Christ requires of us not 'less,' but 'more' than the commandments. "Think not that I have come to abolish the law and the prophets;" he taught, "I have come not to abolish them but to fulfill them" (5:17). "For I tell you, unless your righteousness exceeds that of the scribes and Pharisees, you will never enter the kingdom of heaven" (v. 20).

This teaching runs through much of the Sermon on the Mount. "You have heard that it was said to men of old, 'You shall not kill...but I say to you that every one who is angry with his brother shall be liable to judgment'" (vs. 21,22). Jesus requires more of us than the Ten Commandments. So it is with our sexual behavior; we must go beyond not committing adultery (vs. 27,28), as well as not "swearing falsely" (v. 33).

A Hard Teaching

Most of all, however, Jesus requires us to go beyond all previous standards in regard to our enemies. "You have heard that it was said, 'An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth'...But I say to you...if any one strikes you on the right cheek, turn to him the other also'" (vs. 38,39).

This is a hard teaching— particularly since September 11, 2001. There are people demanding that we seek vengeance for these terrible atrocities. This is understandable, for it is quite human for us to react to violence with a desire to inflict violence in return, the standard, not only in the "eye for an eye" passage of Exodus 21:23,24, Leviticus 24:19,20 and Deuteronomy 19:21, but also in the Code of Hammurabi and the Roman law.

Despite 2,000 years of Christianity it is still the code by which most people live. But Jesus calls us to go beyond this code in reacting to one's enemies: "You have heard that it was said, 'You shall love your neighbor and hate your enemy.' But I say to you, Love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you" (vs. 43,44).

Human Nature

It is difficult enough to apply that to the nasty neighbor, but seemingly impossible to even think of applying it to the terrorists who killed thousands. Jesus should have given us an escape clause—like except when your enemy does something really evil. But there are no escape clauses in the gospel, no time-outs for revenge. It is human nature to feel the desire for revenge, but Jesus calls for us to move beyond what is human nature.

Remember, loving your enemy does not mean feeling nicely about him. For most of us that would be impossible. But Christlike love is the resolve that, no matter how angry or vengeful we feel, we will do the loving thing anyway! And doing the loving thing" doesn't require that we should not bring enemies to justice, but that we will leave vengeance to God and not make others suffer because of our passion for revenge.

If, in order to assuage our fury at those who have done this terrible deed, we feel compelled to adopt their savage violence for ourselves, then we will have given up Jesus Christ and adopted the ways of our enemies. Let us not forget that Christ requires that we go beyond society's norms, that we give more, not less.

MSPAP Good, But Could Be Better, Reviewers Say

by Justin Paprocki
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — An independent research group told the Maryland State Board of Education last week the state's school performance test is exemplary, but still could use some improvements.

The Maryland School Performance Assessment Program has come under fire from some teachers, politicians, and parents for almost a decade. The test, administered to third-, fifth-, and eighth-graders each May, attempts to measure reading and writing skills through essays and group projects, instead of multiple choice-based tests other states use.

Problems arise, critics say, because the MSPAP does not test basic skills and because results only measure schools, not individual students.

The research group — Maryland Assessment Research Center for Educational Success at the University of Maryland — touched on these subjects as well as others, saying in its preliminary recommendations more studies are needed to improve the test.

The Maryland State Department of Education commissioned the group in January to conduct a review of the MSPAP. The group's final report is due out in December.

"MSPAP is unique and is the only state assessment that has students engage in complex reasoning over a long period of time," said Edys Quellmalz of SRI International, a California research institution that led the study.

The report did not offer solutions to the problems it listed.

The researchers recommended the MSPAP be better aligned with Maryland Learning Outcomes, a set of educational goals set by the state, to better determine school progress.

In addition, the report said not all teachers are teaching the same curriculum, causing a discrepancy in scores.

Student preparation and any items used during testing should be standardized, the group also said.

The full report may recommend a study on possible racial bias in the MSPAP, although the reviewers did not study the issue, said Robert Lissitz, chairman of the educational research center at the University of Maryland.

"That's a major concern, that the test may be culturally biased," said board member Reginald Dunn.

The more than 700 teachers who develop and review the tests consider such issues, said Nancy Grasmick, state school superintendent.

Board members also questioned whether the tests should focus on students instead of schools. Students may not be motivated to do well on the tests if they are not held accountable for it, critics have charged.

Quellmalz said she "can't speak to motivational issues" although "it is not an unusual problem. It's the problem with any type of school-level test."

Measuring individual achievement would require a complete restructuring of the test, Lissitz said.

Some critics are pleased by efforts to improve the test, although it has a long way to go.

Parents need to understand the test's problems in order to help improve it, said Delegate Janet Greenip, R-Anne Arundel, a longtime MSPAP critic.

"Everyone seems to know that it's a problem," she said. "But they don't know why it's a problem."

Glendening Forms Emergency Teams In Six Regions

by Penny Riordan
Capital News Service

REISTERSTOWN — Six new regional emergency response teams will be in place within the next month, Gov. Parris N. Glendening announced last Thursday, saying it will take $128 million to fully outfit the state for the war against terrorism.

Speaking at the Camp Fretterd headquarters of the Maryland Emergency Management Agency, Glendening said there will be one team for each of six regions: western Maryland, Eastern Shore, southern Maryland, Baltimore, the Washington suburbs, and statewide.

Each team, under MEMA's direction, will have seven members, ranging from scientists to public safety experts, and will be the second, behind local authorities, to respond to emergencies in the state. They will have authority on the incident site to deploy state resources as needed.

The teams — which will include a group leader, engineer, medical specialist, chemical expert, logistics expert, a public safety representative, and a public information officer — will be fully trained and ready for deployment in 30 days, Glendening said. It's not clear whether team members will come from other law enforcement and rescue teams.

The $128 million Glendening said the state will spend is needed for what he called "terrorism preparedness and economic stimulus." The list of urgent needs will be passed on to Congress and the Bush administration.

More than $108 million of the total would pay for 13 pages of county "wish lists."

Those lists include State Police helicopters and bomb robots, community health surveillance and better scanning equipment for ships, rerouting traffic at Baltimore/Washington International Airport, and erecting vehicle barriers around Baltimore's World Trade Center.

The state's health care system would get $13 million. There would be $7 million allocated for technology infrastructure; $29 million for aviation security; $9 million for port safety; $18 million for mass transit; $14 million for highway safety; and $13 million for bridge and tunnel safety.

"It's quite expensive," Glendening acknowledged. "It's going to be tough enough for the state government [to pay for it]."

The state is already in a significant financial bind since terrorists attacked the Pentagon and New York World Trade Center on Sept. 11. Cost containment measures ordered by Glendening Oct. 17 would cut $205 million from the state's budget to help cover soaring security costs and plunging revenues stemming from the attacks.

A hiring freeze, a 1.5 percent cut from all agency budgets, and the deferral of $65 million in capital projects made up the governor's first fiscal response to a declining economy.

Emergency funds will be a combination of federal, state, and local money, Glendening said.

Legislation will be introduced in January to fund most of this, and Glendening also hopes to get a large amount of money from an aid package working its way through Congress.

KITZMILLER KIDS MAKE A DIFFERENCE — During the month of October, first grade students at Kitzmiller Elementary School collected coins to send to victims of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks. In celebration of "Make A Difference Day" and in honor of this country, first graders in Rhonda Maust's class collected $118.10 to donate to the Sept. 11 fund. According to Barb Baker, principal, the "coins of care" that the class collected shows the "bigness" of their small hearts. Below is a photo of the class with jars of coins. In the front row, from the left, are Austin Shaffer, Devin Stillwagon, Thomas Beeman, Shane Ramey, and Justin Nesselrodt. In the back row are Baker, Richard Harvey, Clarissa Bender, Sarah Lambka, Andrea Davis, Devin DeWitt, and Maust.

Big Brothers Big Sisters Sets Annual Meeting

Big Brothers Big Sisters will hold its annual meeting Monday, Nov. 19, at 6:30 p.m. in Conference Room A of the Community Services Center, adjacent to Garrett Memorial Hospital in Oakland. Big Brothers, Big Sisters, Big Couples, Lunch Buddies, board members, and those wanting to learn more about the organization are invited to attend the meeting.

Mike Logsdon, board president, will open the event with the welcome and introductions. The agency's mission and an overview will be given by Susan Howard, acting executive director of Big Brothers Big Sisters of the Alleghenies, followed by the state of the agency address by JoAnn Fletcher, Garrett County coordinator.

Election of officers and a brief business meeting will be the final items on the agenda before adjournment. Refreshments will be served after the meeting.

Slots Are Still Available In Drug Program

There is good news for Medicare beneficiaries who live in Garrett County, according to the Area Agency on Aging. The Prescription Drug Program recently enacted by Maryland legislation and administered by Care First Blue Cross Blue Shield still has 4,000 slots available.

For a cost of $10 a month, persons have access to a prescription drug program which provides the following:

- $0 deductible;
- A 3-tier prescription drug program, with a $10 co-pay for generic drugs;
- $20 for preferred brand-name drugs;
- $35 for non-preferred brand-name drugs;
- Two convenient ways to receive medications — either by visiting a designated pharmacy or by ordering through a convenient mail service program;
- A $1,000 maximum prescription subsidy per 12 month period; and
- Designated maintenance drugs available for a 90-day supply for only twice one's normal co-pay.

In order to qualify for this program, one must be enrolled in Medicare Part A, have a household income at/or below 300% of the federal poverty guidelines, and not be enrolled in another insurance program that provides any prescription drug benefits. TV PIPELINE

Fans can Just Shoot former 90210 vixen

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Tiffani Thiessen

Q: Whatever happened to Tiffani-Amber Thiessen, formerly of Saved by the Bell and Beverly Hills, 90210? –A Michigan reader.

A: Funny you should ask, because Tiffani Thiessen (she's no longer hyphenated professionally) is joining the cast of NBC's Just Shoot Me for several episodes, beginning this week. As fans already know, the 27-year-old actress is no slouch at comedy.

Q: I have written several fan letters recently to various TV stars and almost none of them responded in any fashion. Is an autograph too much to ask for these days? These people would be nowhere if we didn't watch their shows. –Sherry Solomon, Seattle, Wash.

A: As someone who collected autographs when I was younger, I understand your disappointment, Sherry, but this is a more complicated situation than it may seem. Most Hollywood managers are instructing their clients to have as little personal contact with their fans as possible, if only for security reasons. Once-accessible stars are forced to re-evaluate things after having some unsettling encounters, both in person and via mail, with their more obsessed admirers. And the recent incidents involving mail-borne Anthrax don't help matters.

There's also the simple question of time: Shooting a one-hour drama series leaves a cast member with very little time for a personal life, even without factoring in hours spent reading and answering mail.

Finally, while many stars happily send an autographed picture in response to a tasteful letter that doesn't reek of hysteria, others are turned off by the fact that many of these "fans" then try to sell the autograph on an online auction site such as eBay.

To sum up: Keep your fan letters sane, respectful and work-focused. Remember, while they are coming into your home each week, so to speak, you are a total stranger to them. Finally, be patient: Some performers save up mail and answer during hiatus, so an autograph may arrive months later.

Q: Was The Andy Griffith Show originally called Andy of Mayberry? –Sandra Droll, Kokomo, Ind.

A: When it premiered Oct. 3, 1960, on CBS, the show was called The Andy Griffith Show. A few years later, while the show still was running in prime time, CBS began airing reruns during its daytime lineup as Andy of Mayberry, a title also used on some syndication versions. After the show left prime time in 1968, the original title began appearing on all reruns.

GOP Women Celebrate MFRW 80th Anniversary

Three members of the Northern Republican Women's Club — Brenda Butscher, Carolyn Ganoe, and Ruth Umbel — recently helped celebrate the 80th anniversary of the Maryland Federation of Republican Women (MFRW).

The celebration was held in Columbia during the MFRW's annual convention and board meeting. Highlights of the two-day event included the election of officers and tributes from officials on the completion of the organization's 80 years of service.

Chartered in 1921, MFRW is the state's oldest and largest women's political organization, with nearly 2,000 members in 44 clubs throughout the state. According to Butscher, chairperson of the Republican Central Committee, every Republican woman in the state's delegation to the U.S. Congress, the Maryland legislature, and most county governments is an MFRW member.

The organization is part of the National Federation of Republican Women. With 107,000 members, it is the foremost women's political organization in the world, said Butscher.

MFRW officers elected during the convention include Marilyn Dankner, Montgomery County, president; Betty Jane Carroll, Talbot County, first vice president; Regina Origoni, Montgomery County, second vice president; Grace Sommerhof, Baltimore, third vice president; and Angela Brown, St. Mary's County, fourth vice president.

Marjorie Thomas, Frederick County, was elected treasurer, and Janis Foley, Worcester County, assistant treasurer. Corresponding and recording secretaries elected were Annette Carr, Annapolis, and Ruth Umbel, Garrett County.

State Senate Minority Leader J. Lowell Stoltzfus delivered resolutions from the Maryland Senate and House of Delegates commending the federation, and also provided the finale to the celebratory banquet by singing "God Bless the USA."

The Northern Republican Women's Club, located in Grantsville, meets on the last Tuesday of the month. Membership is open to all area Republican women. Persons may call Carolyn Ganoe, president, at 301-895-3545 for more information.

tors say they saw the bad times coming.

"This budget was in trouble the day we enacted it," said Sen. Robert Neall, D-Anne Arundel.

Neall, who was Anne Arundel County executive then, recalled the budget problems of the 1990s saying: "They scared the hell out of me — look at where we are now. If you don't make deep enough cuts the first time through, you're really putting yourself behind the eight ball."

Neall is urging that the state's rainy day fund be preserved intact to maintain the state's triple-A bond rating.

Some legislators accept part of the blame for passing a budget they knew was unbalanced.

"The legislature didn't have the guts to stand up to the governor, and now we're paying for it," said Senate Minority Leader J. Lowell Stoltzfus, R-Somerset.

All capital projects for this year and next will have to be deferred, the state's rainy day fund will be drawn upon, and, "I think we're going to have to see some layoffs," predicted Stoltzfus.

The state's payroll swelled over the past two years, as 5,300 state jobs, both contractual and permanent, were created, said John Rohrer, fiscal and policy analysis coordinator for the state legislature's Department of Legislative Services. Those new positions cost the state about $180 million per year.

Glendening announced cost-containment measures Oct. 17, totaling $205 million over the next two years. All hiring, outside of security-related positions, was frozen.

Agency budgets were cut by 1.5 percent, and $65 million in approved capital projects were deferred. No additional fiscal measures will be taken until the December revenue estimates come out.

"The governor will base cuts on information, not speculation in December," Morrill said.

"I would suggest," said Hoffman, "that December may be too late."

Charles E. Thomas who passed away Nov. 7th, 2000

How we miss you no one will ever know
It is because we loved you so.
It just seems as if you are away
And will be back some day to stay.
Your friends were many, they loved you too.
We know God needed you and he was there with outstretched arms to take you
Home where you would have no more
Suffering, no more pain, but it was so
Hard to see you go.
We miss you so much, it has been a year;
But it seems like so many.
We can just see you walking on the Shores of Heaven, talking to Jesus
And loved ones who've gone on before.

Love and miss you,
Dot and family

Nov. 11 is Veterans Day ...

... and America is at war.

Blue Star Banners are back.

Since World War I, a Blue Star Banner displayed in the front window of a home told others that a family member was serving in the armed forces.

Once again, American men and women are being called to war. They are our nation's newest veterans, fighting to wipe out the seeds of terrorism. Each of them leaves a family behind. Every neighborhood has someone serving.

As we steel ourselves for a long and difficult war, the sight of Blue Star Banners in homes will remind us of the personal sacrifices being made to preserve our way of life.

This Veterans Day, we urge all Americans to remember those in uniform today, as well as the veterans of generations past. Their sacrifice to preserve freedom and opportunity for us all deserves our heartfelt thanks.

GC Farm Bureau Sets Citrus Sale

The Garrett County Farm Bureau has slated its annual Florida Citrus Sale to raise funds for scholarships sponsored by the organization. The deadline to place an order is Friday, Nov. 23, and delivery is scheduled take place between Thursday and Friday, Dec. 6-14.

Four-fifths bushel quantities of these items are available at the following prices: navel oranges, $15.25; red grapefruit, 14.75; and tangelos, $15.25. Cases of orange juice concentrate, in quantities of 24 12-oz. cans (5/1 water/concentrate mix, no sugar), are available for $39 each. Checks may be made payable to the Garrett County Farm Bureau and mailed to the organization in care of Paul Miller, 599 Pud Miller Rd., Accident, MD 21520.

The Farm Bureau reminds prospective customers that the fruit is not picked until the order is placed; Florida citrus has a thinner skin than citrus from other locations, making for a "more edible" product; and that once picked up, the fruit must be kept cool.

For further information on the citrus sale, persons can call Miller at 301-746-8616.

Student Of The Month Is Named

Tina Lively, daughter of Gary and Connie Lively, was among those named as September students of the month by the Myrtle Beach (S.C.) Chrysler & Bobby Gale Dodge companies. Lively was named as the Student of the Month at the Academy for the Arts, Science, and Technology.

The students named each month for this honor are chosen based on their excellence and contributions to their schools and classroom communities, extracurricular activities, and church or civic involvement, and for being "all around good citizens."

At the academy, Lively studies art and graphic design. Upon her graduation, she hopes to go to college and major in graphic design and eventually pursue a career in that field.

Lively is the granddaughter of Mary Kamp, Grantsville.

Westmar Grad Is New Deputy Fire Marshal

State Fire Marshal William E. Barnard last week hired another new deputy state fire marshal to work in western Maryland. Jason M. Mowbray, 24, of Barton was sworn in on October 31 at the fire marshal's headquarters in Towson.

Prior to joining the Office of the State Fire Marshal, Mowbray was a technical support specialist for a Cumberland company, as well as a substitute teacher for the Allegany County Board of Education. A graduate of Westmar High School, Westernport, he has an associate of arts and science degree in criminal justice from Allegany College. Additionally, he has a degree in fire science technology.

Upon graduating from the Hagerstown Police Training Academy, which he will attend from January until April 2002, Mowbray will conduct fire investigations and fire safety inspections in Washington, Allegany, and Garrett counties. In the future he will attend fire and criminal investigations training at the National Fire Academy, Maryland Fire and Rescue Institute, and the FBI Academy.

DSFM Mowbray will be one of five deputies assigned to the Western Regional Office of the state fire marshal. Other staff includes a fire inspector, an administrative aide, a fire protection engineer, and a supervisor.

Garrett County Seniors Sign Up For New Rx Plan

Almost 130 eligible senior citizens of Garrett County have enrolled in Maryland's Senior Short-Term Rx Plan, which CareFirst BlueCross BlueShield officials say is 80 percent full.

"The 2001 General Assembly created the plan, administered by and mostly funded by CareFirst, as a stop-gap measure until the federal government addresses the problem nationally," said Frances P. Doherty, CareFirst's vice president for government affairs. "In the first three months of operation, more than 24,000 senior citizens have enrolled, more than 119,000 claims were submitted, and almost $3.5 million paid out in prescriptions," Doherty said.

Enrollment in the program is limited to seniors aged 65 or older, and certain disabled persons who qualify for Medicare. Applicants cannot participate in any other program or insurance plan that provides prescription drug benefits.

Qualified applicants can make no more than 300 percent of the federal poverty guidelines, determined by the adjusted gross income of a household. For example, the threshold for a single-person household is $25,770 while that for a two-member home is $34,830. The plan has a $10 monthly premium with a $1,000 maximum benefit for each year.

Potential members seeking applications or who have questions about the program should call 1-800-972-4612. Applications also are available at senior citizens centers across the state.

The Ansonia Clock Co. of Ansonia, Conn., worked from 1851 to about 1930. The company made many types of wall and shelf clocks. Some clocks had chimes, some were eight-day clocks and some had alarms. Other features were also available.

The Monarch or Champion style was a popular shelf clock that Ansonia made in about 1878. The clocks had fancy walnut-veneered cases with a drawer in the bottom. The eight-day brass time-and-strike movement was used. A fancy decorated glass tablet on the front door of the clock exposed the swinging pendulum. Finials and scrolls decorated the case. Topping all of this Victorian splendor was an urn-shaped finial. A working Monarch clock sells for more than $1,000.

Q. Can you tell me the difference between a toastmaster's glass and a sham-dram? All I know is that both of them are trick glasses that hold a tiny amount of liquor.

A. The role of a toastmaster was established by at least the end of the 1600s. During the early 1700s, toastmasters came to realize that they couldn't fulfill their official duties and drink glass after glass of liquor. Special drinking glasses or long-stemmed cordials were made with bowls that were nearly filled with solid glass. A tiny V-shaped depression in the bowl held only a half-ounce of liquor.

Sham-drams were introduced near the end of the 1700s. They were used by tavern keepers when invited to drink with customers. Early sham-drams were shaped like ale glasses of the period, but were slightly shorter. They were made of heavy, inexpensive glass. Like a toastmaster's glass, a sham-dram has a solid bowl inside that limits the amount of liquor the glass can hold.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• There are some snake species that eat nothing but other snakes.

• In baseball, the Yankees have swept the World Series in four games more often than any other team — eight times since 1900.

• Ever wonder how animals taste? How they taste their food, I mean — not how they taste to you. A chicken has 45 taste buds — maybe due to the fact that it only eats grain and doesn't really need to taste much. A dog has about 2,000 taste buds — more, but that still doesn't approach the 10,000 that a person has. What is bizarre is that a catfish has a whopping 100,000 taste buds — some of them on the outside of its body!

• Edna St. Vincent Millay was the first woman to win the Pulitzer Prize for poetry. Her poem "First Fig" contributed a common expression to the English language. "My candle burns at both ends;/ It will not last the night;/ But ah, my foes, and oh, my friends — / It gives a lovely light!"

• Since 1966, merchandise from the perennially popular TV franchise "Star Trek" — including all of the various series it has spawned — has brought in more than $3.5 billion.

• An anaconda will eat only two to four times a year — but in one meal, it can eat up to 90 percent of its body weight. It can even eat a deer — antlers and all — without suffering injuries.

• Do you want an excuse to use the number six sextillion, five hundred eighty-eight quintillion? Ask someone if he wants to know how much the Earth weighs.

• You weigh more at the North Pole than you do at the equator.

Curbing Excessive Barking

Q. My terrier barks literally at everything! If the phone rings, she barks; if a bird flits by the window, she barks; if clouds are in the sky, she barks. My neighbors have noticed. What can I do?

A. Barking is a natural thing for dogs to do — especially when faced with unfamiliar things. However, when that growling yap is the only sound in your ears, day and night, you must do something about it — for your sake, and your neighbors'.

The solution to your dilemma is training, and lots of it.

First, show your dog what you mean when you want him or her to stop barking. When your terrier barks at a shadow on the window, place your hand on her muzzle (gently, please!) — thumb atop her nose, fingers underneath her jaw. Say "Quiet!" in a firm voice. Repeat this action every time she barks inappropriately. Don't squeeze or shake her muzzle. You're not hurting or punishing the dog; you're just showing her what the word "Quiet" means.

Once she shows that she understands your command (she stops barking, or at least pauses, when you say "Quiet!"), stop holding her muzzle.

Now, keep a spray bottle filled with water (or a shake can filled with pennies, if water doesn't work) nearby. When your terrier starts barking inappropriately, say "Quiet!" and squirt a stream of water (and ONLY water) directly into her face. This action absolutely mortifies a dog and will make her think twice about flying off the handle at any strange sound.

When you leave the house, keep the window shades drawn and the lights down so your dog doesn't have any stimuli to bark at. Ask your neighbor if the dog barks when you're gone; you may need to get creative with your departure and arrival times to keep your terrier on her toes — and her best behavior.

Transportation Vouchers Among HFGC Offerings

A local program is providing improved access to health care for Garrett County residents by making free medical transportation vouchers available and providing venipuncture lab collection services for homebound persons. Healthy Families Garrett County - Medical Transportation Voucher Project (HFGC-MTVP) is meeting the demand for out-of-county medical transportation by increasing the number of vouchers available to county residents.

MTVP transportation vouchers are available for individuals without transportation who are not covered under another medical transportation program, according to HFGC director Earleen Beckman. The vouchers can be used for transportation provided by the Garrett County Community Action Committee's Garrett Transit Services (GTS) for medical and health-related appointments.

Vouchers can be used for transportation to doctors and health department appointments, eye exams and follow-up, physical therapy, and WIC and food stamp appointments. One voucher can be used for one adult or two children to ride GTS one-way from pick-up to drop-off for each appointment.

During the first seven months of operation the MTVP provided 410 medical transportation trips for 48 individuals, averaging 53 trips and 3,522 passenger miles per month.

Residents can request vouchers be mailed to them by calling the Healthy Families office at 301-334-7720 or 301-895-3111. Vouchers are also available from WIC staff, Healthy Families home visitors, the Area Agency on Aging, the Department of Social Services, or any of the health department clinics.

Health Department Home Health nurses are available to provide venipuncture lab collection services at the homes of qualified patients who are homebound and have an order from a doctor. For information, persons may call Home Health agency at 301-334-7750 or 301-895-3112.

EXPERIENCING AN AGE OLD PROCESS — The fifth grade class at Friendsville Elementary School recently had the opportunity to make apple cider using the same process that has been used for hundreds of years. Each student was given the opportunity to grind and press the apples and to jug the cider. "It was really fun and I learned a lot," said Colton Tressler, a student in Mrs. Opel's homeroom. As a reward for their hard work, the students were allowed to "drink all they wanted" and was given one half gallon of cider to take home. It is the best cider I ever drank," said Linzi Sisler. According to Mrs. Opel, this seemed to be the consensus of the entire class.

Healthy Families Program Earns Accreditation

Healthy Families Garrett County (HFGC), a home visitation program of the county's health department, has earned a Certificate of Credential from Prevent Child Abuse America, according to program director Earleen Beckman. The credential, effective through Sept. 14, 2005, recognizes the HFGC program as a provider of "high quality" home visitation services.

The credentialing process, developed in conjunction with the Council on Accreditation of Services for Families and Children, attests that the HFGC program has met a set of nationally established research-based standards ensuring quality service delivery. The comprehensive review involves an in-depth examination of the program's operation, including personnel, fiscal and program management, both through completion of a comprehensive self-assessment and an on-site review conducted by trained peer reviewers.

The HFGC program is a Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families program administrated by the health department. HFGC provides home visiting services to all expecting parents and families with a newborn under 3 months of age who live in Garrett County. "The most important stages of learning in a child's life takes place from birth to age 3," Garrett County health officer Rodney Glotfelty remarked. "Parents are the strongest influence in their children's lives, but parenting is a difficult job and children do not come with an owners manual.

"The HFGC program provides support to ensure that children are healthy and enter school ready to learn. Staff answer parent's questions, help parents to know what to expect as their baby grows and help parents to learn how to teach while playing with their child."

The HFGC program is funded by the Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families as a part of its Community Partnership Agreement with the state and county.

HEALTHY FAMILIES PROGRAM STAFF CELEBRATES — The staff of the Healthy Families Garrett County (HFGC) home visitation program was awarded a four-year accreditation by the Prevent Child Abuse America organization recently. The credential comes after a throrough review of all facets of the program's services and operations. The HFGC staff is shown above, with program director Earline Beckman at the far right in the photo. See story.

Truck Show Group Sets Benefit Dance

A fund-raiser dance will take place this Saturday, Nov. 10, from 9:30 p.m. to 1:30 a.m. at the Grantsville American Legion Post. Sponsored by the Western Maryland Truck Show, the event will benefit the 2002 Tri-State Toys for Happiness charity.

Headlining the dance will be the local band "Teaz," featuring Mike Dean, Delmy George, Mike Knecht, and Jamie Spiker.

GCMH Receives Assistance With Monthly Billing

National Hospital Collections, Morgantown, W.Va., has recently agreed to assist Garrett County Memorial Hospital with its monthly billing.

Patients who have an established monthly payment plan with GCMH will now receive their statements from National Hospital Collections. Instead of receiving a multiple page bill from GCMH, the patient will receive a one-page bill indicating a total amount owed, the contracted payment amount, and the due date of the payment. Patients will be able to see their balances reduce with each payment made.

"While payments mailed directly to NHC are preferred, individuals can still make their monthly payments here at the hospital," said Kathy Callis, director of patient financial services. "Our staff will still be responsible for setting up the payment plans and making any changes in the amount due. NHC will simply be monitoring each payment plan for prompt payment in the correct amount."

The implementation of this service will make monthly bills less confusing for patients as they will only reflect one total amount due instead of the balances of many individual accounts.

"The staff of GCMH will be able to use their resources to work toward the resolution of the many insurance claims, and in working with our patients toward establishing a monthly payment plan or applying for assistance with their bills," Callis said.

Christmas Carol "With A Twist" Slated At WVU

This year's production of A Christmas Carol by West Virginia Public Theatre puts a new spin on the Dickens classic. Adapted and revised by Ralph Brem, the new look at A Christmas Carol will be presented December 18-23 at the Creative Arts Center in Morgantown, W.Va.

"We're looking for ways to tell the basic story of alienation and redemption played out against factors affecting today's world," said Ron Iannone, WVPT founder and executive producer.

In WVPT's 2001 version of A Christmas Carol, a partial troupe of itinerant actors finds itself without a place to play because of a catastrophic event earlier that day. Reduced in numbers, the fate of their road colleagues unknown and told that there will be no performance, they decide otherwise. Thus, with limited resources, "...because this is what we do...live and dream," they decide to improvise the production for the gathering audience.

All of the well-known characters of the Dickens classic are still in the cast — Scrooge, Cratchit, Tiny Tim, the ghosts, and the Fezziwigs — but there are more, and Iannone and director Geoffrey Hitch decided early on that a group of talented actors would be needed to carry out the plan.

Scrooge will be portrayed by WVPT audience favorite Robert Aronson, who appeared last summer as John Adams in 1776 and Arthur in Camelot. WVPT audiences will also remember him as Capt. Hook in Peter Pan and his portrayal of Don Quixote in Man of La Mancha.

Also returning to WVPT from last summer is Stanton Garr, who will play Bob Crachit. Stanton portrayed Thomas Jefferson in 1776 last summer, and Prince Charming in last year's holiday production of Cinderella.

Tickets for A Christmas Carol are currently on sale, and range in price from $10 to $20. Tickets may be reserved by calling 304-599-6785 or 1-877-999-WVPT (9878).

"Christmas From Dublin" Set At Frostburg State

"Christmas from Dublin" with Three Irish Tenors will return to Frostburg State University for two nights, Tuesday, Nov. 20, and Wednesday, Nov. 21, after last year's sell-out performance.

Both shows, which are part of FSU's Cultural Events Series, will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center's Pealer Recital Hall. Patrons are encouraged to purchase tickets as soon as possible.

Tenors Ciaran Nagle, Anthony Norton, and Tom Cregan will join Irish harpist Jacqueline Whelan, seanachai (storyteller) and comedian Jimmy Kennedy, plus a host of Irish dancers and musicians, for a distinctive celebration of the Christmas spirit from the Emerald Isle.

This program will feature a variety of scenes of time-honored traditions and memories from an Irish childhood. The show includes Irish songs of the season, such as "Come Home to Ireland for Christmas," "Mrs. O'Leary's Christmas Cake," and "Christmas in Killarney," along with traditional holiday favorites.

Dinner theatre specials are available prior to the performance at the following dinner theatre partner restaurants: Fratelli's Italian Restaurant; Giuseppe's Italian Restaurant; JB's Steak Cellar; Leone's Italian Restaurant; and Oxford House. Each special includes a uniquely designed meal with non-alcoholic beverages, tax, and gratuity. Dinner theatre specials can be purchased through the CES Box Office.

For information and ticket purchases, and for dinner-theatre menu selections and reservation purchases, persons may contact the FSU CES Box Office Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at 301-687-3137 or toll free at 1-866-ITXX CES. Order requests can also be faxed to 301-687-7049 or e-mailed to CES@frostburg.edu. Based on availability, tickets may also be purchased at the Cordts Center Arena Box Office one hour prior to the performance. For information and ticket availability on the day of the show, persons may call 301-687-4411. All patrons must have a ticket, and all ticket sales are final.

This tour of "Christmas in Dublin" starring Three Irish Tenors is presented in collaboration with Winwood Theatricals and FSU's Division of Performing Arts.

FORMER RESIDENT WINS CONTEST — Former resident Scott Buckingham recently won first runnerup in the Star Quest Karaoke Contest (Youth Division) held at the Ocean City Convention Center in Ocean City. Buckingham sang and danced to "Grease Lightnin'." He won a trophy and cash prize. Later that evening at the Rock, Roll, 'n Remember show, he danced on stage with Martha Reeves and the Vandellas.

MPT To Feature Garrett Artists This Saturday

Local artists Charles P. (Chip) Evans and Jim and Nelda McNeil will appear before a statewide audience this Saturday, Nov. 10, when Maryland Public Television's On Location broadcasts a series of interviews from western Maryland featuring artists working in Garrett, Allegany, Washington, and Frederick counties. The interviews will appear in 60-second segments aired throughout the day between regularly scheduled programs.

Evans and the McNeils, who paint with oils and watercolors, participate in numerous arts festivals and exhibits throughout the tri-state region. Their work is displayed locally at the Gallery operated by the Garrett County Arts Council along Alder Street in Oakland.

According to a Maryland Public Television spokesman, events and story ideas broadcast by MPT On Location "celebrate the diversity of our state...and highlight the best that Maryland has to offer." The production team has visited each of Maryland's 23 counties and Baltimore City to produce 323 episodes in 10 years of broadcast.

"It's wonderful that the works of these accomplished local artists are being celebrated in this public format," said Steve Schlosnagle, executive director of the arts council. "We congratulate Chip, Jim, and Nelda. We also thank them. Their work is a good reflection on all of us who live here and participate in the development of the Garrett County arts community."

Other MPT On Location segments scheduled for broadcast throughout the day on Nov. 10 will feature western Maryland potters, photographers, a wood turner, and a metal sculptor. Some of the segments are scheduled for a second airing between regularly scheduled programs on Sunday, Nov. 11.

Storytelling Events Set At Aurora Church

Noted area storyteller Ilene Evans will share with her stories of faith, life, and freedom during a special program at St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Aurora, W.Va., on Saturday, Nov. 17, at 7 p.m. Evans will follow that appearance by facilitating a storytelling workshop at the church the next day, Sunday, Nov. 18, from 2 to 3:30 p.m. The workshop is open to anyone interested in storytelling in the church, school or community, and will be adapted to what people are interested in doing with storytelling.

A native of Chicago, where she worked as a performing artist-in-residence in the city's public school system, Evans now resides in the Kempton area. "My favorite tales come from all over the world. I tell a wide range of stories because I love finding out about how other people think and live, and what pathways they find through their troubles," Evans observed. "Stories connect us to our personal and cultural past. They help us grow spiritual roots, they shape and form our values."

Both the storytelling performance and the workshop are open to all ages at no cost. Donations received at these events will be matched by the Lutheran Brotherhood Challenge Fund. For further information, persons can call Mary Streets at 301-334-2907.

Award-Winning Poet To Visit Frostburg State

The Western Maryland Writers' Workshop and the Department of English at Frostburg State University will host award-winning poet Jane Hirshfield, who will be visiting the campus on Monday, Nov. 12.

Hirshfield will read from her works at 7:30 p.m. in the Lane University Center Room 201. A reception and book signing will follow. The event is free and open to the public.

Considered one of this country's most acclaimed writers, Hirshfield is the author of five collections of poetry, most recently Given Sugar, Given Salt, as well as a book of essays on poetry, Nine Gates. She has also edited and co-translated two poetry anthologies. Her honors include the Poetry Center Book Award, fellowships from the Guggenheim and Rockefeller foundations, and Columbia University's Translation Center Award. Her work has appeared in The New Yorker, The Atlantic, The New Republic, The Nation, The American Poetry Review, and many other publications.

Her poems, called "radiant and passionate" by the New York Times Book Review, explore the connections between human and natural worlds. "Through five collections, her work addresses the life of the passions, the way the object and events of everyday life are informed by deeper wisdoms, and the darkness, losses, and fracturing that are also our shared fate," stated one reviewer.

For more information about Hirshfield's visit, persons may call FSU's Department of English at 301-687-4221.

"Tellabration" Event Slated In Grantsville

A "Tellabration" — an evening of stories from around the world — is slated for Tuesday, Nov. 20, beginning with a 6 p.m. dinner at Grantsville's Hilltop Restaurant, followed by storytelling at 7 p.m. Sponsored by the Garrett Branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW), the event is being held in conjunction with the National Storytelling Network's promotion of similar Tellabrations across the globe.

A number of local and regional storytellers will share some of their favorite stories at this event, and members of the audience interested in participating will have the opportunity to do so, according to local Tellabration coordinator Dr. Gail Herman.

There is no admission charge for the event, but donations will be accepted to benefit the AAUW scholarship fund. Those attending are expected to pay for their own meals, and dining reservations are suggested and may be made by calling the Hilltop at 301-895-5168. Persons interested in further information about the Tellebration may call Herman at 301-387-9199 or Katie Ross at 301729-0875.

Love's Labour's Lost To Be FSU Theatre Offering

The Frostburg State University Theatre will present the Shakespearean classic Love's Labour's Lost at the Performing Arts Center's Drama Theatre on Friday, Nov. 16; Saturday, Nov. 17; Thursday, Nov. 29; Friday, Nov. 30; and Saturday, Dec. 1, at 8 p.m. A matinee performance is scheduled for Saturday, Nov. 17, at 2 p.m.

Shakespeare pokes fun at pretension while exploring the power of love in a typically complex plot featuring a group of strong-willed young men who pledge to renounce women, according to an FSU spokesperson. "Naturally, they become captivated by four appealing young women and must reconsider their promises. With memorable lyric passages and comic sketches, the play moves from an atmosphere of festive games and play to a more serious conclusion as the characters make discoveries about life's realities," he said.

Tickets are $3 for students and $7 for the general public. For reservations and information, persons may call the Department of Theatre at 301-687-4145 Monday through Friday between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Corn Harvest Nears Completion

Last week was extremely dry in Maryland, allowing farmers an average of 6.8 days to concentrate on fieldwork, such as harvesting the remainder of the corn crop. With the exception of a few counties that received trace amounts of precipitation, the majority of the state received no rainfall last week. Consequently, the corn harvest continues to advance, though slowly due to delays at the elevators. Corn harvested for grain is 91 percent complete, progressing 3 percent from the previous week, 8 percent ahead of last year, and 6 percent ahead of the five-year average.

The soybean crop continues to be harvested ahead of schedule, though unable to dodge the ill effects of the dry weather. Many areas are reporting very low moisture level in soybeans, resulting in shattering during harvest and possible yield reductions. Soybean harvest is 77 percent complete, progressing 15 percent over the previous week, 18 percent ahead of last year, and 20 percent ahead of the five-year average.

The dry conditions are also hindering small grain germination in many areas. Rain is needed to maintain favorable small grain conditions. Nevertheless, small grain seedings are nearing completion with 95 percent of the barley crop planted, 6 percent ahead of last year, and 3 percent ahead of the five-year average. Barley is rated 1 percent in excellent condition, 4 percent good, 43 percent fair, 12 percent poor, and 4 percent very poor. Winter wheat seeding is 77 percent complete, 7 percent ahead of both last year and the five-year average. The winter wheat crop is rated 56 percent in good condition, 30 percent fair, 12 percent poor, and 2 percent very poor. Rye is 79 percent planted, 6 percent ahead of last year, and 1 percent ahead of the five-year average. Rye is rated 10 percent in excellent condition, 48 percent good, 36 percent fair, 5 percent poor, and 1 percent very poor.

The arid conditions continue to diminish topsoil and subsoil moisture. Consequently, topsoil and subsoil rated in adequate supply decreased by 13 percent and 12 percent, respectively, from the previous week. Topsoil moisture is rated 22 percent adequate, 44 percent short, and 34 percent very short. Subsoil moisture is 30 percent adequate, 48 percent short, and 22 percent very short.

THANKS TO A $1,500 GRANT from the Garrett County Farm Bureau, elementary school students in the county are being provided a unique learning experience, as the money is being used to fund visits by the Maryland Agricultural Education Foundation's mobile science labs. The mobile aquatic lab has been at Yough Glades, Dennett Road, Friendsville, Grantsville, and Route 40 elementary schools this fall, and the agriculture lab will visit Broad Ford and Accident elementary schools next spring. The photo of the aquatic lab above left was taken at Grantsville Elementary School and includes Mike Warne's fourth grade class. Above right, students Adria Graham, Nikkole Diehl, and Mallory Brenneman make an aqua terra column to investigate the connection and interaction between soil and aquatic ecosystems. Below left, Friendsville Elementary School students watch a demonstration before conducting their own experiments, as shown in the photo below right of Friendsville students Linzi Sisler and Pamela Snyder. At the bottom, Grantsville students Tyler Warnick and William Gibbs explore the effects of oil spills on aquatic life. "The agriculture and aquatic labs have brought the world of science and agriculture to life, with many exciting activities for our elementary school students," stated Dr. Wendell Teets, school superintendent. "We really appreciate this interest and support from the Garrett County Farm Bureau." This is the third year that the bureau has provided funding for the lab visits. Gary Fratz, former Garrett County commissioner and an active member of the GC Farm Bureau, volunteers his time to transport the trailer to and from the county, and to each of the schools, at no expense to the board of education.

WARM THE CHILDREN

Providing New Winter Clothing For Needy Children

For the fifth year, The Republican is asking for your help. Without it, many Garrett County children will go cold this winter.

Just what is The Republican newspaper's WARM THE CHILDREN FUND?

The Republican's Warm The Children Fund is, basically, neighbors helping neighbors. We here at the paper are asking for monetary donations (tax deductible) from you, the readers. The collected funds will be used to purchase new winter clothing for Garrett County children in need. Because the newspaper administers the program, there are no added fees or overhead costs. Every penny donated is used to buy the winter items.

How are needy children being identified?

A special core of volunteers is working right now to identify those in need this year. Those selected for applications will be receiving them soon. (Please *do not call for the service. If you have been selected, you will soon be notified.)

How will the children's clothing be purchased?

Volunteers will take the families shopping at Wal-Mart or through the J.C. Penney's catalog store in Oakland, or at the Ames in Frostburg. The children, with the help of their parents, may select their own new coats, hats, sweaters, long johns, jeans, boots, pajamas, or other needed winter items, spending up to $100 per child.

We need two things: volunteers and donations.

To volunteer as a shopper in Oakland, please contact Linda Thomas at 301-387-6203. To volunteer as a shopper at Ames, please call Lisa Broadwater at 301-895-5827 or 301-746-8223. For general information, you may call Mary McEwen at the newspaper office at 301-334-3963.

THE REPUBLICAN

To make a donation, please complete the coupon below, cut it out, and mail it along with your tax-deductible contribution to the address noted. All checks should be made out to Warm the Children Fund.

Please make your donations before November 30, 2001. Those collected after November 30 will be saved for next year's campaign.

He has been actively involved in political and community activities for over 20 years, on both the professional and volunteer levels. Wilderness Survival Topic Of GCC Course

Ruth Ann Colby Martin, a nationally recognized instructor of wilderness survival techniques, will instruct "Wilderness Survival" (AVS 142) at Garrett Community College Friday through Sunday, Nov. 16-18. Interested participants must register by Tuesday, Nov. 13. (See below for registration details.)

Martin also will present a free lecture on wilderness survival on Nov. 13, from 6:30 to 8 p.m., in Room 314 of GCC's Continuing Education building. The talk is open to the public and, along with the course, is sponsored by the college's Adventuresports Institute.

She is a graduate of Hampshire College in Amherst, Mass., with a bachelor's degree in outdoor experiential education, as well as her Wilderness EMT certification. She then spent a year living semi-primitively in New Jersey's Pine Barrens region, where she built the shelter she lived in, utilized a stream for water, and focused on primitive skills and tracking throughout the year.

Martin was subsequently hired by Tom Brown's Tracker School, a world-renowned tracking, awareness, and survival school. She has taught at the school for four years and currently serves as head instructor. Martin specializes in primitive fire; tanning skins; shelter; basketry; stalking; camouflage; edible; medicinal and utilitarian plants; and general nature studies. As she puts it, "survival is walking into the woods with a knife and the clothes on your back and not only being comfortable, but spending most of your time playing." She also enjoys climbing rock, snow, and ice around the world and running marathons.

When not teaching for the Tracker School, Martin lives with her husband in an old farmhouse in West Virginia, where she keeps her life aligned with the natural world by living the simple life, hauling her water, chopping wood for heat, and putting up food offered by the landscape.

The course carries a tuition fee which covers all instruction and instructional supplies, two nights' lodging and all meals from lunch Friday through lunch Sunday (seven meals). Participants must supply all personal gear, including adequate sleeping gear (sheet, pillow, and pillow case are supplied) and toiletries.

For further information on the course, persons can call AVS program director Mike Logsdon at 301-387-3333. To register, persons can call AVS office secretary Sharon Elsey-Wynn at 301-387-3330.

In Loving Memory of Darius "Buzz" Fike
Born Nov. 9, 1921
Died June 21, 2000

It's your 80th Birthday,
But we can't celebrate with you.
Gone is the face we loved so dear;
Silent the voice we loved to hear.
Loved by your friends and all whom you knew.
God alone knows how we miss you,
In a home that is lonesome today.
You suffered in silence,
In patience you bore,
'Til God called you Home to suffer no more.

Sadly missed and deeply loved by:

Notes from Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

One of the most painful experiences for parents is watching their little darlings grow out of some precious things which hold such treasured memories. First it was the tiny sweet sleepers and their baby clothes. Then they stopped playing with their sweet stuffed animals or other little toys. Every year they put away things, and you wish you could turn time backwards.

Just now the part of Rock Lodge Road that is our neighborhood is going through the Halloween withdrawal. A few years ago we needed to buy lots of Halloween candy for all our kids and trick-or-treaters who would come to our doors for their treats. We could be sure that Greg Whittemore, Landon and Tyler Southerly, Torrey Poholsky, the Glotfelty kids, and the Bass kids would show up in their various costumes. Now most are already in middle and high school and learning to drive, playing varsity sports, and are involved in teenager activities, instead of dressing up as spooks, pirates, princesses, etc. and go around to the neighbor's homes to collect tons of candy.

Our supply of elementary school kids has been severely depleted. We still have enough to make it worth getting stocked up with candy and putting out a few Jack-O-Lanterns. Mere and her cousin, Emma Bass, their buddy, Hannah Diehlman, and her little sister Claire, and Maddy Whittemore still showed up all decked out and beaming. The big kids still love to decorate at the end of the lane, using a display of corn stalks, pumpkins, hay bales, etc., and you never grow out of wanting to carve a Jack-O-Lantern.

One of my treasured memories from my day as a professor at Garrett Community College and as an informal local mother for the many star black basketball players from the "Big City," was when I hosted a home-cooked meal for them. One of the All-American players on our team was excited to carve his first real Jack-O-Lantern. I hope he remembers his first one when he helps his children carve their first one in Baltimore. I think it would be a good idea if we loaded up a pick-up with big beautiful pumpkins to take down to Catonsville where some of our star players return to begin their adult life.

But all was not lost this year in our neighborhood, as on Sunday evening our youth group from Emmanuel Lutheran organized a spooky night at the Southerly home in the Peat Bog's "Monsters Range." The big kids planned everything for the spooky walk in the scary woods around that neck of the woods (at the end of Peat Moss Road). They placed a few scary scenes that put a few scares in the little ones. One of the guides, Larry Maxim, said he was deafened by the shrill screams of little girls. The big extras from the older boys excited them even more. But it was a perfect evening for it. It was nice we could start earlier this year since Daylight Saving Time is now with us and it is dark at 5:30 p.m. I was disappointed that the full moon we enjoyed the last few days did not make an appearance. The dark sky was full of stars and, although it was not warm, it was at least mild, so the big campfire was enough to keep everyone warm for hot dogs and a marshmallow roast, with plenty of hot chocolate after the trek through the woods.

A good many adults also enjoyed the evening. We were kept busy discussing the best way to roast the hot dogs and marshmallows. Sally heated up the metal prongs before putting the hot dogs on them. Of course, you can't do that with good old fashion sticks. Everyone enjoyed the beautiful setting in a clearing in the hardwood-hemlock forest with lots of rustling of leaves, and the breeze-shaped and re-shaped the big hemlock branches into many beautiful patterns. It was not at all scary, as it was just a little way from the Southerlys' porch light, and little Claire Diehlman was not at all scared around the fire. She was back and forth between her big sister and her friends, the Sussman girls and Emma Bass, who all made sure that she had plenty of marshmallows, hot chocolate, and cuddling. Among some of the adults I did notice were Sally Poholsky, Meredith Vagnetti, Larry Maxim, Bill Hady, Ruth DiPaolo, Carol Bass, and, of course, Bill Southerly and Sheila. Sheila showed up sporting her super Halloween earrings — a pair of spider webs. Of course, I was there in spite of a minor fall on my way from my car to the fire. Luckily, Sheila rescued me without too much trouble. She was able to get me up on my feet on the first attempt. I am always somewhat unstable on grass, especially on unfamiliar ground and after dark. It seemed much later than 8:00 when the party broke up. We were lucky it was so early, even though it felt like about midnight.

My girls were already worn out from a down-state trip with their father. They attended the Big Band Show at Martinsburg, where Claire, Robby, Blakely, and Matthew, along with the rest of the Northern High Marching Band, won their class, ensuring that they will go to the Atlantic Coast championships this weekend at Scranton, Pa. Then they rushed down to see Nanny and Pop Sussman, and Vicki in Silver Spring. They enjoyed the chance to touch base with their grandparents.

Among the topics of conversation around the campfire was the serious condition of Sheila's grandmother, Mrs. Joe Resh, who is now in Sacred Heart Hospital following surgery. Ruthella (Pooch) is nearing the 90-year mark, and it is not surprising that she has several other ailments that complicate each other.

Of course, we also had some "pigskin" talk, since both college teams (Maryland and West Virginia) have lots of fans around here. The teams both scored big wins on Saturday. The Poholsky household and the Glotfelty household were elated about the Steelers' winning ways recently. Yes, we are not afraid to use the "P" word (play-offs). Rodney and Robbie Glotfelty attended the Steelers-Ravens game Sunday in Pittsburgh and were unable to attend the Halloween event. Even though the Steelers lost, they were impressed with the game.

I do not know of any other hot news from Bittinger, as I spent my lonely weekend without my girls mostly close to home. I was delighted with a take-out dinner from the Lutheran Braille workers' dinner that was dropped of to me by my mother who told me the dinner was a huge success, with the Northern cafeteria pretty well packed.

The younger kids from Bittinger 4-H Club served the annual dinner of the Woodmen of the World Camp #68 on Friday evening while their older members were busy with band activities practicing and then playing at the football game. The kids always enjoy playing waiters and waitresses for these dinners.

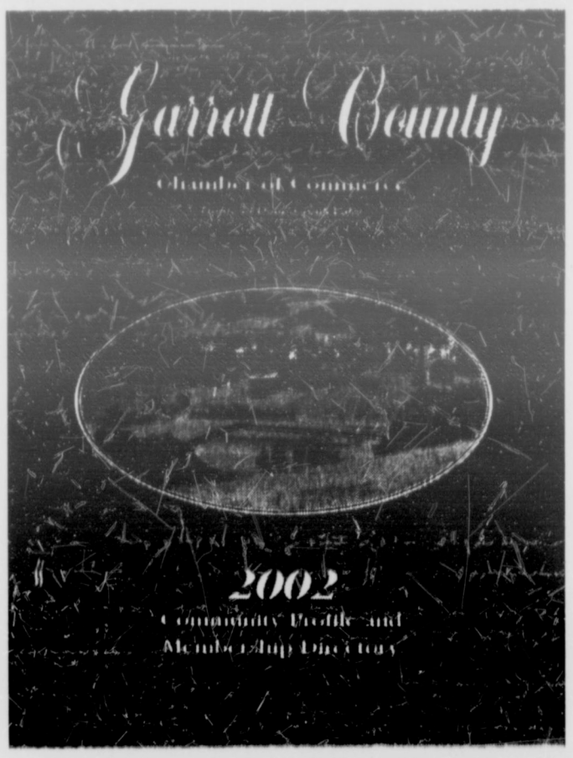
We don't know where Gram's kitty, "Putsy," had gone while her "mommy" was on a cruise, but she came home Saturday evening. She was snug in bed all Saturday night and has been sleeping and eating ever since she came home. She will probably want to do the same thing that Gram's dog "Sassy" does in wanting tag along whenever she gets into her car or pickup.

This is a busy week for birthdays. It holds another dreaded birthday for both my brother-in-law, Kevin Bass, and me. You could say we have the same birthday since he was born in Japan on November 7, which would have been the 6th in the USA, but I am a few years older than he. Most years we share our family birthday dinner party. Most birthday celebrations are short-notice affairs. It all depends on who feels like doing the catering and what other commitments are occurring. My mother just called and informed me that our birthday dinner party will be at her house on Wednesday evening. I heard that Ferne Beachy will be celebrating her birthday this week, so I will keep you up to date next week.

Ida Reckner and Jim and Donna Glotfelty attended a memorial service for William E. Fitzwater Jr., held at Crellin Assembly of God Church. Donna and Ida attended the fair stockholders' dinner at the Bittinger Community Building Thursday evening.

Sunday dinner guests at the Ida Reckner home were Julius and Karmen Carey, Frostburg; Lillian and Charee Reckner, and Michaele Puliti, McHenry; Amanda Platter, Smithsburg; and Jim and Donna Glotfelty.

Chamber Releases Local Directory



An updated county reference and local resource is now available to area residents and visitors. The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce 2002 Community Profile and Membership Directory will be distributed to sites throughout the county.

Fully supported by advertising, this 200-page index provides statistical data as well as maps and historical information on Garrett County and its eight municipalities.

Designed for use as a handbook for new members of the community, this publication serves equally well as a reference for long-time residents, according to Ken Wishnick, chamber president. "This is Garrett County's most comprehensive guide to organizations, services, and businesses. The Chamber of Commerce is pleased to make it available free to the public," he said.

The guide also includes an index to locate chamber of commerce member businesses, which are grouped alphabetically and by category. A section is also dedicated to an alphabetical listing of the "contact" persons at each business.

The 2002 edition of this directory is available at the Visitors Center in McHenry, at branches of the Ruth Enlow Library, and real estate offices and other businesses throughout the county.

The cover of the directory, pictured above, shows the town of Accident and the hills, woodlands, and farmland that contribute to the beauty of the county.

Nicotine Replacement Can Help Some Smokers Quit

Smoking is the focus of at least two health-related November events — the annual Great American Smokeout (November 15) and Lung Cancer Awareness Week (November 11-17). The effects of stopping the smoking habit can be dramatic. According to the American Cancer Society, within the first day after quitting, a person's blood pressure, body temperature, oxygen levels, and pulse rate begin to return to normal; smoker's breath disappears, and the risk of heart attack decreases. After about 9 months sinus congestion and shortness of breath decrease and circulation improves, giving the ex-smoker greater energy. Lung capacity may be up by as much as 30%. Risk of coronary heart disease is cut in half at around one year, and by two years the risk of heart attack is near normal.

A nicotine skin patch is a convenient-to-use smoking cessation method, but the patch can irritate the skin, may interfere with sleep, and takes a while to start working. Nicotine gums work faster, but may cause a "peppery" taste and jaw soreness. Nicotine nasal spray is the fastest approach to relieve craving. However, it also may be the most potentially addictive approach.

Idea Deadline Noted By T.A. Economic Group

Two cash awards, for $300 and for $200, are still being offered by the Terra Alta Economic Development Corp. as a way of encouraging youth and adults to provide ideas which might turn into programs for jobs creation in the Terra Alta area.

All entries must be received before Nov. 16, and proposals must be submitted in writing to the Terra Alta Economic Development Corp., P.O. Box 295, Terra Alta, WV 26764.

"We have received entries already," said Rich Hopkins, president of the Terra Alta Economic Development Corp., "but I fear those submitting the entries have not been focused on our primary goal, and that is to find ways to generate new jobs in the area — through manufacturing, marketing, product development, or whatever. We are still very anxious to hear from people with good ideas.

"With this in mind, I especially appeal to the younger residents of the area. Sometimes entire communities have been turned around by the ideas generated by teenagers and we would be delighted to see this happen in Terra Alta."

Hopkins said that the contest has two goals: (1) To encourage citizens of all ages to focus on the need for economic development in the Terra Alta area by encouraging them to submit ideas, and (2) To build an awareness that the TAEDC exists and is serious about economic growth.

The board of directors of TAEDC will review all submissions and is free to accept or reject any and all ideas submitted. No submission will be considered unless it is focused directly on the issue of generating jobs and income within the area.

The contest is open to all persons. One does not have to be a resident of Terra Alta in order to participate.

Spaghetti Dinner Set In Terra Alta

A "Community Spaghetti Dinner" will be sponsored by the Terra Alta Beautification Committee on Thursday, Nov. 15, from 5 to 7 p.m., at the First United Methodist Church, Terra Alta, W.Va.

Donations requested are $6 for adults, $3 for children, and free for children under 5.

Carry-outs will also be available, with proceeds going toward the projects planned for the town during the spring such as new entrance signs, new flags, clean-up of various places in town, new park equipment, and possibly decorative lights throughout the town.

Persons interested in joining the group may attend the meetings at the town hall on the first and third Mondays of each month at 7 p.m.

SMOKE BILLOWS above Casselman Lumber Company in Grantsville after a malfunctioning furnace caused a major blaze early yesterday morning, resulting in an estimated $500,000 damage. Some 75 volunteer firefighters from numerous area departments were credited with bringing the fire under control quickly and thus saving about 75% of the business structures. The business, which is owned by Dave Maust, was scheduled to reopen this morning, as the hardware store, display spaces, and offices were not damaged. See story. Photo by Lisa Broadwater.

Local Juvenile Fatally Injured In ATV Accident

An Oakland juvenile who was seriously injured in a three-wheeler accident Friday, near Eagle Rock Road, died Tuesday at Johns Hopkins University Medical Center, Baltimore.

Craig Lee Stephens Jr., 14, was operating a 1984 Honda three-wheeler in a private drive off Eagle Rock Road, when he swerved to miss an oncoming vehicle, ran off the driveway, struck two trees, and was ejected, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

According to the report by the Garrett Bureau of Investigation, he was not wearing any safety equipment. He had initially been flown by Trooper Five to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland. Deer Park Community Volunteer Fire Department and Southern Rescue Squad also responded to the 1 p.m. accident.

See complete obituary on page A-6.

DURST ALL-STATE AGAIN - Southern High School's Melissa Durst was named to the Maryland 1A All-State cross country team for the third year in a row on Saturday when she placed sixth in the state meet, held at Hereford High School north of Baltimore. Durst, a junior, led the entire pack through most of the race, but fell back slightly in the final three minutes. She was the only female representative for Southern in the race, as the team failed to qualify at the regional level. Part of that was because of the absence of All-State runner Natalie Domenick, who was ill the week of the West Region race. The SHS boys' team finished third at the West Region championships and thus qualified for the state meet. See sports pages for details. Photo by Ed Clemons.

House, Senate Approve Funds For Library

The Grantsville branch of the Ruth Enlow Library is only one step away from receiving a $300,000 grant from the federal government. Last Thursday, the U.S. House of Representatives and Senate passed the FY 2002 Veterans, Housing, and Independent Agencies (VA-HUD) appropriations bill, which includes funding for construction of the new library as well as various other projects throughout the nation. The bill now needs President Bush's signature before the grant will be available.

U.S. Senator Barbara Mikulski held a conference call in August with library representatives to report that she had been able to add the $300,000 grant to the federal appropriations bill.

"It means a great deal to me to see this through," Mi-

Casselman Lumber Building Burns; Loss Is $500,000

A malfunctioning furnace is blamed as the cause of a fire that destroyed about 25% of Casselman Lumber Company property in Grantsville yesterday morning.

Volunteer firefighters from a number of area departments were summoned to the business, located at 17608 Bittinger Road (Rt. 495) just south of Grantsville, at 6:39 a.m. after an employee reported the fire to the Garrett County Office of Emergency Management (911).

According to a report from the Western Region office of the Maryland state fire marshal, employees who had just arrived at work turned on an oil-fired furnace in a 75 x 150 foot, woodframe structure, and five minutes later said they could smell smoke. Upon investigation they saw flames coming from the top of the furnace. It was determined that the fire was caused when sparks from the flames entered the duct work of the heating system and ignited insulation. The flames then spread to the attic and roof materials.

The report credited the quick and effective work of firefighters for saving most of the building. Approximately 75 firefighters brought the blaze under control in about 45 minutes, but units remained on the scene for over five hours. Damages were estimated to be $500,000, as the cabinet shop and four of eight bays of lumber were destroyed.

"The fire departments did an excellent job," stated store manager Wayne Tiemersma, who said that Casselman will be open for business today, as the offices, hardware store, and display areas of the business were unharmed. The company is owned by David

Commissioners Updated On PACE Events

Members of the Mountain Maryland PACE Committee updated the Garrett County commissioners this week on events to be held in Annapolis in January 2002. PACE is the acronym for a "positive attitude changes everything."

"Adventures in Progress" will be the local committee's theme for the events. The theme, according to the committee's press release, "is intended to convey the region's economic progress, especially as it relates to technology business development. It is also intended to showcase the growing opportunities for adventure sports tourism, with special attention to the new adventure sports projects and educational programs."

Cristine Kepple Sweitzer, Garrett County committee member, told the commissioners that Allegany and

Friendsville, Oakland Parks Net Md. Grants

The towns of Friendsville and Oakland are the beneficiaries of two sizable Maryland state grants that will be used to assist with three projects — two park-related and the third an erosion control measure. The pair of Department of Natural Resources' Community Parks and Playgrounds Program grants, one to each town, will be used to improve park facilities, while a third grant through the Department of Housing and Community Development's Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program will fund a stream bank stabilization project in the Friendsville area.

Grantsville Subway, First Peoples Credit Union Robbed This Week

Two separate robberies at the Grantsville Plaza took place this week, one at the Subway Restaurant on Sunday and another on Wednesday at the First Peoples Community Federal Credit Union. Investigators report that they do not believe the incidents were related.

According to reports from the Maryland State Police (MSP), three males entered the Subway Restaurant on Sunday at about 9:40 p.m. One held a handgun. They ordered the sole employee, a woman, to empty to the contents of the cash register into a bag. The suspects then fled the scene.

Yesterday morning at about 10:30, a man entered the First Peoples Community Credit Union and presented a note to the teller. The note ordered her to give him cash in large bills, and reportedly also warned her not to hit the alarm. After obtaining an undetermined amount of money, the suspect fled the area. No weapon was displayed.

The suspect in the credit union robbery was a white male, approximately 35 years of age. He was about 5'8" tall and of medium build. Reports indicated that he had a trimmed beard, or goatee.

After the Subway incident, the state police were assisted in their investigation by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office K-9 unit, as well as the MSP crime lab. The Garrett Bureau of Investigation (GBI) is now investigating the robbery, according to reports.

GCMH Releases Plans For New Construction/Renovation Project

Officials at Garrett County Memorial Hospital have released an architectural rendering of a new wing that will be added to the hospital facility. According to Don Battista, GCMH president, this new wing will house a new emergency department, new same-day surgery unit, new lobby/admissions area, and allow for expansion of the radiology and laboratory departments. Additionally the helipad will be relocated to an isolated area adjacent to the Emergency Entrance.

"Because Garrett County Memorial Hospital is continually setting new goals and developing fresh strategies which respond to community needs, the board of governors believes that the proposed enhancements are required to meet these needs and to enhance its role as a community resource through the turn of the century and beyond," said Max Messenger, chairman of the board of governors for GCMH. "By planning for maximal flexibility and multi-use space applications, Garrett County Memorial is positioning itself to be ready for and respond to changes that will occur within the health care system."

Messenger went on to conclude that the project will "keep the hospital at pace with the changing need for care by enhancing the physical plant and bringing facility technology up to industry standards, thus making the organization as a whole sturdier."

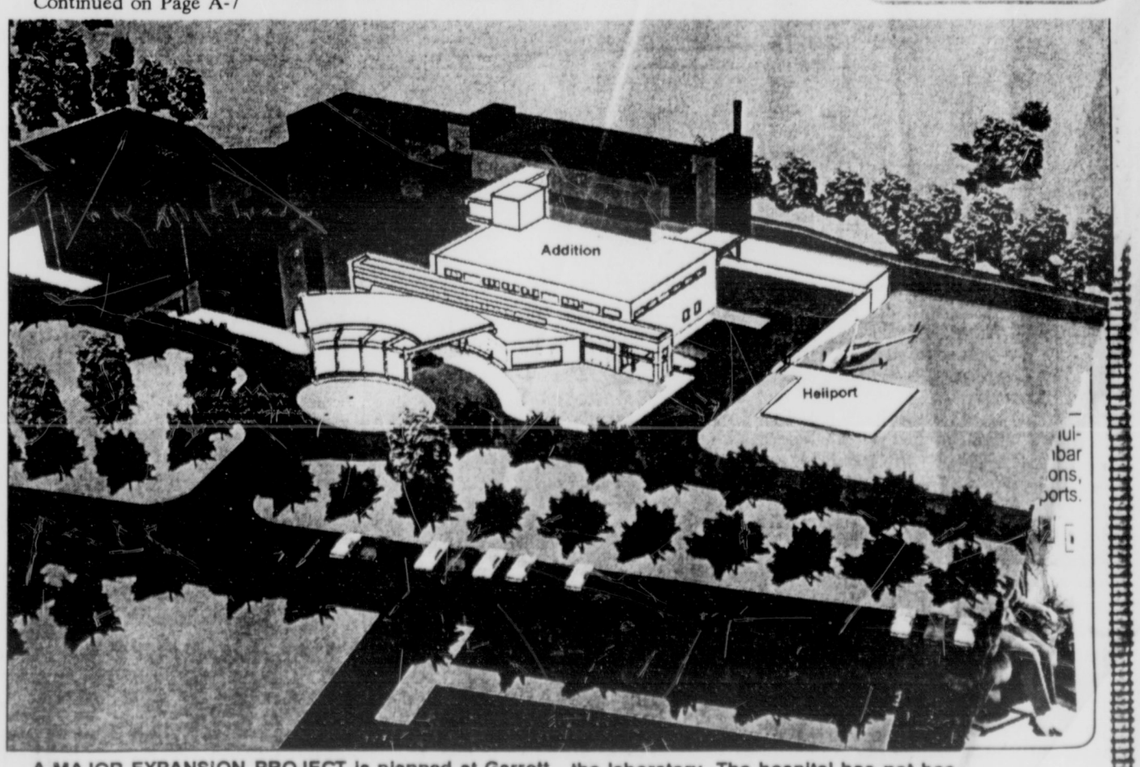
THE 11TH HOUR of the 11th day of the 11th month was marked during a Veterans Day observance in the rotunda of the Garrett County Courthouse earlier this week. Garrett County District Court Judge Ralph Burnett, shown at the podium, delivered the keynote address before an audience of citizens and representatives of various veterans' organizations, including the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars. Veterans Day has matured from its original intent of celebrating the Armistice Day conclusion of "the war to end all wars," to now honor all veterans past and present. Our men and women in uniform, and their families, bear the never-ending burden of maintaining freedom and liberty in a world that, in all reality, will likely never see "the end of all wars." The text of Judge Burnett's address appears on page A-4.



A MAJOR EXPANSION PROJECT is planned at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, as depicted in this architect's drawing. The new areas, shown in white, will include a new emergency department, a new same-day surgery unit, and a new lobby and admissions area. It will also allow for various department expansions, including radiology and the laboratory. The hospital has not bee 1980, and the added space and improve to better serve the medical needs of cording to Don Battista, GCMH pres bers of the hospital board of g

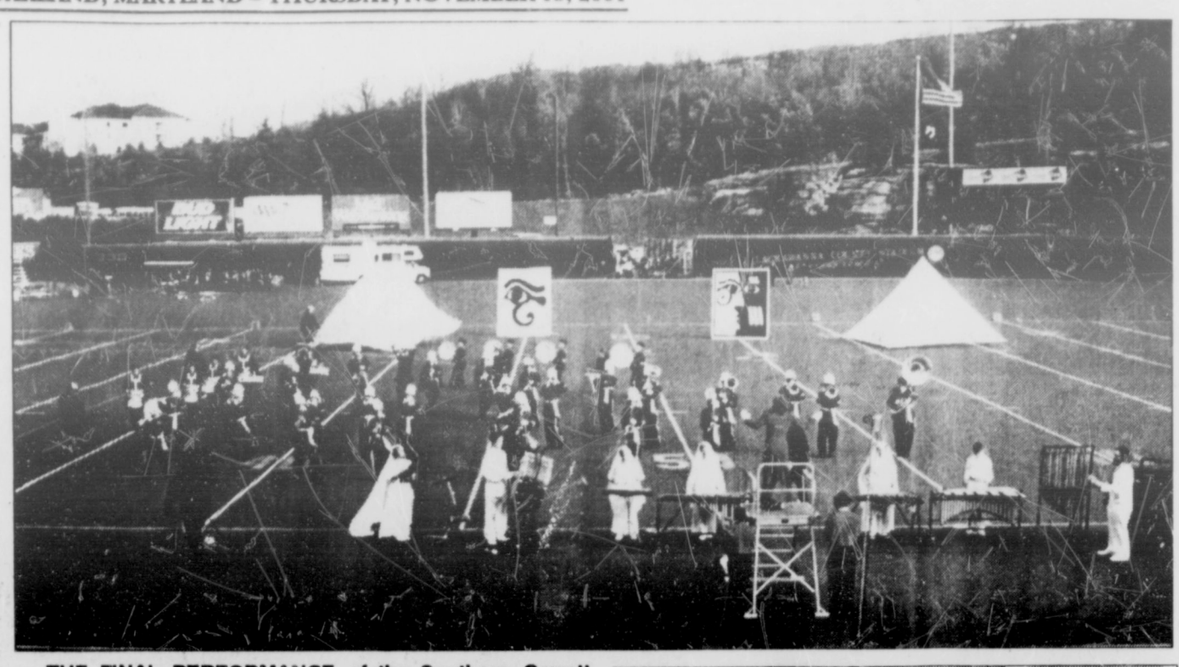
Southern Band Finishes Season At AC Tourney

The Southern Garrett Marching Band concluded its 2001 field show season by competing in the Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament of Bands Championships, held this past weekend at Lackawanna Stadium in Scranton, Pa. There were over 100 bands in Division I, II, III, and IV, representing many states, who qualified for the championships.

Southern placed 29th in Division II with a score of 84.2. Middle Township, N.J., won the division with a score of 98.

"I was very pleased with this season," stated Richard Clever, SGB director. "We had a solid show at Scranton and closed out a great year."

The band's top score of the season (86.1) was recorded at the Chapter 13 championships, in which Southern placed second to Allegany.



THE FINAL PERFORMANCE of the Southern Garrett Marching Band's 2001 field show, based on the hit musical Aida, was presented early Sunday at Lackawanna Stadium in Scranton, Pa., as the band qualified for competition in the Atlantic Coast Tournament of Bands Championships. The band, under the direction of Richard Clever and Duane Salisbury, earned a score of 84.1. The band finished second in Group II at the Chapter 13 Championships, hosted by Martinsburg High School the previous weekend. Earning numerous Best Drum Major awards throughout the season was Suzanne Gilbert, pictured at left.

Child Safety Seat Check Slated Monday

The Maryland State Police, in cooperation with the Garrett County Health Department, will hold a Child Safety Seat Check at the McHenry Public Safety Center on Monday, Nov. 19, from noon until 3 p.m. Trained personnel will check child safety seats for manufacturer recalls, appropriateness for users, and correct installation.

"We want to make sure that kids are as safe as possible as they travel for the Thanksgiving holiday," said MSP Lt. Randy Resh. "This is not an enforcement activity. It is a way for us to help parents make sure they are protecting their kids."

The Child Safety Seat Check is part of the national campaign "Operation ABC (America Buckles up Children) Mobilization," which runs Nov. 19-25. Law enforcement and highway safety partners across the nation are making a special effort to promote the proper use of child safety seat and safety belts, a spokesperson said.

"Locally we have found that 9 out of 10 child seats we check have something that can be changed to make them safer," said Diane Lee, highway safety coordinator at the health department. "In addition, there are many children from 40 to 80 pounds who are using safety belts alone, instead of combining them with a booster seat to increase the child's safety."

The following recommendations should be followed to keep children safe:

Infants should be rear facing in either an infant seat or a convertible child safety seat until they are both 1 year old and at least 20 pounds.

Children over 1 year and at least 20 pounds should be in a forward facing child safety seat or a high back booster with an internal harness system until they weigh 40 pounds.

Children weighing 40 to 80 pounds should use a belt-positioning booster to help position the vehicles lap and shoulder belt to better protect the child. Products other than booster seats which are designed to help make safety belts fit better are not regulated and are not recommended by safety experts, the spokesperson said.

All child safety seats should be installed tight enough that they can not be moved more than one inch from side to side or away from the back of the vehicle seat.

Parents should check their vehicle and child safety seat owners manuals for information on correct installation, the spokesperson said.

For more information about the child safety seat check, or child safety seats in general, persons may call the Garrett County Health Department at 301-334-7730.

W.Va. Man Faces Several Drug-Related Charges

A Morgantown, W.Va., man was arrested on drug charges by the Maryland State Police yesterday evening after he was stopped for a speeding violation along Maryland Highway near Swanton.

Wesley C. Jackson, 33, was driving a 2000 Ford Explorer westbound on the highway when he was stopped west of Swanton Hill Road at 5:26 p.m. A routine K-9 scan of the vehicle indicated that it may have contained drugs, and a subsequent search reportedly located two large bags of suspected marijuana and several items allegedly used to package and sell marijuana.

Jackson was charged with possession of marijuana with intent to distribute, possession of marijuana, and possession of drug paraphernalia. Following the arrest he was released on a $5,000 bond.

Dem. Committee Seeks Applicant

The Garrett County Democratic Central Committee is seeking an interested person to fill an unexpired term on the committee, which will end after the Primary Election of 2002.

According to a committee spokesperson, the outgoing member was an asset to the committee; however, due to other commitments, it is necessary that she be out of the state for a good portion of the time remaining.

The qualifications to the position are that she must be a female resident and a registered Democrat in Garrett County.

Resumes should be mailed by Saturday, Nov. 24, to Doris Goldsborough, secretary, Garrett Co. Democratic Central Committee, 1210 Broadford Road, Mtn. Lake Park, MD 21550.

At a special meeting, applicants will be interviewed and a candidate will be selected at that time.

GC Sanitary Office Moving End Of Month

The Garrett County Sanitary District will move its administrative office to a new location the last week of this month. The new address is 14689 Garrett Highway, Oakland.

The office will be in a log building, located along Rt. 219, north of Oakland, that was previously occupied by the Garrett County Health Department's administrative office. The move is a result of changes in the old courthouse building and several planned moves by various departments of the county government.

"We look forward to moving to our new location," said Ron Petrella, administrator for the Sanitary District. "The new location gives us more office and storage space. It also puts us in a more central location within the county and closer to our main treatment facility at Deep Creek Lake. We also want to thank the county and county commissioners for accommodating the Sanitary District for so many years and for providing us office space for our administrative functions."

The telephone and fax numbers for the district will also change. The phone number will be 301-334-1887, and the fax number will be 301-334-3171. The new address, telephone and fax numbers will be effective Dec. 1. This information will be printed on customer bills to ensure that payments are mailed to the proper address. Payments will still be accepted by mail or in person at the new location.

"We anticipate that our computers may be down for one day," Petrella said. "We hope to minimize any inconvenience to our customers, and there should be no interruption in service."

Anyone with questions regarding the move may contact the Sanitary District, between now and Nov. 30, at 301-334-1980.

Local Man Faces Alleged Child Abuse Charges

A Swanton man was arrested Wednesday by Garrett Bureau of Investigation after he turned himself in upon being informed that an arrest warrant had been issued.

The warrant was issued for Ronald LeRoy Sunny, 60, after information was obtained that implicated him in sex offenses involving a 5-year-old female who was in his care and custody at the time of the occurrences.

Sunny has been charged with child abuse, second degree sex offense, third degree sex offense, and two counts of indecent exposure. If convicted, Sunny faces up to 51 years.

Sunny was released on a $10,000 unsecured bond following his appearance before a district court commissioner.

Solid Waste Office Commends Residents On Recycling Efforts

All across America today people are participating in recycling activities as part of the 5th annual America Recycles Day. The theme of this year's event is "America Recycles Day—A Great Time to Renew Our Commitment to Recycling."

Nikki Brown, recycling coordinator of the Garrett County Department of Solid Waste and Recycling, said her department wanted to recognize local people who have taken the pledge to rededicate themselves to recycling. She reported that Hobby House Press and Total Biz Fulfillment, a division of Hobby House that provides business services, located in the Grantsville Industrial Park has been recycling cardboard for over a year. They stack flattened cardboard in a semi-trailer parked at their facility.

Once the trailer is full, it is hauled to AJ's Recycling in Pleasant Valley. Paul Kinsinger, owner and operator of AJ's, bales the cardboard and ships it to a processing facility. Hobby House Press and Total Biz recycle about 50 tons of cardboard a year at AJ's and are currently its largest supplier of cardboard, according to Brown.

For America Recycles Day, Hobby House and Total Biz plan to continue their cardboard recycling program, add aluminum can recycling, encourage their associates to recycle more at work and home, and begin an office paper recycling program for the northern region of the county.

AJ's Recycling reminds county residents that any individual or business is welcome to drop off cardboard and newspapers free of charge at the facility. The business is open every day except Sunday and is located south of Oakland at 3609 Pleasant Valley Road. For more details, persons may call 301-334-8117.

The town of Kitzmiller has also taken a big step forward by implementing a curbside newspaper recycling program, Brown said. The program started as a project at Kitzmiller Elementary School, under the direction of Richard Stevens, kindergarten teacher. The project received so much support that the town decided to expand it to the rest of the community.

For the past year, Kitzmiller has collected newspapers from residents on the last Friday of the month at curbsides and at the school, without any additional charge, according to Brown.

"Last year, the school contributed 1,200 pounds to the program," Brown said. "And only two months into this school year, they are on a record-setting pace, as they have already collected 550 pounds."

Town officials encourage every Kitzmiller resident to take advantage of this program. For more information, persons may call 301-453-3449.

Brown also commends Garrett Community College for taking an active role in educating students on recycling. Steve Tomb of the Adventuresports Institute at GCC brought his Society and the Environment class to the Garrett County landfill. The students were given a tour of the site and learned about waste management, source reduction, and recycling. While at the landfill, the students completed America Recycles Day pledge cards.

"The Department of Solid Waste and Recycling applauds the efforts of Hobby House Press, Total Biz Fulfillment, AJ's Recycling, Kitzmiller, and GCC," Brown said.

The department reminds county residents that recycling at all the collection sites is free of charge. No windshield refuse permits are required to drop off recyclables.

"We encourage all those currently recycling to continue their efforts," Brown said. "And we invite those not recycling, especially those living in municipalities that have curbside trash service, to give recycling a try."

Newspapers, telephone books with covers removed, glass bottles and jars (clear, green, and brown), aluminum cans, tin cans, #2 HDPE plastic jugs and bottles (no caps), office paper, used motor oil, and antifreeze can be recycled at various county operated refuse collection sites. In addition, laser jet and ink jet printer cartridges can be recycled in postage-paid mailers.

More detailed recycling information can be obtained in the 2001 Verizon telephone book (yellow pages R1 and R2), at www.garrettcounty.org, by calling 301-387-0322, or by e-maiing solidwaste@garrettcounty.org.

Minor Injuries Result From Wal-Mart Mishap

A woman was slightly injured last Thursday morning when she was struck by a car as she was walking in front of the Oakland Wal-Mart store. The Oakland Police Department filed charges against the McHenry woman who was driving the vehicle.

Mary F. Rodeheaver, 51, Albright, W.Va., had just left the store at approximately 10 a.m. when she was struck in the crosswalk by a 2000 Dodge Neon operated by Catherine E. Savage, 75. Savage reportedly was blinded by bright sunshine at the time of the mishap.

Rodeheaver was transported by the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad to Garrett Memorial Hospital, where she was treated and released. The squad also took Savage to the hospital, where she was checked for slight pains resulting from "nerves," and also released. She was charged with failure to exercise due care to avoid a pedestrian.

THE AFTERMATH of a fire that ripped through a 75 x 150 foot building belonging to Casselman Lumber Company in Grantsville is captured in the above photo taken by Lisa Broadwater. There were no injuries reported from the 6:48 a.m. fire, caused by a malfunctioning furnace in the wood shop area of the building. Some 60,000 gallons of water from Grantsville's municipal system were used to extinguish the blaze. Deputy fire marshals who investigated extended credit to local volunteer firefighters for a quick and efficient attack, which undoubtedly saved the remaining 75% of the Casselman buildings. See story on front page.

Rental House Saved By Local Firefighters

Quick action by local volunteer firefighters resulted in saving a rental house at Deep Creek Lake Sunday morning.

Units from Deep Creek, Oakland, Deer Park, and Accident VFDs were summoned at 10:42 a.m. after fire was discovered in the living room of the house, located along Lake Forest Drive. According to Deep Creek fire chief Mike Phillippi, the fire began in the fireplace and spread into the sub-flooring.

Firefighters quickly extinguished the fire and remained on the scene for about 90 minutes. Damages were minimal and there were no injuries reported. Also responding was the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad.

Accident Man Jailed After Domestic Call

An Accident man remained incarcerated on a $3,000 bond this morning following his Tuesday arrest in connection with an alleged domestic assault at his South Main Street residence, according to Maryland State Police troopers stationed at the McHenry barrack.

Donald Clark Finnegan, 25, faces charges of second degree assault and malicious destruction of property following the 12:16 a.m incident. Police said that Finnegan assaulted a woman at his home during the course of an argument, and ripped a telephone from a wall. Although Finnegan had fled the scene by the time troopers arrived, they located him a short time later at a nearby residence and placed him under arrest.

Another case involving allegations of domestic assault led to the arrest of a Grantsville couple at 11 p.m. last night at their Rackin On Road home.

John Maxey, 41, and Sandra Jean Maxey, 54, had become embroiled in an argument that reportedly led to each assaulting the other. Both bore signs of physical injury when troopers arrived. They were both arrested on second degree assault charges, and later released on their own recognizance.

Cinderella Mae Wilburn, 42, Grantsville, faces a second degree assault charge stemming from a Friday evening domestic disturbance at her Fosters Inn Road home. Troopers reported that Wilburn assaulted her husband at 7:30 p.m. She was allegedly intoxicated at the time of the incident. Wilburn was later released after she posted a $500 bond.

Fill 'Er Up...

There was a special grand opening ceremony held in Laurel yesterday, as the state's first E85 (E for ethanol) Chevron station opened its doors to customers. E85 is a blend of 85% ethanol, produced from various grains (primarily corn), and 15% gasoline. Plans are in the works to open more such stations in Annapolis, Gaithersburg, and Baltimore.

This new product has been far too long in coming, and we suspect that the major oil companies may have been working furiously behind the scenes to keep ethanol out of the market as long as possible. But with our nation's dependence on foreign oil continually increasing over the last few decades, and with growing concerns about pollution of our atmosphere, may have finally tipped the scales. Certainly the recent terrorist attacks on the United States, coupled with ever increasing tension and violence among the nations of the Middle East, are also putting pressure on us to reduce our dependence on foreign oil.

The cost of a gallon of E85 is about the same as that of a gallon of premium gasoline, and there are already a number of automobiles (Chrysler minivans, Ford Taurus, Explorer, and Ranger, and GM's S-10 pickup among them) on the market whose engines are designed to operate on the fuel.

E85 improves air quality by reducing carbon monoxide, particulate matter, and oxides of nitrogen, and is the leading fuel for reducing greenhouse gases. It will also provide an economic boon to many of our struggling farmers in the form of a huge new market for their grain crops.

One concern of a philosophical/humanitarian nature is that, while many peoples in the world continue to starve to death, we will essentially be dumping food into our gas tanks so we can get to work, the theatre, a football game, and bridge club. The reduction in the value of oil may also make economic conditions even worse in oil-producing nations.

We can only hope that the reduction in dependence on oil will open some other doors for us to promote new relief efforts throughout the world. Simply hauling shiploads of grain to those nations is not the best way to tackle starvation anyway. It's far better to provide technology, training, and leadership on site, through programs such as the Peace Corps and various church missions efforts, so these folks are more capable of producing their own food.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Recently, one of my dogs got out of our yard and drank some anti-freeze. She suffered outside while our family was at school and work. Eventually, my dog died a very painful death.

Although I know my dog wasn't supposed to be loose, please let people know how dangerous anti-freeze can be to animals. Anti-freeze tastes sweet, so dogs and other animals like it, but it has a deadly effect. Our vet said that in order to successfully treat an animal that has drunk anti-freeze, you must get the pet treated within two hours. If not treated in time, the animal's body functions begin to fail.

I hope this letter will make people aware of the effects of anti-freeze. Maybe this will help other families not have to go through the sadness our family went through.

Sincerely,
Amanda Van Bogelen

Editor's note: The following is the text of an address written and delivered by Garrett County District Court Judge Ralph M. Burnett for Monday's Veterans Day ceremony held in the rotunda of the courthouse. Judge Burnett is a Korean War veteran, having served with the U.S. Army as a first lieutenant.

Veterans Day is a solemn occasion. Perhaps more than some other holidays. It is not merely another day off for government employees or another sale at the mall. It is a symbol of the sacrifice of this country's men and women who have fought for this country's freedom and defended it from aggressors. And the word freedom — a concept known to some and enjoyed by few in the world — is significant.

It means that our soldiers do not fight to extend a dictator's iron grip or to feed an imperialist appetite, but to deflect, defeat, and destroy the mendacious, messianic maniacs who, in attempting to imprint their vision of society, history, or religion, must come to grips with defeating the world's greatest and longest continuing democracy. From Hitler to Osama bin Laden, the terrible and onerous burden of this nation's soldiers, sailors, and airmen and women has little changed. It means strenuous training, material deprivation, dedication, and ultimately a violent and deadly clash with a determined foe. For those who have donned the uniform, the words "duty, honor, country" have lost none of their meaning and still resonate.

However, sadly, there are some Americans who, having been distantly removed from the obligation of service, and with the decline in numbers of those in uniform, no longer reflect an appreciation for the sacrifice of this nation's veterans. But threats to our security have always renewed our awareness of these sacrifices and will do so in these times.

Now more than ever, in these dark days of anxiety and war, when the parameters of battle have been changed to include our own shores, it is more important than ever that our veterans not only commemorate the services of their fellow warriors, but also teach the nation what is expected of its citizens in this great crisis. President John F. Kennedy believed that "each generation of Americans has been summoned to give testimony to its national loyalty." And that is no less true today.

It includes not only soldiering, but the time given by citizens in their communities and homes. It means that in any small way Americans must work more diligently to perfect our democracy, obtain economic security for all Americans, and help on the home front. And we must not forget to maintain our humor. During World War II, Winston Churchill observed that the American soldier is the only man who could fight and laugh at the same time. Another uniquely American trait. Like our tolerance for all Americans of whatever religion, race, or background. What other country could have a Jewish boy from the Bronx and a southern Baptist in the same foxhole fighting for each other? There are few other societies where pluralism, religious tolerance, diversity, immigrant rebirth, freedom of expression, and secure civility are not only permitted, but encouraged.

On this Veterans Day and during this attack on our country and the continuing war against terrorists, we must not forget the principles for which this country stands and for which all veterans have fought so bravely. These principles make us unique in history, and they are the core of this nation. If we do that, we cannot lose.

God bless Garrett County, the state of Maryland, and the United States of America.

To the Editor:

As we recognize the brave women and men who serve and have served in the Armed Forces this Veterans Day, we must not forget that we all have the opportunity to strengthen our democracy — even if we are not fighting on the military front lines.

Every year, thousands of Maryland citizens are asked to serve on a jury. But when a jury summons arrives in the mail, many of us refuse to answer the call. Yet, serving on a jury is one of the most important civic duties we will have in our lifetime.

By serving on a jury, you are protecting everyone's constitutional right to a trial by a jury. You are making sure that our justice system is balanced and fair. Honor our Armed Forces. Defend our democracy. Serve on a jury.

Sincerely,
Janna Naylor

To the Editor:

This letter is to the driver of the vehicle that hit a deer on Glendale Road at 7 p.m. on November 7. I know you couldn't avoid hitting the deer; accidents happen. But you saw it hit our car after you hit it. You saw us run off the road because of it. And while I was on my way to the other side of the road to see if you were okay, you drove away. Not only is that illegal because you left the scene of the accident, it shows a complete and total lack of compassion for other living things. You didn't care if we were hurt because of you, or if the animal you hit was alive and suffering. You left us to clean up after you, probably because you didn't want to pay for damages to our car.

The only thing that makes up for people like you is the kindness of the two drivers who went out of their way and stopped to ask is we were all right. If either of you drivers are reading this, thank you. I have never had any kind of car trouble in Garrett County without at least two people stopping to see if they could help. People like you are what makes Garrett County a great place to live.

To the Editor:

On November 1, I parked my car at the post office here in Oakland and ran inside for three minutes. When I came back out I found a parking ticket on my car for not paying the meter. Admittedly, I parked in a meter space and should have put my nickel in, but I figured I would only be a couple of minutes. At most post offices across Garrett County and the whole United States there are parking spaces for their patrons. At Oakland's Post Office

View From My Window

K-PAX: A MOVIE TO SEE

One afternoon during the week I get together with my 16-year-old son Nick. Sometimes we only have time for supper together, in between school and one of his athletic activities. When there is time enough we enjoy seeing movies together. Last week we had that extra time, and I asked him what he wanted to see.

"K-Pax," he replied. He said he had heard it was an intelligent movie about an alien. That seemed a contradiction in terms to me, but I had asked for his choice. Off we went to see a film that is one of the very best I have ever watched.

Do you remember how excited people were initially in Independence Day, how they went to rooftops asking the aliens to take them away to other galaxies? In that film the people were unhappily surprised.

The premise of K-Pax is this question: What if an alien came to Planet Earth to do good, the kind of alien that the expectant people of Independence Day thought was coming to Earth? The quick answer is that nobody would believe it; at least, nobody who is sane.

The hero of K-Pax is such an alien, named Prot (pronounced with a long "o") who looks like us earthlings, as he explains later in the movie, because it is the most economical shape he can assume while visiting Earth. The story begins as a kind of parody of the Good Samaritan, in which the Samaritan, Prot, is arrested while helping the person who has been the victim of robbers. The outcome of the story is very different from the parable which Jesus told, though the moral is very similar.

Because Prot is a straightforward chap who answers questions freely and honestly, he is soon sent to one mental hospital, where they quickly give up on him, and then to another. The scene is set for the encounter between Prot, played by Kevin Spacey, and the psychiatrist, Dr. Mark Powell, played by Jeff Bridges.

There is a lot of fine acting in this film, including dozens of fascinating supporting roles, but the dynamic between Spacey and Bridges rises to the superb. One can sense the artistic appreciation between them as actors, even as they develop the mutual appreciation which their respective characters come to experience.

One of the delightful qualities of K-Pax is that the director refused every opportunity to bash somebody. Even in their flaws, the characters portrayed are nearly all sympathetic to the viewer. The exceptions are the muggers with whom the film begins and another criminal who appears later in the movie.

There is more than sympathy here; there is empathy — a feeling with the characters. It is not easy being a psychiatrist, an astrophysicist, or a policeman, a parent, a child, or even a dog. This is a film that gives the benefit of the doubt to the vast majority of people in the world, people who are muddling along as best they can.

K-Pax is also like life in that whenever you think you know where it is going, it throws you a curve-ball that you could not have expected. The combination of multi-faceted empathy and the brilliant story line makes this the most emotionally complex film I have ever seen.

This movie is, ultimately, about healing. The other mental patients believe Prot's story when no one else does. The belief in Prot's story, if it does not make the patients whole, makes it possible for healing to take place in their lives. In this super-technological, science fiction age that we live in, when people ask us, "What does it mean that God came into the world as a human being?" perhaps we have to point to a character like Prot and say, "It means something like that." A clue to the filmmaker's intentions is that "Pax" is the Latin word for "peace."

While Prot is the mover for most of the healing in this story, he bears in his body something that needs to be healed too. What that is remains for each viewer to determine, a way in which in seeing this film one is drawn from the role of mere spectator to the role of participant. Whatever view the movie-goer takes of Prot, there is still work for Dr. Powell to do, work which he pursues with creativity and compassion.

Nick and I agreed that K-Pax is a keeper. It is an adult film, though not in the usual sense of that term (a movie not fit for anyone to see). It is, rather, a film for the mature, for those willing and able to look deeply into our life.

THE BEAT GOES ON

by Mary Sincell McEwen

As the last minutes of last Monday night's girls' soccer game ticked away, I realized I was watching my niece, Miriam Sincell, play the game for probably the last time. She's a senior, the game was a play-off, and Smithsburg squeaked past our girls in a valiant battle. It's important to understand that Miriam is an amazing athlete to watch. She can go from standing absolutely still to an incredibly fast sprint in about a millisecond. Really. She's like a gazelle, surefooted and agile and quick. More importantly she's a kind, funny, and caring girl who is sure to be successful in anything she chooses to do. It's just that I'm going to miss seeing her play.

When the game was over, our girls were noble in defeat. They shook their opponents hands and congratulated them. Then they hugged each other and some cried. I told Miriam's mom Bev that it was like the last day of camp. And I remembered, vividly, how it feels to be finished with something in high school that has been important and all-consuming for so long. At first, the sadness — the wistfulness — seems overwhelming. It's almost too hard to accept the end. But then again, it's all a part of the high school experience, and everyone involved knows it's inevitable. Acceptance does come, of course, and the memories are stored for life.

I can clearly recall the last time I marched in a band show competition, band being my all-consuming high school pursuit. We were in Florida in a big contest, and we had made the finals, which was quite an achievement. But this was it — I would never march with Southern's band again. Yes, I could go on to be in a college band (which I did), but this group of people and this show and this era were all leaving my life. Our closer that year was "Through the Eyes of Love" from the movie Ice Castles. (I actually didn't remember all that on my own — I had to call fellow former bandy and classmate Blair Glass to get the right info. He knows everything.) The last moments of the show involved our marching toward the back of the field and then turning in unison and in a line. Then we came forward in a dramatic "push," as it was called, on the last several stanzas of the piece. I know I didn't play very many notes in that last push because I was a wreck. Band was my life from ninth through 12th grades. Band trips, band friends, band camps, band jokes, band ordeals — every year, all year. I talked the talk and walked the walk with all the other bandies. It defined me to a point, so it was difficult to say goodbye to it.

Don't get me wrong, though. I was plenty ready to be finished with high school. I was chomping at the bit to get out of there. And the same goes for my niece. I asked her at my son's birthday party if she was feeling at all sad about graduating, and she laughed out loud. She can hardly wait to get on with it. And there's something to be said about no more practices, no more rushing to get to the field on time, no more rooting around for cleats and shin guards and a uniform that needs washed. That part is kinda nice for everyone. And I was never one of those people who cried about leaving high school — no way. I was elated to step out and try new things. I think that's how it ought to be. I don't want to spend a lot of time feeling sad that Miriam is leaving Garrett County next fall. I don't want to think about how swiftly time will fly until my own sons start leaving the nest. Other mothers tell me all the time how fleeting it really is. "It goes fast," they say with this look of wisdom. I know they are telling me to cherish the moment, because that's all it is. I keep trying to comprehend that, especially when the boys are hammering all over my nerves. Perhaps it will seem all too soon when I am watching Rob march in his last field show or play his last soccer game. He's only 9, but cheesh, he's almost 10!

On the way home after the soccer game, son Alex noted his observations. "Those girls were all so sad," he said. "Maybe they shouldn't play soccer." I took that comment as a Golden Opportunity for Motherly Advice. "No, Alex, they should definitely have played the game," I said. "They all knew they could lose tonight, but they played anyway. You have to take chances in life if you're going to have any fun at all. You might lose sometimes, but you definitely won't ever win if you never try." There. I handed out some good life advice. Alex pondered my wisdom for a moment. "I still think it stinks to lose," he concluded.

But of course the girls are not losers. They played a great game, scoring twice against a team who has allowed only five goals all season long. Our team played fair and well, and we should be proud of every member. The seniors have closed a chapter in their lives, only to move on to the next adventure. They will store this one in their minds and replay it from time to time. The memories will be satisfying, I'm pretty sure — all the laughing, the striving, the rush of passing the ball down the field from player to player and ending with a goal. And in the end, it's the people they'll remember most. May they forever be agile and brave — and always ready to set up that next shot.

Many People Touched, Affected By The Life Of Dr. Alta Schrock

by Beth L. Bowers

Being active and influential in the lives of people and the community is something that Dr. Alta Schrock felt very strongly about up to the moment her life came to an abrupt end earlier this month at the age of 90.

Just days before her death, Schrock attended the wedding of Drew Page and Beth Holler in Springs, Pa. The photo on this page is in itself full of influences by Schrock.

The picture was taken in the Folk Meeting House, owned by the Springs Historical Society, which was founded by Schrock. The meeting house was built in 1878 and was occupied as the church building of the Springs Mennonite Church, Springs.

The bride worked closely with Schrock on various projects. In the background hangs a quilt made by the bride's great-great-aunt from pieces of wedding dresses of people from the Springs area.

Harriet Berg, mother of the bride and program coordinator of the Springs Historical Society, commented that Schrock always went out of her way for other people. She said not only did Schrock attend the wedding, but she also attended the reception.

"When someone was ill or in the hospital, she always went to visit and pray with them," Berg said. "And when she stopped driving, she had someone take her."

She added that not much would be documented about Springs (Pa.) history if it weren't for Schrock. "Because of Alta we have a feeling of closeness to history in Springs," she said.

An endless number of lives in this region and abroad have been touched and directly affected by the life of Schrock.

Raised as a Mennonite, who honors a tradition of simple living, non-violence, and human service, her resumé reflects an endless list of how she has helped people. Through this list of accomplishments, it is evident that Schrock fulfilled her life-long dream of influencing the region spiritually, economically, culturally, and socially.

A biologist, teacher, and entrepreneur, she has been a driving force for community improvement. A few highlights of her accomplishments are the founding of the Mennonite Youth Village for Underprivileged Children, the Springs Historical Society, the Springs Folk Festival, Garrett County Community Action Inc., and the Penn Alps complex.

Fred Bolton, program director of Music at Penn Alps, said she was delightful to work with.

Once she got hold of an idea, sometimes she had to bounce off a few obstacles, but she always found a way," Bolton said. "She was not easily taken from a mission."

Bolton added that even though she was determined, she was not dogmatic or arbitrary in her way. He said she had a wonderful smile and that he was surprised to find out she had a very wonderful untrained singing voice.

"Once I heard her give a presentation, and at the end she burst into song," he said. "Her voice was so sweet."

He replayed the evening when there was an "audible gasp" throughout the audience at the performance of the Kremlin Orchestra when an 8-minute piece by Dr. Jon Bauman was dedicated in memory of Dr. Schrock. "Everyone knew her and everyone admired her," Bolton added.

Opportunity is what Lynn Lais, potter at Spruce Forest Artisan Village, said Schrock provided to him.

He commented that she had a clear idea of what she wanted to see happen, but was open-minded enough to give others opportunities.

"She didn't have a selfish bone in her body," Lais said. "She was always looking to help someone, but never herself."

As a teen-ager, Berg worked at the Penn Alps Restaurant with Schrock. "She did everything to the best of her ability," Berg said. "She was enthusiastic and supportive of everything."

PRESERVING PIECES OF HISTORY OF SPRINGS, PA., was one of the many passions of Dr. Alta Schrock, who died recently at the age of 90. According to friends and admirers, she went out of her way for others until the very last minute. This picture was taken at a wedding Schrock attended days before her death. The picture was taken in the Folk Meeting House, owned by the Springs Historical Society, which was founded by Schrock, and hanging in the background is a quilt made from pieces of wedding dresses of people from the Springs area.

DNR Issues Statewide Burning Ban

A ban on open-air burning across the state has been issued by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources until sufficient precipitation has been received to reduce the threat of wildfires statewide. This ban applies to all open-air burning in woodlands or within 200 feet of woodlands, excluding recreational campfires. The ban also prohibits all wood-fueled campfires within all state forests and parks.

This ban also applies to burning in or adjacent to any area where flammable materials could ignite and carry fire to woodiands. The ban does not apply inside the limits of incorporated towns.

Primarily, this ban is geared at open-air burning of items such as leaves, trash and brush. "Until we get a good soaking rain across the state, conditions will remain ripe for fires," commented DNR Secretary J. Charles Fox. "We all need to use common sense while out and about. Something as simple as flicking a lit cigarette out of your car can start a fire that can quickly endanger lives and property."

Over the past three weeks Maryland firefighters have responded to approximately 100 fires around the state, with 21 separate fires reported in just one day, Wednesday, Nov. 7. There was a corresponding increase in the size of the size of the fires, including two 300-plus acre fires that burned in Allegany County, and a 900-acre fire at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds in Harford County. Historically, the average size of wildfires in Maryland is less than 10 acres.

In addition to issuing the open-air burn ban, Fox and Maryland State Fire Marshal William E. Bernard offered the following fire safety tips:

- Keep the buildup of lawn debris such as leaves, twigs, and branches to a minimum. Debris buildup is easily ignited and can quickly threaten homes and businesses.
- During outdoor work, use caution while refueling power equipment. Refill small motors away from buildings and combustible materials, and do so only when the equipment has cooled.
- Avoid parking motor vehicles on grassy areas or where vegetation is high. Vehicle exhaust systems can quickly ignite dry leaves, twigs, and grass.
- Exercise caution when discarding smoking materials. Always use an ashtray and make sure smoking materials are completely out.
- Make sure matches and lighters are kept out of reach of children. Take a few minutes to review fire safety with the entire family, which includes checking the batteries in home smoke alarms.

The outdoor burning ban was imposed in conjunction with the announcement of a drought watch for the central and western portions of Maryland issued by the Maryland Department of the Environment. MDE officials are reminding Marylanders that while conserving water is important at any time, it becomes particularly important during periods of reduced rainfall.

Five Slightly Injured In Rt. 495 Collision

Five persons sustained minor injuries last Thursday evening during a two-vehicle collision on Route 495 at New Germany Road. No charges were filed by Maryland State Police troopers who investigated the accident.

At approximately 6:25 p.m. a 1989 Plymouth Sundance operated by Robin Renee Myers, 36, Frostburg, reportedly pulled out from a private driveway into the southbound lane of Rt. 495. A second vehicle, a 2002 Chevrolet Venture operated by Jeffery Wyatt, 28, Hamilton, Ohio, allegedly swerved to the left to avoid a possible collision, but struck Myers's Sundance in the left front quarter.

The Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad transported Myers and her 14-year-old passenger, along with Wyatt and his two passengers, Alicia Wyatt, 28, and a 1-year-old child, to Cumberland Memorial Hospital, where each was treated and released, according to a hospital spokesperson. The Bittinger Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the scene.

care area, registration, waiting room vestibule, and a consultation room, is approximately 2,600 square feet and has not been updated since 1980. The new emergency department will be expanded to 7,500 square feet and will be more conducive to recent medical delivery practices and approaches for patient care. The emergency department will grow from nine to 15 exam rooms, providing designated areas for patients with special needs, as well as providing greater comfort and privacy for both the patient and their families. The GCMH Emergency Department sees over 18,000 patients annually and is designated as the only emergency psychiatric facility in the county, Battista said.

The plan includes expansion and modernization of the current lobby and admissions area. Battista said this will provide an efficient and controlled flow of patients who may be waiting to register or awaiting outpatient diagnostic procedures. The new design will allow patients to be seated while registering and will improve patient confidentiality. Adequate waiting space and seating will be available for patients and their families.

The same-day surgery unit will be relocated to the second floor of the new wing and will grow from a nine-bed unit to a 15-bed unit. Each patient will have his/her own private room, whereas some areas are currently separated by curtain partitions. "As a result, the same-day surgery unit will be better able to handle the increased patient volume of ambulatory surgery cases, thus following the nationwide trend for an increasing number of procedures to be performed on an outpatient basis rather than inpatient," Battista said.

Several departments, including radiology and laboratory, will gain much needed additional clinical space and adjacent patient waiting areas as a result of the new construction/expansion.

The helipad will also be relocated and modernized. The new helipad will be located away from automobile parking and will include an improved illumination system for greater safety and more efficient maintenance.

"This redevelopment project will enhance the hospital's ability to deliver existing services more effectively and to provide for the health care challenges of the future," Battista concluded.

GCS TAKES MD. QUALITY AWARD — Garrett Container Systems of Accident received the 2001 Silver Maryland Quality Award during a recent ceremony in Baltimore. The award recognizes GCS's "commitment to its employees, quality performance, and efficiency," commented company owner and president Don Morin. The Maryland Quality Awards and the U.S. Senate Productivity Awards programs are both structured from the performance excellence criteria of the Malcolm Baldridge National Quality Award Program. "Our employees are directly responsible for our continuous growth by their personal commitment to quality, performance and safety," remarked GCS operations manager Mark Tonkovich, who was on hand at the Baltimore ceremony along with quality support manager Jim Kesselring. The silver medal is shown above perched on silver metal used to make shipping containers at the GCS plant.

kulski said at the conference. "This new library can be a one-stop shop for lifelong learning and, with its Internet availability, a great help in bridging the digital divide."

Congressman Roscoe Bartlett said that he was "very pleased" that the bill had passed. In August, Bartlett sent a letter to Jim Walsh, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, requesting that the committee support the bill.

"The new Grantsville branch library will provide educational and job opportunities to the hard-working citizens in this region," Bartlett wrote to Walsh.

Bartlett had attempted to secure additional funds for the library in another bill, but that bill failed in the House.

Cathy Ashby, library director, indicated at the Garrett County commissioners' recent staff meeting that the Ruth Enlow Library is moving ahead with the design work for the new Grantsville branch and is preparing to put out a Request for Proposals (RFP) for an architect.

Resh presented an update on increased police and security operations that have gone into effect since Sept. 11, including the importance of protecting local schools, dams and waterways, agricultural supplies, airports, and strategic industries such as the Texas Eastern pumping station. The lieutenant noted that the assignments require extended shifts on the part of all area police agencies, and that extra efforts are being made to foster cooperation with health, postal, and airport officials. student at Northern Middle School, and Circuit Court clerk Dave Martin. The vocal and guitar duet of Susan Weisbrod and Richard Kusy will render a selection of Civil War ballads.

Interspersed with the patriotic music will be several readings, including the "Gettysburg Address," delivered by Rev. John Grant, and a special multimedia presentation titled "Salute to the Flag," presented by Tom Frawley.

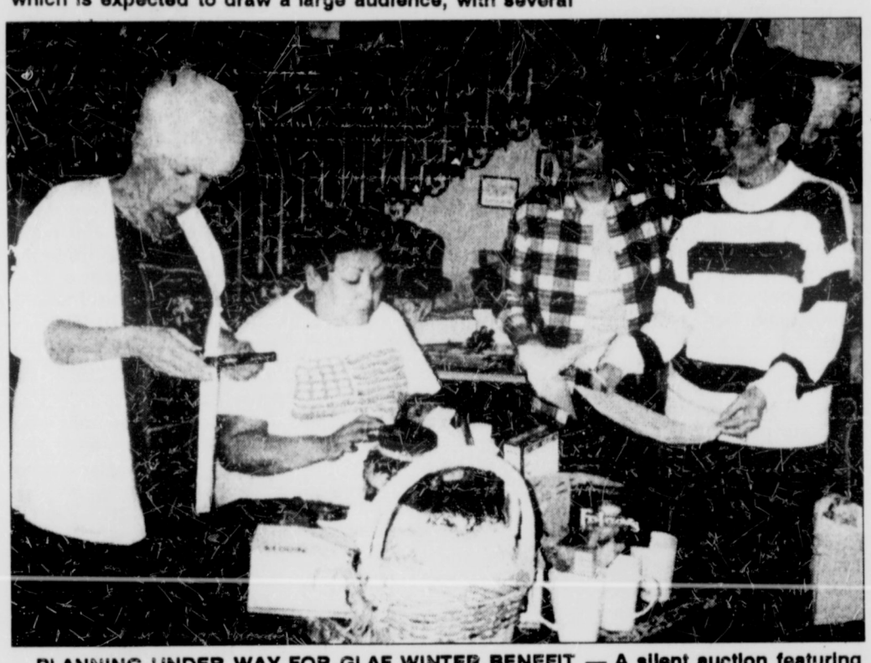
GCC president Dr. Steve Herman will serve as the event's master of ceremonies and will introduce Jim Raley, president of the Garrett County Volunteer Fire and Rescue Association, who will give a brief tribute to the volunteer firefighters and rescue workers in Garrett County. Members of local volunteer fire departments will pass helmets to collect a freewill offering. A color guard from the American Legion Proctor Kildow Post 71 will open and close the program.

The program has been planned by a GCC committee composed of Joan Crawford, Ben Sincell, and Crystal Roberson, along with Raley. "Since Sept. 11, we are all more conscious of just what it means to be an American in our world today," Crawford observed. "Especially in this season of thanksgiving, we count our blessings and give thanks for the freedoms we have. This program will help residents of the community share in the celebration of our great country."

Noting the committee's decision to benefit local fire departments, Crawford explained "There has been such an outpouring of money and donations to the rescue efforts in New York and Pennsylvania that we felt it better to keep the money we collect here for local needs."

Because a large crowd is expected to attend "In Praise of America," arrangements are being made to broadcast the program in several rooms on the college campus via live closed circuit television.

READY TO LIFT THEIR VOICES, these members of the Broad Ford Elementary School chorus will be among the community's groups and individuals taking part in this coming Sunday evening's "In Praise of America" program, set to get under way at 7:30 p.m. in the Garrett Community College auditorium. Doors open at 7 p.m. for the event, which is expected to draw a large audience, with several remote locations on the campus to handle any overflow crowds. The program is free, although a freewill offering will be taken to benefit Garrett County volunteer fire and rescue squads who, along with local police agencies and with due respect to local Guard soldiers, are the first people summoned in the event of an emergency.



PLANNING UNDER WAY FOR GLAF WINTER BENEFIT — A silent auction featuring large gift baskets will be one of the attractions of a Garrett Lakes Arts Festival benefit dance, slated for Dec. 21 at the Elks Club. The highlight of the evening will be a performance by the Sammy Kaye Orchestra. Tickets to the event are $30 each and are available by calling the GLAF office at 301-387-3082. More than 30 large gift baskets have been assembled according to various themes, such as the English tea basket, which includes a china teapot, a silver tea caddy, and an assortment of English teas and biscuits. A patriotic basket has been assembled as well, with an American flag, patriotic pins, and Coca-Cola glasses, pop, and popcorn. The baskets and their contents have been donated by individuals and businesses from throughout Garrett County. Pictured as they assemble the baskets are committee members (from left) Jackie Johnson, Sheila Reeves, Judy McLeod, and Barrie Gregory. Other members of the basket committee are Nancy Learey, Susan Davis, Carolyn Deverse, Frances Gnegy, Maureen Mielenz, Kitty Thompson, Betsy Whittelsey, and Louise Wilson.

In Loving Memory of My husband and Our Father.

Earl Hetrick

Sept. 30. 1916 - Nov. 18.1986

The time of year is here again,
When memories cross our hearts.
And we think again so sadly,
Of the day we had to part.

So we wipe the falling teardrops,
And meditate on memories sweet.
Try not to think of parting,
Instead, when we meet.

We never lose the one we love,
For even though they are gone,
Within the hearts of those who love,
Husband's and Dad's memories linger on.

A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memories still?
But death has left loneliness,
The world can never fill.

The rolling stream of life rolls on,
But still the vacant chair
Recalls the love, the voice, the smile
Of the one who once sat there.

Friends may think we have forgotten,
When at times they see us smile,
But little do they know the heartache
The smile holds all the while.

So sadly missed
Gone but not forgotten
A lonely wife and family

Letters

there's one space. It looks like more until you really look closely. You can't park in front of the mail boxes, or the fire hydrant. There's a space for the handicapped, and that leaves one space where people park to do their postal and banking business.

Now, if Oakland is that hard up that they need my nickel for my three minutes in the post office, they can have it, but maybe they need to quit making signs indicating where things are and start taking care of its own citizens. I don't mind paying to park when shopping on Alder St. or when going to Englander's, but to have to pay to do business at the post office is a little outrageous.

Thank you,
Beth Baker
Oakland

Editor's note: The writer of the following letter to the mayor and town council of Oakland requested that it be published in this column.

To the Editor:

We, the residents of South Third Street/Underwood Road in Oakland, are inquiring about the progress on the railroad bridge located on Third Street. The bridge was closed a year ago, and we were assured that quick progress would be made in replacing it. As of today, we see no activity of any kind toward the replacement of said structure.

We feel it is a hardship and danger to make the detour onto Water Street then onto Second Street. With vehicles parked on both sides of the street on 2nd Street and congestion from the Trackside Restaurant, it is just a matter of time before an avoidable accident occurs (if one hasn't happened already!) The danger becomes greater in the winter time and when school is in session. In addition, the poor timing of the traffic light at that particular intersection makes it a major inconvenience to anyone trying to get through 2nd Street. Those who don't live on South Third Street and Water Street have no idea regarding the number of vehicles that traverse these roads on a daily basis.

We are asking that you update us and keep us informed periodically on the progress of replacing the Third Street bridge. We feel we have been very patient and, as residents of the town of Oakland, are entitled to some positive action and courtesy regarding this matter.

To the Editor:

November is National Alzheimer's Disease Awareness Month. I know, because a close relative is one of the four million Americans who have this devastating disease. With the aging of the baby boomers, this number is expected to grow to 14 million people by the middle of the next century.

Alzheimer's disease affects more than 719 people in Garrett County. Besides affecting the person with the disease, Alzheimer's has a devastating emotional, physical, and economic impact on caregivers and family members. If you know someone who has a family member with the disease, there are many simple things you can do to help them in this very difficult and stressful time.

First, please encourage them to call the Alzheimer's Association, Western Maryland Chapter. The corporate office in Frederick has many valuable resources such as the Helpline, support groups, lending library, Safe Return Wanderers Identification Program, training programs for nursing home staff, advocacy, and other services. Because of my personal experience and interest, I am a support group facilitator. Participating in a support group can help by giving family members and caregivers a chance to share their feelings with other families who understand, because they too have a loved one with a memory disorder. The Garrett County Support Group meets the last Monday evening of each month from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m., except in the months of December, June, July, and August.

Second, be a friend. Providing care for a loved one is one of the most difficult, stressful, and lonely jobs in the world. Caregivers are often reluctant to ask for help, thinking that they can do everything by themselves. They're wrong. Any small thing you can do, whether it is making dinner, visiting, or offering to do the grocery shopping. It can make a world of difference. To learn more about how you can help or obtain help, call the Alzheimer's Association, Western Maryland Chapter at 1-800-696-6830, or locally Adult Evaluation & Review Services (AERS) at 301-334-7740 or 301-895-3113.

On November 26, the Alzheimer's/Caregiver Support Group will feature as our speaker, Ms. Lisa C. Browning, PA-C. Ms. Browning will lead a discussion on depression and the Alzheimer patient. To the Editor:

Perhaps this letter is a little late in time, but I'd like to make a comment concerning a topic that seems "aglow" in the world of literature and movie production.

The Harry Potter Series and the new movie portraying him seems to be a picture of our degenerating values in America at large, in our churches, and in the home. I have never understood why "Christians" especially have even nurtured the thought of allowing their children to read this series — let alone actually permitting them to read it. Why do we want to allow the art of witchcraft into our children's gullible minds? It is firmly spoken against in God's Word and is a true sign of the moral and spiritual decline of a country professing to trust in God. (Leviticus 19:26, 31, and 20:6 are just a few examples in the Word of God — there are many more examples of God's hatred for witchcraft, etc.)

Perhaps parents think that such elementary use of witchcraft is not harmful or is irrelevant; but wake up! The fruit of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil didn't appear so harmful to Adam and Eve either!

Maybe God's wake-up call to America hasn't been loud enough! How can "God Bless America" if we aren't willing to nip the smallest seeds of deception in the bud? Satan is on the sly trying to bring our children down to levels where he can infiltrate their precious hearts and minds!

For the sake of our children,
Michele E. Maust

Ms. Maust,

A very good opposing view is a new book titled What's a Christian to Do With Harry Potter?, written by Christian author and lecturer Connie Neal. The following is a quote by her: "I thought I was reading the book to explain to my kids why they shouldn't read it. Once I had made [the] distinction for my kids about the fantasy world versus our real world, I realized these books were so rich and really had lessons that directly connected to the Bible."

To the Editor:

The recent notification that the Savage River Reservoir is to be closed to boating is very disappointing. Granted, our country is afraid of potential terrorist attacks, but to overreact by closing one of our county's most scenic wonders is not the way to respond. Closing this amazing recreational resource that sits among our state's highest mountains seems very extreme and defeats efforts at nature tourism and the better utilization of pubic lands.

Recreational opportunities are an important part of the public's ability to reduce stress, and in the words of our president, "get back to normal" after 9/11. The terrorists have won if we let them scare us into radical quick actions that limit our freedoms and restrict our access to beautiful places.

No motor boats are allowed on the Savage Reservoir. It seems impossible to think a canoe, kayak, or rowboat could be used as a delivery vehicle capable of blowing up this immense dam? There is nothing to stop a motor boat loaded with high explosives from launching in Deep Creek Lake and blowing up the Deep Creek dam. Should Deep Creek Lake be fenced off and closed on the chance that this may happen? Of course not. A few sections of fence somewhere along the shoreline is not going to stop a terrorist bent on blowing up this dam. Armed guards, boat patrols, and a machine gun nest maybe, but a few sections of fence?

Fencing off only the dam area would make sense, closing the entire reservoir does not. Several county businesses use the Savage Reservoir for flatwater kayak tours and canoe trips. Visitors to Garrett County need a large quiet lake to paddle on without the traffic, noise, and danger of motor boats and jet skis. Our small company, Camp Earth, has been building an educational kayak touring business on the Savage for two years. Several businesses, such as the Savage River Lodge and High Mountain Sports, send folks here for peaceful paddling. Folks who paddle with us love this trip, and we often hear that this experience is what they came to our county looking for. It definitely is one of the most scenic areas in the Mid-Atlantic region. Junking it up with fences and closing it to canoes, kayaks, and fisherman is a decision that must be reconsidered. (You could never stop a bio-terrorism attack on the reservoir without fencing off every tributary that feeds it, an utterly impossible task requiring thousands of miles of fence.

This is not home of the chicken and land of the fenced off, this is home of the brave and land of the free. This is how we must live to show ourselves and the terrorists that we can prevail. Increased airport security and vigilance by everyone to suspicious activity is one thing; closing our scenic wonders because of an "improbable worst case scenario" is truly depressing and defeats us.

The Garrett Chamber of Commerce, the county commissioners and all tourism related businesses should let the "powers that be" know that this decision is not realistically capable of protecting the dam and certainly will harm the recreational opportunities of our visitors, as well as negatively impact several businesses trying to utilize this important economic and recreational resource.

To the Editor:

The risk of terrorist attack has captured the nation's attention and resources, and we are urged to be alert, report suspicious behavior, and take precautions. But as of this writing (11/5/01), even with the September 11 attack, deaths caused by terrorists are dwarfed by deaths and injuries caused by ordinary Americans — Americans who could prevent thousands of deaths and millions of injuries by changing their behavior.

Worried about toxic gases released by terrorists? Toxic gases released by American smokers cause 430,000 deaths a year. They also kill over 60,000 Americans who do not smoke, besides causing enough sickness to require a million visits to doctors. Over 6,000 children under 18 months are killed by their parents' smoking, and another 5.4 million suffer serious ailments such as ear infections and asthma. Compare the attention this carnage gets compared to several deaths from anthrax.

Worried about what a terrorist might do to you? Think about what you do to yourself if you eat too much and exercise too little. Poor nutrition and lack of physical exercise are associated with 300,000 deaths each year, making these factors second only to tobacco use as a cause of death. Grocery bags or dinner plates filled with high fat and sugar foods are deadly weapons.

Worried about bio-terrorism? Germs spread in hospitals, often by unwashed hands, infect approximately 2,000,000 patients and kill as many as 88,000 each year, and these estimates do not take into account infections occurring in nursing homes and outpatient clinics. One study found that 12% of patients who undergo moderate to high-risk surgical procedures develop hospital acquired infections. Here is a place to report suspicious behavior.

Worried about airplane crashes? Over 6,000,000 motor vehicle crashes a year kill almost 42,000 people and injure over 3,000,000, and 40% of the fatal crashes are alcohol related. Why are we not terrified to be on roads where 115 people a day are killed and over 8,000 injured by 1½ ton vehicles crashing?

Worried about evil terrorists? The Institute of Medicine concludes that tens of thousands of Americans die each year as a result of medical errors, and that even larger numbers suffer temporary or permanent harm. The problem is so great that health care is classified as a "high risk industry." Here is a place to be alert.

Worried about drinking contaminated water? How about drinking alcohol? For most people, one drink a day or for men under 65 two drinks a day will do no harm and may do good. But drinking more than that inflicts damage and kills. Even one or two drinks can impair driving ability: almost 17,000 Americans die each year in alcohol related motor vehicle crashes. More than moderate drinking induces many diseases that lead to over 19,000 alcohol-induced deaths each year. Here is an area for precaution against harm.

Worried about dying? To put all threats in perspective, almost 2½ million Americans die each year - 7,000 every day, and all of us will die of old age, if not before. But we (and our government) can reduce our chances of dying before by guarding against not just notorious terrorists, but against the real threats that we face every day, many of which are our own doing.

NOTE. Statistics come from the websites of the centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Action on Smoking and Health, American Obesity Association, Substance Abuse & Mental Health Services Administration, and Institute of Medicine.

Sincerely yours,
Milton Crum

State Poised To Take Advantage of Knowledge-Based Economy

by Christopher Sherman
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — Maryland's highly educated population and creative technology community puts it in a strong position to benefit economically when the nation pulls out of the current recession, according to two reports released by organizations monitoring state economies.

The nation's current "psychological funk" is the biggest challenge to economic recovery, said Gov. Parris N. Glendening Wednesday. But Maryland's economy remains fundamentally strong and "our future looks even brighter."

After weeks of bad economic news about recession and the state's fiscal deficit, Glendening looked to the future for signs of optimism. Maryland's job growth rate dropped from 1.5 percent to .4 percent in September, placing it 23rd in the country, but remained above the national rate. The state's September seasonally adjusted unemployment rate was 4.1 percent. October numbers will be released Nov. 20.

The state broke into the top 10 for the first time in the 2001 Development Report Card published by the Corporation for Enterprise Development, a private, nonprofit, economic development organization based in Washington, D.C. The report card ranks states on 70 areas in three broad categories — performance, business vitality, and development capacity.

Maryland also rose one spot to fifth place in the Milken Institute's New Economy Index, which ranks states based on 12 criteria considered critical to a region's future high-tech growth. The Milken Institute is a Los Angeles-based economic think tank.

"The Internet and technology will continue to improve productivity, and those regions that can take advantage of high tech will be rewarded," said Ross DeVol, a Milken director and creator of the index.

Both reports pointed to Maryland's highly educated workforce and research and development capacity as favorable factors in the state's economic development potential.

"It's obvious that Maryland's strengths are its educational assets, including its research facilities and very educated population," said Skip Rimer, spokesman for the Milken Institute.

"Maryland presents a picture of a state with huge long-term development capacity," said Brian Dabson, president of the Corporation for Enterprise Development. The state ranked second in the country in college attainment and first in both university and federal research and development.

However, Maryland's economic development comes with some negative side effects. The same evaluation ranked Maryland last in the country for conversion of cropland to other uses, which reflects farmland being lost to development, Dabson said.

Glendening, whose administration prides itself on its Smart Growth policies, was surprised by the ranking and said he would take it to the General Assembly as proof of the need for more investment in such programs.

Air quality, where Maryland ranked 47th, is another area Dabson suggested needs improvement. Maryland's poor air quality rating was as a result of traffic congestion, he said.

While the state ranked first in the nation with the lowest poverty rate and first in closing the income gap between the wealthiest and poorest Marylanders, it ranked 46th for the number of uninsured low-income children.

Admitting that the nation was in an economic slowdown, Glendening was obviously pleased to present good economic news. "We're a knowledge-based economy," he said. "We're bursting with pride that our strategy of investing in higher education is paying off."

The state's higher education budget has grown by $981 million over the past seven years of the Glendening administration.

GOLF CLASSIC BENEFITS DCFC, FDNY — The success of Railey Realty's fifth annual Charity Golf Classic, held earlier this year at the Wisp Resort, resulted in significant donations to both the Deep Creek Fire Company (DCFC) and the Fire Department of New York (FDNY). A donation of $1,000 was sent to the FDNY to be given to the firefighters and the families of victims of the Sept. 11 terrorist attack. The DCFC was given a $250 donation from the golf event. FSU Announces New Graduate Fellowship Prog.

The Jack Kent Cooke Foundation has announced its first initiative, the Jack Kent Cooke Graduate Fellowship Program, for college seniors from Maryland, Virginia, and the District of Columbia.

Because this geographic area was Cooke's chosen home, the Foundation Board of Directors elected to support the education of young people in the region for the first program year. The Foundation expects to expand the program nationally and internationally in the future, according to a spokesperson.

The fellowships will provide a substantial award to cover tuition and fees and a stipend to offset other expenses. Fellows may use the award to attend any graduate school in the U.S. or abroad to pursue any graduate degree in the arts and sciences, or any professional degree, including medicine, law, or business.

"Jack Kent Cooke wanted young people of exceptional promise to have the educational opportunities he himself never had," said Dr. Matthew J. Quinn, executive director of the Foundation. "Talented young people will benefit significantly from Mr. Cooke's generosity."

Students may apply through their faculty representatives. Interested college seniors at Frostburg State University may contact Ann Bristow, FSU Department of Psychology, 207A Guild Center, Frostburg State University, Frostburg, MD 21532. She can be reached by telephone at (301) 687-4446 or by e-mail at abristow@frostburg.edu. Applications are due to FSU by Dec. 21, 2001.

Students may also apply directly to the Foundation. Information and application materials are available on the Foundation's web site at www jackkentcookefoundation.org. The telephone number is 1-800-498-6478. The application deadline to the Cooke Foundation is February 1, 2002.

A panel of national experts will assist the Foundation in the selection of the fellows. Fellowships will be awarded in April 2002 for use beginning with the fall 2002 term. The award will be renewable as long as the student maintains high academic performance and is making significant progress toward a degree.

The fellowships will fulfill Cooke's intent to award substantial scholarships to students pursuing a graduate degree "who have shown unique overall excellence." In keeping with Cooke's wishes, the Foundation will be looking for "young men and women of unusual intelligence, application, deportment, and character."

The Foundation has defined its mission to be educational nature and will be developing other programs in the near future.

Cooke died on April 6, 1997. The Foundation began operations on August 1, 2000, with the hiring of Quinn as executive director. Quinn is the former president of Carroll College in Helena, Montana. He had previously served as vice president for academic affairs at Saint Joseph's University in Philadelphia.

The Foundation will have assets in excess of $500 million, making it one of the largest in the nation. Seven individuals, named by Cooke in his will, serve as the board of directors and establish the goals and overall direction for the Foundation.

A NEW TAKE ON "TRACK" LIGHTING — This child's racing-themed bedroom, the brainchild of local interior designer Shelia Reeves of the Decorator's Nook, appears in the fall issue of Paint Decor magazine, a national publication of the Meredith Corporation, which also publishes Better Homes and Gardens. To complement the room's car-grille window treatments, stock-car throw rugs, and traffic light accents, Reeves designed a painted racetrack for the ceiling, complete with toy race cars hot-glued onto the surface. The attention to detail of Reeves and artist Lavel Rude, who transformed the design into the finished product, is evident in sponged smoke puffs of gray acrylic paint behind the cars, representing their exhaust, decoupaged sign stickers, pitstops, concession tents, and bleachers filled with NASCAR fanatics. Reeves also designed an Africa-themed room, profiled in the same issue of the magazine, that utilizes leather-look colorwashing, black-and-white zebra lines, and leafy wall-top borders to create sense of the savanna. PACE Events

Garrett counties will, for the second year, jointly sponsor the events, specifically, the Greater Allegany Business Foundation and the Garrett County Development Corporation.

The economic development offices and chambers of commerce of both counties will also provide assistance and participate in the events.

Kepple, who is also the chairperson for the Development Corporation, indicated that last year's joint effort with Allegany County was successful in showcasing area businesses, "We're looking forward to doing it again this year," she said.

The committee has planned two events that are intended to provide a number of opportunities for area leaders and business owners to meet with state officials, including members of the General Assembly. The first event, the 26th annual PACE Reception, will be held Thursday, Jan. 24, from 6 to 8 p.m., at the Loews Annapolis Hotel.

Typically, 600 to 700 people attend this event, according to the committee. Displays from area corporations and community groups that represent this year's theme will be featured.

The second event will be a "Legislative Breakfast" on Friday, Jan. 25, from 8 to 9:30 a.m., also to be held at the Loews. The breakfast will feature Garrett County sausage and buckwheat cakes made from a batter provided by Mountain Maryland. Those in attendance will either hear special presentations from each of the two counties or a guest speaker. Lt. Governor Kathleen Kennedy Townsend has been invited to be a guest speaker.

"The purpose of the events is to present our best face and to lobby for funds," said David Moe, committee member. The PACE events provide a forum for the counties, municipalities, and educational institutions to meet with and promote projects, legislation, and funding for issues vital to the future of the region.

Moe said that during the events area representatives will discuss the following issues with state leaders: One Maryland infrastructure funding, the north-south interstate corridor project, the adventure sports project, Oakland by-pass funding for design, adequate state K-12 education funding, adequate and equitable state funding for Garrett Community College and Allegany College of Maryland, and funding for the Allconet 2 Telecom project.

"No tax money will be used to pay for these events," Kepple stressed to the commissioners. A number of corporate sponsorships will be solicited at $100 each to assist in defraying the costs.

Both the PACE Reception and the Legislative Breakfast can be attended by a single ticket purchase for $75. Persons who would like to purchase tickets or have questions regarding the events, accommodations, or directions to the hotel may call the Allegany County Department of Economic Development at 301-777-5967 or 1-800-555-4080.

While invitations will be mailed to persons who have previously attended the PACE events, an invitation is not required to purchase a ticket.

Moe said that persons wanting to stay at the Loews Annapolis Hotel on Jan. 24 should soon contact the hotel at 1-800-526-2593 to reserve a room, as only 125 rooms have been allocated to the committee for that night.

ing at the news of arrests being made in Cumberland. According to reports, five males were taken into custody shortly after a robbery at the Mountaineer Mart, located along Rt. 28 in Short Gap, W.Va.

Gerry Beachy, mayor of Grantsville, said people in the area were relieved for two reasons: one being that the two local robberies were apparently not related, and two, because of the arrests made in Allegany County.

"There is certainly still an air of concern around here," Beachy said, who noted that his own pharmacy was robbed just two years ago by an armed individual. "But the news this morning was certainly welcome, and we do have great faith in our local and state police officers."

A fourth incident possibly related to one or more of these events occurred in Midland at the RG Convenience Store on Monday. Three white males apparently entered that establishment brandishing two rifles and a handgun. The clerk was ordered to hand over all the money in the register, and then to lie on the floor. The culprits then fled the scene.

Anyone with information about any of these crimes is urged to contact the GBI at 301-334-1909.

Millions In Medicaid Nursing Home Spending To Be Taken Back By State

by Nora Achrati
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS - Maryland's health department plans to take back $20 million to $26 million in nursing home money as part of an emergency Medicaid budget reduction package due to take effect next month, officials said.

For the first time in at least five years, the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene will implement what it calls an "early recovery" procedure in an effort to combat its $33 million Medicaid nursing home deficit. The money is from estimates of this year's unspent funds earmarked for nursing services — nursing staff wages, benefits, and other costs.

Each year, the department reviews records from the previous fiscal year to assess the difference between what it paid to nursing homes and what the homes really spent, health department Deputy Secretary Debbie Chang told the House Environmental Matters Subcommittee on Health Tuesday. Nursing homes are allowed to keep a percentage of any unspent money as profit, Chang said. The department recovers the rest.

At the end of this fiscal year, Chang said, the amount the department will recover will be substantial — about $26 million, she estimates. The department's proposal cuts that money now, at the beginning of the fiscal year, instead of in 2004, when the funds are scheduled to be recovered.

"We always recover the money," Chang said. "It's just when we recover it that's the issue."

Nursing home representatives, while sympathetic to the department's budget problems, say they're worried the proposal may go too far in cutting funds they say providers need to maintain adequate elder care. That's because other parts of the proposal would permanently reduce the percentage of unspent money nursing homes are allowed to keep. Representatives say this profit is often used to subsidize other projects like renovations and specialty care costs. They call the profit an incentive to not spend all allotted money.

"We're willing to go ahead with the accelerated recovery, provided the department ceases going after the permanent reductions," said Mark D. Woodard, representative for the for-profit nursing home coalition Health Facilities Association of Maryland.

The department isn't sure whether permanent reductions are appropriate either, Chang said. Health department and nursing home representatives will meet through the next week to discuss their impact and brainstorm alternatives.

Meanwhile, the centerpiece of the nursing home budget reduction — the "early recovery" portion of the proposal — will move forward, Chang said.

There's little quarrel with that, Woodard said, but he also doesn't think the department will recover as much money as it's expecting. According to the health department, 42 percent of Maryland's 250 nursing facilities spend their entire Medicaid nursing services budgets.

Those figures will change this fiscal year, Woodard says, because nursing homes plan to spend more to increase nursing staff numbers and wages. The result, Woodard said, is "the department is going to find they'll get a lot less money than they thought, because we're spending the money."

Fire departments involved in the alarm were Grantsville, Bittinger, Eastern Garrett, Accident, Friendsville, Frostburg, Shaft, Addison, Deep Creek, and Salisbury, with many of them providing tankers to shuttle water to the scene. There are no hydrants at the Casselman location.

Grantsville mayor Gerry Beachy said that about 60,000 gallons of water were taken from the town hydrants, but the system was able to keep up with the draw, with no major problems reported.

Also responding to the scene were the Northern Rescue Squad, Maryland State Police, Maryland State Highway personnel, and Allegheny Power Company employees. There were no injuries reported.

Deputy state fire marshals conducting the investigation included Ryan Chapman, Jamie Rodeheaver, and Jason Mowbray.

Net Grants

Park will be improved through a $95,250 Community Parks and Playgrounds grant, and Oakland's Glades Town Park was awarded $75,000 under the same DNR program. The grants were among 40 Parks and Playgrounds projects across the state that received a total of $5.2 million to expand existing parks or to purchase new playground equipment in established neighborhoods. Over 200 grant applications from a dozen county governments across Maryland were submitted.

Restrooms and additional pavilions will be constructed and additional ballfield lighting will be installed in the Friendsville park, Mayor Spencer Schlosnagle said, adding that the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is helping with the construction of additional soccer fields. The park already has a walking trail and bike path along the banks of Bear Creek and the Youghiogheny River, a Little League baseball field, and a basketball court.

The grant awarded to Oakland will be used to fund the initial phase of construction of what will eventually be a community center building in Glades Town Park. The Oakland-Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club is contributing $25,000 to the project, the town of Oakland is adding a sum, and the Parks and Playgrounds Program grant is $75,000.

"The funding we've gotten so far will be used to build an open pavilion-type structure with restrooms under roof," Mayor Asa McCain explained. "We hope to have that phase completed by the first of July, then later we'll be looking forward to enclosing the sides and finishing off the building to complete the community center."

The finished building will allow the town to greatly expand its recreational programming, the mayor said, especially by providing a secure location for very young participants taking part in arts and crafts activities, among other possible offerings. When still in the initial stages of construction, the structure will be available for family reunions and wedding receptions, said McCain, noting that the pavilion will overlook an attractive vista including the Glades Town Park pond.

"A community is only as strong as its neighborhoods," Governor Parris Glendening commented as he announced the grants last week. "One of the qualities people desire in a new home is its proximity to parks and open spaces that serve as gathering places for families and communities. This program not only builds recreational facilities, it also builds stronger community spirit."

The Parks and Playgrounds Program provides grants to local governments to rehabilitate, expand, or improve existing parks or create new parks and to purchase and install playground equipment in older neighborhoods. Eligible projects must be located within an existing community or neighborhood and in a Priority Funding Area. The final selections are made by a multi-agency grant review committee.

CDBG

Friendsville was also one of 14 communities around the state to garner a portion of $4.6 million through the CDBG program. The town's $92,370 award will be used to prevent further erosion of a Bear Creek stream bank to prevent future flooding to homes along Walnut Street and damage to the town park and municipal buildings. Approximately 10 feet of embankment was washed away several years ago. The town has been working in phases to restore the streambank, with assistance from the Corps of Engineers.

"The project awards will help provide support services, basic public facilities, and accessibility to public buildings in smaller communities that don't have the resources to undertake these projects alone," Housing and Community Development Secretary Raymond Skinner remarked as he announced the awards. "These are the types of community development programs that support our Smart Growth initiatives, which encourage investment in existing neighborhoods."

TURNOVERS, which plagued the playoff-bound Southern Rams early in the season, were costly to the Northern Huskies last Friday night at Husky Stadium, where the Rams concluded their regular season with a convincing 43-13 victory. Two of those turnovers were captured on film by staff photographer John McEwen. Above, Southern defensive back Tobi Stoner picks off an Aaron Mitchell aerial and returns it for a touchdown. Also identifiable in the photo are Rams Billy Schmidl (#34), Bryan Hinebaugh (#88), and Ryan Upole (#32), and Huskies Kellen Baumgardner (#88) and Dustin Wiland (#25). Pictured below is a fumble by Northern's Mitchell, which was recovered by the Rams. The Huskies concluded their season with a 3-7 record, while the Rams upped their mark to 6-4 and will enter the state 1A playoffs this Friday evening at Allegany.

Rams' Line Hammers Away At Huskies To Spark 43-14 Win

The annual installment of the cross-county battle between the varsity football squads of Southern and Northern high schools took place in the Cove Friday night, and the Rams came away with their second straight win over the Huskies, 43-14. The win capped a five-game SHS winning streak and put the Rams into tomorrow night's Maryland Class 1A playoff opener against Allegany, set for 7 p.m. at Greenway Avenue Stadium in Cumberland. (See other story for playoff preview.)

"It wasn't the kind of game we expected in terms of the final score, which was in no way indicative of the hard-fought battle that took place on the field," Southern head coach Fred Gregg commented after his troops downed the Huskies. "There's not a 29-point difference between these teams. We scored early to get the momentum going, and our lineman did an outstanding job controlling the line of scrimmage, which enabled us to control the game."

"They handled us on the line," NHS skipper Phil Carr commented as he agreed with his counterpart's analysis. "That's really where they won the game. If Southern can do that to Allegany, and I believe they can, they'll win Saturday and move on in the playoffs. Our hats are off to the Rams for the fine year they're having. They've worked hard and it shows, like it always will."

SHS wasted no time in grabbing the crucial momentum Gregg referred to, as the Rams took the opening kickoff and embarked on an eight-play, 68-yard march that seemed to catch the Huskies off guard. Quarterback Tobi Stoner reeled off a 22-yard run during the drive that gave SHS a first down on the Northern 11, well within the Huskies' red zone, and fullback Joel Helbig capped the drive with a two-yard touchdown plunge. Chad Panther connected for his first of five successful point-after kicks in five attempts to put Southern up 7-0 after just under three minutes had elapsed.

After Northern's offense stalled in its first possession the Huskies punted from close to midfield, which gave them an opportunity to pin the Rams down deep in their own territory. An uncharacteristically poor Northern punt for only 19 yards gave SHS the ball at the 24-yard line. Southern's offense sailed through a 76-yard drive on just 11 plays, with tailback Steve Skipper closing out the march with a one-yard dive into the endzone. Helbig and Stoner helped key the drive with two 12-yard carries.

"We were making the plays we had to in order to keep the chains moving in the first quarter," Gregg remarked. "Our line was doing its job real well. We had challenged our linemen to take control on both sides of the ball, and they were able to do it." The stats sheet reflected the comment, as after the first stanza the Rams held a 155 to minus-2 total yardage advantage over NHS.

Several second-quarter Northern miscues helped Southern's steamrolling offense continue unabated. The NHS punter's knee scraped the ground as he was forced to field a low snap from center, and the play gave SHS the ball on Northern's 31 yard line. The Rams capitalized on the gift five plays later when Skipper blasted off right tackle for a nine-yard touchdown run at the 10:48 mark to make the score 21-0.

The teams traded possessions, then with 1:23 left in the half, Stoner, playing in the Rams' secondary at defensive back, picked off a Northern pass and scampered 37 yards for a touchdown to put SHS up 28-0 at the 1:23 mark. "That play was key for us," remarked Gregg. "Then to score again right away seemed to really put us over the top."

The Rams' last-minute fireworks, which Southern fans have been treated to time and time again this thrilling season, exploded yet again just seconds later. After SHS defensive end Ryan Uphole pounced on a Husky fumble at the NHS 29-yard line, Stoner stepped back on a third-and-21 from the 40 and launched a "Hail Mary" bomb into the end-zone that tight end Bryson Meyers gathered in to give Southern a 35-0 lead as the half expired. "The way we gave up points at the end of the first half pretty much sunk our ship," stated Carr.

Northern temporarily righted the ship in the third stanza, which was literally all NHS. The Huskies churned out three yards and a cloud of dust repeatedly on a 22-play, 78-yard scoring drive that spanned the entire quarter. Converting three of five third downs, and two clutch fourth downs, Northern marched from its 22 toward the goal line with the clock running because of the 35-point rule.

NHS halfback Cheston Bachtel tallied 30 yards and fullback Dustin Wiland recorded 26 yards during the drive. Twelve minutes and three seconds after the quarter opened, NHS scored on the first play of the fourth stanza when Wiland blasted into the end-zone from one yard out. Mitchell hit Bachtel for two conversion points. "We made some adjustments at the half and did exactly what we wanted to do in the third quarter," Carr observed. "We kept the ball out of their hands; we wanted to do that through the whole game but couldn't."

The two teams traded possessions before Northern's second glimmer of hope surfaced on the night, as defensive tackle Joe Garlitz pounced on a Ram fumble at the NHS 43. The Huskies capitalized on the turnover by embarking on a 57-yard drive that climaxed with Bachtel's headlong 15-yard scoring run into the endzone. With 4:46 remaining, however, it was a case of too little, too late.

Southern got the last points on the board with just 47 seconds to go, as running back Chad Everd, recently brought up to the varsity ranks from the Rams' JV program, scored on a 25-yard run. Fellow former jayvee player Cory Bosley capped the touchdown by running for two conversion points.

SHS came away with the contest's advantage in first downs, 18-14; rushing yardage, 268-176; and total offense, 308-198. The Rams gained 199 yards on the ground in the first half alone, and scored five touchdowns on their six first-half possessions. The breakdown of that first-half rushing frenzy: Skipper, 82 yards on 12 carries; Helbig, 50 yards on 11 carries; Stoner 41 yards on six carries; and Panther, 26 yards on three carries.

"We were way out-sized, and on defense we tried to use our small, quick guys to penetrate the gaps," said Carr. "But we couldn't do it. They took advantage of where they were stronger than us, and that was on the line."

"Northern hit us hard, no doubt about it, but we didn't deviate from our game plan and did what we had to do to win," Gregg said in his summary. "I'm real proud of all our players; this gives them an idea of what they are capable of, and if we play like that against Allegany we have a shot at knocking them off."

SOMETHING TO CHEER ABOUT for Northern High School fans last Friday evening was this touchdown run by Cheston Bachtel, as he eluded these two Southern Ram defenders on a 15-yard run to the end zone. But it was too little, too late for the Huskies, who wrapped up their season with a 3-7 record.

Medicines May Help Muscle Spasms

Muscle spasms can occur in the calf muscle (also known as a Charley Horse), in the neck (spasmodic torticollis), and other parts of the body. Spasms often seem to occur in association with excessive exercise, trauma to a muscle, nervous system infections, lack of some dietary minerals, dehydration, protruding tumors, or bone malformations. Most muscle spasms are temporary and respond favorably to gentle stretching and massage. Persistent muscle spasms can produce constant pain, can restrict body movement, and can involve postural deformities.

Anticholinergic medicines block specific nerve impulses into muscle groups. Benzodiazepines can help as well. Quinine sulfate has been used successfully for leg cramp treatment and prevention. A shortage of potassium in the diet often can be corrected by eating potassium-rich foods such as oranges, bananas, or beans.

Rams Rally From 1-4 To State Playoff Spot

Six short weeks ago if someone had suggested that the Southern High School football team would be in post-season play, the non-Ram fan would have laughed, and the fan would have just shaken his head. The Rams were 1-4 at the time and still had the meat of their schedule ahead of them — undefeated Martinsburg, once-beaten Hampshire, always tough Fort Hill, and county rival Northern among them.

But with five straight victories, at least two of which were totally unexpected, the Rams are now seeded seventh among the top eight Class 1A teams in the entire state, and certainly have a shot at the school's first football state championship. Coach Fred Gregg's squad will begin that post-season trek for a title this Friday in Cumberland where they will meet, for the second time this season, the Campers of Allegany High School.

Allegany is ranked second in the state standings with an 8-2 record, and is the last team to have defeated the Rams, 28-7, during the regular season back on September 28 at Greenway Avenue Stadium. That score, however, is not indicative of the closeness of the contest, as the Rams trailed just 14-7 midway through the fourth quarter. Then a turnover that led to quick a Camper touchdown essentially iced the game for the home team.

Even though the Rams will again be the underdog, and even though Coach Gregg knows that it will take an outstanding effort by his team to pull off a victory, he also admits that his unit today has come a long way since September 28.

"When we played Allegany the first time our kids were a little intimidated," he said. "We were playing not to lose rather than playing to win. But this time we will be playing to win, and because of our recent success our players have a lot more confidence, they are tougher mentally, and they welcome an opportunity to play Allegany again. We know that if we play our best, we have a chance to win. We still might play very well and lose, but at least we have a chance to prove ourselves."

The Campers' senior-dominated wing-T offense has been led all year by a powerful tandem in the backfield, Jeremy Sellers (6-1, 185) and Chad Jacovino (5-9, 215), who together amassed just under 300 yards and all four touchdowns against the Rams in the first game. Senior quarterback Ryan Strother (5-11, 170) has had a solid season for Alco.

"Strother is an excellent quarterback," Gregg said. "He does a super job running the offense. He can throw the ball when necessary, and his experience helps him stay cool under pressure."

Strother's favorite target has been big senior end Derrick Jamison (6-1, 230), who hauled in a touchdown pass last week in the Campers' 21-7 win over city rival Fort Hill.

Sellers, who rushed for 132 yards and a touchdown in that game, was also named the defensive player of the game, while Jacovino recorded 152 yards and a touchdown to be named offensive player of the game.

Coach Gregg said that there were a number of others things that were positive about playing the Campers again, besides just the opportunity to win the game. "Our preparation for them, obviously, has been easier than if we were playing someone unfamiliar to us," he said. "We know what to expect. They have been easy for us to scout, it's an easy trip for us and for our fans, and we are familiar with their setting, from the locker room to the field."

Gregg reiterated again this week that the improved play of the Rams' line, both offensively and defensively, as well as the dramatic reduction in turnovers, have been two of the major keys to the team's success of late. In fact, it was multiple turnovers that cost the Rams at least three games (Keyser, Preston, and Grafton).

"We have also been playing much better mentally," he said. "We have played well physically through most of the season, but the mental part is every bit as important. It's one of the reasons we have been able to reduce the number of turnovers, and it's helped us make it through the rough times that you have in almost every game, and then turn things around.

"There's also a lot of little, more subtle things that we are doing much better," he continued, "things that most people really wouldn't notice just watching the game, but that are really important."

Of course, Gregg was also quick to point out that Allegany is undoubtedly also a better team today than it was six weeks ago. "Certainly they have progressed as well, and are probably doing a number of things better too," he said. "They are obviously one of the best, if not the best, team in the state. We know that they are going to come at us just like the first time, by pounding and pounding, and trying to wear us down. But our kids know if we can keep our mistakes to a minimum and play up to our ability, we have a good chance."

The Campers' two defeats this season came at the hands of Pennsylvania powerhouse Hampton, 24-20, and Bullis Prep, 26-13.

Gregg said that his players sustained a number of "bangs and bumps" in last week's contest with Northern, but are generally healthy.

The winner of Friday's game will face the winner of #3 Elkton and #6 Rising Sun, probably the following Saturday, on the higher seed's field. Friday's kickoff at Greenway Avenue Stadium is slated for 7 p.m. (See separate story on caravan and tailgate party plans.)

Rams' Caravan, Tailgate Party Set For Friday

Fans of the Southern High School football team are invited to participate in an auto caravan to Greenway Avenue Stadium in Cumberland this Friday, and a tailgate party near Fort Hill High School. The Rams will face host Allegany in a state playoff game, which will kick off at 7 p.m.

The first wave of the caravan will depart from the school at 3:45 p.m. and will follow the players' buses. The second wave will depart at 4:45 p.m., also from the school, and follow the band and student buses. Caravaners are invited to come early to help decorate vehicles.

The tailgate party will be held in a parking lot along Avondale Avenue, located just off Williams Street on the rear side of Fort Hill High School.

RUNNIN' RAMS COMPETE AT STATES - The Southern High School boys' cross country team, coached by Carl Booth, again qualified for the Maryland State 1A Championships, which are hosted every year by Hereford High School. The Runnin' Rams have won the state title five times under Coach Booth, but illness among some team members this year proved to be a major hindrance to the squad's success. The boys placed 10th among 14 teams at the state meet, as senior Matt Frederick was hampered by illness during the second half of the season, and team leader after Frederick, Craig Conroy, had a virus the day of the state meet (Saturday). The Southern girls' team, coached by Louis Newcomb, was represented by Melissa Durst, who finished sixth and, for the third year in a row, earned All-State honors. She is pictured below leading the field of approximately 80 runners. Pictured above from left, kneeling, are: Jared Reckart, Tom Crozier, Jason Weeks, Kyle Conroy, Matt Frederick, and Keenan Shaffer. Standing are: Wesley Thomas, Craig Conroy, Coach Booth, Melissa Durst, and Coach Newcomb. See story for details. Photo by Ed Clemons.

Durst Earns All-State Honors For Third Season

For the third year in a row, Southern High School Runnin' Ram Melissa Durst, a junior, has earned All-State honors in cross country, as she placed sixth individually at the Maryland State 1A Cross Country Championships, held at Hereford High School near Baltimore on Saturday.

Durst, daughter of Rodney and Lisa Durst, Swanton, completed the rigorous 3.1-mile course in 21 minutes, 42 seconds. She was the only member of the Southern girls' team who qualified for the state meet. There were 74 finishers.

Westmar High School's Jennifer Patton was the state champion, recording a time of 20:20, and was followed by Laura Stouffer of Smithsburg (20:39), Rachel Hawes of Century (20:55), Rachel Armstrong of Beall (21:11), and Britta Nelson of Havre de Grace (21:30). The top 15 individual finishers are named to the All-State team.

Durst placed second in the race last year as a sophomore, following a third place as a freshman.

Smithsburg won the team championship, followed by Beall, Boonsboro, Westmar, Oakland Mills, Loch Raven, Century, Catoctin, and Washington.

The entire Southern boys' team, coached by Carl Booth, qualified for the state meet by virtue of finishing third in the 1A West Region championships the previous week.

The best individual finish by a member of the Southern team out of the 102 finishers was that of senior Matt Frederick, who placed 23rd with a time of 18:55. Kennan Shaffer was 34th with a finishing time of 19:10. Other Southern finishers were: Tom Crozier, 67th; Wesley Thomas, 70th; Jason Weeks, 73rd; Jared Reckart, 80th; and Craig Conroy, 96th.

Conroy, who had led the team in recent weeks, was barely able to run because of a stomach virus.

As a team, the Rams placed 10th among 14 entire teams. The top nine teams in order of finish were: Oakland Mills, Loch Raven, Westmar, Poolesville, Beall, Williamsport, Kent County, Catoctin, and Boonsboro.

AREA CHAMPS... AGAIN — The Southern High School girls' soccer team capped another outstanding season by being named the Area Champions for the second consecutive year. The Rams finished with a 13-2-1 overall record and advanced to the 1A West Region title match, in which they lost to Smithsburg, 4-2. Pictured above, front, is Becky Martin. From left, seated, are: Miriam Sincell, Alison Ulino, Gina Reeves, Laura Hollingsworth, Megan Burner, and Jennifer Hickman. Standing are: Coach Ron Petrella, Erin Rhodes, Laura Bonser, Shar Hollingsworth, Sarah Anderson, Alasha Rush, Jasmine Scheffel, Ashley Stuck, Melissa Rohrbaugh, Brittany Naylor, and Coach Bob Bonser. Southern Girls Earn Another Area Soccer Championship

It came as no great surprise last week that the Southern High School girls' soccer team — which held the #1 ranking in area standings every single week this season, won another Western Maryland Interscholastic League title, upped its regular-season unbeaten streak to 21 matches, progressed to the 1A West Region championship game, and concluded the season with an overall record of 13-2-1 — was named the winner of the Area Championship. What is surprising, though, is the overall success of the program in just four short years, as Coach Ron Petrella has guided his teams to an amazing four-year record of 42-12-3.

Most of those 12 defeats came in the Southern's inaugural season in 1998, but even that year the Rams finished with a winning record. Petrella had the luxury this year of having a number of fourth-year players, including two former area defensive players of the year in Becky Martin (1998 as goalkeeper) and Miriam Sincell (2000).

Other seniors who led the team this season were Megan Burner, Jenny Hickman, Gina Reeves, and Alison Ulino, all of whom started last year, along with Laura Hollingsworth.

"These girls all played on our inaugural team," Petrella said. "They are a very special group, who came through our local youth program and laid the groundwork for the high school program. They have provided tremendous leadership for the younger girls, which is going to continue to reap benefits for us even after they are gone."

Even with the graduation of seven seniors, it's not as though Petrella's team will be decimated for next year. In fact, the team's leading scorer, junior Brittany Naylor (13 goals, 10 assists), sophomore Sabrina Scheffel (14 goals, three assists), experienced sophomore striker Robbin Gregg, sophomore goalkeeper Alasha Rush, who had seven shutouts this season, and starting defenders Kristen Oxford and Laura Bonser, will all be back.

Rush, who replaced Martin in goal this season, led the area in save percentage (.908) and allowed only two goals in five WMIL matches. Overall, the Rams allowed only nine goals, four of which were by Smithsburg, which knocked the Rams out of the state tourney by handing them a 4-2 defeat in the region final.

Southern came into the 2001 season with an 11-match regular-season winning streak and went 9-0-1 before falling to Beall, 2-0, on October 15. They had blanked Beall, 4-0, in their first meeting.

The Rams were 1-0-1 against powerful Bishop Walsh this season.

Petrella's teams have captured the WMIL title three out of the last four years, and are currently 18-2-1 in four seasons of WMIL competition. They hold a commanding 23-5-1 advantage in matches played on their home field, and a 17-match regular-season home winning streak at 16-0-1, with the tie being a match with Bishop Walsh.

"It's a pleasure to be part of the outstanding sports program at Southern High School," said Petrella, who is not employed by the board of education and is also the president of the Mountaintop Soccer Association. "The whole school is so supportive of the girls' sports programs and is really first class all the way, from the principal to the athletic director to the other coaches."

Petrella's assistant coach this season, and considered a key to the Rams' continued success, was Bob Bonser. "Bob is such a great technician," he said. "He really studies the game, and then brings a wealth of knowledge to the program.

"I'm already looking forward to next year," he concluded.

U-12 MSA CHAMPS, RUNNERS-UP - The under-12 division championship in the Mountaintop Soccer League youth program was won this year by the Oakview Motors Mutiny, the members of which are pictured above. Lakers Defeat Beaver, But Fall To Rockingham, 90-85

The 2001-02 basketball season is under way for the Garrett Community College men's basketball team, as the Lakers opened their campaign with a victory on Saturday in their own Garrett Preview Tournament, but were then defeated in the championship clash on Sunday. The Lakers returned to the court last night against Penn State Fayette. (See other story for results.)

Saturday's win was an easy 98-45 thrashing of Penn State Beaver, and Sunday's 90-85 loss was to Rockingham, which earned a spot in the title game by rolling over Potomac State College, 115-73, in Saturday's other game. The Catamounts then defeated Beaver in the consolation contest on Sunday, 89-64.

Kortaa Hall, a pre-season All-American, netted 21 points in the game against Beaver, while Coach Dennis Gibson's other key returnee, Jontae Harrington, recorded 11 points and 13 rebounds. Gibson rotated 11 players into the game, and also finishing in double figures were Sam Brown with 14 points, Darren Stackhouse with 12, and Antuon Townsend with 10.

The Lakers took control of the game early and built a commanding 49-18 lead by halftime. They also scored 49 points in the second half, while Beaver connected for 27.

Leading Beaver's scoring were Curtis Starr and Brian Wise with 10 and nine points, respectively.

The competition was obviously much stiffer for the Lakers in Sunday's game against Rockingham, a Division I school. However, Garrett trailed by as many as 20 points and was down by 14 at halftime (54-40) before rallying late in the second half.

Hall again paced the Lakers' offensive effort, as he put a game-high 30 points on the board, with 18 of those being recorded on six three-point buckets.

THE GCC MEN'S BASKETBALL TEAM has the raw talent to go a long way this season, according to Laker head coach Dennis Gibson. The program returns several standouts from last season's 23-win squad, including forward Jontae Harrington and guard Kortaa Hall, and adds a crop of freshman faces that features guard Duke Cooper, who has already turned some heads with his play this year. Seated from the left in the team photo are Antonio Whetstone, Antuon Townsend, Hall, Cooper, and Sam Brown. Standing are Michael Forman, Andrew Wass, Darvus Gray, Harrington, Jason Williams, Darren Stackhouse, and Jamal Jacobs. Garrett has a 2-1 start under its belt, including a five-point loss to Division I Rockingham (N.C.) last weekend, and a 40-point demolition of Penn State Fayette just last night. The Lakers are slated to host the GCC McDonald's Tournament in McHenry this weekend.

Brown added 17 points and a pair of blocks, while Stackhouse also reached double figures with 10 points and nine rebounds.

Rockingham's big gun was B.J. Timmons, who hit five three-pointers en route to a 25-point scoring effort. Teammates Brad Logan, Jared Blackwell, Derik Stephens, and Quenshon Goode also reached double figures with 14, 12, 10, and 10 points, respectively. Mintrel Abney pulled down a game-high 12 rebounds.

The Lakers' late comeback effort was stymied by the Rockingham players' making good at the foul line in the closing minutes. The visitors connected on 24 of 31 attempts, while the Lakers hit 15 of 19 opportunities.

"This was a good learning experience for us," Coach Gibson said. "Rockingham has both size and fine shooting ability, and we really weren't as physical as we needed to be. But overall we played pretty well."

The Lakers will host another tourney this weekend, the McDonald's Tournament, which will include Reading, Ocean, N.J., and Stephens Tech. Then before taking a Thanksgiving break next week, they will entertain Takoma Park on Tuesday.

Lakers Crush Fayette For Second Win

The men's basketball team of Garrett Community College coasted to a 40-point victory, 97-57, over host Penn State Fayette last night, upping the Lakers' season mark to 2-1. The Lakers split games this past weekend in their own Preview Tournament (see other story).

Jontae Harrington led three Lakers in double figures, as he poured in 24 points and pulled down 11 rebounds. Kortaa Hall netted 15 and Andrew Wass contributed 12.

Duke Cooper, despite nursing an ankle injury sustained in the Preview Tournament, recorded eight assists.

"It was nice to have Duke back last night," stated GCC coach Dennis Gibson this morning, "and it was nice to get a convincing win. We started slowly, but then Jontae got on track offensively. We have to have production from him, Duke, and Kortaa in order to be successful this year."

Further details of the game, such as leading scorers for Fayette, were unavailable at presstime.

The Lakers will host the annual McDonald's Tournament this weekend, featuring Reading, Ocean, and Stephens Tech, in games to be played Saturday and Sunday. They will entertain Takoma Park next Tuesday.

GCC Men's Cagers To Serve Up McDonald's Tourney At Home

The Garrett Community College Lakers are hosting their 10th annual McDonald's Tourney this weekend, Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 17-18. Garrett defeated Reading in the tourney opener last season behind the hot shooting of then-freshman Kortaa Hall's 35 points and Jontae Harrington's 20 points and 11 rebounds. The Lakers went on to defeat Ocean County College (N.J.) by a convincing 77-65 margin in the championship contest, with Hall and Harrington leading the way.

GCC's first appearance is Saturday at 7 p.m., when the Lakers take on tourney newcomer Stevens Tech, an Eastern Pennsylvania Collegiate Conference squad. The ST Bulldogs won their conference championship last year and are off to a 2-0 start in their first two games of the current season.

The GCC-ST game will come on the heels of a 5 p.m. contest between Ocean and Reading (Pa.). Ocean brings a seventh-place ranking in Division III of the National Junior College Athletic Association to bear in the tournament. Last season the Gulls finished 29-7, and placed sixth in the Division III National Tournament, losing to eventual champ Cedar Valley (Tex.) by a narrow five-point margin. Ocean returns starting point guard Derrick Holley, who tallied the fourth-highest assist total in the nation last season. Reading brings two tough returning sophomores, Brian Kirkland and Alexis Hallums, who helped lead the squad to a 12-12 record last year.

Laker coach Dennis Gibson is hoping his team can get on track after dropping a 90-85 decision to Rockingham (N.C.), a Division I team, in the final of the GCC Preview Tournament last weekend. "The McDonald's tourney will be important for us in the terms of building on the strong second half we had against Rockingham, coming back from a 21-point first half deficit to go up by two. Our team is very young and our front line is inexperienced.

"Duke Cooper, our starting point guard, is an important part of our offense, and backups Mike Foreman and Antuon Townsend can do a fine job when called upon. Experience can only help them; but if we want to make an impact we need Duke to play and keep Harrington out of foul trouble. Jontae only played 12 minutes against Rockingham, but we did get good play from our freshmen, Jason Williams and Jamal Jacobs. As they gain experience we will be able to throw a lot of different looks at teams. Our team grew up a lot on Sunday in the Preview championship, and we can only get better."

This weekend's tournament marks the unveiling of Garrett's new scoreboard, donated by tourney sponsors McDonald's and Coca Cola. "Without the support of businesses such as McDonald's and Coke, and all the others that support not only our program but all the athletic programs in Garrett County, it would be impossible for us to maintain such a high standard of success," Gibson stated. "I'm glad they don't overlook a tiny school like us. They really do give back to the community."

OAKLAND LITTLE LEAGUE GETS GRASS INFIELD — Oakland Little League recently made improvements to its Jr./Sr. League Division field by covering the infield with sodded grass purchased from Lucas Nursery. The project was spearheaded by OLL vice presidents Mark Proulx and Ed Wildesen. Rich Ford and John Furr of Garrett Community College were responsible for the donation of approximately 70 tons of top soil, which was needed before the sod could be put down. Butch Uphole and Rick Rush transported the top soil, and Dave Taylor of Green Acres and Lydell Savage were the landscaping experts. Pictured above, from the left, are Furr, assistant facilities director at GCC; Ford, director of campus facilities at GCC; Jane Roberson, president of OLL; and Proulx, vice president of OLL.

Wildcats Sweep SHS Netters To End Rams' Playoff Run

The Southern volleyball team finished the season with a 3-0 loss to top-seed Williamsport last Thursday in the semifinal round of the Class 1A West Region playoffs. The sweep closed out SHS's season with a 10-6 record on the heels of the Rams' sweep of Beall in the opening round of the playoffs, reported last week.

The Rams put up a fight against a powerful Wildcat team. Southern jumped out to 6-3 and 6-4 leads in the first two games, only to watch Williamsport come back to take both contests 15-9 and 15-6, and roll to a 15-8 win to cap the sweep.

As a team, the Rams tallied a 94% serving percentage, the best figure of the season. Junior Kristen Rollman collected 15 assists, and senior Erin Frantz added 7 kills. Jessica Sharon, a junior, finished with 6 service points, 2 aces, and 2 kills, and sophomore Alexis Storey added 3 kills and 2 blocks.

"We talked all week in practice about what we needed to do to compete with Williamsport," SHS head coach Sue Newton recalled. "We reminded our players that they had played their two best games of the season came against Fort Hill, our toughest opponent.

"We asked for a great game and that's exactly what we got. Our girls played with confidence the entire match, and we left the court feeling good about our performance. I'm glad we got to play against such a good team. It gave all returning players a chance to see where we need to be next year."

The Rams recorded a 10-6 record for the season, its best in recent memory, and the team's success was buoyed by a number of fine individual performances. Rollman took the career lead in assists in the final regular season against Northern, passing Jennifer Teagarden and finishing her junior season with a 295 assist total. Sharon led in kills with 78, and senior Holli Harris collected 163 service points, 40 aces, and a 90% serving percentage. Frantz and Storey collected 51 and 44 kills respectively.

The Rams' coach also praised the defensive efforts of juniors Stephanie Niner, Erika Steyer, Brea Byers, and freshman Julia Bosley.

"This was a great group of athletes to work with," Newton commented. "I knew from the beginning of the season that our strength was in our offense. Our goal was to improve on defense and serve receiving, and in my four years here this was definitely the best defensive team we've put together. The girls are to be commended for all the work they have done to make the volleyball program at Southern a success."

Husky Netters Sweep Past Alco, Fall To Williamsport

The Northern High School volleyball team cruised past Allegany in the semifinals of the Class 1A West Region playoffs last Thursday with a 3-0 sweep, but ran into a Williamsport wall during Saturday evening's Region final and were downed in turn by a 3-0 margin. Northern finished the season at 13-5, and a season wrap-up will be provided for these pages by NHS coach Linda Wengerd in the near future.

"The Allegany match was our best of the year," the Huskies skipper remarked concerning her squad's 15-6, 15-4, 15-10 blowout of the Campers before a frenzied Igloo crowd. "It's hard to single out individuals from an effort like that, but Nicole Sisler, Amanda Frantz, and Christie Flockhart played great, and Heather Lander gave us one of her best setting performances of the season. It was just a wonderful win."

Lander paced the NHS victory with 16 points, and Sisler added 14 points and 8 attacks. Flockhart tallied 13 attacks, and Jolene Brenneman recorded nine attacks, three kills, and one ace. Kristina Hanft's nine points led Alco, which had come into the playoffs seeded in the #3 slot, one below NHS.

The final pitted the second-seed Huskies against top-seed Williamsport on the Wildcats' home court. NHS fell by scores of 15-2, 15-3, and 15-4, to a unit that was "head and shoulders above the competition we usually face," Wengerd remarked. "All of their players were quick and could leap. With no exaggeration, one girl was getting her elbows up to the top of the net." Flockhart recorded four attacks for NHS, Sisler tallied three attacks, and Lander dished out five assists while scoring two points.

Committee Seeks $1 Billion For Maryland Schools

by Justin Paprocki
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — It's up to the people to determine whether the Maryland public school system will be adequately funded, according to the chairman of the Commission on Education Finance, Equity and Excellence, the group charged with the task of overhauling the state's school financing system. Facing an economic downturn, the commission led by Alvin Thornton is looking for ideas about how to fund its recommendations, worth an additional $1.1 billion in state funding by fiscal year 2007.

A public hearing will be held at 7 p.m. Monday, Nov. 19, in Annapolis about the proposal. That information will be included in the final report, due to Gov. Parris N. Glendening in December.

The commission will be briefed at its meeting today about potential revenue sources, including raising taxes and legalizing slot machines.

"This is a once-in-a-decade opportunity. You can't find any more valuable (education) data compiled in once place, at one time," said Thornton, an associate dean at Howard University's political science department and former Prince George's County school board chairman.

"It will be up to the people to decide what's funded," he said. "I do think there is an appetite out there for equitable education."

State funding for public education is about $2.9 billion a year, and is scheduled to increase $700 million by 2007. The additional $1.1 billion is needed in part to provide adequate funding to schools with a higher concentration of students living in poverty and to those students with special education needs and limited English skills.

The commission is recommending more funding for the state's poorer districts, which would give some counties triple the amount of others. For example, Prince George's County would receive about $305 million in state aid in 2007, while neighboring Montgomery County would get about $70 million, according to the report.

"What we expect any state to address is to make sure that disadvantages are not something that result in inadequate education," said Thornton.

The next step is finding ways to fund it.

The state will face a projected $1.7 billion deficit by the end of fiscal year 2003 because of falling revenues, according to information released by the General Assembly's Spending Affordability Committee in late October.

Already, Glendening ordered about $205 million worth of cost-containment measures for the next two years. Agency budgets were cut 1.5 percent, $65 million in approved capital projects was deferred and all hiring, except for security positions, was frozen. Additional cuts may be made after the December revenue estimates come out.

The commission earlier ruled out proposals to provide $2.8 billion in additional funding, and decided to phase in the recommendations over five years to help account for the economic slowdown.

In addition to new revenue sources, the commission will recommend that existing funds be redirected to ensure proper funding for education, according to the first draft of the commission report.

"The question is whether or not the leadership of the state will respond," Thornton said. "The only thing we can do is provide the most powerful argument possible."

The governor has already increased the education spending about $1 billion from when he took office seven years ago, said Michael Morrill, a spokesman for the governor.

"He believes that education investment is the highest-most priority," Morrill said. "We have a very different situation next year because of the budget."

A Senate bill introduced to the General Assembly last year based on recommendations the commission made in its interim report excluded additional funding.

The commission decided to include suggestions about revenue sources in its final report in part because some members are anxious the economic downturn and Glendening's recently announced budget cuts may impact this year's recommendations.

"We've got to find a way to fund this and it doesn't matter what the economic times are," said commission member Sen. Robert Neall, D-Anne Arundel, at an earlier meeting.

Report: Maryland Women, Children Are The Most Likely To Go Hungry

by Alan Brody
Capital News Service

BALTIMORE - Women, children, and single-parent families are most often the victims of hunger in Maryland, according to a study released Wednesday by the Maryland Food Bank. More than 60 percent of adults seeking food assistance are women, while more than 40 percent of those served are children, the report said.

Numbers of those seeking food assistance, the report says, may grow as the effects of an unstable economy swayed by the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks take hold.

"The rise in the number of hungry people throughout the U.S. over the past four years is striking because it occurred even as we were engaged in one of the strongest economic climates in recent history," said Bill Ewing, executive director of the Maryland Food Bank, one of 104 food banks participating in the national study.

"The accelerated downturn of the economy in recent months may deal a powerful blow to those already seeking assistance and will likely bring others into church food pantries, soup kitchens, and shelters for help," he said.

Maryland's numbers are mostly consistent with national figures, according to a similar study also released Wednesday by America's Second Harvest. More than 23 million Americans received hunger relief in 2001, an increase of about 2 million since 1997.

Hunger is not only an inner-city problem that effects the chronically unemployed, the study said. Almost half of Maryland households receiving assistance included a working adult, 10 percent more than national statistics.

More than 10 million pounds of food were distributed by the Maryland Food Bank in 2001 to about 900 food pantries, soup kitchens, and emergency shelters.

State poverty rates — at 9.5 percent — are just below national figures, although Baltimore's poverty rate is more than twice the normal metropolitan figure. Although Maryland has substantially reduced welfare rolls since 1996, almost 500,000 Marylanders live below the poverty line, according to the U.S. Census.

Hunger advocates will urge the General Assembly for more funding of two state programs to combat the problems highlighted in the study. The Maryland Emergency Food Program and the Emergency and Transitional Housing and Services Program provide state funds for soup kitchens and food pantries, as well as homeless shelters, said Laura Howell, spokeswoman for the Center for Poverty Solutions.

"The funding has not even come close to keeping pace with providers' needs," said Howell. "We ask our fellow citizens (and government) to do everything they can to help and make sure a safety net is in place."

Almost half of Maryland Food Bank clients had to choose between food or utilities and heating fuel, while one-third had to choose between food, paying rent, or health care, the study said. In the past two months, demand for food has increased as the economy worsened.

"We actually (have) a lot of families who have moved down here from New York, because they have lost their jobs after Sept. 11," said Lisa Knickmeyer, director of St. Michael Outreach Center in Baltimore. "They have moved down here because it's cheaper to live here and there is rumor that there are jobs here."

Current programs like food stamps and the Women, Infants, and Children (WIC) supplemental nutrition program take too long to provide services and leave the most needy without money for basic essentials, said Knickmeyer.

LAP SIT PROGRAM NOT JUST FOR SITTING — The Ruth Enlow Library's Lap Sit Program, an interactive program featuring stories, fingerplays, music, and craft activities for children ages 1-3, is offered Mondays at 10:45 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. Last Monday's morning program at the Oakland branch, based on the children's song "Oh, Do You Know the Muffin Man," gave the participants shown above the chance to exercise their hands as well as their imaginations. Shown from the left are Kyle Weingardner, Sam Jones, and Devan Hamrick. The evening program of the same day was titled "The Wheels on the Bus," and shown below in a "schoolbus" of the group's own creation are Stephanie Beeman and Ryan Roszell, with James Naylor giving a push from behind. The Oakland branch's fall Lap Sit season draws to a close this coming Monday, Nov. 19, with a morning program titled "London Bridge is Falling Down," and an evening program on "Six Little Ducks." The branch will resume Lap Sits in April, and for information persons may call reference librarian Dorene Rogers at 301-334-3996.

Women's Hall Of Fame Seeks 2002 Nominations

The Garrett County Commission for Women is requesting nominations of local women for induction into the Garrett County Women's Hall of Fame.

"We invite organizations and individuals to nominate women for the Hall of Fame. Nominations should represent women who have made outstanding contributions to Garrett County and are examples for tomorrow's leaders," said Sandi Flockhart, chair of the Garrett County Commission for Women.

Under the guidance of the GCCW, a selection committee representing a cross section of county citizens will review the nominations and select up to three new Hall of Fame members. The Hall of Fame was established in 1995 as a permanent means to recognize the significant contributions of Garrett County's women throughout the county's history.

Past inductees include Polly J. Hanst, Wilda W. Massi, Ruth H. Ryan, Martha U. Jachowski, Dr. Alta Schrock, Edith G. Brock, Brenda J. Butscher, Jane B. Avery, Martha I. Glotfelty, Roberta Andersen, Ruth DiPaolo, Mary Love, Nelle Stemple, Alice Hevner, Phyllis Trickett, and Dorothy Leighton.

This year's inductee(s) will be honored at a breakfast on Saturday, March 23, 2002.

Nomination packets with complete instructions may be obtained by calling Charlene Pullias at 301-387-5377. In addition, packets will be available at area Ruth Enlow Library branches. Deadline for filing nomination packets is January 25, 2002.

Salisbury Man's Extortion Case On Stet Docket

A charge of attempted extortion against Jeffrey Robert Slomkowski, 38, Salisbury, Pa., was placed on the stet docket. Slomkowski allegedly contacted representatives of the Penn Alps restaurant and threatened to make reports to a variety of agencies and offices unless a sum of money was paid to him.

Garrett County State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch explained that "the case has not been dismissed, but remains in an inactive status as long as Slomkowski does not violate the law. This appears to be the best resolution in this case, given that Slomkowski at one point told the officer who was posing as a Penn Alps officer, that he had changed his mind."

SHALLOW HAL

I saw one of those half-hour promo shows about Shallow Hal last week (you know, the ones where they show practically the whole movie?), and watched Jack Black, Gwyneth Paltrow, and several others sit there straight-faced and pretend it's a deep, thoughtful treatise on the nature of society. Well..... Although this latest film from the Farrelly brothers tries to have a social conscience, it struggles greatly to keep its head above water from a P.C. standpoint. That's not to say it doesn't have its moments. But trying to make a movie about fat people that doesn't make fun of fat people, using thin people in fat makeup instead of real fat people, is a tricky business. Of course, it doesn't help that this film is written and directed by Bobby and Peter Farrelly, who have become internationally famous for being intentionally offensive, from their debut Dumb & Dumber through There's Something About Mary, all the way up to and including this summer's cartoon offering Osmosis Jones. Now these guys are trying to have a conscience? Right.

The story involves Hal (Black), a guy who goes out to clubs with his best friend Mauricio (Jason Alexander), scoping out babes who are clearly "out of his league," and enduring numerous brush-offs by beautiful women every night of his life. When he is stranded in a elevator with famous motivational speaker Anthony Robbins (playing himself), the guru hypnotizes him into seeing only the inner beauty in people. So when he meets Rosemary Shanahan, a friendly, personable, intelligent social worker who has to weigh over 300 pounds without a stitch of clothing on, he sees a girl that looks exactly like Gwyneth Paltrow. The thing is, Hal doesn't know he's been brainwashed, so he thinks Mauricio is crazy when he refers to Rosemary as a "rhino"; meanwhile, Mauricio (and everyone else, including Rosemary and her parents) doesn't understand why Hal is so thankful to be dating such an incredible hottie. Eventually, of course, Hal's spell is broken, and he must decide whether he can still love a woman who can't fit comfortably in a phone booth.

This movie suffers from a split personality regarding its attitude toward fat/ugly people. While its overall tone and its inevitable final resolution bear the "aren't we all beautiful just the way we are" message, its use of makeup and the campy predilection of its directors often push it overboard into the well-established, offensive Farrelly territory. What's more, it's brought down by the poor performances of many supporting cast members, such as Black's girlfriend, SNL alum and comedian Laura Kightlinger, and his Tenacious D bandmate Kyle Gass, who play a married couple with no reason to be in the film other than being friends of Black's, and mob movie regular Joe Viterelli as Rosemary's protective father, inexplicably donning an Irish accent he apparently learned from watching Lucky Charms commercials. I guess this is the only way he can manage to appear not-Italian.

Regardless of its conflicted tone and other shortcomings, the film does further illustrate not only the humorously intense charm of Jack Black, but the Oscar-winning thespian abilities of Gwyneth Paltrow, who says that in this film she tried not to differentiate stylistically between the "thin Rosemary" and the "heavy Rosemary." And indeed, even when she is appearing as herself without the padding, Paltrow is seen struggling to get out of car seats, walking slowly and tiring easily, etc., and even when endowed with pounds of foam rubber, she lets the spark of her character's likable personality shine through, obviously putting some thought into a part she could easily have dismissed as a throwaway. ★★★½

LIFE AS A HOUSE

Rated R - Running Time: 2:04 - Released 11/9/01

Thank goodness there are actors capable of delivering performances better than the scripts they're given. Too bad there aren't more of them in this movie. Life As A House, written by Mark Andrus (As Good As It Gets) and directed by Irwin Winkler (At First Sight), is saved from being a complete melodramatic cesspool by its two adult stars, Kevin Kline and Kristin Scott Thomas. Playing George and Robin, a divorced couple from southern California slowly edging their way back together while rebuilding the rundown shack they used to live in, the pair bring a needed sense of subtlety to a film whose messages are delivered with sledgehammers and wrecking bars. Unfortunately, the film doesn't revolve around their relationship so much as that of Klein and 20-year-old Hayden Christensen (soon to be seen as Annakin Skywalker/Darth Vader in the upcoming Star Wars II and III), whose character has become a classic (read: tritely stereotyped) rebellious teenager after his parents' breakup. Christensen's technique is not up to standard for this film (don't worry; it probably is for Star Wars), and burdening him with this difficult and manipulative text is an unfortunate choice by producer/director Winkler.

After being fired from his job as an architect's model maker and learning that he will die of an unspecified cancer within four months, George decides to make the most of his time and try to repair the damaged relationship he has with his drug-addicted, body-pierced, Marylin Manson-loving, 16-year-old punk son Sam, thus avoiding the kind of lasting bitterness he shared with his own father, by asking the boy to help him rebuild his decrepit cliffside home. This comes as a relief to his next-door neighbor and ex-girlfriend Coleen (Mary Steenburgen) and her daughter Alyssa (Jena Malone), who are tired of watching him urinate off the cliff for lack of sufficient plumbing, and to his ex-wife Robin and her wealthy but excruciatingly dull and insensitive husband (Jamey Sheridan), who can't stand Sam and want him out of the house. Driving home the titular metaphor with unsubtle vigor, Winkler has Klein hacking away at his old life, breaking down emotional barriers, destroying all the bitter memories while the angry son looks on from his chaise lounge. But soon George's unmitigated charm (the kind you get when you have 4 months to live) wears the boy down, and Sam too is up in the rafters, pounding out his frustrations. And soon Robin is involved. And Coleen. And Alyssa. All hammering away at George's troubled past.

This film is as well-endowed with nice scenery (by distinguished Hungarian cinematographer Vilmos Zsigmond) as it is with cloying melodrama and hacky dialogue. Its supporting characters are inhumanly trite and its sub-plots ridiculously contrived, with each role designed simply to fit in some emotional pigeonhole writer Andrus felt it necessary to create. From the horny divorcée to the slutty tease to the rich teenage pimp to the cold husband and his wistful, romantic wife, none of whom has any real bearing on the main plot, the characters seem designed to scatter our attention rather than contribute to a cohesive whole.

The point this movie is trying to make is a noble one, espousing the theme of forgiveness and redemption brought about by the cathartic qualities of hard work. Kline and Thomas evoke this theme with grace, and Winkler makes the movie visually engaging, but Christensen is ill-equipped to execute his extremely difficult and poorly written part, and most of the supporting characters are too silly to be taken seriously. ★★★

HEIST

Rated R - Running Time: 1:47 - Released 11/9/01

Written and directed by famous Chicago wordsmith David Mamet, Heist is another showcase of the highly stylized dialogue and direction for which the playwright-turned-filmmaker is known. Far from a simple caper movie, Heist contains many complex relationships and lots of strangely stilted dialogue, spoken by some of the best actors working, who are barely able to make it work. Mamet's textual patterns are interesting, but I think he has a great deal of trouble getting his actors to translate them into realistic speech, as was the case with The Spanish Prisoner. On the other hand, perhaps Mamet wants the film to sound affected and unnatural. Perhaps he's so wrapped up in the language of his screenplay, he's uninclined to make it honest to human nature. Like Picasso's cubism, the result is art for art's sake; clever, poetic, fascinating in its way, but not believable.

The story revolves around a gang of crooks led by Joe Moore (Gene Hackman), an aging thief who wants to get out of the business. The fact that during the last job his face was recorded by the security cameras makes his dream to retire even more urgent. However, he is presently stuck, because he promised his shady partner Bergman (Danny DeVito) that his gang would do another, bigger job after the bank heist. The job involves robbing a Swiss cargo plane of several tons of solid gold ingots. Adding to Joe's reticence to fulfill his contract, Bergman insists that Joe take along his nephew, Jimmy Silk (Sam Rockwell), on this job, to make sure everything stays on the level. This comes as an affront to Joe and his trusted friends Bobby (Delroy Lindo), Pinky (Ricky Jay), and his wife Fran (Rebecca Pidgeon, a.k.a. Mrs. David Mamet).

As we wind our way through Mamet's overly complex and detour-ridden story, the gang continually fights over Silk's presence, the feasibility of the job, the methods they'll use to execute it, and who's in charge. There are so many twists and turns in the plot line, with one crook outsmarting another and then being outsmarted by one who's currently in the process of being outsmarted by another, it becomes increasingly convoluted, not to mention implausible, and since we don't really learn what exactly the job is until very late in the film, it feels like swimming in the dark. Moreover, there's always the affected nature of Mamet's words. These guys are so busy making clever but uncomfortably delivered wisecracks, they fail to communicate with each other, or with us. As in Prisoner, Pidgeon seems the least equipped to handle her husband's wordplay, making nearly every line she speaks sound like well-rehearsed banality rather than anything resembling normal language. Who knows, maybe she's the only one doing what the director wants.

Having said all this, however, I must backpedal a bit and admit this highly affected text does present something different and sorely needed in the way of screenwriting, namely a poetic style. Rather than simply churning out more forgettable Hollywood movie dialogue, Mamet attempts to bring his story to life through a sort of impressionistic filter. If you look at the script as a sort of epic poem rather than a realistic presentation of events, it works on some level. But the plot is such a meat-and-potatoes crime story, it seems mismatched with the style.

Textual issues aside, the actors do their best (which, considering most of these actors, is notable) to play through the unrealistic dialogue and make their characters live. The story is tense and twisty, so unpredictable that it's almost predictable, but provides an interesting if patently unbelievable bit of cinematic artistry. ★★★½

Successful SHS Grad Speaks To Economics Class

Robert W. Sharps, an investment executive at T. Rowe Price and a 1989 graduate of Southern Garrett High School, recently returned to his alma mater to talk to Lisa Bender's economics class.

Sharps, who is a CPA and a CFA, spoke to 16 students who are currently competing in the Maryland State Stock Market Game, a stock market investment competition, about his responsibilities as a portfolio manager, current stock market conditions, and valuing specific companies.

"The students were thankful for the opportunity to speak directly with someone working in the investment field," Bender said. "They immediately saw Mr. Sharps as a positive role model for their long-term business pursuits."

After graduating summa cum laude in 1993 from Towson State University with a degree in accounting, Sharps worked for Peat Marwick as a senior consultant for two years. In 1997, he graduated with a degree in finance from the Wharton Business School at the University of Pennsylvania. He joined T. Rowe Price shortly after graduation as a research analyst, before being promoted in 1998 to portfolio manager of the company's financial services mutual fund.

Sharps, according to Bender, is the youngest portfolio manager that T. Rowe Price has ever hired. In January 2001, he was named portfolio manager of the company's $2.5 billion growth and income fund.

Sharps was also one of five young portfolio managers featured in a cover story in the September 2001 issue of Kiplinger's Personal Finance magazine.

Bender's economic students will conclude competition against 426 teams from around the state in the stock market competition on Thursday, Dec. 6.

Sharps's visit to Southern was arranged by the Southern Garrett High School Alumni Association. "It is important for current students to know that many alumni have successful and distinguished careers, and that part of their success can be attributed to the education they received at Southern," said Bill Grant, chairman of the association's speakers bureau.

Sharps is a life member of the Southern Garrett High School Alumni Association.

by Joan Sussman

Wanted — People to come support the buckwheat cakes, pancakes, and sausage dinner sponsored by the Bittinger 4-H Club to be held this Friday, Nov. 16, at the Bittinger fire hall. Cost is $4.50 for adults, $2.50 for children, and free for those 5 and under. Time is 4:30 to 7 p.m.

Even in Bittinger we are not far away from the New York tragedies (anyway, not I, Joan Sussman), and this Monday morning another plane slammed into New York City. I have many friends in the "Big Apple." In fact, one of my closest friends still up there is a former resident of Garrett County, Sheila Kehoe. Sheila lives almost directly across town from the part of Queens that the airliner hit. She lives in uptown Manhattan, which is far away, so she must be safe. Another is a former colleague, Eugene Lee, husband of my former boss, Franny Lee, who was the original designer for the early "Glory Days" of "Saturday Night Live." I know Eugene now lives in some part of Queens. Of course, I couldn't reach either Charlie Hall or his wife Annie. It is a busy time for Charlie, as he has already opened in this year's season of the Radio City Music Hall Christmas Show. The show is at the most famous theater in America, seating thousands, and the show is one in the very center of the Christmas holiday scene in America. I "knock on wood" that all will be safe in the city over the holidays.

My second cousin, Tom Glotfelty, is now a pilot for a major airline. I don't know which one, but I hope it is not American. I just pray that he was not on that plane. I even tried to call the 800 number that American Airlines has for family and friends to check on their friends. It is ironic that the number was a 245 number as that is the first three numbers for the phones in Bittinger. I got nothing but busy signals in the 10 times I tried.

Speaking of second cousins, my girls, Blakely Glotfelty, and Emma Bass had a reunion with their seldom-seen second cousins, Hannah and Kate Quaintance of New York state, who accompanied their grandmother, Aunt Dot Quaintance, here after attending the Atlantic Coast Band Championships at Scranton, Pa. Dot was very impressed with Northern's band performance. The judges were apparently less impressed, as Northern did not repeat a recent good finish. I felt bad for my Claire and her cousins Robbie and Blakely Glotfelty, and Matthew Bass, who practiced their hearts out. I think even if they were disappointed with their finish, they are also relieved that they will get some free time again. I know that I hardly had any time with Claire. My time with her and her sisters is a couple hours after school and the weekend. Most of her time was taken up by band activities.

Aunt Dot and her girls, Rodney and Marci Glotfelty and family, Kevin and Carol Bass and family, Ruth DiPaolo, Courtney Englar, and the girls and I viewed the video tape of the Northern High School performance at a Sunday night dinner party at "Pappy Dale's" house. We also celebrated the birthday of Dot, which was this Tuesday, the 13th. They headed back to New York state on Monday to be reunited with the girls' parents, Jay and Heather Quaintance.

James and Donna Glotfelty attended the funeral of Donna's cousin, Paul Wiley, who grew up in Bittinger. He died in Canton, Ohio, where he lived for many years. Paul's mother was a sister to Ida Reckner.

I was saddened to send a sympathy card to Marie Coddington following the death of her husband Raymond. How well I remember Raymond from the Garrett County Horseman's events, especially the trail rides when he was mounted on a beautiful palomino horse owned by Glen Schlossnagle. If my memory is correct, the horse's name was "Buck." Actually, I am behind on this news according to my mother, who said that Raymond died several weeks ago. Marie has been so nice to me, bringing me flowers and goodies from her garden this summer.

Now that we know that Tom Glotfelty is safe and sound, it is ironic that as I write this I heard a small plane flying low, as Tommy did many times when he was flying out of the McHenry airport. He even landed close to his grandmother's home on Peat Moss Road. If I had not already known that he was all right, I would have taken this as a sign that he is OK.

Members of Emmanuel LCW who attended the fall retreat at Jackson's Mill, W.Va., last week were Lottie Brenneman, Mary Simpson, Jacquie Warne, and Ferne Beachy. Also attending were Alice Ann Ritter and Janet Judy of the Red House Church Women. Our theme this year was an international one, "God is Everywhere," with Evelyn Weirick and Peggy Rogers as organizers. Several ladies of our synod who had traveled to different mission areas gave slide presentations of their adventures. Pastor Sarah Lee, minister of the Church of the Covenant in Grafton, W.Va., conducted the Saturday evening worship service in the chapel. Thirty ladies were in attendance from Monongahela Valley-Mountain and Ohio-Kanawha Valley Clusters, and participated in Bible study and activities.

Saturday evening dinner guests of the Poholskys for a pre-birthday celebration for Ferne Beachy were Dave and Nancy Beachy, Cindy, Sam, Lea and Aaron Stanton, and Ferne.

Mrs. Ruthella Resh is a patient at Sacred Heart Hospital following surgery last week.

Mary Ellen and Stephen Presgraves and grandson, Matthew Stemper, spent the weekend with the Poholskys. All attended church Sunday and then met with other members of the family for brunch at Penn Alps to celebrate Ferne Beachy's 85th birthday. Eighteen were present, including Phyllis Mazer, Susan Scheffres, Rockville, Doug and June Stemper and baby Marly of Berwyn Heights, Sam, Cindy, Aaron and Lea Stanton, Dave and Nancy Beachy, and the Poholskys.

Marci and Rodney Glotfelty, and Elliot and Darryl, and Carol Bass, and Scott and Emma attended the Band Competition at Scranton, Pa., on Friday and Saturday.

Abigail Gray, daughter of Jeff and Sheila Gray, Hanover, celebrated her first birthday, November 8. A party was given for her at her home Saturday afternoon. Relatives attending from this area were Betty Bittinger, Jim and Donna Glotfelty, Linda Oester, Karmen Carey, and Amanda Platter.

Adam Platter, 11-year-old son of Dwaine and Lisa Platter, Smithsburg, bagged a 7-point, 150-pound buck early Saturday morning on Youth Hunt Day while hunting with his dad on the farm of his grandparents here.

Jim and Donna Glotfelty called at the Kreighbaum Sanders Funeral Home in Canton, Ohio, Sunday afternoon, following the death of their cousin, Paul Wiley, on Thursday, November 8, at his home. Paul was the son of the late Charles and Mary (Brenneman) Wiley, former residents of this community. Funeral services were held in Canton Monday morning, with interment in Forest Hill Cemetery there.

Applications For McAuliffe Funds Available At GCC

Applications are being sought for the Sharon Christa McAuliffe Memorial Teacher Education Award Program for the 2002-2003 academic year, according to the Maryland Higher Education Commission. The deadline to apply for the scholarship is Dec. 31, said Garrett Community College financial aid director Pat Bennett, who has applications for the awards available in her office.

Persons who are awarded a McAuliffe scholarship are required to sign a promissory note agreeing to work as a full-time classroom teacher in a Maryland public school in the chosen critical shortage area one year for each year of the award received.

The scholarships are designated for Maryland residents who have earned at least 60 college credits, are college graduates, or are teachers in a non-critical shortage area. To be eligible a student must enroll full time or part time at a two- or a four-year Maryland college or university in an undergraduate or graduate degree program. The program must be an approved teacher education program in a critical shortage field. Recipients of the scholarship must maintain a minimum cumulative 3.0 GPA on a 4.0 scale.

Critical shortage fields change yearly and are listed on the scholarship application form. The maximum scholarship award is equal to the amount of tuition, mandatory fees, and room and board for a student at the University of Maryland at College Park. The McAuliffe award can be held by a student who also has a Guaranteed Access Grant and Education Assistance Grant.

Persons seeking further information about the McAuliffe scholarship or in obtaining an application may call Bennett at 301387-3083.

Doctor's discovery may end obesity

HILTONHEAD,S.C.–A doctor believes that a natural formula containing the extract of a small Asian fruit can help cause significant weight loss.

Anthony A. Conte, M.D. reported in an American Medical Journal that the formula, now called Bio-Rex 3000®, caused patients to lose more than twice as much weight as those in a control group on the same fat reduced diet. Neither group was instructed to decrease the amount of food they ate or to increase their exercise levels. An article published in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition says that you don't have to reduce the amount of food you eat to lose weight, provided that you limit the fat.

Dr. Conte says that animal studies suggest the mechanism behind the weight reduction is due to interruption of the "Krebs Cycle", an important step in the body's fat storage process. He says it may work the same way in humans. According to Dr. Conte, "The best part of this unique discovery is that it is not a drug, but a dietary food supplement. The Asian fruit, called garcinia, is similar to citrus fruit found in the United States with one big exception-- it may help some people fight obesity! While Dr. Conte's study may be preliminary, the exclusive North American distributor, Phillips Gulf Corp., is calling the Bio-Rex 3000 supplement "Nature's Ideal Diet Aid."

Suggested retail price for a four week supply of Bio-Rex is just $19.99. Available through pharmacies and nutrition stores or call 1-800-729-8446. www.hcdsales.com

WARM THE CHILDREN

Providing New Winter Clothing For Needy Children

For the fifth year, The Republican is asking for your help. Without it, many Garrett County children will go cold this winter.

Just what is The Republican newspaper's WARM THE CHILDREN FUND?

The Republican's Warm The Children Fund is, basically, neighbors helping neighbors. We here at the paper are asking for monetary donations (tax deductible) from you, the readers. The collected funds will be used to purchase new winter clothing for Garrett County children in need. Because the newspaper administers the program, there are no added fees or overhead costs. Every penny donated is used to buy the winter items.

How are needy children being identified?

A special core of volunteers is working right now to identify those in need this year. Those selected for applications will be receiving them soon. (Please do not call for the service. If you have been selected, you will soon be notified.)

How will the children's clothing be purchased?

Volunteers will take the families shopping at Wal-Mart or through the J.C. Penney's catalog store in Oakland, or at the Ames in Frostburg. The children, with the help of their parents, may select their own new coats, hats, sweaters, long johns, jeans, boots, pajamas, or other needed winter items, spending up to $100 per child.

We need two things: volunteers and donations.

To volunteer as a shopper in Oakland, please contact Linda Thomas at 301-387-6203. To volunteer as a shopper at Ames, please call Lisa Broadwater at 301-895-5827 or 301-746-8223. For general information, you may call Mary McEwen at the newspaper office at 301-334-3963.

Red Cross Tour To Feature St. Paul's Church

The 10th annual Home for the Holidays House Tours event, sponsored by the Western Potomac Chapter of the American Red Cross (which includes Garrett County) and slated for Friday, Nov. 30, and Saturday, Dec. 1, will feature one of Oakland's longtime landmarks, St. Paul's United Methodist Church, located at the corner of Fourth and Oak streets.

Methodism in the Oakland area began in 1824, with early settler Isaac McCarty serving as the "class leader" for the Methodist circuit riders of the time. The worshippers in those days met in homes until the first church building was constructed on the McCarty farm, just outside of town, along Third Street. The property on which the present church's parsonage stands was deeded to the congregation in June of 1850 by Edward McCarty, son of Isaac.

As the congregation grew, the church building was enlarged — once in 1875 and again in 1891, at which time Ralph Thayer, the eldest member, was given the honor of naming the church. He chose "St. Paul's."

ST. PAUL'S METHODIST CHURCH TO BE ON RED CROSS HOLIDAY TOUR

The present church building, which will be the tour site, was built in 1935-36. The vaulted ceiling was taken from the church that had been built in 1891, and the bell is also from that year. Visitors will see woodcarvings surrounding the altar that relay the life of Jesus. There are also symbols for St. Paul and words given to the apostle when he was called to follow Christ: "Thou shalt be His witness unto all."

The education building to the right of the sanctuary was built in 1955. This was made possible partly through a bequest of Mary Grace Loar, a descendant of George Loar, in whose home the Sunday school was organized in 1829.

The church's congregation celebrated the 175th anniversary of the beginnings of Methodism in Oakland (1824) and the 170th anniversary of its Sunday school (1829).

In addition to the church, five families will be on the fund-raising tour this year, according to a Red Cross spokesperson. The houses will range from contemporary to some that were constructed in the early 1800s.

Homeowners participating in the event this year are Dave and Wendy Berry, Gortner; Walt and Pat Copeland, Ben DeWitt Road; Donald and Carol Moss and Dusty and Elizabeth Huxford, both of the Blakeslee; and Bob and Anne Proudfoot, Mtn. Lake Park.

Raffles will be held at each of the homes, with gifts donated from area businesses.

Tour hours are Friday, 4 until 9 p.m.; and Saturday, 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. Tickets, which are $5 in advance and $7 on the day of the tours, can be purchased at Proudfoot's, Gregg's, and Deep Creek pharmacies, as well as at Flowers by Webers in Oakland and Arrowhead Market at Deep Creek Lake.

The proceeds from this event will help meet the immediate needs of Red Cross projects, the spokesperson said.

Introduction To Catholicism Set At St. Peter's

St. Peter's Catholic Church, Oakland, is planning to offer an RCIA (Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults) program at the church beginning next month and continuing into next year. The RCIA program provides information for persons interested in being baptized into the Roman Catholic church, but is not limited to such persons. It is also a general educational program designed to provide information about the Catholic faith to all interested persons who may be curious about beliefs, customs, and the history of the church.

The RCIA program will host an introductory welcome and social gathering on Sunday, Dec. 2, following the 9 a.m. Mass at St. Peter's Church. Persons interested in learning more about the RCIA program are to meet in the church basement at that time, then the group will visit the parish rectory of a casual 90-minute informational session that will include coffee, tea, and donuts. No commitments are asked at this event.

For further information on the RCIA program, or the introductory social gathering, persons may call St. Peter's church office at 301-334-2202.

4-H Beef Raffle Winners Named

The Garrett County 4-H program completed its annual fund-raiser recently by raffling off four quarters of beef that had been donated by First United Bank and Trust. This marks the 31st year the bank has supported the local 4-H program by purchasing and then donating an animal during the annual 4-H/FFA livestock sale at the Garrett County Fair.

This year's beef raffle winners included Bret Winegardner of Swanton; Joni Callis of Mtn. Lake Park; Danny Simmons of Keyser, W.Va.; and Anna Marie Miller of Accident.

The 4-H program also noted the efforts of the 4-H club members who sold tickets for the raffle. The top five sellers were: Abbey Buckley, North Glade 4-H Club, 180 tickets; Lacie Berkebile, Oak Hill 4-H Club, 180 tickets; Allison Malone, Finzel 4-H Club, 165 tickets; Rachel Schmidt, North Star 4-H Club, 113 tickets; and Kevin Haenftling, North Star 4-H Club, 108 tickets.

The top-selling 4-H clubs were: Finzel, 658 tickets; North Star, 472 tickets; Snowy Creek, 397 tickets; Oak Hill, 366 tickets; and North Glade, 312 tickets.

After the sale's expenses are met, the remaining raffle monies will be used in support of Garrett County's 4-H programs and activities, including Achievement Night, Leaders' Recognition, teaching materials, awards, ribbons, out-of-county scholarships, promotional literature, and camp scholarships.

Arthritis Exercise Sessions Offered At Flowery Vale

The Flowery Vale Health and Fitness Center in Accident will offer three PACE (People with Arthritis Can Exercise) programs, each lasting six weeks, on Monday and Wednesday afternoons at 1 p.m., and Thursday evenings at 6 p.m. The Monday classes begin Dec. 3, the Wednesday classes begin Dec. 5, and the Thursday classes begin Dec. 6. Each session will last about one hour each.

During each PACE session about 20-30 activities will be led by trained instructor Elaine Kackley, the center's director. All of the exercises were designed to be within the capability of most people with arthritis. A few may be contraindicated for people who had joint surgery or have osteoporosis, so participants are encouraged to contact their physicians before the first session to find out if any special precautions are necessary.

PACE is a community-based, nonclinical program that involves group participation. While it includes activities designed to improve endurance and joint mobility, among other goals, the group exercise experience also encourages peer interaction and socialization.

"Exercise is an important component in the comprehensive health care management program of an individual with arthritis," Kackley said. "Proper exercise promotes optimum joint flexibility, muscle strength, endurance, coordination, and cardiovascular conditioning. Enhanced self image and self-esteem may also result."

Class sizes are limited so registration in advance is necessary. Class participants are automatically entitled to the full use of the fitness center for a month. For those who are member of the fitness center, PACE is automatically offered as part of the membership package. For more information or to register, persons can call 301-746-8050.

Deer Repellents for the Homeowner

Several deer repellents are available to the home gardener, and function either as taste or odor repellents. Most commercially-available repellents can be applied as a spray to ornamental shrubs and non-bearing fruit trees. Generally, repellents are only partially effective. There is nothing on the market that provides absolute protection. Repellents are most effective when applied on a regular 4-week schedule, before serious damage has begun. They work best on plants that are low on the deer's preference list, and especially when alternate natural foods are available. Recent studies indicate satisfactory protection of perennial flower beds and some vegetable gardens by alternating the use of more than one repellent. For example, thiram applied as a spray coupled with BGRTM or HinderTM on a cotton rope around the perimeter of the flower bed has provided good protection in a number of recent trials. Other useful combinations are still to be discovered as we seek even better ways to protect garden plantings.

Deer Away(r)/Big Game Repellent(r) (37 % commercial putrescent egg solid).

This material is primarily an odor-based repellent, and has been used extensively in western conifer plantations. It is reported to be > 85 % effective in field studies, and is registered for use on fruit trees prior to flowering, and ornamental and Christmas trees. Apply it to all susceptible new growth and leaders. Applications weather well and are effective for a minimum of 5 weeks with heavy feeding pressure by deer. A one-gallon liquid kit costs about $26 and covers 15 to 18, 4-foot ornamental shrubs or 100-150 seedlings.

Deer-Off Repellent Spray (3.1 % egg solids, 0.0006 % capsaicin, and 0.0006% garlic)

Deer-Off is a combination odor and taste-based product registered for use on flowers, grass, bulbs, ornamental shrubs, edible crops, plants, seedlings and trees. Deer-off is available as a spray and should be applied to all leaves, stems and branches at the beginning of each season. Treatment must be repeated after heavy rains or as new growth emerges, and if the effects of the previous treatment appear to be wearing off. A one-pint kit of deer-off costs about $28.00, makes about 1 gallon of spray, and treats up to 200 ornamental shrubs 4 feet in height, or approximately 2,000 square feet of plants depending on surface conditions and size of plantings.

Hinder(r) (ammonium soaps of higher fatty acids, 13.8%)

This odor-based product is one of the few repellents registered for use on edible crops. Hinder can be applied directly to home gardens, ornamentals, annual and perennial flowers, and fruit trees until 1 week before harvest. Its effectiveness is usually limited to 2 to 4 weeks but varies because of weather and application technique. Reapplication may be necessary after heavy rains. Apply at temperatures above 40°F. One gallon of liquid costs about $40, and when mixed with 100 gallons of water will cover one acre. Hinder can also be painted full strength on the bark of trees to prevent rabbits from chewing the bark. Hinder is compatible for use with most pesticides.

Miller's Hot Sauce(r) Animal Repellent (2.5 % capsaicin)

This taste-based repellent is registered for use on ornamentals, fruit and nut trees, bushes, vines and hay bales stored in the field. Apply it with a backpack or trigger sprayer to all susceptible plant parts, such as leaders and young leaves. Do not apply to fruit-bearing plants after fruit set. Vegetable crops also can be protected if sprayed prior to the development of edible parts. Weatherability can be improved by adding an anti-transpirant such as Nu-Film-17(r) or Vapor Gard(r). Hot Sauce and Vapor Gard(r) cost about $80 and $30 per gallon respectively. Eight ounces of Hot Sauce and 2 quarts of anti-transpirant mixed with 100 gallons of water will cover 1 acre.

Nott's Chew-Not (20 % thiram)

Thiram, a fungicide that acts as a taste-based repellent, is registered for use on dormant trees and shrubs. A liquid formulation is sprayed or painted on individual trees. Although thiram itself does not weather well, adhesives such as Latex 202-A(r) or Vapor Gard(r) can be added to the mixture to increase its resistance to weathering. Thiram-based repellents also protect trees against rabbit and vole damage. Two gallons of 42 percent thiram cost about $50 and when mixed with 100 gallons of water will cover 1 acre.

Tree Guard (0.20 % dentonium benzoate)

Tree Guard is a taste-based repellent registered for use on shrubs, ornamental plants, conifers and non-bearing deciduous trees. Tree Guard is available as a ready-to-use spray and costs about $40. One gallon will treat 16 to 20 global arborvitae 20-24" high. This product is not intended for use on food or feed crops. A recent Cornell University study indicated that this material was not effective for protecting Japanese yews from deer damage during winter.

Estonian Groups Support Country's Garrett Students

Two new Estonian students studying at Garrett Community College this year, Raili Raud and Berit Tafenau, are being supported in part by funding from two Estonian foundations based in the United States according to college president Dr. Steve Herman.

The Estonian-Revelia Academic Fund and the Estonian World Council have both sent donations to the GCC Foundation in the amount of $1,000 each for this purpose. The students will each receive a check in the amount of $500 for the fall semester and a like amount in spring semester.

The Estonian-Revelia Academic Fund was established in 1994 by Harold Raudsepp, long-time editor of the Estonian language weekly newspaper Vaba Essti Sona (Free Estonian Word). The fund is registered in Maryland as a charitable, tax-exempt private foundation. The late Raudsepp left his entire estate to the organization, with instructions that the investment income be used for scholarships for worthy students seeking a higher education in Estonia.

Established in 1952, the Estonian World Council represents the interests of Estonians in the member countries of the U.S., Canada, Australia, France, Belgium, Latvia, Sweden, Lithuania, the Ukraine, and Russia. It seeks to educate those respective governments and legislatures concerning issues and problems of Estonia and its people worldwide. Over the last 10 years the EWC has provided over $300,000 in scholarship funds to over 250 Estonian students studying in Estonia and overseas.

Raud and Tafenau have joined seven other students from Estonia who enrolled at Garrett Community College last year and who were also supported by these foundations in prior years. The GCC board of trustees has authorized scholarships for up to 10 Estonian students. Seven Estonian students are living with host families in the community while they attend GCC.

GCC's special relationship with the Republic of Estonia is part of a larger initiative between Estonia and Maryland, spearheaded by the Maryland National Guard, to help the Estonian people rebuild their nation after nearly 50 years of Soviet occupation.

ESTONIA CARES FOR ITS OWN — These Estonian students, Berit Tafenau, left, and Raili Raud, are benefiting from the assistance of two Estonian groups that are supporting the Garrett Community College students during their first year of study here in America. The Estonian-Revelia Academic Fund and the Estonian World Council have both donated $1,000 scholarships to each of the women. "We are honored to have our Estonian students here at GCC," commented college president Dr. Steve Herman as he thanked the groups for helping support the students. "They share a global perspective that enriches the quality of education our students receive."

On Aug 26, the members conducted their first service institute as a full-corps group at the Arboretum at FSU.

Shope is a first-year corps member with the Housing Department. She will be assisting families with securing safe, permanent, and affordable housing; conducting site visits with Community Action's properties residents; and coordinating the Super Pantry.

ELKS READY FOR CHRISTMAS GALA — "Tis the season" is fast approaching, and the members of Oakland Elks Lodge #2481 will be getting the holiday season under way with their annual Christmas Gala fund-raiser, set for Saturday, Dec. 1, at the lodge. The gala will feature a full buffet and open bar, catered by the Deep Creek Brewery, and the swinging sounds of the Graham Grubb Orchestra, a 16-piece band specializing in the dance music of the Big Band era. All profits from the event will go to benefit the United Way of Garrett County, which will distribute the funds to local charities. Tickets are $50 per person and can be purchased by calling 301-334-1119 or 301-334-1763. Shown above is lodge member and Christmas Gala chairman Mark Grimm, left, and local United Way chairman Dave Thomas. "It's a rare occasion that one can enjoy such a classy evening and at the same time benefit our local charities. We invite interested businesses to sponsor corporate tables of 8 to 10 seats this year to reward their employees, managers, and board members."

Md. Crime Rate Drops For Fifth Consecutive Year

Crime in Maryland during 2000 declined for the fifth straight year, according to a preliminary Uniform Crime Report released by the Maryland State Police recently. Overall, crime in Maryland dropped 2% compared to 1999, and statistics showed a 1% decrease in violent crime and a drop in property crime of 2%. The Uniform Crime Report tracks crime index offenses reported to police across Maryland.

Violent crimes include murder, forcible rape, robbery and aggravated assault. Statewide, murders decreased 11%, robberies were down 3%, aggravated assaults had a 0% decrease, and forcible rapes increased by 2%.

Property crimes include breaking or entering, larceny/theft, and motor vehicle theft. Breaking or entering decreased 9% statewide, larceny-theft dropped 3%, and motor vehicle theft increased 10%.

"Reducing crime in Maryland has been and will continue to be a top priority of this administration," Governor Parris N. Glendening said. "Maryland's comprehensive, coordinated approach to reducing crime continues to produce positive results. I commend the commitment of police officers, government leaders, and concerned citizens across Maryland who continue to work with us to make our state safer."

In 1999, Maryland recorded its lowest crime rate since at least 1975. Final statistics, due out later this year, are projected to reflect a similar or even lower crime rate for 2000.

November 17, 2000

Dear Myron,

We know you are happy there, but we miss you so much. You left so suddenly we didn't get to give you a kiss, hug or goodbye.

We can imagine you are sitting around a table laughing and talking with all your grandparents, uncles and aunts.

Did you think to mention to Aunt Mae that you had planned to help her pick out her new car, when she left so suddenly, too?

Bryan is growing into a handsome young man. He looks so much like you.

Jesse is talking about learning to hunt like you had planned for him.

Edwin is already a lively little Barry. You would certainly enjoy playing with him.

Katelyn is a fine young lady. She is playing in the county band and also plays basketball.

Dad and I must hurry on for today.

We all miss you and wish you were still here with us.

Love, Mother and Dad, Marilyn, Barry and Belinda

Miss DeWitt, Mr. Hinebaugh Marry In June Nuptial Event

Jacquelyn Marie DeWitt and Mark Stephen Hinebaugh were united in marriage on Saturday, June 16, at St. Peter's Catholic Church, Oakland, with Deacon Jim Comfort officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Jack and Ellie DeWitt, Sang Run. She is a 1996 graduate of Northern High School and is employed by IDEC, Oakland. She has been employed there for six years, and currently holds the position of administrative assistant.

The groom is the son of Wilbur and Jane Hinebaugh, Friendsville. He is also a 1996 NHS graduate. He has been employed by Legacy Home Corporation, McHenry, for five years, and works in construction.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father. Her gown was designed by Alfred Angelo. The white French satin dress bore an interlay of English net adorned with beaded Venice lace appliqués. The bodice was a fitted spaghetti strap design, heavily encrusted with beaded appliqués. The skirt fell to a full ball gown edged in French satin with a cathedral train, and was accessorized by matching English net and Venice appliqués. The headdress was a beaded Juliet cap with a fingertip veil of imported French illusion.

Roxie Eyler, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor, and serving as bridesmaids were Marlena Coburn, friend of bride, and Rebekah Hinebaugh, sister of groom. Matt Umbel, friend of the groom, was best man, and Jon and Tim Hinebaugh, brothers of the groom, were the ushers and groomsmen.

The flower girl and ring bearer were Kalynn Eyler, friend of the bride, and Zach Hinebaugh, nephew of the groom. Alisha Plessinger and Austin Eyler, both friends of the couple, greeted guests with wedding programs and handed out bubbles at the end of the ceremony.

The organist was Mike Broderick and the soloist was Jane Nolan. Flowers were provided by the Flower Loft, Grantsville. Photography was provided by Picture Images, Short Gap, W.Va. Steve Hinebaugh, brother of groom, videotaped the ceremony, and Dave Hinebaugh, brother of groom, read Bible scriptures during the wedding ceremony. Diane Wampler, aunt of groom, was the hair stylist for the entire wedding party, a service she performed as a gift to the couple.

A reception was held at the Friendsville fire hall following the ceremony. Catering was provided by Twila Fike of the Old Mill Restaurant, in Bruceton Mills, W.Va. The fire hall was decorated in a lavender and white theme by Donna Carr, who had assisted with the bridal shower. The wedding cake, with fountain, was a gift from its maker, Sam Johnson. The cake was served by Dot and Donna Carr, both family of the bride. Jim Wampler, uncle of groom, served as master of ceremonies and provided music.

The couple honeymooned in Pennsylvania's Pocono Mountains, and are now making their residence in their newly constructed home along Wakefield Road outside of Friendsville.

Marriage Permits Recently Issued

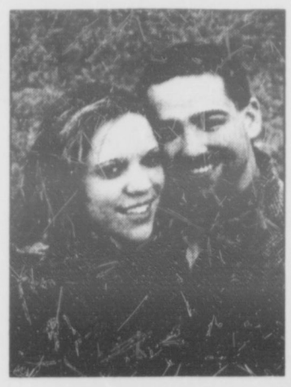
Three couples applied for their marriage licenses this week, according to David Martin, clerk of Garrett County Circuit Court.

Thomas Edward Roy, 42, Oakland, and Kathy Ellen Roman, 46, Terra Alta, W.Va.

Ronald Dale Tasker, 60, Swanton, Sadie Wood, 46, Scott Depot, W.Va.

Ross Edward Pysell, 48, and Martha Ellen Harvey, 48, both of Barton.

Ms. Kitzmiller To Wed Mr. Moncrief



The parents of Krista A. Kitzmiller and Robert "Bobby" E. Moncrief II have announced their children's engagement.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Gary and Debbie Kitzmiller of Hartmansville, W.Va., and the granddaughter of John Delaney of Mt. Storm, W.Va., Sue Delaney of Moorefield, W.Va., and the late Edward and Margie Kitzmiller. She is a graduate of Union High School, Mt. Storm, and is currently attending Shepherd College, Shepherdstown, W.Va., where she is pursuing a degree in nursing. She is employed by City Hospital, Martinsburg, W.Va.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Bob and Glenna Moncrief of Boonesboro. He is a graduate of Shepherd College, where he earned a bachelor of science degree in computer science. He is currently pursuing a master's degree at James Madison University, Harrisonburg, May. He is employed by Va., and will graduate in JMU.

U.S. Cellular Donates To Dove Center

U.S. Cellular has donated 10 wireless phones to the Dove Center through its S.A.F.E. (Stop Abuse From Existing) program. Domestic violence victims involved in S.A.F.E. receive free wireless phones preprogrammed to 911 so they can call for help at anytime.

"U.S. Cellular is proud to partner with the Dove Center to help break the cycle of domestic violence," said Gerry Wilson, director of sales for U.S. Cellular. "Because many abusers cut their victims off from traditional home phones, having a wireless phone to access emergency help is vitally important to these women. U.S. Cellular is happy that its technology can serve such an important purpose."

Victims use the phones in their transition from living with an abuser to living independently. The phones often serve as an emergency lifeline, providing victims with a sense of security and safety because help is only one phone call away.

"Participating in this program is a positive step for both our shelter and the victims," said Heather Hanline, Dove Center acting executive director. "Being involved in S.A.F.E. means we can provide an extra measure of security for the victims who come to us for help. A wireless phone will enable victims to go about daily tasks like shopping and visiting friends, knowing that help is no further away than the touch of a button."

More than 220 shelters in 23 states have partnered with U.S. Cellular in the S.A.F.E. program. In addition, U.S. Cellular provides victims with wireless voice mailboxes and personal items through the program. The company has received numerous local and national awards for S.A.F.E., including the top community relations program award from the Cellular Telecommunications Industry Association and the National Community Action Network Award.

U.S. Cellular Corporation, the nation's eighth largest wireless service carrier, provides wireless service to more than 3.3 million customers in 145 markets throughout 25 states. The Chicago-based company has provided service to Oakland since 1994.

Frostburg Alumni Award Presented To Garrett Native

Gladys Wensel Faherty, a native of Garrett County and graduate of Oakland High School, has been awarded the Frostburg State University Alumni Association's Alumni Service to Alma Mater Award. The Frostburg resident was presented the award by FSU president Dr. Catherine Gira, Student and Educational Services vice president Dr. Alice Manicur, and director of Alumni Programs Colleen Peterson during a recent "A November to Remember" homecoming luncheon.

The award, described as the FSU Alumni Association's "most prestigious, is based on exceptional contributions in assisting, advancing and promoting FSU; consistent involvement with alma mater; demonstrated success in encouraging other FSU alumni to take an active role in their alma mater; and attainment of special achievements, awards, honors and distinctions.

Faherty, a graduate of FSU's class of 1955, has a long history in local education as a physical education teacher, librarian, media specialist and classroom volunteer. She received her master's of library science in 1968 from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

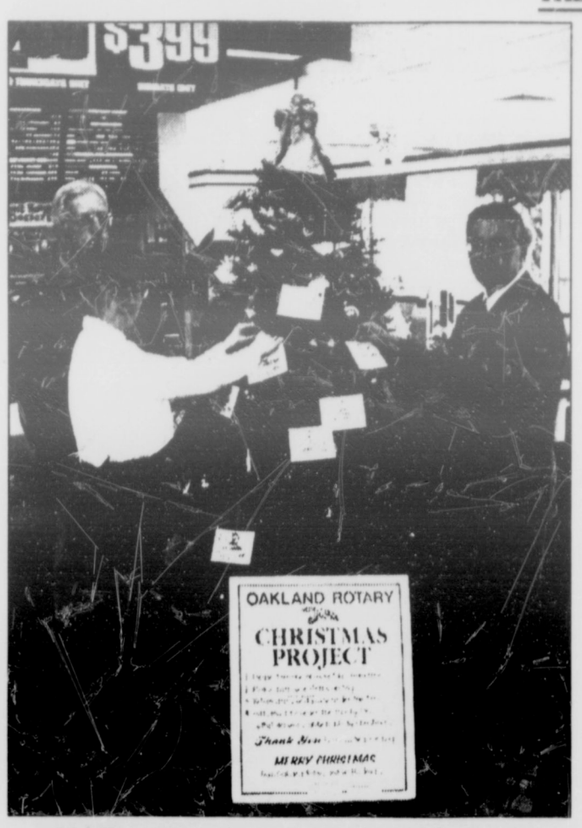
Faherty has been active in the local community volunteering for such organizations as Meals on Wheels and Frostburg city's Recycling Committee, Food Pantry, Museum, and Garden Club. She served as president of the Allegany County chapter of the Maryland Ornithological Society and the Lutheran Church Women at St. Paul's Church in Frostburg, where she also has served on numerous committees.

She was honored by FSU for outstanding service to the campus at its 1989 Founder's Day celebration. Faherty is a current member and was past president of the FSU Alumni Association board of directors, and also serves as a member of the executive board of the FSU Foundation. An avid traveler, Faherty has visited such locales as Africa, Central America and Asia.

In 1983, Faherty and her husband, the late William J. Faherty, created the FSU Foundation's Wensel-Faherty Scholarship which is presented to full-time freshmen from Allegany or Garrett County high schools. Nearly 40 students have benefited from this fund to date.

"Frostburg State University has influenced my life immeasurably," Faherty said. "I am very aware that I earned my living and enriched my life because I was able to go to Frostburg State. I also was fortunate enough to meet my husband there, and that we were able to share our lives educating children."

Family members on hand for Faherty's award presentation included Mildred Dunbar of Oakland, Howard Wensel of Westminster, Dortha and John Wilt of Coshocton, Ohio, Floyd and Diane Wensel of Wheeling, W.Va., and Donald and Patricia Wensel of Silver Spring.



ROTARY CHRISTMAS PROJECT GROWS — The annual Oakland Rotary Club Christmas project is set to begin the week of Thanksgiving, and the number of trees and families throughout the county has increased this year. Trees will be set up at many local businesses, like this one in Oakland's McDonald's, and persons are asked to take a card, purchase the item listed on the card for a needy Garrett County child, and return the gift to the tree by Dec. 9. The preparation will be held at Simon Pearce, and interested persons may help with the preparations and distribution of the gifts and food baskets on Dec. 14 and delivery on Dec. 15. Persons with questions may call Daryl Walters at 301-334-7600 or Kathy Zimmerman at 301-334-2820. Standing around the tree, clockwise, is Trene Rowan, store manager; Jack Regentin, president; and Walters, vice president.

Local Resident Benefits From QMB Program

Maryland residents who feel pinched by out-of-pocket Medicare expenses have recently been hearing about several programs designed to help them bridge the gap between income and health care costs. One of those programs is the Qualified Medicare Beneficiary (QMB) program.

The QMB pays the Medicare monthly Part B premium, deductibles, and coinsurance. To qualify for QMB assistance, one must be enrolled in Medicare Part A; not earn more than the 2001 monthly income limits, which in Maryland is $736 for an individual and $988 for a couple; and have financial resources such as bank accounts, stocks, and bonds that are not more than $4,000 for an individual or $6,000 for a couple.

Louise Sherman, Oakland, knows firsthand the benefits of being enrolled in the QMB program, according to Barbara A. Briggs, regional coordinator for QMB. Due to a heart condition, Sherman had to see a specialist in Cumberland, who later sent her to Washington, D.C., for treatment. QMB covered all of Sherman's expenses. She would have had to pay hundreds of dollars in deductibles and co-pays, which she did not have, had she not had her QMB card, said Briggs.

"It's like money from heaven," Sherman said about the program. "This program has given me peace of mind and the money needed to help me with pharmacy supplies." She added that her son is also enrolled in QMB and now does not have to travel to a Veterans Administration hospital for care.

Sherman has also qualified for the Western Maryland Pharmacy Program. "I used to take my pills twice a week by cutting one pill in half and taking one half on Monday and the other half on Friday," She said. "It made me worse because I was not taking the medications as prescribed."

"Seniors on the program can now redirect the money they save to buy groceries or to spend a day out with friends," Briggs said.

According to Briggs, Sherman first heard about QMB from her physician, while living in West Virginia. Her physician advised her to go to the Department of Social Services (DSS) office and ask about the program. While Sherman was applying, she found out she also qualified for other programs as well. When she moved to Oakland, however, she had to apply for a Maryland card.

During the last nine months, a major public awareness campaign has been conducted in Allegany, Frederick, Garrett, and Washington counties to inform residents about QMB, as well as the various other programs available to help them with medical expenses, according to Briggs.

As a result, "to date, there has been a 7% increase of recipients on the Department of Social Service rolls in the western Maryland region," said Briggs.

For more information, persons may contact Area Agency on Aging at 301-334-9431, ext. 140, for an appointment and the income guidelines needed to qualify.

Local Student Attends Science Program At SU

A senior at Southern High School was among over 150 students who attended the 16th annual Science in Action Day at Susquehanna University in Selinsgrove, Pa., last month.

Katie Richter, daughter of Dr. Don Richter and Sheila Edwards, Oakland, and an honor student at Southern, participated in the genetics workshop. Students from 80 high schools across six states conducted experiments with faculty and students in animal behavior, biochemistry, developmental biology, ecology, environmental chemistry, genetics, geology and environmental science, mathematics and computer science, physical chemistry, physics, and physiology.

Science in Action Day was the second of four "action days" designed for high school students at Susquehanna University this fall. The other three, also held in October, were the annual Business in Action, Writing in Action Day, and Liberal Arts in Action Day.

Members Erika Capelle, Johnson, Jean Gosnell, Ann Garber, Elaine Brickett, and Joan Sanders worked the concession at the show. Vice president Jean Schrider made the workers' apron. Maryland Forests Assn. Observes 25th Anniversary

The Maryland Forests Association (MFA), based in Grantsville, held its annual meeting recently in Hagerstown. The event featured a 25th anniversary observance of the founding of the organization, the annual awards presentation, and the induction of new officers.

The non-profit MFA is dedicated to promoting the maintenance of a healthy and productive forest land base, and represents a variety of interests, including forest landowners, forest resource professionals, hunt clubs, and forest products-related businesses.

MFA executive director Karin E. Miller of Grantsville presented a program, "A Tribute to MFA — Celebrating 25 Years of Service. Douglas MacCleery of the U.S. Forest Service narrated a slide presentation titled "What on Earth Have We Done to Our Forests?" which traced the history of forests and humankind's impact on the resource.

Other educational programs included "Managing for Healthy and Productive Forests," which included talks on the historical changes that have occurred to forest soils, insects and disease threats, and the relation between forests organisms and their environment; and "Getting the Most Out of Your Woodlot."

MacCleery was the keynote speaker for the awards banquet, and the awards were presented by MFA president Peter P. Alexander; a forester with Glatfelter Pulp Wood. The recipients of this year's awards were: Steve Brown, Longridge/Fruitland — MFA Logger of the Year; Gary Allen, chair of the Governor's Forestry Task Force — Outstanding Service to Forestry; Phil Pannill, Maryland Regional Watershed Forester, Hagerstown — Outstanding Volunteer Service to MFA; and the Conservation Fund — Outstanding Management of Forest Resources, for its work with the Chesapeake Forests Project.

The event concluded with the annual business meeting, which included updates on various programs related to forestry and the forest products industry, with a special report by Gary Allen of Glendening's Forestry Task Force. MFA Distinguished Service awards were presented to association members Jim Mallow, Tracy's Landing; George Gilmore, Mt. Savage; Barbara Palko, LaPlata; Dick and Bobbie Stanfield, Baltimore; Bob Tjaden, Queenstown; and John Blake, Myersville.

The new Board of Governors members and officers for the coming year were inducted. The MFA's 2002 president will be Kevin Simpson, a forester with Westvaco Corporation's Luke Mill.

For further information on the MFA, persons may call the association's Grantsville headquarters at 301-895-5369 or consult the organization's web site at http://mdforests.org.

GCC's "College And Me" Program Enters 12th Year

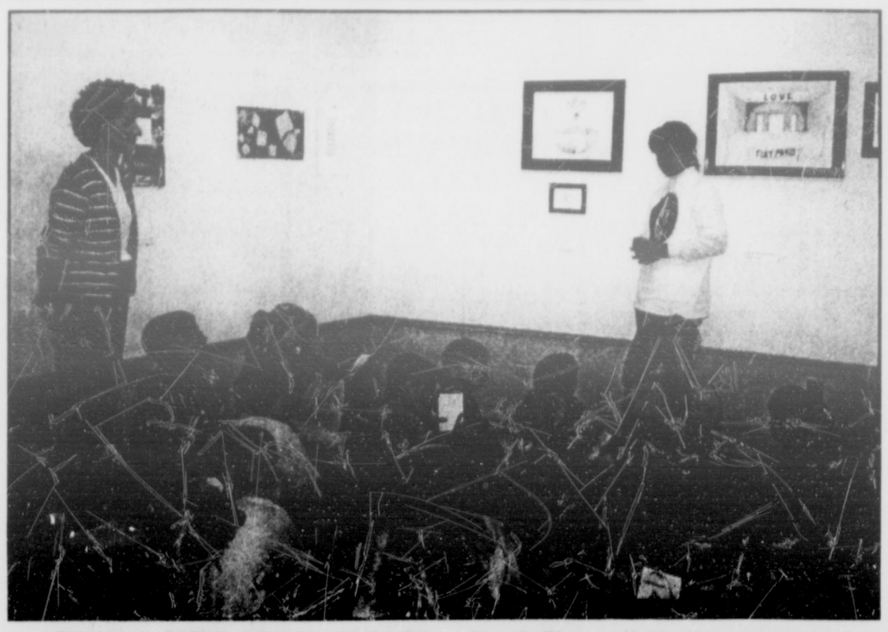
For the twelfth consecutive year, fifth grade students in Garrett County schools are experiencing a week on the Garrett Community College campus through the College and Me program. The program is a cooperative project of the Garrett County Board of Education and the college.

For the program, students are bused to the campus four days a week, where they have their regular classes and twelve different enrichment classes, many of which are taught by college faculty.

Two enrichment classes have recently been added to the program's offerings, according to College and Me coordinator Pam Fike. "Adventure Sports," instructed by Josh Frick, provides team-building activities and group games that teach students to work cooperatively with others and to depend on one another. "Fire Safety," instructed by Bob Shimer, teaches how to be safe in school, at home, and in other locations. Fire Safety was given for the first time last year.

Other classes scheduled again this year, along with the respective instructors, are: Origami, Vicki Teets; Biology, Carolyn Deniker; Computers, Terry Norris; Rivers, Mike Logsdon; Math Think, Linda May; Library Treasure Hunt, Linda Tomblin; Theatre, Ben Sincell; Music, Susan Abe; Oil Painting, Edna Bender; and Poetry, Debra Wolf.

Nine more fifth grade classes will participate in the College and Me Program over the course of the spring semester. Persons interested in further information about the program may call Fike at 301-387-3034.



GETTING A TASTE OF COLLEGE LIFE — The College and Me Program at Garrett Community College wrapped up its fall semester slate last week as Linda Martin's fifth grade class of Yough Glades Elementary School spent a week studying at the college. The students received instruction in a variety of topics from a number of GCC faculty members. The Yough Glades students are shown above listening to instructor Debra Wolf, standing at the right, lead a discussion on the relationship between the written word and visual arts in the GCC Art Gallery, where an art exhibit based on a selection of her works is on display. College and Me coordinator Pam Fike stands at the left.

Local Chefs To Lend Culinary Arts To Charity

The fourth annual March of Dimes "Star Chefs" fundraiser of Allegany and Garrett counties will take place Monday, Nov. 19, at the Rocky Gap State Park Lodge and Golf Resort near Cumberland. Three Garrett County chefs — Preston Sharps of Deep Creek Brewing Company, Larry Roby of Rent-a-Chef, and Sherry Wiley of Will O' the Wisp — are among the 15 chefs and culinary specialists taking part in the charity promotion.

Star Chefs is a cocktail event which showcases some of the region's finer chefs, caterers, and restaurateurs, who will be offering samples of signature dishes for approximately 400 guests. The tasting is followed by a live auction. Funds generated throughout the evening will go to support March of Dimes programs that work to prevent birth defects.

Sharps is executive chef and general manager for Deep Creek Brewing Company. The Garrett County native graduated from the Baltimore International Culinary College in 1995, then worked at the Colonial Williamsburg Lodge before returning to take a position as chef at Will O' the Wisp. This is the second year that Sharps will be a part of Star Chefs event.

For the Star Chefs benefit, Sharps will be pouring the Autumn Glory Ale and Deep Creek Gold brews produced at the microbrewery, along with serving his own Deep Creek chili. His auction package will be dinner for four at the brewery, along with river rafting, fly fishing, and a two nights' stay in Garrett County.

Roby, who operates his own Rent-a-Chef catering company, prepares meals on-site ranging from formal dinners to backyard pig roasts. He began his cooking career as a burger wrapper in 1972, and since then has traveled and worked in restaurants across the country, and studied with two master chefs.

Roby will serve fresh crab dip. His auction package will feature a two-night stay at his own lakefront cabin at Deep Creek and a four-course dinner preparation that will include wines, flowers, and dessert.

Wiley is managing chef at Will O' the Wisp. A Garrett County native and former kitchen and bar manager at the Grantsville Holiday Inn, she graduated from the International Culinary Academy in Pittsburgh in 1998.

Wiley will serve from a handcrafted chocolate and fondant-tiered sculpture with homemade candies and chocolate covered strawberries, along with two seafood hors d'oeuvres. She is offering golf and other Garrett County recreational activities for the auction.

Reservations are required for the Star Chefs benefit, and may be made by calling the Western Maryland Division of the March of Dimes at 301-722-5818.

Retired Judge Jones Receives Council Honor

Retired District Court Chief Judge Bill Jones, Charlotte, N.C., was recently named the 20th winner of the Dolly Award, presented by the Council for Children. Jones is the son of Lloyd "Casey" Jones, Oakland, and the late Ella Jones.

Judge Jones, who retired last month after serving for 25 years as District Court judge for Mecklenburg County, handled many juvenile cases, custody arrangements, requests to remove children from abusive homes, and other issues affecting families and youth. He helped create the local Guardian ad Litem program, Advocates for Children in Court, and the Children's Law Center, all of which try to ensure that children's best interests are represented in court.

"Bill Jones epitomizes the best of the courts and the juvenile justice system in their advocacy efforts for children," stated Larry King, executive director of the Council for Children, speaking to over 500 people gathered at the Charlotte Convention Center.

The Dolly Award is named for children's activist Dolly Tate, who died in 1991.

Zion Lutheran Women Convene

Women of the ELCA of Zion Lutheran Church, Jennings, held their monthly meeting in the church on November 5.

The annual ingathering of the thank offerings was observed with a service of prayers, a responsive reading, and the hymn "Now Thank We All Our God."

The study theme, "Holding It Fast," a study of the second petition of the Lord's Prayer, was led by Leota Baker. The lesson endeavored to help the group to see how faith works in life, and to recognize faith as a gift of the Holy Spirit. The hymn "My Faith Is Built On Nothing Less" was sung to begin the study.

Judy Stanton presided over the business meeting.

An assortment of cards has been received for the greeting card ministry.

Evergreens have been gathered for making the Advent wreath for the church.

Plans were discussed for using the birthday offerings which were received during the year.

The annual fall treat for the women in the Monongahela Valley-Mountain Clusters was held November 3-4 at Jackson's Mill near Weston, W.Va. The theme of the retreat was "God Is Everywhere."

United HealthCare Is New Choice For HealthChoice In Garrett Co.

by Nora Achrati
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — Garrett County Medicaid recipients will still be able to participate in managed care this January, officials confirmed Tuesday, thanks to United HealthCare's decision to expand service into the county.

United's move — not yet official — will make up for the loss of Priority Partners, another managed care group, which this year announced a statewide enrollment freeze effective Jan. 1.

Priority Partners' freeze left just one group, Maryland Physicians Care, open to new HealthChoice customers in the county next year. That would have eliminated the program for new Medicaid clients in Garrett.

The HealthChoice managed care Medicaid program requires at least two managed care groups with open enrollment to operate in a jurisdiction for new recipients to have a true choice of care programs.

"Garrett was the only county with only two [managed care organizations]," said Susan Tucker, Office of Health Services executive director. "So that was the one everybody worried about when Priority froze."

Early this month, United HealthCare representatives told Tucker and other Department of Health and Mental Hygiene officials they would move into Garrett as an open-enrollment insurer. To become a formal Garrett County HealthChoice insurer, United must make sure it has contracted with enough caregivers in the area to provide good coverage to county Medicaid clients.

"It's never easy in the rural areas . . . It's possible in the end we won't be able to come up with the appropriate network," said United spokesperson Barbara Spence. "On the other hand, we're optimistic enough that we're going to try."

United already serves about 60 Garrett HealthChoice members who've elected to find out-of-county care, Spence said, so it shouldn't be difficult to develop a network to take on new enrollees.

"We're a very established, large insurance company in general, and we've been in HealthChoice since [its] beginning," Spence said. "So we've already got enough of a network in place to support 60 enrollees in Garrett who picked us in spite of the fact that we're not officially in Garrett."

Maryland Physicians Care manages health care for the majority of Garrett County's 4,100 HealthChoice clients, and Priority Partners will continue to care for in-county members already enrolled, DHMH officials said.

"I don't think it will be a huge enrollment by any means" for United, said spokesperson Spence.

Managed care groups must give the state 60 days notice before freezing enrollment in an area. Statewide, Priority Partners and another HealthChoice insurer, Helix Family Choice, are the only groups to have announced a freeze for next year.

GCMH RE-OPENS RENOVATED UNIT — Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Oakland, recently opened its newly renovated Intensive/Coronary Care Unit. According to a spokesperson for the hospital, the unit's updated decor and color scheme will provide a more pleasant atmosphere for patients. The unit specializes in the care of critically ill patients and is designed so that all patients can be monitored both visually and through use of equipment. Pictured above, left to right, at the ribbon-cutting ceremony for the renovated unit are M.J. Sabatelli, nurse manager; Denise Liston, vice president of clinical operations; and Donald Battista, president/CEO of GCHM.

Fire Marshal Offers Heating Safety Tips

As cooler temperatures begin to settle over the mid-Atlantic region, State Fire Marshal William E. Barnard is offering Marylander's important home heating safety tips.

"Home heating equipment continues to be a significant factor in home fires in Maryland," said the fire marshal. "Following these guidelines, we can work together to reduce the number of residential fires due to home heating equipment":

- Have chimneys cleaned annually, or more frequently if used as primary heating equipment;
- Use properly sized fireplace screens;
- Dispose of cooled ashes in a tightly sealed metal container;
- Check the wiring on electric heaters and furnaces, repairing or replacing damaged wiring;
- Use only heating equipment "listed" by an approved testing laboratory and follow all manufacturers' instructions;
- Use only clear, "K-1" kerosene in portable, fuel-fired heaters, and never refill the heater inside the house. The use of kerosene heaters is prohibited in Baltimore City and Cumberland.
- Keep combustibles (furniture, curtains, walls, paper, etc.) at least three feet from all heat sources;
- And always turn off portable heating equipment when leaving a room for extended periods. Portable heaters should never be operated unattended.

Along with these heating tips, check to make sure smoke alarms have fresh batteries and are in good working order. "Routine maintenance and safe operation of heating equipment, combined with operating smoke alarms, are a winning combination for fire safety in Maryland," Barnard said.

The Office of the State Fire Marshal is an agency dedicated to reducing injury and death from fire through public education, inspection, and investigation. For further information on fire safety, persons may contact the Office of the State Fire Marshal at 1-800-525-3124.

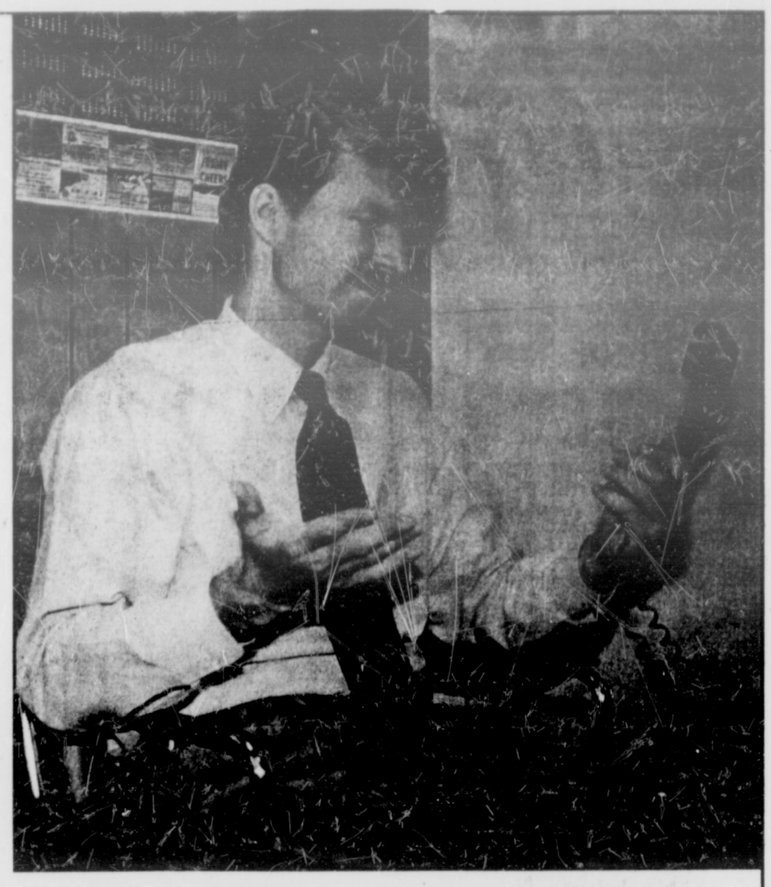
SOMEONE WHO WILL LISTEN TO ME



"Hello, you have reached the voice mail of John Doe Custom Care Corporation. All of our representatives are presently busy. If you know your extension, please select it now; if not, stay on the line and someone will assist you. Thank you very much."

"I JUST WANT TO SPEAK TO SOMEONE WHO WILL LISTEN TO ME!!!"

Today it is difficult to find someone who will listen. Perhaps we should look to God!

How incredible it is that God is always with us. We can set aside regular opportunities for meditation and prayer that set the spiritual tone for our entire day.

Unfortunately, it does not seem that the trend toward depersonalization will reverse itself in the foreseeable future. Therefore, we must teach our youth the importance of prayer and worship. We must teach them that God is never too busy to hear their wishes and their worries...anytime and anywhere.

Worship this week. God will always listen to you.

Caffeine May Boost Mental Awareness In Some Persons

A study conducted at Hofstra University in New York suggests that heavy caffeine users may no get the same boost from the stimulants as do conservative users. Volunteers were divided into groups - frequent and infrequent users. Persons in each group were given either a moderately high dose of caffeine or an inactive placebo. All participants were then instructed to type a page of randomly selected words and phrases. Of those who received caffeine, typing speed increased among both the frequent and infrequent caffeine users. Interestingly, the infrequent caffeine users produced fewer errors, indicating that they may have been more mentally aware than were the heavy caffeine users.

The results of this study may support the occasional use of caffeine as a supplement for mental awareness. Yet, use of caffeine is not without its drawbacks. Caffeine can increase blood pressure and may not be appropriate for persons with high blood pressure, heart disease, and anxiety.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

NEVITABLE CHOICES

Nov. 18, 2001

Background Scripture: Matthew 6.
Devotional Reading: Philippians 4:4-9.

"The life of every man is a diary," wrote J.M. Barrie, "in which he means to write one story and writes another; and his humblest hour is when he compares the volume as it is with what he vowed to make it."

Look at your own life and ask yourself, is this the story I meant to write? If the story you wrote and are writing varies considerably from the story you meant it to be, the reason almost certainly lies with the choices you have made. Many of us do not like having to make difficult choices, but we eventually learn that we cannot escape having to choose. Our lives are shaped not so much by the things that have happened to us, as the ways we have chosen to respond to those things.

The Rut We Choose

The late Harry Emerson Fosdick told of a leading university president who was in northern Canada one springtime when the frost was breaking up and the roads were well nigh impassable. At one crossroads he saw this sign: "Take care which rut you choose; you will be in it for the next twenty-five miles." Fosdick observed: "He who chooses the beginning of a road chooses the place it leads to."

In the Sermon on the Mount, Jesus confronts us with some of the choices that separate the authentic disciples from the hypocrites. You must choose between "practicing your piety before men to be seen by them" or in private where only God sees us. This means choosing what reward you want: praise by men or approval by God. We'd like both, wouldn't we? But we have to choose one or the other (6:1-8, 16-18).

Similarly, we must also choose between "treasures on earth" or "treasures in heaven" (6:19-21). Once again we would like to have both, but we must choose between the two. It isn't all that difficult, is it? We know that "treasures on earth" are at best transitory, yet it is these 'things' that many of us make the focus of our lives. Actually, it is a choice between serving God or mammon (Aramaic word for "wealth"). Although we are tempted to try to serve both, Jesus tells us: "No one can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one and love the other, or he will be devoted to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon" (vs. 24,25).

A Faith Problem

There is another choice to be made: between living in faith or in anxiety. What is wrong with anxiety is that it becomes a substitute for faith. Faith, remember, is most frequently used in the New Testament, not as a reference to our beliefs, but our trust. When Jesus commends the "faith" of those whom he has healed, he is speaking not of the content of their beliefs, but the fact that they trust him to make them well. The questions of anxiety— "

Strange BUT TRUE

• Scotsmen and their descendants make up almost half of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, and almost three-quarters of American presidents.

• An adult human has 60,000 miles of blood vessels.

• There was a scientist once who made it his mission to taste as many different kinds of meat as he possibly could. In his opinion, the worst tasting was mole meat. I won't argue. There probably aren't very many people who would be willing to gain enough experience in that field to be able to debate the matter.

• Did you ever want to break into someone's computer system? If so, here's an interesting bit of information: The most commonly used password on computer systems is "password."

• Hong Kong has more Rolls Royce cars per capita than any other city in the world.

• There is a popular, bright green melon liqueur, "Midori," which is used to make fruity drinks such as melon balls. The name is very descriptive — in Japanese, "midori" means "green."

• The state with the highest percentage of people who walk to work is Alaska.

• The main cabin of Air Force One, the airplane in which the president flies, is 4,000 square feet. That's more than many people's homes. Air Force One has seven bathrooms and 16 TVs. And there is enough food aboard to serve 2,000 meals.

Antiques

by Ralph and Terry Kovel

Clowns have always been popular children's toys. Tin toys shaped like clowns date to the mid-19th century. But collectors who want affordable collectibles probably should concentrate on the postwar tin toys made in Japan, Europe or the United States in the 1950s and 1960s.

Many of the toys were "wind-ups" that were made of brightly decorated tin. A key-wind made the clown climb a pole, ride a unicycle or play a violin or a drum. The movement was created by a clockwork mechanism that could easily break. It is difficult to repair.

In good condition these toys sell for $100 to $500. About 1960, tin toys often had some plastic parts such as the clown's head or hands. These toys sell for less. Look for some of the old toys at tag sales and flea markets. Bargains can still be found.

Q. Can you tell me something about the history and value of my old trunk? Inside it is stamped "John Musgat, manufacturer and dealer in trunks, satchels and fine harness, Fond Du Lac, Wis." The trunk has a barrel top and is metal with wood and metal slats. Inside there are hinged paper-covered panels that separate the compartments. It is in poor shape. Should I restore it?

A. The style of your trunk dates it to around the 1890s. Many people like to restore old trunks, and they are worth more restored than in poor condition. A trunk like yours, restored to look original, would sell for $300 or more.

Cat Safety

Q. Our family just acquired our first kitten, and she's adorable. She's already been to the vet for her checkup and shots, but our question is, what hazards does our kitten face in the home?

A. That's a very good question. Cats — and especially kittens — are curious and adventure-seeking, and they'll fully explore any new thing that draws their attention.

They're especially drawn to movement outside the window — such as leaves waving in the breeze and birds flitting by — and a cabinet door left ajar presents an irresistible opportunity to investigate.

So, make sure the screens on your windows are secure so your kitten doesn't leap into the yard (and possible danger). Keep cabinet doors closed tight, especially if hazardous chemicals like bleach and cleaners are stored there. In fact, installing cabinet "locks" — just as you would for a toddler — is advisable. Most cats can easily pry a door open. In fact, I've known a few cats that could turn a doorknob!

Every time you go in and out of the house, check around your feet to make sure the cat isn't trying to go out with you.

Cats are also drawn to heat sources. Red-hot stove burners, hot irons, boiling water, lit cigarettes — any of these can draw your cat close to danger and a possible burn. Cover a recently used burner with a pot filled with cold water. Place a cooling iron in a spot that's hard for the cat to reach. Don't leave cigarettes unattended.

Plants are another danger source. Many common household plants are extremely poisonous to cats. Get a list of these from your veterinarian or garden store, and in the meantime, place all houseplants out of the cat's reach.

If you catch her chewing on one of your houseplants, get her away from it — if it's on the list of dangerous plants, take your kitten to the vet even if she doesn't show signs of being ill (such as lethargy or vomiting). Kittens can become ill very quickly, so don't take chances.

Now that you're completely paranoid — just relax. If you have (or have raised) small children, the safety rules are quite similar. Stick to them, and your kitten will grow into a happy, healthy cat.

Maryland Legislature Prepares State Agencies For Economic Downturn

by Bobby White
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — Maryland agencies will have to tighten their belts to confront the downturn in the nation's economy said lawmakers at last week's Senate Budget and Taxation Committee briefing.

In the briefing on department shortfalls for fiscal 2001, Sen. Robert R. Neall, D-Anne Arundel, admonished agency heads for not being more responsible with their allocated funds. With the state entering troubling economic times, he said, state departments are practicing "very bad habits."

"In fat times, they could do lots of things that were not considered core, but in lean times the same actions cannot be taken," Neall said.

Sen. Barbara A. Hoffman, D-Baltimore, committee chairwoman, singled out the Department of Human Resources for "not valuing the budget process." The agency spent funds for an unapproved program that Hoffman agreed was admirable, but the agency still violated the process.

"They view this process as just a formality. Well, they will see it is not," she said.

The briefing was to address the shortfalls of fiscal 2001 and for agency heads to suggest ways to curb problems. Much of what was discussed took place before the economic downturn following the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks.

In response to the economic ripple effect from the attacks, Gov. Parris N. Glendening imposed $205 million in spending restrictions. The measures cover soaring security costs and plunging revenues. Heightened security across the state has cost $6 million, a cost that is expected to grow to $24 million by the end of the fiscal year on June 30, 2002.

High energy costs last year, from skyrocketing natural gas prices, resulted in shortfalls for some agencies well before the fallout from Sept. 11.

The biggest shortfall came in the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, which will start fiscal 2002 with a $173 million deficit. More people enrolled in entitlement programs than anticipated, contributing to the department's budget problems.

Medicaid enrollment, for example, was expected to drop to 428,000 and now is at 462,000.

While some departments were reprimanded for overspending, certain departments were recognized for not receiving enough funding.

"I am not sure we are being as generous to some of our state agencies as we should," said Neall, citing the Department of Corrections and the Office of the Public Defender.

Because Corrections operates facilities all day every day, it needs special attention from the committee, said Neall.

The defender's office, which is routinely underfunded, is defending clients at double the national standard per caseload for lawyers. In order to escape budget problems, said Public Defender Stephen Harris, he often keeps positions open until the situation becomes critical.

"We do not have a lot of flexibility to do our jobs," said Harris. "We operate on how many arrests are made."

Approval for budget deficiencies will not occur until the General Assembly convenes in January.

JRL Recreation Season Concludes With New Record

The 2001 recreation season at Jennings Randolph Lake concluded Oct. 9 following the last whitewater release of the year. The Robert Craig Campground hosted a record 33,236 visitors through the season, according to the Baltimore District of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

The Maryland and West Virginia boat launches closed in mid-October after the lake level dropped below the minimum elevation required to launch boats at the Howell Run area. The Howell Run picnic area closed as normal in late October. The Maryland and West Virginia overlooks closed in mid-October, about one month earlier than normal, because all other public facilities had closed and because of their proximity to sensitive areas of the project, according to the Corps of Engineers.

"The JRL project will remain under an increased level of security as long as conditions warrant," a Corps of Engineers spokesperson said. "However, we anticipate another robust recreation season in 2002. Paving of the entrance road and camping loops following this season will make the area even more enticing when it reopens next April."

For further information, persons may call the JRL office at 301-359-3861.

Eastern Star Meeting Held

Oakland Chapter No. 67, Order of the Eastern Star, met recently at the Paul B. Naylor Masonic Temple with Bette L. Welch, Worthy Matron, and Theodore Raynovich, Associate Patron, presiding at the meeting.

The Worthy Matron's opening thought was "The Color of Joy." She then welcomed Wilda Hile, P.M., Deputy Grand Lecturer of the Grand Chapter of Maryland, officers, and members. The Worthy Matron recognized John Phillip Sousa's birthday, Nov. 6, and Lillian Reckner, P.M., played a march in tribute.

The many compliments and "thank yous" received from those guests and members attending Friendship Night were shared by the Worthy Matron. The chapter voted to change the time of its meetings from 8 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

Juanita Bosley, P.M., won the door prize by correctly answering the OES question of the evening. The Worthy Matron thanked her substituting officers, Melissa Friend for refreshments, and Reckner, P.M., for her music during the meeting.

The Worthy Matron's closing thought was "Knowing." Officers and members will prepare and serve dinner to Past Masters on Nov. 13, 6:30 p.m., at the Masonic Temple.

The next meeting will be Nov. 20, at 7:30 p.m. The Chapter will celebrate Thanksgiving. The meeting is open to all OES members.

DAMAGE WAS EXTENSIVE to a Mountain Lake Park house early Tuesday after fire erupted in the dining room and quickly spread throughout much of the structure. Volunteer firefighters from several area departments were summoned to the residence of G. Edward and Marilyn Remley, 219 D Street, after a neighbor reported the fire. Mrs. Remley was awakened by a pet cat and was able to escape the blaze uninjured. The fire was brought under control in about 40 minutes, but total loss was estimated to be $60,000. See story.

Flu, Pneumonia Shots Offered By Health Dept.

The Garrett County Health Department will be offering influenza and pneumococcal immunizations during December. These immunizations will be offered at the Grantsville Community Health Center, located at 28 Hershberger Lane, on Tuesday, Dec. 4, from 1 to 6 p.m., and the Garrett County Health Department's new facility, located at 1025 Memorial Drive in Oakland, on Wednesday, Dec. 5, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Initially, the vaccine will not be available to everyone. The health department is seeking to vaccinate those individuals at high risk for complications from the virus. This includes per-sons older than 65, adults and children with chronic diseases of the heart and lungs, those with suppressed immune systems, and women in their second or third trimester of pregnancy.

Persons who have direct contact with at-risk individuals such as health care providers, nursing home staff members, and household members of those in the high-risk group may also receive vaccines.
Additional clinics will be scheduled later when an adequate supply of vaccine is received.

The cost of the influenza vaccination is $10. Pneumococcal vaccinations will be available at a cost of $17. If a person has a Medicare card, the Garrett County Health Department will bill Medicare for this service.

Pneumococcal pneumonia is a serious disease that is responsible for a substantial number of illnesses and deaths in the United States. The disease is caused by a bacteria which can lead to serious infection of the lungs (pneumonia), the blood stream (bacteremia), and the covering of the brain (meningitis).

People at greater risk from the disease include those 65 and older, the very young, and individuals with other health problems such as alcoholism, heart or lung disease including asthma, kidney failure, diabetes, HIV infection, or certain types of cancer.

Influenza, or flu, is caused by a virus with typical symptoms such as an abrupt onset of fever, aching, sore throat, headache, chills, extreme malaise (tiredness), and a nonproductive cough. Influenza can also lead to viral pneumonia. The flu incubation period is 24 to 72 hours, with the illness lasting 2 to 7 days The infectious period is approximately 3 days af-

"CAN YOU HUG A TURKEY?" — Crellin Head Start students visited James Glotfelty's Bittinger-area turkey farm this week to learn how the birds are raised. Their curiosity piqued, the children asked the farmer a variety of questions such as "Can you hug a turkey?" Although the kids learned many things about turkeys and eagerly took advantage of the opportunity to pet one, when it came down to actually hugging a turkey there was a sudden shortage of volunteers. Glotfelty gave each child a white feather and a candy bar, and Head Start teacher Terri Shaffer and assistant teacher Pam Goad used the field trip to reinforce classroom Thanksgiving lessons. An annual outing to the Glotfelty turkey farm has become a tradition for many local Head Start centers. Pictured are Tiffany Gank, left, and Caitlyn Metheny, as they mull over giving a hug to "Tom Turkey," who appears ready to return the favor despite not having arms of his own. For more information about Garrett County Community Action Head Start programs, persons may contact Barbara Hornyak at 301-334-9431 or 1-888-877-8403.

Chamber Seeks Information On Winter Events

The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce is seeking information on upcoming winter activities and events to promote to area visitors. Items accepted for inclusion will be placed on the chamber's web site as well as in a winter calendar to be available to visitors and residents. Events slated from the present date through March will be accepted for review and inclusion at this time.

Beginning next spring, the chamber will publish two six-month calendars of events annualiy. One will cover spring and summer, the other will focus on fall and winter activities. "Previously, the chamber published one event listing each year, which made it impossible to include new attractions that weren't planned for at least a year in advance," said Ken Wishnick, chamber president.

He also pointed out that the number of local events, is rapidly growing to the point where a new two-season publication makes more sense.

Breaking the calendar into two segments will allow organizations more time to plan events, knowing that the added publicity from the Chamber of Commerce will help ensure their success, Wishnick explained.

Currently, only winter event information is re-

Friendsville Man Injured, Charged In Tuesday Crash

A Friendsville man who was slightly injured during a Tuesday morning motor vehicle accident near Friendsville faces a charge of failure to yield right of way filed by the Maryland State Police.

Shortly after 11:30 a.m., Ralph Bowser, 91, was driving a 1992 Ford Explorer north along Asher Glade Road when he arrived at the intersection with Squire Fike Road. At that same time, a 2000 Pontiac Sunfire operated by Timothy Umbel, 19, also of Friendsville, was traveling westbound on Squire Fike Road. Bowser reportedly failed to yield to Umbel, and pulled into the intersection and into the path of the Pontiac sedan, causing a collision.

Bowser was transported by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where he was treated and released. The Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department assisted at the scene.

In other state police accident investigations, notice was received this week concerning a mishap that occurred Wednesday, Nov. 14. A Friendsville man was slightly injured in the 4:30 p.m. crash, although no charges were filed, according to the police report.

Donald H. Umbel, 54, was traveling north on

Pet Cat Saves Woman From Burning House

A pet cat was credited with saving a Mountain Lake Park woman after a fire erupted early Tuesday and caused an estimated loss of $60,000 to her two-story woodframe house in Mtn. Lake Park. The cat then died in the fire, believed to have been caused when combustible material near the flue pipe of a wood stove ignited.

Some 40 volunteer firefighters from the Oakland, Deer Park, Terra Alta, Gorman, and Deep Creek fire departments responded to the 6:04 a.m. alarm at the residence of G. Edward and Marilyn Remley, located at 219 D Street. Upon their arrival they observed flames and heavy smoke coming from the windows of the house.

Mr. Remley had already left for work, and Mrs. Remley said that she was awakened by the cat and saw heavy smoke in her second-floor bedroom. She then fled the house and was uninjured.

The fire, which was reported by a neighbor, was brought under control in about 40 minutes. The estimated loss of $60,000 included $50,000 in damage to the house and $10,000 in loss and/or damage to contents. Firefighters remained on the scene for about three hours.

Police Beef Up Traffic Patrols For Thanksgiving

Maryland State Police troopers are preparing for what may be one of the busiest Loliday highway travel weekends in many years, according to MSP superintendent Col. David B. Mitchell. The Thanksgiving holiday is nationally recognized as one of the CARE (Combined Accident Reduction Effort) holidays. Thousands of law enforcement agencies across the country that participate in Operation CARE increase their numbers of road patrol personnel by reassigning administrative officers to the highways throughout the holiday period.

"Our mission is to save lives this holiday weekend through strict enforcement and a highly visible presence of state troopers on our highways," Mitchell said. "We can only fully accomplish our mission if drivers on our own highways do their part and make highway safety their #1 priority when traveling during the holiday. Plan ahead, and be courteous and patient when traveling. Be an attentive driver and make an effort to reduce cell phone use, eating, and other distractions when driving," Mitchell urged.

Dozens of extra troopers will be carrying out a variety of enforcement programs. Aggressive driving enforcement will be a priority, and troopers will use conventional and non-conventional patrol vehicles to apprehend speeders and persons who choose to drive under the influence. Troopers will also be conducting sobriety checkpoints over the holiday weekend in an effort to curtail collisions caused by alcohol abuse. Many of the additional troopers on patrol will be funded through federal highway enforcement grants. These extra programs will operate in addition to a full complement of patrol troopers statewide.

In Maryland, the areas of heightened awareness and enforcement will be seatbelt and child safety seat violations, speeding, and driving under the influence of alcohol and drugs. Motorists who do not wear seat belts are more likely to be seriously injured or killed in a

County's Winter Operation Plan, Policies Reviewed

A committee composed of representatives from various county and state agencies met recently to discuss and review the county's Winter Operations Plan for the upcoming winter season.

"One item that the committee wants to stress to the public is the policy regarding snow removal from private roads or driveways," said Bradley Frantz, director of the county's Office of Emergency Management.

Frantz said that all private roads and drives must be cleared by a private contractor, with the only exception being to permit emergency vehicles access to such roads. Emergency Management reminds residents that any individual who reports an emergency that is determined to be unsubstantiated in order to get his or her road or drive cleared will be subject to a charge of filing a false report.

The committee also discussed other issues such as inter-agency coordination, notification and dissemination of road closings, Snow Emergency Plan activation, and school cancellations and delays, as well as other policies and procedures.

The representatives were from the Garrett County Roads Department, State Highway Administration, Board of Education, Garret County Sheriff's Office, Maryland State Police, Department of Natural Resources Rescue Team, and Garrett County Emergency Management.

Anyone having questions regarding the committee's policies and procedures may contact the Office of Emergency Management.

Benefit, Private Donations Help Restore One Meals-On-Wheels Day

As a result of the response from the local and statewide community, enough money has been contributed to the Area Agency on Aging's Meals on Wheels to restore one day per week to the program. The program provides meals to about 150 home-bound Garrett Countians, and because of a recent cut-back in private funding, the five-day-per-week program was cut to three.

A fund-raiser for the program was held last week at the Grantsville Senior Center, with over 200 people in attendance. The benefit proceeds, in addition to a number of private donations, have brought in over $20,100 toward the $50,000 goal.

"The agency is confident that at the very least, $25,000 will be realized," said Adina Brode of the Area Agency on Aging. "Therefore, plans are being made to restore one of the meal service days, effective December 3." She said letters will be sent to all Meals on Wheels recipients to inform them of the increase.

"We also want to let them know how generous members of their community as well as other areas throughout the state have been," Brode said. "We have had a tremendous response to our call for help. It's heartwarming."

A number of elected officials attended last Friday's fund-raiser in Grantsville, along with other community leaders. Dignitaries present included Congressman Roscoe Bartlett, Senator John Hafer, Delegate George

A FAMILY TREE — These children do all belong to the same family tree, solely because their adoptive parents wanted it that way. Dan and Charla Beiler of Accident began foster-parenting children in 1989. Since that time they have cared for a total of 17 kids, and have adopted the six shown here. There are many avenues to adoption, but whatever prospective parents might choose, the advice from all who have gone through the process is a resounding "go for it!" See feature on page A-10.

NHS BAND VISITS SCHOOLS — The Northern High School Band made its annual tour of Garrett County elementary schools on Wednesday. The band traveled to Rt. 40, Grantsville, Accident, and Friendsville schools. This year marks the 5th year that the band has visited area schools, promoting instrumental music. Band members played music from their marching show, demonstrated various musical instruments, and instructed the students on the role of the color guard. Shown in the picture above and right are students at Friendsville Elementary School performing a routine with the guard and band members. One of the goals of the visits is to demonstrate to students that hard work and dedication can lead to success (and even fun), not only in music, but in other subjects as well. The band recently completed its marching season with a rank of 24th at the Atlantic Coast Championships.

Donations Sought For Rotary Club Christmas Project

The Rotary clubs of Garrett County (Oakland and Grantsville) have kicked off their annual Christmas Project, which collects and distributes food and gifts to local needy families. Last year's Rotary Christmas Project distributed over 40,000 pounds (20 tons) of food, along with gifts of clothing and toys for children up to age 12, to over 300 families across Garrett County.

"It's important to note that these 400 families were divided fairly equally throughout the county, with 1/3 in the southern portion, 1/3 in the central portion, and 1/3 in the northern portion," explained Doug Riley of the Oakland Rotary Club, the project's primary sponsor.

The primary method of obtaining gifts and food for these families is through donations, Riley said. Project displays and/or "Rotary trees" have been placed in businesses, churches, and other locations throughout the community which bear tags that indicate what is needed and the child's age; for example, "small toy fire truck — age 8."

Individuals who wish to take part in the project simply remove a tag, purchase the item, attach the tag to the gift, and place it under the same tree from which the tag was removed. The local Rotary club will pick up the item and arrange delivery.

Financial donation tags are also provided on all trees in Grantsville as a reminder that dollars are also needed to purchase food. Food costs last year ran about $17,000 with only $7,000 received by donations; the remaining $10,000 came from the general funds of the Grantsville and Oakland Rotary clubs.

Gift tag trees in the Grantsville area are located at Beachy's Pharmacy, Penn Alps Restaurant, the Grantsville Library, First United Bank and Trust, M&T Bank, and the Holiday Inn of Grantsville. A food tag tree is located at the Grantsville Foodland.

"All tags in the Grantsville area are for families in northern Garrett County," said Joe Bender of the Grantsville Rotary Club. "If you cannot get to one of the above northern Garrett County places to obtain a tag and want to be a part of this worthy project, call 814-662-4366 and a tag will be provided."

Monetary donations are also appreciated and accepted, Bender added. Checks should be made payable to the Grantsville Rotary Christmas Project and mailed to Grantsville Rotary, P.O. Box 358, Grantsville, MD 21536, or can be dropped off at any Rotary tree location.

"The collection period only runs only through Saturday, Dec. 9 (approximately 3 weeks)," observed Bender. "Therefore, those interested should act now." Collections throughout the county are will be assembled and sorted into family units on Friday, Dec. 14, at the Simon Pearce glass factory in Mtn. Lake Park, with delivery to the homes scheduled for Saturday, Dec. 15.

CHRISTMAS PROJECT UNDER WAY — The annual Rotary Christmas Project, a joint undertaking of the Oakland and Grantsville Rotary clubs, is seeking donations of gifts and toys for children, and financial contributions that will purchase food for needy families across Garrett County. Shown above are project chairman and Grantsville Rotarian Joe Bender, left, and president of the Grantsville Rotary Club Brian Tucker.

HAVING FUN HELPING THOSE IN NEED — A pleasant evening was apparently had by all who attended the Meals on Wheels fund-raiser last Friday, held at the Grantsville Senior Center. Over 200 people turned out at $50 per couple, raising well over $16,000 toward the restoration of the five-day-per-week meal delivery program. In all, over $20,000 has come in for the under-funded program, which has resulted in the restoration of one more day per week for the meal deliveries. See story. In the photo above, Master of Ceremonies Gary Yoder is pictured center as he has a laugh with guests. Shown below, from left, are Senator John Hafer, Congressman Roscoe Bartlett, and former Garrett County sheriff James Frantz. The crowd enjoyed food and beverages, musical entertainment, and a special showing of MPT's Images of Maryland. Photos by Glenn Tolbert LENDING A HAND and a few beers at the Meals on Wheels fund-raiser last Friday were Doug (Hutch) Hutchins and Scott Mason of Uncle Tucker's Brewery, pictured above, and John Bray of the Deep Creek Brewery, shown below. The brewers offered taste tests of a variety of beers and ales "on the house" to complement the hors d'oeuvres and entertainment enjoyed by the 200+ guests. Organizers expressed gratitude to the brewers, along with many other food and beverage contributors. See story.

Edwards, and Garrett County commissioners Wendell Beitzel and Fred Holliday. Mayors Gerald Beachy (Grantsville), Asa McCain (Oakland), and Nancy Brady (Kitzmiller) were also in attendance, as well as a representative from Senator Paul Sarbanes's office.

Bartlett spoke to the crowd about the recent effort to restore the Meals on Wheels program to full operation.

"This is an example of what makes America work during stressful times. It's people like you caring for the weakest and neediest among us who are going to get us through all of what's happening in our country and our world right now," the congressman said.

Gary Yoder served as the master of ceremonies at the event, and noted thanks to a number of individuals and organizations for their help in supporting Meals on Wheels. Guests were entertained by the music of the Glade Players trio, were invited to taste various beverages from area breweries and vineyards, and were shown a presentation of the Maryland Public Television program Images of Maryland, written and directed by Garrett Countian Glenn Tolbert, who also spearheaded the fund-raising event.

Brode reported that an article in the Baltimore Sun written by Dan Rodericks about the Meals on Wheels dilemma sparked donations from that area. Tolbert said the local coverage by The Republican newspaper and WKHJ radio have also been vital in the effort.

"The Baltimore Sun article was definitely icing on the cake, but without The Republican and WKHJ, there wouldn't have been any cake to begin with," Tolbert said. "We really appreciate the efforts of our local media." The radio station provided numerous public service announcements and news coverage of the fund-raiser, and the newspaper published weekly reminders as well as a feature article concerning the program's shortfall of money. Because the local paper has a significant readership throughout the state, its coverage combined with the Baltimore paper's article have sparked over $6,000 from outside Garrett County, according to organizers.

Recognition has been made of contributors as well, especially those donating $250 or more. These include Edith and Don Browning, GFWC Civic Club of Oakland, Junior Woman's Civic Club, Garrett County Commission for Women, Oakland/Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club, Rotary Club of Oakland, and Yellowstone at Deep Creek Lake.

The fund-raiser was made possible by the support of the following businesses: Taste Unlimited, Deep Creek Brewing Co., Elk Run Vineyards, Uncle Tucker's Brewery, the Glade Players, Annie's Kitchen, Hilltop Inn Restaurant, the Boardroom, Chestnut Ridge Liquors, the Flowerloft, St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, Oakland Rotary, The Republican newspaper, WKHJ radio, and the Cumberland Times-News.

In another development, local Internet service provider GCNet has offered to create and donate a web site for the Meals on Wheels program. The site is expected to be on-line by next week, Tolbert reported this morning. The web site address is to be announced.

While the fund-raiser has been deemed a success, money is still needed for the program. Donation information may be obtained by contacting the Area Agency on Aging office at 301-334-9431.

Conducting the investigation were Deputy Fire Marshals Jamie Rodeheaver, Ryan Chapman, and Jason Maubrey, with assistance of a K-9 dog named Canyon.

Maryland's child safety seat laws require a child under the age of 16 to be secured with a seatbelt or a child safety seat. What's Really Important...

The message on the answering machine last week featured a voice from the past — over 20 years ago, in fact. Hearing it was so exciting, though, because we were such good friends, but we had completely lost touch. Neither of us really even knew if the other was still alive.

There was great irony as well, because a trip had already been planned for that very weekend which, remarkably, would place us within 30 minutes of each other. A return call was made, and a reunion arranged.

Seeing this old friend again this past Sunday was a wonderful event, because the experiences with him over two decades ago while residing with his incredible family in an impoverished section of Ibague, Colombia, were priceless. Indeed, they were life-changing.

It was there that this young, naive American learned how lucky he was to have what he had, and that there is only about one in 20 chances of being born in the United States. It was there that a final career decision was made. It was learned there that Garrett County would always be home. But it was also learned there that the truly important things in life are not of a material nature; that the only thing that is really, honestly important is relationships — with God, with family, with friends, with co-workers, and even with strangers.

The events of September 11, 2001, abruptly caused all of us to re-evaluate our priorities, to think about what is really important, and to far more deeply appreciate our many blessings. The essence of Thanksgiving Day this year, then, will be far more poignant for most of us. Giving thanks for one's invaluable, imperishable, precious relationships will be at the top of this writer's list.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I was reviewing the area since next week I will be visiting with family at Deep Creek Lake. I read your editorial about ethanol and agree that we should be using alternative fuels. As per your statement of food in the tank instead of feeding the hungry...I have a great alternative: hemp. Hemp could be used as the fuel source, just as grains like corn. Also, since hemp grows so well, you can keep crops growing year-round. Hemp could be used to replace paper, reducing the reduction of our forests.

I'm not talking about smoking pot; I'm talking about a crop that was once grown by Jefferson, Washington, and all of the farmers before 1900. It was used for clothing and many other textiles. But, because of our insane War on Drugs, we can't produce hemp products. Three states have passed laws to grow hemp, but the feds, namely the attorney general and the DEA, have said they will confiscate any land used for growing hemp.

Just thought you'd want to know.

Sincerely,
Mike Smithson, director
ReconsiDer speakers bureau
Syracuse, N.Y.

To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to address parents and their school-age children, ages 10-18.

We all know how difficult being a good parent can be. When our children are born, they don't come with a manual. If we remember hard enough, we can admit how difficult it is to be a child, especially during the teen years!

I strongly believe that in today's world it takes more than parents with good intentions to raise our children. "It takes a Village." With that in mind, there is a new group forming — the Southern Garrett Youth Alliance. You are invited to become part of our group, both parents and children. Teachers, principals, youth group leaders, heads of organizations and foundations, local law enforcement, local officials, etc., are invited and encouraged to join as well.

Our next meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, Nov. 27, at 7 p.m. at the Loch Lynn Restaurant. A special guest speaker, CEO Jeff Collin, from the Riverside YMCA in Cumberland, has been invited to attend.

The main purpose of forming this group is to be able to provide safe, structured, supervised, enjoyable, youth and family activities in a youth center-type environment in conjunction with other groups already in existence. Our main goal is to eventually have a youth center facility in which to house these activities under one roof.

Anyone interested in helping with our venture is encouraged to attend our meeting. If you are unable to attend this meeting, but would like to be involved, please contact me, Yvette Nutter, at 301-334-1223.

We also are looking for donations in the way of paper, a copier or use of a copier, and ink for our printers.

Thank you,
Yvette Nutter

Editor's note: The writer of the following letter to the Maryland State Highway Administration asked that it appear in this column.

To the Editor:

I am writing you this letter regarding the "traffic" light at the intersection of Rt. 219, Mosser Road and Deep Creek Drive in Garrett County. As a resident living on Mosser Road, I am very disappointed in the installation of a "blinker" light instead of the much needed traffic control stop light at this intersection. My family uses this intersection daily, and please understand, this blinker light does not help to safely enter Rt. 219, or from Rt. 219 onto Mosser Road and/or Deep Creek Drive.

I strongly urge that this blinker light be changed to a three-light traffic control light. I believe that this type of traffic light could be controlled as a part-time three-light traffic control light during peak times, such as summer (Memorial Day through Labor Day) and weekends. At non-peak times this light could then function as a "caution blinker" light.

As we all are aware, the Deep Creek Lake area has become a growing tourist attraction. Our legislators openly encourage the idea of making Deep Creek Lake another Ocean City resort area. So please, review this intersection from a safety point, not only for our spending tourists, but also, for the lives of county residents who regularly use this intersection.

Thank you,
H. Vaughn Vitez

P.S.: I encourage other residents, students, faculty, staff of GCC, business owners, and all who must use this intersection to submit a letter to the Md. State Highway Administration, Attn.: Fred Crosier, 1251 Vocke Rd., LaVale, MD 21502.

To the Editor:

At this special time of giving thanks, we want to thank the friendly Oakland merchants and offices who have been so helpful to us. We have taken the students of the Renaissance Early Learning Center on many field trips in order to learn about our town. The students have learned a bit more about this area in which they live and have come to experience the kindness of the people of Oakland.

We have visited the train station, the fire department, the rescue squad, our city hall, the library, the farmers' market, and many more. During our Halloween parade, we were invited to visit at Jan Florists, Mark IV, Town Restaurant, and Simon's Hair Center. The officials and office staff of the Garrett County courthouse took the time to smile and say hello to the children as they paraded in their costumes.

We wanted you all to know how much we appreciate your kindness, and we know that you have made some happy memories for our students.

As we walk down the street with our kids, they are always tickled when a passer-by takes the time to give them a smile or just a nod. Thank you, Oakland, for being a nice place to live and work, and a great place to raise our children.

Sincerely,
Staff of the Renaissance Early Learning Center
Donna Cook, center director
Josey Coviello-Redinger, lead teacher

To the Editor:

Garrett County's response to America's new war came last week at Garrett Community College when over 450 persons attended the program "In Praise of America." The evening was more than a show on patriotism and celebration of our American heritage. It was an outpouring of American spirit — a reaching out to one another.

From the fifth graders in the Broad Ford Elementary School chorus to the veterans in the color guard and the members of the Garrett County volunteer fire departments, there was a great sense of community and American pride.

We want to thank all of those who participated in the program by lending their voices and musical talents: the members of the Broad Ford Elementary School Chorus and "Mr. Z," Dave Zimmerman, for their high energy performance, members of the choruses of Northern and Southern high schools and directors Bill Robinson and Dick Clever for their patriotic songs, vocalists Ed Clemons, Dave Martin, Jennifer Beitzel, Susan Weisbrod and Richard Kuzy, members of the Garrett Community Concert Band and director Jerry McGee for their stirring American marches, speakers John Grant, Tom Frawley, and Jim Raley, and master of ceremonies Steve Herman. We thank the members of the American Legion Proctor Kildow Post 71 color guard and members of the Garrett County volunteer fire departments who helped promote the program and who passed their helmets for the free-will offering.

We also thank those in attendance who gave so generously to our local rescue workers. A total of $650 was collected.

Many thanks are due to others who worked behind the scenes and who donated materials for the program: Jane Avery, Bea Crosco, Clyde Hetrick, Jim Matthews, Mildred Bray, Denise Friend, Vaughn Vitez, GCC Student Government Association members, and the GCC maintenance department.

We had tremendous cooperation and willingness from everyone we asked to help, and we are grateful. As we had planned it to be, the program was a community celebration of the American spirit.

To the Editor:

Once again Mr. and Mrs. Atwill have outdone themselves on the train display in downtown Oakland. Thanks for making the effort!

Sincerely,

To the Editor:

Two weekends ago, the Southern Garrett and Northern Garrett marching bands concluded their seasons at Lackawanna Stadium in Scranton, Pa. As a senior it was the last competition of my four years in band. And while I am saddened by this fact, I also am tremendously thankful to all of those individuals who have made my four years in band a success.

In these past four years I have learned how to be a part of a group, how to lead, and how to follow. I learned how to push myself to succeed, and to confront my shortcomings and mistakes and learn from them. I have learned invaluable life lessons about pride, dedication, ambition, disappointment, victory, and humility. I would not be the person I am today had I not been able to participate in band.

"It takes a village to raise a child," and I would like to thank my community for their support. I would like to extend my thanks to the Garrett County Board of Education for supporting the band program, Ms. Clever and Ms. Peterson at the middle school level, and Mr. Clever and Mr. Salisbury at the high school level. Thank you for teaching me the art of music that has so often soothed my soul.

I would like to thank all of the band parents out there who work hard and are there backing us all the way through the season. You can't believe how much it means to us to know how much you care. And to my parents, thank you for sharing your love of music with me. It has made all of the difference.

Our Town Theatre has also opened its doors to us for a special dinner, honoring Northern's and Southern's bands. Thank you for going out of your way to make us feel special.

And I know I speak for the entire band when I say that the respect and thoughtful gestures made by our principal, Mr. Tom Woods, throughout the season really inspired us. You have made a bigger impact on us than you can ever imagine. Thank you for sharing your time with us.

And finally, there would not be a band without musicians and managers. I would like to thank everyone who has ever participated in the marching band programs in Garrett County, especially those of you who have been in the Southern Garrett Marching Band in the past four years. We've had great times. Thank you for showing me true friendship, leadership, pride, and, of course, the beautiful harmony that can resound when great people get together and work hard.

With deepest gratitude,
Suzanne Gilbert

Man Injured

Friendsville Addison Road in a 1993 Chevrolet pickup, followed by a 1987 Buick sedan operated by Patricia J. Wilkins, 63, Addison, Pa. Upon arriving at the T-intersection with Paul Friend Road, Umbel reportedly tried to signal for a right-hand turn onto southbound Paul Friend Road.

As changing direction at that particular intersection requires a very sharp turn, Umbel allegedly executed a swing into the southbound lane of Friendsville Addison Road, across the yellow center line, to complete the near 180-degree maneuver. Wilkins reportedly did not observe an operating turn signal on the pickup truck and had continued along to pass Umbel on the right, when Umbel turned back to the right to enter southbound Paul Friend Road. The two vehicles collided as Wilkins's sedan struck the pickup in the side.

Umbel was transported by the Northern Rescue Squad to Monongalia General Hospital in Morgantown, W.Va., where he was treated and released. The Friendsville VFD also assisted at the scene. No charges were filed by investigating trooper M. DeValk, who noted that his investigation revealed that Umbel's right rear light assembly was not functioning at the time of the mishap. Both drivers were deemed at fault, according to the report.

View From My Window

by Jeffrey Wilson

THANKSGIVING HUNT

In the pre-dawn light I set out with my Grandpa Wilson's Columbia, single-shot, breech-loading, 12-gauge shotgun. Upland game hunting is permitted during the half-hour before sunrise, which is the best time for hunting and for much else. As night empties into day, the subconscious empties into the conscious. That time is threshold to all things possible.

I am no more skilled in hunting than in most other things practical. A friend of mine refers to his hunting as "taking my gun for a walk." It is that for me too. The grass is white with frost. The air is chilly. The world stands in half light. A walk then invigorates body and soul.

Taking my Grandpa Wilson's gun for a walk also provides me with a connection to the man who died just days after my second birthday. Not only do I hold the gun which he held, but I am doing what he did. He hunted rabbits after morning milking. My father tells me, rabbit hunting was a Thanksgiving Day tradition.

Hunting also connects me to American men back to the Pilgrims who invented this feast. It connects me to men living in the primordial past when human society was sustained by hunting and gathering alone. It connects me to the Earth and to Earth's other inhabitants. Hunting is a way for man to take his place in nature.

On Thanksgiving Day I hope to take part in another tradition, a ritual related to hunting, and yet distanced from it. That is family gathering to shoot clay pigeons. I shall take Grandpa's shotgun to that event, for I am sure some of my cousins will want to renew their connection to our common forebear.

The gun itself is as simple as a gun can be. The stock could use a little work. The recoil is like a kick from a mule. It is not my gun of choice for shooting clay pigeons or for any activity where there is likely to be a lot of shooting (like dove hunting years ago). After a half-dozen shots my shoulder begins to feel sore.

In that family setting there will be camaraderie among those present and those absent. Those who were with us in other years will be with us in remembrance, whether they have gone from this world or merely to some other part of it.

The teenagers are inflated into this rite of Thanksgiving. Perhaps they gain the greatest pleasure from it. Not only do they experience the connection which the older ones experience as well, they also receive a sign that they are becoming men, and that they are trusted as men.

There is the call by the one operating the launcher, "Ready!" and then the call, "Pull!" The vibration of the spring is followed by a gunshot. The clay bird disintegrates in mid-air or falls undamaged to the ground. Through success and disappointment, there grows a communal sense of exhilaration. There are the one and the many — the one bearing the firearm on line and the many others watching and waiting. There are the many and the one — the many men and boys, and perhaps girls and women nowadays, and the one community of spirit.

After the shooting there is pie, apple and pumpkin. In the eating of pie there is nearly always equal skill and equal pleasure. The shooting is relived in the telling. There is discussion of the different guns and different kinds of guns, of their respective merits and disadvantages. There is encouragement of the young among us and their shining faces on receipt of compliments.

The group disperses, to the living room and kitchen, to cleaning up and to more conversation. And after that there may be a game of cards, a movie, or just going home. This is all Thanksgiving the feast day and the thanksgiving the attitude of the heart. It is a man's view and one man's view, but it is a view as a way of life and as a family of relationships.

I am in the frosty field in the pre-dawn light. I hear a rustle behind me. I turn ever so slowly. The rustle comes again. This time I see him. I shoot. I think I hit him. I take several steps forward, and look down. There is the rabbit, nestled in the hole of his burrow. I reach down, and lift him by his hind legs. He is dead from a clean shot to the head. As the shot hit him he was in the last forward motion toward safety. His momentum carried him just inside the hole. I return to the farmstead. There I first paunch him, and then skin him. I save the feet to give to my nieces and nephews for luck. I take the rabbit inside to put in marinade. I have saved the liver to eat as sidemeat with eggs for my breakfast.

The day has only begun, but the best part of it is over.

Notes from Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

My birthday was no fun this year. But which one is after you get past the big 40? Thirteen years ago I was due to have my second daughter on my birthday, but Caitlin took her good old time and waited for her father's birthday 13 days later. This was good in one way, as it gave me a chance to share a room in the maternity ward with my very good friend from high school days, Penny Friend, who was due two days later. We had our babies on the same day. Caitlin was certainly worth the wait. I didn't believe it was possible to have a more beautiful baby than my firstborn Claire. However, Caitlin turned out almost identical to Claire except she had darker hair and even more brilliant blue eyes than her big sister.

Caitlin celebrated with a few friends and her sister and dad to be part of the biggest movie opening film ever, Harry Potter. Then on Sunday it was my turn with Caitlin for her birthday party with all the cousins at her Gram's house (Ruth DiPaolo). Besides her sisters, also there were Rodney Glotfelty and kids, and Carol Bass and Scotty. Unfortunately, Matthew and Emma Bass started the Thanksgiving holidays early with a visit to Altoona to see Kevin's sister Kyler and family. Only Scotty stayed home with his mother Carol, as he is serving as acolyte at church on Sundays. Others attending were "Pappy" Dale Glotfelty and Courtney and Mike Englar. Gram's living room turned into a leg-wrestling venue. My Claire was one of the biggest winners. Lisa, Maddy, and Greg Whittemore stopped on the way home from the Northern Huskies football banquet, where Greg received the "Minds in Motion" award for academic achievement.

Mike Englar was up from Westminster to his brother's new place in the Cove to better view the big meteor shower early Sunday morning between 4:30 and 6 a.m. Courtney and Mike said they saw thousands. The Bass family and the Glotfelty family also saw many of them. Personally, I saw only one. It really isn't much fun to watch the meteor shower by yourself, except when I was working on the horse show circuit and I was camping out during a big meteor shower in a field at a hunt club in Virginia. Maybe the hundreds of shooting stars that I saw also awakened the hounds in the kennels, as they howled and howled.

The Bittinger 4-H Club buckwheat and pancake dinner was a huge success on Friday evening. The 4-H'ers were kept busy serving and refilling plates. Claire and I sat with Lillian Reckner and her granddaughter Michaele Puliti. At our table was an interesting gentleman from Friendsville who makes it a point to attend as many community dimmers at fire halls and churches, etc., in the county as possible. Of course, I lost the placemat that I had scribbled his name on. It was possibly Jose.

The Moon family gathered at the Casselman for a dimmer celebration for Beulah's birthday. Attending were Brad, Larry, Ellen, Jay, Charlene, David, Steven, and Annie Moon.

Rodney, Robbie, Elliot, and Darryl Glotfelty, and Scott Bass attended the Maryland Terps' basketball game in College Park on Saturday.

Lenny, Torrey, and Sally Poholsky visited Lenny's mother, Mary Salak, at the Allegheny County Nursing Home in Kittanning on Saturday. They also visited his father Andy at his home on River Cliff Terrace.

Ferne Beachy, and Torrey and Sally Poholsky visited June and Bill Green and Ruby and Paul Orendorf in LaVale.

CELEBRATE, INNOVATE, EDUCATE was this year's theme of the recent National Health Information and Technology Week, which was sponsored by the American Health Information Management Association (AHIMA). This weeklong event recognized the unique contributions health information management (HIM) professionals make to the healthcare industry. "HI&T Week is a time to spotlight the talents and expertise of individuals in these important health professions," said AHIMA president Barbara P. Fuller, JD, RHIA. "It is also a time to educate the public and the healthcare industry on the significant contributions of these professionals who work throughout the healthcare industry in hospitals, physician practices, insurance companies, and various government agencies." The HIM Department at Garrett County Memorial Hospital currently has nine employees. "Our staff plays many important roles in the overall hospital operations," said Joy Moore, GCMH director of HIM. "The goal of the HIM department is to support the medical and clinical staff in its efforts to provide quality healthcare services to patients. Whether stored on paper or in computer files, reliable health information is critical to quality healthcare." Pictured above is the Health Information Management staff at GCMH. In the front row, from the left, are Linda White and Irene Mersing. In the back row are Moore, Linda Phares, Linda Sines, Kathie Lewis, Beverly Greaser, and Kim Mellinger. Not included in the photo was Juanita Hudgens.

Past Post Commander Leonard Snyder talked of the duties of VFW members and all veterans. Merle Nice asked the blessing for the meal.

All divisions of military; army, navy, marines, air force, and coast guard, were recognized and honored. J.C. and the Boys provided entertainment in the form of patriotic tunes. Poppies and flags were sold to help with funding of the event. Both the post members and the auxiliary extend their appreciation to all of those who helped with the events of Nov. 11, and thank all who have provided socks which will be given to patients at Hopemont and Heartland.

VFW Post 578 members and auxiliary presented a flag and poppy program at Terra Alta Elementary School last week. The following are weekly suggestions for all students and staff to make as a part of our everyday lives at Southern High School: Nov. 19 - Nov. 23, "Stick up for other people," and Nov. 26 - Dec. 1, "Do unto others as you would have them do to you."

Economics Class Competition Winding Down

The Maryland State Stock Market Game is heading into the final stages of the 10-week competition, which will end Dec. 6. The local teams remain in the hunt for top awards, competing against 443 teams from around the state. This includes teams of elementary, middle, and high school students, college students, and teacher advisors from across Maryland.

The six Southern Garrett teams from Lisa Bender's economics class are currently ranked in the top 64 competitors. Mrs. Bender is currently the top team in the state of Maryland, with equity of $179,242, followed closely by teams from West Frederick Middle School, Richard Montgomery High School, and Northwest High School. Ranked 16th in the state is the team of Brian Fike, Kim Thayer, and Matt Lucas. Ranked 26th among competing teams are students Skyler Bolden, Regis Marucci, Craig Kelly, and J.B. Murphy. Coming in as the 44th ranked team in the state are student investors Albert Taylor, Lacie Foglepole, and Anthony Filsinger. The 59th team in the state right now is the team of juniors Jody Moore, Ashley Lambert, and Amanda Jenkins. Rounding out the local investment teams are students Wanda Steyer, Elizabeth Everett, and Brittney Craver.

Southern High can boast of several state winners in the past five years. Weekly standings are printed in the Baltimore Sun every Friday. The student teams are sponsored locally by PrimeVest Financial Services, and Rob Sharps serves as a business partner for classroom strategies. We wish them luck in the final weeks of their competition.

Making Schools Work is Out to Improve Our Schools

Garrett County has become involved in a school reform initiative through the Southern Regional Education Board known as Making Schools Work (MSW). It involves Southern and Northern high schools and their feeder middle schools, Southern and Northern middle. Through various forms of articulation with the schools, it is hoped that the MSW team will help each school develop and implement action plans to enhance the performance of the students. Funded by the Office of Educational Research and Improvement, U.S. Department of Education, the MSW's purpose is to work with clusters of high schools and their feeder middle schools to raise student achievement in rural areas. Scheduled for December 10-12, the technical assistance visit is an important part of this initiative and a critical component of the professional development services provided to clusters.

The four primary goals of MSW are: to increase the percentage of middle school students who perform at the proficient level in reading, mathematics, and science on the Making Schools Work Assessment; to increase the percentage of middle grades students who complete a rigorous core curriculum of mathematics, English/language arts, science, and social studies courses taught by highly qualified teachers who engage students in relevant, hands-on activities that prepare them for success in high school; to increase the percentage of high school students who perform at the proficient level in core academic subjects — reading, mathematics, and science — as measured by the MSW Assessment; and to increase the percentage of high school students who complete college-preparatory studies in mathematics, science, English/language arts, and social studies and a concentration in an academic area, a career/technical area, or a blend of academic and career/technical studies.

Adoption: An Act Of Love That Lasts A Lifetime

By Brenda Ruggiero

This time of year, many children are sitting down to create their wish lists. They may want the latest fad or the coolest new gizmo for last year's fad. Parents are doing their best to accommodate those growing lists. But for some children, there are no parents, and their wish lists are a lot more complicated. Their top request is something other children take for granted. Sure, they'd like to have the latest toys, too. But what they really want is a permanent family.

According to the Maryland Department of Human Resources, there are approximately 12,394 children in Maryland who currently live away from their families in substitute care. Of that number, 4,822 cannot return to their birth families, and 1,322 are legally free for adoption. The need is great, but state Social Services departments are working to reduce the numbers, and to help children and parents come together in a "Forever Family."

In Garrett County, many families have chosen to open their homes to children who need them. Dan and Charla Beiler of Accident decided to go through the foster parent process in 1989. "We wanted a baby," Charla said, "and they told us in class that most of the adoptions that occur through Social Services in the county go through foster parents, and the foster parents end up adopting, especially an infant, so we decided to go that way."

The Beilers were able to adopt a baby, and several older children as well. To date, they have provided a home for a certain length of time to 17 foster children, and they have permanently adopted six children.

However, some of the foster children did not remain at the Beiler home, and it's always an adjustment when a child leaves. Charla said, "It's a grieving process you go through because you get attached to them. Even if they've only been here a short time, you still develop attachments and you just grieve when they leave. They say you shouldn't get so attached, but you can't do your job efficiently if you don't. I think it hinders you from getting personal with them."

Dan noted that one of the hardest aspects of foster parenting is having to deal with issues from the child's past and visits with parents. "Those things are so unsettling that they cannot progress with their life because they don't have any stability," he said. "There's always that up-in-the-air feeling because they don't know whether they're going to be here next week or next month or next year."

Because of this, Dan feels that one of the most important things foster parents can do is to treat foster children as family.

"There are kids who haven't done well in other places, but have come here and done really well, and the only thing that we could key in on that would be different was that when the children are in our home, they are part of our family," he said. "They do things with the family . . . we go on vacations with them. We had one child who was here for two weeks, and we had a family picture taken. She asked if I wanted her in the picture, and I said, 'This is our family at this moment. Yes, we want you in this picture.'"

According to Charla, foster parenting is most rewarding when she sees the children overcome various personal obstacles such as fears, educational delays, and low self-esteem.

Another couple whose family has grown through foster care and adoption is Ralph and Rhoda Keefer of Mtn. Lake Park. They decided to become foster parents in 1994 when their biological son was about 5 years old. "He was an only child," Rhoda said, "and I just didn't seem to get pregnant and have any more children. I hated for him to grow up to be an only child, so I thought adoption was one of the ways to do this."

Since then, the Keefers have adopted three children, and currently share their home with two foster children as well. Rhoda noted that one of the most positive aspects for her is seeing the children grow.

"My husband and I both enjoy it," she said. "And we've made good friends through the Foster Parent Association that we wouldn't know otherwise. It's a support system for us."

Getting Started

The key requirement that Social Services looks for in prospective adoptive parents is simply the ability to provide a permanent, loving home. Single applicants are welcome, as well as those who already have children. Home ownership is not required, and neither is wealth, although families should be able to manage well on their income.

Foster care/adoption training is available at the Garrett County Department of Social Services. It consists of 27 free hours that must be completed before the "home study" process begins. Home study involves assigning a social worker to determine if adoption is right for a particular family. Certain forms and personal references are required, but the most important factor is evidence of commitment to the child and a basic understanding of his/her needs. Once the home study process is completed, the social worker assists parents in finding a child that will fit into the family.

International Adoption

Another option that some families have chosen is to adopt a child from another country. Jeff and Maxine Miller of Grantsville traveled to China in 1999 to bring home their daughter Alexandra, who is now 3½ years old.

"With China, one of the things that really got our attention was that the agency had a timeline and we knew that if we followed the procedures within a certain amount of time it would happen within a year. This was very appealing to us," Maxine said. "We also knew that the babies coming from there were very healthy, and that there were a lot of baby girls who needed homes."

The Millers completed their home study and faced a mound of paperwork. "It's not for the faint of heart," Maxine said. "You have to be really serious about it, because it does take a lot of time to go through all of that."

Finally, the agency worked to match the Millers with a baby. They believe Alex was chosen because she arrived at the orphanage on their wedding anniversary. Once the match was made, the Millers received a photograph.

"For me," Maxine remembered, "it was an experience of opening the door and finding this packet from FedEx, and I knew what it was, but Jeff wasn't home yet. I was torn between whether to open it or wait, and I finally couldn't restrain myself and I went ahead and opened it, and there was this little picture. At that point, you just fall in love the minute you see it. I still have it framed in our bedroom."

The Millers were able to fly to China to bring Alex home about two months later, traveling with nine other families sent by the same agency. From start to finish, the entire adoption process took about 13 months, and the waiting proved to be the hardest part.

"The toughest part for us was really that time from when we made the commitment until we actually had her in our arms," Maxine said. "That wait is the longest, hardest part of it. After that, all is well in the world."

Today, Alex is a well-adjusted little girl who enjoys the things other American girls do. However, the Millers celebrate Chinese New Year and occasionally eat their dinner with chopsticks. They read books that describe the adoption process, and answer questions as they come up. For everyone, the experience has obviously been a positive one.

"I can't emphasize enough what a wonderful experience it is, and how blessed we've been," Maxine said. "I really would encourage anybody who's even considering it to pursue it further. It's the best thing in the world that ever happened to us . . . she's just been more than we could ever imagine."

Lynn and Jan Lais of Grantsville had a similar experience when they traveled to Thailand this fall to bring home their 2-year-old son Jaden. Jan explained, "It's just something that I always wanted to do, since I was probably in high school. I just always thought that some day I would adopt a child . . . at least one. It just didn't really work out until now, or we probably would have done it sooner when the kids were younger." The Laises' two biological children are 15 and 11.

Jan noted that when they looked into it earlier, they felt they couldn't afford to do it, but recently it became more feasible with the adoption tax credit offered by the United States government. Like the Millers,

A JOURNEY OF LOVE brought Alexandra, center, to her new home with Jeff and Maxine Miller. The Millers went through a 13-month process to adopt the little girl from China in 1999. The parents said they highly recommend adoption, as Alexandra has been a blessing to them from the moment they met her.

On Thanksgiving Day 2001
When we are all gathered together for Thanksgiving, there will be an empty chair, one less plate, and there will be a sadness in the room. Because you are not there. But we will feel your presence and know you're not far away. Then I will remember all the Thanksgivings we had together and know that someday we will be together again. That's what keeps me going. Until then, I love you and miss you very much.

Holiday Events Slated At Our Town Theatre

A number of holiday events have been scheduled at Our Town Theatre (OTT) in Oakland over the next several weeks.

OTT will sponsor a teen coffee house on Monday, Nov. 26, from 2 until 5 p.m. "This coffee house will have a different twist," noted Jane Avery, artistic director. "Since it's getting close to Christmas and our teens might need a little extra money to purchase gifts as well as need some inexpensive gifts to buy, we are having an indoor yard sale combined with refreshments and entertainment. Our students have Monday off, so it's a perfect afternoon for them to sell their old CDs, tapes, T-shirts, stuffed animals, and so on."

Avery also added that some classic posters and Mad magazines will be up for sale, as well as some vintage clothing. Students need to register for a selling space by calling the theatre by Friday, Nov. 23, and by donating one dollar to OTT. Admission to the coffee house is free, and refreshments will be sold.

There are still some seats available for OTT's family-oriented musical Sanders Family Christmas. Although Friday, Nov. 30, is sold out, reservations can still be made for Nov. 27, 28, 29, and Dec. 1. All productions start at 8 p.m., and all seats are $5. Reservations are strongly recommended and can be made by calling the theatre at 301-334-5640.

Friday, Dec. 7, and Saturday, Dec. 8, are the dates for An Our Town Christmas, a family-oriented coffee house featuring Renaissance music by the Marsh Mountain Consort, and readings and entertainment by local actors. The coffeehouse will last from 8 until 11 p.m. and the cover charge is $3 per person. Refreshments will be sold, with the exception of coffee, which will be free.

For further information about any of these events, persons may call Our Town Theatre at 301-334-5640.

Thompson Trio Set To Perform

Highland Arts Unlimited, Keyser, W.Va., will present the Bob Thompson Trio.

The concert will be held at Church-McKee Arts Center, Potomac State College, Keyser, W.Va., on Wednesday, Nov. 28, at 7:30 p.m.

Persons may call 304-788-6821 for ticket information and reservations.

The Nutcracker To Be Presented Via FSU Series

A holiday favorite, The Nutcracker, will come to Frostburg on Friday, Dec. 7, at 8 p.m. as part of Frostburg State University's Cultural Events Series. The performance will take place in the Beall High School auditorium. Patrons are encouraged to purchase tickets as soon as possible. The Nutcracker is a combination of the music of Peter Ilyich Tchaikovsky with the magical story by E.T.A. Hoffman.

This performance features the talents of the International Ballet Theatre, with award-winning dancers from Russia and the United States, as well as selected child dancers from the Frostburg Dance Academy and FSU Activities for Life Ballet, under the artistic direction of the acclaimed choreographer Vladimir Shumeikin. The theatre was formed to preserve the unique quality of the Russian School of Ballet and classical Russian ballet repertoire.

Set in the 19th century, the story opens at a Christmas party given by Dr. Stahlbaum and his wife. Their children, Clara and Fritz, eagerly await the arrival of Herr Drosselmeyer, Clara's godfather. After he finally arrives, he passes out toys to one and all, but Clara's gift of a toy nutcracker soldier is the best of all. The party ends, the guests leave, and Clara falls asleep, dreaming of the toys coming to life. Her dream becomes a nightmare as the Christmas tree grows to an enormous size and giant mice battle soldiers in the living room. The Nutcracker, which has grown, too, battles the Mouse King to save Clara and emerges victorious, with a little help from Clara. The Mouse King's death breaks a magic spell, transforming the Nutcracker into a handsome prince. An older Clara and the Nutcracker travel through the Land of Snow to the Kingdom of Sweets, where they are entertained by its magical inhabitants and dance. But then Drosselmeyer appears to escort Clara home, ending her Christmas fantasy.

Dinner theatre specials are available prior to the performance at the following dinner theatre partner restaurants: Fratelli's Italian Restaurant, Giuseppe's Italian Restaurant, JB's Steak Cellar, Leone's Italian Restaurant, and Oxford House. Each special includes a uniquely designed meal with non-alcoholic beverages, tax, and gratuity. Dinner theatre specials can be purchased through the CES Box Office. Tickets can be purchased at a cost of $15 for adults and $8 for children under 17.

For information and ticket purchases, and for dinner-theatre menu selections and reservation purchases, persons may contact the FSU CES Box Office Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at 301-687-3137 or toll free at 1-866-TIXX CES. Based on availability, tickets may also be purchased in the Beall High School lobby one hour prior to the performance. All patrons must have a ticket, and all ticket sales are final.

This tour of The Nutcracker is presented in partnership with Windwood Theatricals, Beall High School, Frostburg Dance Academy, and the FSU Activities for Life Ballet Program. Frostburg State University's Cultural Events Series is supported in part by a grant from the Maryland State Arts Council, an agency funded by the state of Maryland and the National Endowment for the Arts; Gehauf's Restaurant; and Henny's Lounge.

Adoption

the Laises went through an agency that required a home study and matched them with a child, and the entire process took about 13 months. According to Jan, meeting Jaden for the first time was a bit strange.

"We were really excited and it was kind of hard to believe it was really happening now, this thing that you thought about so much," she said. "Then, here's your little child, but he's a complete stranger to you. You have no idea what his likes and wants are and that sort of thing."

However, Jan noted that Jaden adjusted "beautifully . . . much quicker than I would have anticipated. I feel really blessed — I think we all do — for how well he's fit into our family. We really feel like God chose him for us and that's why he's such a perfect match, and it's just neat to experience that each day."

Jan encourages other parents who may be considering international adoption to pursue it further. "I would certainly say it's worth it," she said. "It's a lot of work, but I think if you're committed to doing it, it's definitely worthwhile, and there's certainly a lot of children in need of homes. I think some people believe that only childless couples should adopt because there aren't enough children to go around, but there's more than enough. There's an awful lot of kids that don't have homes, and if people feel that they're capable of loving a child from another country, I would certainly encourage them to do so."

What was turning into a real Cinderella season for the Southern High School varsity football team came to an end Friday evening when the Rams dropped a 36-18 decision to the Allegany Campers in a state playoff contest played at Greenway Avenue Stadium in Cumberland. The Rams, who at one time this season had a woeful 1-4 record, came roaring back into the playoff picture by winning their last five regular season games, and were pitted against the team that last defeated them, 28-7, back on October 5.

The 9-2 Campers entered the playoffs as the second seeded 1A team in the state, while the Rams were seeded seventh.

The Rams stayed with the favored Campers until late in the third quarter, as they held a 6-0 lead midway through the first period and were down by just three points, 15-12, with five minutes to play in the third stanza. The Rams were threatening late in that quarter, but some costly penalties wiped away their scoring opportunity and led to a third Alco touchdown, which ultimately sealed the victory for the home team.

Southern drew first blood with an 11-play, 62-yard scoring drive that was capped by a 32-yard touchdown pass from senior quarterback Tobi Stoner to senior tight end Bryson Meyers in the end zone with 5:43 remaining in the first period. The drive included 10 running plays for 36 yards, with seniors Steve Skipper and Joel Helbig covering most of that territory. Chad Panther's kick for the extra point was no good.

Allegany responded with a 65-yard scoring drive that consisted of eight plays, all on the ground by senior fullback Chad Jacovino and senior halfback Jeremy Sellers. Jacovino had runs of 16 and 17 yards, while Sellers broke loose on a 23-yard carry. The drive was capped by a three-yard TD run by Jacovino. Billy Orndorff's conversion kick put the Campers on top for good, 7-6.

It appeared late in the second quarter that the score would remain 7-6 at halftime, but the Campers managed to put together an 85-yard touchdown drive that began with just 1:50 left on the clock. Again Jacovino and Sellers provided several gains on the ground to put the ball on the Rams' 35. Alco quarterback Ryan Strother, who was sacked for a five-yard loss, then went to the air, hitting Derrick Jamison with a 20-yard aerial that gave the Campers a first down at the 20 with just 24 seconds left on the clock. Then with just five seconds remaining, Strother connected with Sellers on a 20-yard touchdown pass. Robby O'Brien then ran successfully for the two-point conversion to give Allegany a 15-6 halftime advantage.

The Campers had the first possession of the second half, but Stoner, from his secondary position, ended their drive by picking off a Strother pass and returning the ball 43 yards to Allegany's eight-yard line. Skipper carried the ball on the next play, right through the middle of the Camper line and into the end zone at the 9:23 mark of the third quarter. The run for the two-point conversion was stopped short, and the Rams trailed 15-12.

With the score came the momentum that Coach Fred Gregg's defensive unit needed, and after just three offensive plays the Campers were forced to punt from deep in their own territory. The problem, though, for the Rams and their fans was that a roughing-the-kicker penalty restored Allegany's drive.

PINNED TO THE TURF by two Southern High Ram defenders (jersey numbers not visible) Allegany fullback Chad Jacovino is prone during Friday night's 36-18 Class 1A state quarterfinal loss in Cumberland. Among the wolfpack of Rams closing in at the scene of the kill are SHS linebacker Matt Howell (#36) and defensive end Brad Palmer (#54). A probable all-state honoree, Jacovino was not in this pose often, as he gained 173 yards behind a huge front line that had Southern outsized. One of SHS's offensive highlights, pictured below, came as the Rams drew first blood when tight end Bryson Meyers (#42) hauled in a 32-yard touchdown pass. The perfect strike from quarterback Tobi Stoner sailed over 40 yards in the air before hitting its mark dead-on in the end zone. Southern finished its season with a 6-5 mark, having impressively rebounded from a 1-4 start to make the state playoffs. Photos by Dave Bender.

The Rams had yet another opportunity to half the Campers' threat when Stoner picked off another Strother aerial, this time in the Rams' end zone, but the Rams were flagged for roughing the passer, once again restoring Alco's drive. Finally, with 4:29 left in the third stanza, Strother scored on a three-yard carry, and Orndorff's PAT gave the Campers a 22-12 advantage.

Most of the rest of the game basically belonged to the Campers, who scored on their next two possessions in the fourth quarter, with Sellers capping the drives with touchdown runs of five and six yards, and Orndorff kicking his third and fourth points-after. Orndorff set a new school record of 44 PATs.

The Rams still did not quit, however, and put six more points on the board with just 11 seconds left in the game when Stoner fired a 47-yard TD pass to Panther. Stoner's pass for the two-point conversion was incomplete.

The Ram defensive unit was stressed to its limit, and probably beyond, as the Campers possessed the ball for 29:44 of the 48 game minutes. Alco finished with a 353-134 advantage in total yards, with Jacovino amassing 173 yards on 25 carries. Strother completed five of nine passes for 76 yards, while Stoner was three-for-seven for 79 yards.

The game was marred by penalties, with the Rams flagged 13 times for 97 yards and the Campers hit 10 times for 115 yards.

"We gave our best effort, and that's all we can really ask of the kids," said Coach Gregg. "We didn't have every break go our way and, as with most games, there are a lot of ifs. If we had blocked that punt without roughing the kicker, or if we had sacked the quarterback instead of roughing him, then the outcome may have been different. But I was pleased and proud that our kids were playing to win, rather than playing to not lose."

Gregg was quick to give credit to the Campers, however. "They are extremely good up front, they have two excellent backs, and they are very well coached," he said.

"But overall, we are pleased with our season and proud that our players bounced back and made it into the playoffs," he added.

Gregg also noted his appreciation to the fans of other area teams who came to the game Friday night and supported the Rams. "It was so nice to see that teams and fans from other schools, especially Northern and Beall, were there to support us," he said. "and we would gladly do the same for them."

Southern Girls Lead West All-Stars To 4-3 Victory

A number of senior soccer players from both Garrett County high schools provided key performances in the first M&T Bank Senior All-Star Classic, played at Westmar High School in Lonaconing on Sunday. The West boys' and girls' teams, which included Southern High School players, defeated the East teams, which included players from Northern High School.

Southern High coach Ron Petrella was head coach of the West team.

The West girls edged the East girls, 4-3, and three of the goals scored by the West team were recorded by Southern Rams.

Jackie Aylor of Beall High School put the West squad up 1-0 with an unassisted goal at the 6:22 mark of the first quarter. Southern's Megan Burner doubled the West lead with a goal off a direct kick at the 3:53 mark of the same quarter.

The East cut the lead to 2-1 when Shera Rowan of Bishop Walsh connected on a penalty kick with 13:31 remaining in the second quarter. Rowan would go on to score all of her team's goals to record a hat trick.

Rowan knotted the score at 2-2 just 15 seconds into the second half with a goal off an assist by Northern Husky Emily Rawe.

Southern's Jenny Hickman, who was named the MVP for the West team, responded about five minutes later with a goal to put the West team ahead for good. Ram teammate Becky Martin followed with an unassisted goal at the 11:01 mark of the third period to give the West a 4-2 advantage.

Rowan, MVP for the East squad, completed her hat trick and the match's scoring with a goal off a feed by Kate Begly of Hampshire with 7:22 remaining in the fourth period.

The East finished with a 19-14 lead in shots on goal, and a 3-0 advantage in corner kicks. Tasha Likens of Keyser had six saves in goal for the West, while Kelli Amoroso of Bishop Walsh stopped six for the East. Outstanding defensive performances were provided by Southern's Miriam Sincell and Beall's Becky Gostomski of Beall for the West, and Rachel Bruch of Northern and Danielle Beeman of Westmar for the East.

The West boys' team won the other contest, 3-1, behind a hat trick by Aaron MacGray of Allegany. Scoring East's only goal was Jayme Bradley of Bishop Walsh.

Among those cited for outstanding defensive play were Southern goal keeper Chris Menker, who teamed with Justin Schellhaus of Allegany to turn away 16 shots, and Justin Fontaine of Northern.

Give Thanks unto the Lord

At an early age, children are taught to say "thank you" when they are given something. Parents try to instill in their children the feeling of being grateful and the importance of acknowledging when someone does something good for them. Children learn by our example as well as our words, and they are quick to imitate their parents' habits. Thanking those who have been good or helpful to us is common courtesy. We should also be expressing our appreciation to God for his many blessings. Recognizing God as our sustaining source of life, and being appreciative of His great love will draw us closer to Him and help us to be better people. A sincere and honest "thank you" is a blessing to the giver as well as to the receiver, and it indicates that a person's good deed or helpful action was not in vain.

O give thanks unto the Lord, for he is good, for His mercy endureth forever. K.J.V. Psalm 107:1

Lakers Top Stevens Tech, Reading To Win Classic Title

The men's basketball team of Garrett Community College recorded three victories this past week, including two in the Lakers' own annual McDonald's Tipoff Classic to win the title in that event. Coach Dennis Gibson's squad topped Stevens Tech, 81-70, in an opening round of the tourney on Saturday, and then whipped Reading Area CC in the championship game on Sunday, 104-91.

The Lakers rolled over Montgomery Takoma Park last night, 103-70, (see separate story) to up their overall record to 5-1.

Sophomore Jontae Harrington recorded a double-double in Saturday's win over Stevens Tech, hitting 16 points and pulling down a game-high 10 rebounds, while teammates Sam Brown and Duke Cooper each scored 14 points. Cooper also had five assists, as did Kortaa Hall, whose performance was noted by Coach Gibson.

"Even though Kortaa scored only six points, he played his best floor game of the year," Gibson said. "He forced a lot of turnovers late in the game."

Gibson was also pleased with the efforts of freshmen Antonio Whetstone and Antuon Townsend off the bench.

The Lakers took the lead in the game early and were on top by 12, 45-33, at halftime. They dominated the board game, with a 43-28 advantage in rebounds.

Leading Stevens Tech (2-1) in scoring were Cornell Merrick and Sean Hinton with 14 and 12 points, respectively. Omar Jefferson grabbed six rebounds and contributed eight points.

Hall resumed his usual high-scoring efforts in Sunday's title game against Reading, as he pumped in a game-high 28 points, while Harrington had another double-double night with 22 points and 12 rebounds.

Fifteen of Hall's total were recorded from three-point range. Also reaching double figures were Brown with 15 points, Andrew Wass with 11, and Cooper with 10. Cooper also had nine assists.

Pacing Reading in scoring was Santos Martinez, who hit 26 points and also grabbed a team-high 10 rebounds. Brian Kirkland, Hakeem Smith, and DeShonte Lewis also reached double figures with 16, 15, and 13 points, respectively, and Smith dished out five assists.

Each team finished with 35 field goals, but the Lakers made good on 26 of 37 free throw attempts, while Reading connected on 16 of 35. Garrett led by 11, 43-32, at intermission.

"Once again we got good play off the bench, especially from Darvis Gray, Jason Williams, and Andrew Wass," said Coach Gibson.

Reading earned a spot in the title game by defeating Ocean County (N.J.) College in Saturday's other game, 97-88. In Sunday's consolation contest, Ocean County knocked off Stevens Tech, 101-86, behind a 26-point effort by Jonathan Beaman and a 20-point performance by Derrick Holley. Cornell Merrick hit a tournament-high 34 points for Stevens Tech.

The Lakers will take a Thanksgiving break and then return to action at CCAC South next Thursday.

Laker Women Down PSC, Blow Past CCAC-South

The Garrett Community College women's basketball team has jumped out to a 2-0 start, with new head coach Steve Willison at the helm of a squad that doesn't appear about to let its relative lack of experience (only four sophomores and twice that many freshmen) hold it back one bit. With aggressive play, the Lakers defeated host Potomac State College Saturday, 63-59, before last night's 89-54 homecourt debut triumph over CCAC-South.

Saturday's debut win in Keyser was powered by the Lakers' front court. Reeves led Garrett in scoring with 14 points and snagged seven rebounds from her center position, and forwards Donna Lyles and Mindy Miller ripped down 10 rebounds and scored 13 points, respectively. Guard Crystal Kimble tallied nine points and fellow back court player Christi Edgell scored eight points. Freshman guard Juakeena Bell had three steals on defense. The Catamounts' Bethany McCarty paced all scorers with 18 points.

Garrett's four-point 27-23 halftime lead proved to be the margin of victory at the end. GCC recorded a huge team rebounding advantage, 48-34, but the Lakers' physical play got a little bit out of hand as they were whistled for 24 fouls to PSC's 13. Miller was the only Laker to foul out, however.

Last night's 35-point homecourt demolition of CCAC-South was paced by guard Donielle Gaines, who poured in 22 points, and Lyles's double-double of 10 points and 10 rebounds. Gaines also snagged five rebounds and dished out two assists. Kimble hit for a dozen points, Miller contributed 11 points and six rebounds, and Angel Kendal scored seven points and swiped four steals. Dana Kallok led CCAC-South with 22 points.

Garrett dominated throughout the contest, mounting a 42-36 halftime lead. The second half was even more of a blowout, as the Lakers outscored the visitors 47-18. GCC hit the boards hard and often to record a phenomenal 42-22 rebounding advantage.

The Lakers have just one game this week because of the Thanksgiving break, as they travel to Montgomery College Takoma Park Monday evening. They will be idle after that until a Saturday, Dec. 1, road trip to take on the College of Southern Maryland.

A Lakers' season preview and team photo are expected to be available for publication in these pages next week.

Harrington Nets 26 To Pace Lakers' Win Over Takoma Park

The Lakers of Garrett Community College's men's basketball team coasted to their fifth victory in six starts Tuesday night by whipping visiting Takoma Park, 103-77, behind a 26-point performance by Jontae Harrington. He was one of five Lakers who reached double figures, with Kortaa Hall netting 14, Sam Brown and Andrew Wass each scoring 12, and Duke Cooper hitting 11.

The Lakers took control of the contest in the opening minutes and built a commanding 57-30 halftime advantage. They finished with a 53-34 lead in rebounds, with Darren Stackhouse grabbing nine to lead Garrett. Cooper was credited with a dozen assists, while Hall had four steals.

"Hall and Cooper had a great floor game for us," GCC coach Dennis Gibson said. "They took good care of the ball and handled Takoma Park's style of play very well. It was a good win."

Eddie Scott led four Takoma Park players in double-figure scoring with 17 points. Wohannes Gebreyesus finished with 11, and Michael Blackman and Jocara Knight each netted 10. Blackman also had four assists and four steals, while Jerome Tyler pulled down a team-high seven rebounds.

The Lakers will take a week break for Thanksgiving and return to action next Thursday at CCAC South.

HUNTING SEASON OPENS

Garrett County Outdoors

By Robert Yonke

RECENT RAINS NOT ENOUGH TO ELIMINATE FIRE DANGER

The DNR Forest Service and the Wildlife and Heritage Service are urging hunters to use caution when going afield during the upcoming Canada goose and deer firearms seasons. Hunters should keep campfires small, or not have them at all, and make sure the fires are completely out before leaving them. They should also use care if smoking. Cigarettes should be crushed out in bare soil when in the woods and should not be discarded from vehicles when driving.

Forests and fields remain dry. It has been more than 30 days since the state has received a soaking rain, and the extended outlook is for continued dry conditions with below normal temperatures.

This month alone, DNR's Forest Service has responded to more than 180 forest fires, which have scorched 2,700 acres. Fire danger remains high across the region, and the potential for additional large fires to occur still exists.

The open-air burning ban placed in effect on Nov. 11 remains in effect. The ban prevents open fires in woodland and within 200 feet of material that could ignite and carry fire to woodland. The ban does not apply to small recreational fires or within the limits of incorporated towns. However, campfires have been banned in state parks and state forests, and are not permitted on most Wildlife Management Area lands.

DEER SEASON

Maryland's 2001-2002 deer firearms season opens Nov. 24 for white-tailed and sika deer. Over 69,400 hunters participated in last year's firearms deer season, and each spent an average of 5.5 days hunting white-tailed and sika deer.

Firearms deer hunting is a major component of the DNR deer management program. As deer populations continue to flourish throughout the state, current deer seasons and bag limits support the harvest of antlerless deer in order to manage deer populations.

DNR urges hunters to always follow these safety guidelines while hunting:

- Treat every gun as if it were loaded. Watch the muzzle! Prepare to control the direction of the muzzle even if you stumble.
- Be sure the barrel and action are clear of obstructions and that you have only ammunition of the proper size for the gun you are carrying.
- Be sure of your target and what is beyond it before you pull the trigger; know identifying features of the game you hunt.
- Unload guns when not in use. Take down or have actions open. Guns should be carried in cases to the shooting area.
- Never climb a tree or jump a ditch with a loaded gun. Never pull the gun toward you by the muzzle.
- Never shoot a bullet at flat, hard surfaces or water.
- Store guns and ammunition separately, beyond the reach of children and careless adults. Consider using trigger locks. Avoid alcoholic beverages and medications that cause drowsiness before or during use of a firearm.
- Identify your target and know the terrain beyond.
- Tell a dependable person where you're hunting and when you plan on returning.
- Map your whereabouts and leave a note at camp, at home, or in your car so that you can be found.

One of the most popular pieces of equipment used by deer hunters is a tree stand. Tree stands can be dangerous if they are used incorrectly or carelessly. To help prevent these accidents, follow these safety precautions:

- Never carry equipment with you while climbing. Use a haul line to raise or lower your gear. Make sure guns are unloaded and broadheads are covered prior to raising or lowering firearms or bows with a haul line.
- Since most accidents occur when hunters are climbing up or down a tree, always use a climbing belt, and use a safety belt or harness when hunting from elevated tree stands.
- Check permanent tree stands every year before hunting from them, and replace any worn or weak lumber.
- Wear boots with non-skid soles, because steps or platforms can be slippery in rain, sleet, or snow.
- Don't fall asleep. This is a common cause of accidents. If you get drowsy, move your arms rapidly until you feel alert.
- As a precautionary measure, remove all logs, upturned and cutoff saplings, rocks, and other obstructions on the ground below the tree stand.
- Use updated equipment. When used properly, newer tree stand equipment is solid, safe, and secure. Older models of safety belts offer some protection, but newer safety harnesses offer more protection.

SHARING THE HARVEST IS IMPORTANT THIS YEAR

Many food banks are finding inventories low this year. A heavier load and diversion of some resources to the New York aid program have caused the shortage. Give some thought to sharing your bounty.

Hunters Give Thanks For Rise In Wild Turkey Population

by Carolyn Taschner
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON — While most Marylanders will hunt for their Thanksgiving turkey in the meat section of their local grocery this week, some have already hunted their bird in the wild.

State officials believe the number of wild turkeys in Maryland now tops 300,000, the most since the Department of Natural Resources began efforts to reintroduce the population throughout the entire state in the late 1970s.

Officials do not yet know how many wild turkeys were harvested during the weeklong fall hunting season, which ended Nov. 3, the shorter of two turkey seasons the state allows during the year.

While the spring season is larger, running a month and covering the whole state, Fred Russell, who owns Russell's Gun Emporium in Washington County, said the fall season is a tradition in western Maryland, where turkey hunting is allowed in Allegany, Garrett, and Washington counties.

Russell said several of his customers hunt turkey to cook for Thanksgiving dinner, including his brother-in-law, Bobby Sites.

Russell has eaten Sites's smoked Thanksgiving birds, and said they are much leaner than domesticated turkey and can be too dry. But Sites said he does not notice a difference in taste.

Last fall's hunt harvested 188 turkeys, while last spring's hunt — which ran from April 18 to May 18 — killed 3,075 birds. Bob Beyer, associate director of game management for the department's Wildlife and Heritage Service, said there are typically about 12,000 spring turkey hunters and 4,500 fall hunters.

In the fall, hunters can take one bird of either sex, but in the spring, they may only take bearded, or male, birds because the season occurs shortly after mating. If a hunter did not take a turkey in the fall, he or she may take two males in the spring.

The Eastern wild turkey is the only turkey found in Maryland. Hunters said the turkey is a difficult bird to and has keen eyesight.

"They are as smart as they want to be," Beyer said. "I don't think you can kill a turkey unless it wants to die."

Danny Wright, general manager of Florida Point, a hunting and fishing lodge in Dorchester County, said the most difficult part of hunting turkey is calling them in with a mouth or friction call.

"You have to know what you're doing; it takes a lot of skill," he said. Wright said the Eastern Shore turkey population is up "probably 200 percent over the past few years" since the state reintroduced the bird to the area.

By the late 1970s, turkeys were living in only five Maryland counties. In an effort Beyer called "one of our best success stories in a long time," the department trapped and relocated turkeys to restore them to all 23 counties, a 20-year project that began in 1979.

Beyer said the population is doing very well on the Eastern Shore because there had not been turkeys in those counties for so long. The reintroduced birds thrived because they did not have to compete for habitat.

Beyer said the birds are also very adaptive, however, and do well even in highly populated suburban areas.

But more turkeys means more targets for hunters. Some birds will end up stuffed in the middle of a Thanksgiving table.

Sites, who lives in Waynesboro, Pa., is still hunting for his Thanksgiving turkey. He said he didn't have any luck during this fall's weeklong hunt, so he will head to western Pennsylvania, where the fall hunt is three weeks.

Shotgun Shoot Scheduled For Thanksgiving

The Farmers Wildlife Association in Friendsville will hold a shotgun and 22 shoot on Thursday, Thanksgiving Day, beginning at 1 p.m.

The shoot will be held at the clubhouse and is open to the public. Prizes will be awarded and refreshments will be available.

HARRY POTTER AND THE SORCERER'S STONE

Rated PG - Running Time: 2:32 - Released 11/16/01

The task of translating a wildly popular novel (especially a children's novel) into a feature film must be quite daunting; one can only imagine the pressure of having millions of rabid devotees watching to see how faithful the film is to its source material. Such is the case with J.K. Rowling's fanciful tale Harry Potter And The Sorcerer's Stone, a magic-filled story about a young boy from outside London who overcomes an abusive family situation to discover he's the ablest young wizard ever to wave a wand. In a few short years the book has become one of the most famous and widely read children's novels produced in the last century, and its sequels have had no less success, first in England and then spreading exponentially throughout the U.S. and the world, with kids lining up at bookstores to get their grubby little spell-casting mitts on the next episode.

Said pressure is surely the reason why director Chris Columbus's treatment of the pre-teen wizard's story, adapted from Rowling's best-selling 1997 novel by screenwriter Steven Kloves, is so witheringly long and tedious. I'm sure fans of the book see the need for the endless exposition and voluminous backstory to be incorporated in the film; I myself think it is an unfortunate choice, especially for a film aimed at the pre-teen crowd. While Harry Potter certainly does not disappoint from a technical standpoint, with the spectacular digital effects that have become standard of late, and it includes some notable British names in the adult cast, it is dreadfully slow and packed with minute details laboriously explained over and over by its pre-teen players, as if it were necessary to drive the point home without the slightest subtlety so that the young and fidgety audience would be absolutely sure to get the point. Egad, this sucker is long.

Harry Potter (played with affable blandness by Daniel Radcliffe, who's already working on the sequel) is a special child, a magical child born of two magical parents who were killed when he was an infant by a wizard so evil no one even likes to speak his name. Harry is grudgingly adopted (in Cinderella fashion) by his aunt and uncle, forced to cook, clean, and live under the stairs until his eleventh birthday, when he is whisked off to wizard school to fulfill his destiny by friendly and extremely hairy Gamekeeper Rubeus Hagrid (Robbie Coltrane). The fact that Harry has some ability in the black arts had always intrigued him, but he has no idea how famous he is among the magical crowd until he arrives at Hogwarts School of Witchcraft and Wizardry, where his name is spoken with reverence even by the headmaster, Professor Albus Dumbledore (Richard Harris). As it turns out, Harry is known not for being the child of slain parents, but for being the only one who survived.

As Harry's career at Hogwarts begins, he meets friends, like fellow freshmen Ron Weasley (Rupert Grint) and Hermione Granger (Emma Watson); enemies, like the sullen and devious Draco Malfoy (Tom Felton); and professors of all temperaments, like the stern but friendly Deputy Headmistress Minerva McGonagall (Maggie Smith), who likes to conduct class in the form of a common housecat, and the shadowy Professor Severus Snape (Alan Rickman), who is barely able to contain his contempt for precocious young wizards like Harry. Excelling at most things he puts his mind to, the boy competes in a visually remarkable game called Quidditch (a sort of airborne version of cricket/basketball/Smear the Queer played while flying recklessly around the stadium on broomsticks), finds an enchanted mirror which reveals the innermost desires of the one who stands before it, and obtains a magical cloak of invisibility with which he can sneak around various forbidden areas of the school and generally break the rules. In so doing, he and Ron and Hermione meet many strange creatures like a menacing green troll, an immense, three-headed dog, and a Norwegian baby dragon named Norbert, and eventually discover that something's not right at their new home. Something of great power is hidden somewhere, and our intrepid three novices must find it and keep it from falling into the wrong hands.

Like most big-budget, late-fall kids' movies of the last decade, this one is full of well-designed atmospheric charm, full of wondrous, expensive effects and mediocre-at-best acting, full of media hype and holiday-season merchandising opportunities. Sometimes the actual film pales in comparison to the feverish swirl of attention it generates. This movie's producers want it to be one of those defining moments of its generation like Star Wars; its final struggle bears shades of that film (even boasting a John Williams score), but Harry suffers from overindulgence on the part of its producers. There is no need for this film to be over 2 hours long; there are some pithy sequences (like the opening section about Harry's nasty family life) that could have been radically abbreviated and still made the point. Author Rowling is reportedly thrilled with the film; I'm sure she is, since very little effort was made at abbreviation of her complex story. Its three young stars are adequate (but not spectacular) in their roles, and the script is fun and whimsical but often overexplained. But then, folks, you have those effects. Many a moviegoer will gleefully shell out the bucks to be spellbound by the film's pixellated wizardry, and few will be immune to its captivating charms. ★★★★

OUT COLD

Out Cold serves as both the freshman effort of writer Jon Zack and the debut project of co-directors Brendan and Emmett Malloy; my personal opinion is that it is the result of a bunch of drunk snowboarders who got ahold of a camera. Surprisingly, though, despite the fact that the film is obviously little more than a vehicle to show off the truly amazing (actually I think the word is "AWESOME!") snowboarding talent by people who may or may not be the actual actors in the film, it is quite funny at times. While Tomcats attempted, with pathetic results, to raise "boys will be boys" humor to feature film level, this one is more successful, with silly antics and amusing characterizations by a bunch of virtually unknown actors.

Attempting to add gravity to the film with a retread (snowtread?) of the Casablanca story line, our lead character is Rick (Jason London), the all-around nice guy who is known to all his friends who work at the remote and rustic Bull Mountain ski resort, Alaska, as the "king of the mountain." And even though Rick enjoys the friendship and respect of his beer guzzling/snowboarding pals Luke (Zach Galifianakis), "Pigpen" (Derek Hamilton), Anthony (Flex Alexander), Lance (David Denman), and even resident hottie Jenny (A.J. Cook), who makes no secret about her desire to go out with him, Rick can't forget the girl who broke his heart, Anna. After meeting and falling deeply in love, the couple spent a few weeks together until Anna inexplicably disappeared.

But Rick's heartsick problems soon pale in comparison to the trouble brewing in town when wealthy and arrogant developer John Majors (Lee Majors of Six Million Dollar / Fall Guy fame) decides to buy the resort from its weaselly current owner (Willie Garson) and transform it into a high-profile, multi-million-dollar, latté-serving playground for the rich and famous, as the newest addition to his chain of "Major Resorts." While this change will surely attract untold numbers of fabulous chicks to the resort, including Majors's own Swedish stepdaughter Inga (Victoria Silvstedt), a blonde bombshell who makes all the guys drool, it also means that all resort staffers have to wear stupid looking uniforms and cowtow to Majors, who has decided to change the name of Bull Mountain to "Snownook." The real bombshell comes, however, when the town is visited by Rick's old flame Anna (Caroline Dhavernas), who turns out to be: 1) engaged to be married and 2) Majors's other daughter.

While the Casablanca-esque love story (which includes lines from and other overt references to the classic film) does more to induce nausea than any other emotion, Out Cold has its moments, primarily those populated by Galifianakis, whose affable characterization of Luke is almost as amusing as Jack Black in High Fidelity. Then there are the wacky antics of Saturday Night Live alum David Koechner, playing a sort of narrator/town loony, whose skewed monologues and affected physical mannerisms will remind SNL fans of his amusing "T-Bone" character. Finally, interspersed with the prank-playing and various silliness of the gang is the kind of spectacular snowboarding footage you'd see in a Mountain Dew commercial, shot at the Apex ski resort in British Columbia. Numerous out-takes featuring bone-crushing flubs of these scenes are featured during the end credits.

There's no question that the creative team behind this film is still wet behind the snowsuit, but although its main plot is a disposable low-rent ripoff and its leading players generally bland and undistinguished, there are some truly amusing supporting characters which make it at least worth seeing when it arrives on video. ★★½

THE IMPORTANCE OF CARING AND GIVING is the theme of the upcoming essay contest for third graders in the 11 local elementary schools. The contest is solely sponsored by Jim and Betty Rollins, who have established the contest in memory of their son, who died at age 8 from leukemia. Pictured above, sitting, are Betty and Jim Rollins. Standing are Randee Craig, enrichment program coordinator for the board of education, who organized and coordinated the essay contest; and Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent.

Generous Family Gives Opportunity To Local Third Graders With Contest

by Beth L. Bowers

They called him son number two, and because of a short story Michael Rollins wrote at age 8 in 1958, shortly before he died of leukemia, his parents Jim and Betty have sponsored an essay contest for third graders in the 11 local elementary schools.

To honor their son and his love of writing, the Rollinses joined together with Randee Craig at the Garrett County Board of Education to set into motion this writing contest on the topic, "It's Better to Give Than to Receive."

The Rollinses, who reside in Cumberland, had connections with Garrett County through Mr. Rollins' accounting business, which his sons now operate. Michael, was their second child out of nine, and he was very interested in writing, and even wrote, published, and sold his very own newspaper when he was 8 years old. Before he entered the hospital on Dec. 1, 1958, he wrote a story titled "Merry Christmas." It was about how a woodcutter is able to give his children a wonderful Christmas, not only after he scrapes together money for presents, but with the lesson of the true meaning of Christmas.

Michael was a Cub Scout and had hoped to have his essay published in Boy's Life, but his mother said she knew he would not live long enough to see it published, so she contacted the Columbus Dispatch. A story about Michael and his essay was published on Dec. 7, and the Associated Press picked up the story and ran it on Dec. 8, just three days before Michael died.

The story received much national publicity and Childrens Hospital in Columbus, Ohio, where Mike was being treated, named the research lab after him. Betty said she rushed out to get a copy of the Dispatch and started looking from the back of the paper for the story. She said she was shocked and quite pleased to turn to the front page and see Mike's story on the front page with a large, bold headline.

According to his parents, Mike lived to see the story published, but did not live to see the outpouring of support from around the world.

"We learned a lot about generosity and human kindness," Betty said. "Central Ohio is called the Heart of Ohio, and it is very true. People were so kind."

Jim said they received letters from all over the world, and they answered every card that had a return address on it.

"It got to the point that the mail carrier would bring entire mail bags to our house and dump them out," he said.

Mike was named an honorary member of the writer's club in Columbus, and his Cub Scout Troop gave him a Huffy bicycle for an early Christmas present that year. According to his mom, he never got to ride it, but nothing made him happier than those two things.

Craig coordinated this essay contest with the Garrett County Character Education Program. "She was an answer to our prayers," Jim said. "This project means a lot to me and I am glad to have an opportunity to do it.

"Garrett County has always made us feel very welcome," he added. "We thought this was the ideal time for this project. It is close to the time of year that Mike died, and with the current situation nationally, it is nice to focus on things such as caring and giving."

Students are asked to write a short story or essay on giving, and may share examples of when they gave to others and how it made them feel.

"This ties in nicely with our character education program we do in the school system," said Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent. "This is a very unique experience for the students. We are very honored to be selected for this essay contest."

The character development traits for the month of December are caring and giving. The third grade teachers at all of the schools will advise their students on how they can enter this contest. A team of school-based judges will select a first, second, and third place winner from each school by Dec. 7. These will then to be sent to a team of judges chosen by the Rollins family.

The judges are Mary Struntz, Jim's sister and retired teacher; Dr. John Gulck, principal of St. Peter's School, Westernport; Linda Gerwig, teacher in the Allegany county school district; Jim and Betty Rollins; and Dr. Bill Bingman, professor of children's literature at Frostburg State University.

The winners will be announced by Dec. 17, and each winner will receive a savings bond. First place is $500, second place is $300, and third place is $200. Eight honorary mention awards of $25 will be also be awarded. The prizes will be awarded at the board of education meeting on Jan. 8 at 6:40 p.m.

"This is a wonderful opportunity, and we thank you (the Rollinses)," said Dr. Brenda McCartney, assistant superintendent.

According to Jim, the contest has two agendas. First is to honor Mike, who according to his parents was a special child who truly enjoyed writing. The second purpose will earn Jim three credits toward his bachelor of science degree in English. He plans to graduate this coming May.

Local Woman Not Guilty Of Assault Charge

A Grantsville woman was found not guilty of a second-degree assault charge in Garrett County Circuit Court last week when the complainant, her spouse, asserted his marital privilege not to testify, according to Garrett County State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch.

Shannon A. Ottaviani, 31, was charged in April after her husband made an application for charges with the Garrett County District Court commissioner for events alleged to have happened at the couple's home in August 2000.

In another Circuit Court case heard last week, Michael Andrew O'Connor, 32, Elkridge, pleaded guilty to operating a vessel while intoxicated. A related speeding violation was dismissed upon his plea, said Welch.

O'Connor was stopped on Aug. 19, 2000, by a Natural Resources Police officer who reportedly observed the defendant operating a personal watercraft in excess of the area's designated 6 knots. After speaking with him and observing his attempts at field sobriety tests, O'Connor was charged, according to the state's attorney.

Judge James Sherbin imposed a $500 fine and a sentence of 30 days to be served in the Garrett County Jail, which was suspended, and placed O'Connor on six months of supervised probation.

In another unrelated case, Sherbin re-imposed an 18-month sentence for Dale Matthew Frazee, 20, of Friendsville who reportedly admitted to violating his probation. Frazee was sentenced in August 2000 to three years at the Department of Correction, with 18 months suspended for a felony theft conviction.

After being released from the facility, Frazee was on supervised probation in April 2001, when he violated his probation by fleeing from a police officer, who tried to stop Frazee's vehicle for an equipment violation. At that time, it was discovered that Frazee's license was revoked, and the vehicle he was driving was not registered, said Welch.

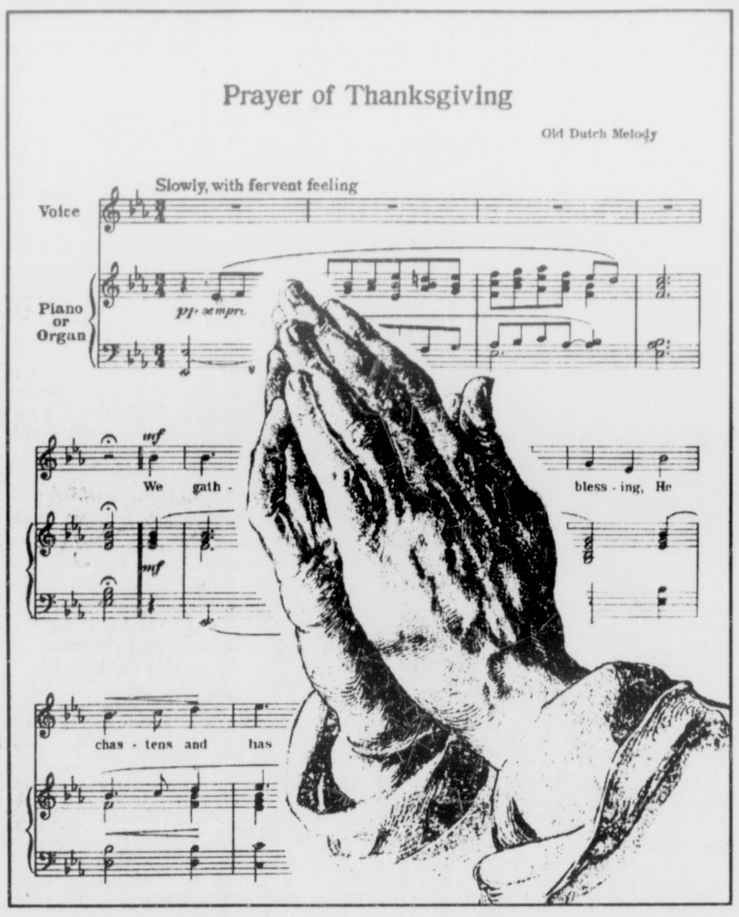
Thoughts of Giving Thanks



From early childhood, many of us were taught to give thanks daily or perhaps several times a day. Did we know why we prayed? Do we know yet today? Let us take a few moments to think about giving thanks.

"But still remember what the Lord hath done". How can we repay the Lord for all His goodness to us? Our faith is strengthened each time we remember, or bring to mind, how our Heavenly Father loves us and cares for us each day. This positive affirmation can add years to our life and life to our years.

This Thanksgiving, as we give our prayer of thanks, may we remember the words of Psalm 118:1 "...Give thanks to the Lord, for he is good; his love endures forever."

"Let never day nor night unhallowed pass,
But still remember what the Lord hath done."

The LITMUS TEST
November 25, 2001

Background Scripture: Matthew 7
Devotional Reading: Romans 13:8-14.

Do you remember the litmus test? Litmus is a substance obtained from certain lichens. If it is introduced into an alkaline solution, the litmus turns blue. If, instead, it is introduced to an acid solution, the litmus turns red. If I remember correctly, the litmus test is virtually infallible in determining whether a solution is alkaline or acidic.

Tests are becoming ever more important in our society. I can remember when the pregnancy test first appeared. Now, we have tests to tell us whether the unborn child will be a boy or a girl. Our newspaper yesterday told of scientists who have discovered an element in the blood that will tell them if the person tested is likely to have a heart attack. Wouldn't it be a breakthrough if a similar blood or DNA test could determine which airplane passengers are likely to become terrorists!

Some people like to present themselves as being able to distinguish between authentic and inauthentic Christian discipleship. Unfortunately, the standards by which these self-appointed prophets make their 'sheep and goats' judgments are based upon principles that are often in direct and explicit contradiction to the teachings of Jesus Christ. "Judge not, that you be not judged"—what could be clearer than that?

Specks and Logs

Jesus not only commands us not to "judge", he tells us why. First, "For with the judgment you pronounce you will be judged" (7:2). Jesus does not mean that we will be judged by our own standards, for it is our standards that are wanting. For example, if we condemn someone because they are Episcopalian instead of United Methodists, Jesus is not saying that is how we will be judged, too. (Although many of us would fail that standard, too). What he is saying here is that, if we judge others without divine wisdom and grace, we slam shut the door through which God's grace would enter our lives.

Secondly, human beings are always prejudiced when they judge both others and themselves. "Why do you see the speck that is in your brother's eye, but do not notice the log that is in your own eye...You hypocrite, first take the log out of your own eye, and then you will see clearly to take the speck out of your brother's eye" (vs. 3-5). But, we never get all the logs out of our own eyes and thus never have the clarity to judge others.

So, one litmus test of determining authentic or inauthentic discipleship is the habit of pronouncing judgments of condemnation on others.

Truly, Jesus has given us a litmus test to determine authentic Christian discipleship. For example, how can we determine which prophets are 'wolves' in 'sheep's clothing' and which are authentic prophets? We do not need to administer a doctrinal test or an examination of beliefs. Jesus says simply, "You will know them by their fruits" ...So, every sound tree bears good fruit, but the bad tree bears evil fruit." One of the "evil" fruits is certainly the habit of judging other Christians with the log that is in our own eye.

Deeds, Not Words

Let us not rely on what people say about their faith. "Not everyone who says to me, 'Lord, Lord,' shall enter the kingdom., but he who does the will of my Father who is in heaven" (v.

a station, and then getting it fixed in time to get to that holiday dinner is going to be hard to do," Wieman said, noting that most mechanics will be understaffed for the holiday.

After checking the oil and tires, Wieman suggests drivers keep an emergency kit on hand just in case. Include a blanket, flashlight, jumper cables, and flares or reflective warning triangles. Keep a jug of water where the heater will prevent freezing while the car is running. A cell phone is also good to have around in case of a problem.

Charges Still Pending In Single Vehicle Accident

Charges are pending in a single-vehicle accident on Saturday around 3:30 a.m. on Route 38 near Kitzmiller, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Jeremy E. Sweitzer, 19, Oakland, apparently fell asleep at the wheel of this 1981 Dodge Ram 4x4 truck and crossed the north bound lane, climbing an embankment, and overturning one time before coming to rest on the passenger side in the north lane.

The accident was discovered by Garrett County Roads Department employees. According to the report, Sweitzer appeared to be uninjured and refused treatment by rescue personnel.

Kitzmiller Volunteer Fire Department and Southern Rescue Squad also responded to the scene.

Thanksgiving Travelers Advised To Follow Scouts' Motto - Be Prepared

by Melanie Starkey
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON - Thanksgiving travelers should take a tip from the Boy Scouts before leaving home this year — be prepared. Experts warn that while numbers of travelers might be down from last year, there are more than enough people with long-distance trips planned to create a headache for anyone traveling by planes, trains, or automobiles.

And the usual Thanksgiving travel hassles will be compounded this year by new security measures enacted after Sept. 11, prompting travel experts to advise people to make plans early and to leave plenty of extra time.

"We don't want people to let their guard down and think they're going to jump on I-95 and think they're going to get wherever they want to go," said Myra Wieman, a spokeswoman for the American Automobile Association in the mid-Atlantic. "It's important to note there are still plenty of people on the roads."

And that goes for trains, buses, and planes, too. While air travel is expected to be down sharply, other sectors of the travel business are likely to pick up the slack. Even airport officials are warning passengers to arrive at least two hours early for peak-time flights.

All airlines are expecting heaviest travel on Wednesday and Sunday, although Tara Hamilton, public affairs manager for the Metropolitan Washington Airports Authority, said she has seen holiday travel times creep out over a longer period of time over the years.

"In the past, actually we would see crowds even the weekend before Thanksgiving," Hamilton said. "It's tended over the years to spread out more because people are trying to avoid the crowds."

Hamilton said she could not provide estimates on the number of travelers expected to go through National and Dulles over the holiday, except to predict which days would be heaviest. Baltimore/Washington International Airport spokeswoman Melanie Miller expects 1.6 million passengers at BWI over Thanksgiving, a drop of 8 percent from last year. Despite that drop, however, she was urging travelers to leave plenty of time to get to the airport and get through security.

While the airlines struggle, carriers like Amtrak are in fact making gains. Amtrak spokesman Cliff Black said ridership has spiked several times this fall, especially in the days immediately following the attacks.

Tickets can be bought the same day as travel, but Black recommends making purchases at least a day ahead of time. In previous years, passengers could buy unreserved seats at any point before train departure. From Tuesday to next Monday, all Amtrak seats will be reserved, meaning passengers will have to buy a ticket for a specific seat.

The temporary change is intended to enhance security measures already taken by Amtrak, including extra uniformed and undercover train police officers on board and extra monitoring of stations and tracks for suspicious activity.

Although the number of expected motorists nationwide is down by a half million from last year, to 30 million, that is still 1.5 million more travelers than on Memorial Day in 2001, according to the AAA. With that in mind, Wieman suggests drivers avoid the roads on the Wednesday before and the Sunday after Thanksgiving Day, typically the dates for the heaviest travel.

She also suggests a thorough inspection of all vehicles to prevent holiday-ruining highway breakdowns.

Huxford Home Among Those In Red Cross Tours

The home of Dusty and Elizabeth Huxford will be among those in the 10th annual Home for the Holidays House Tours event, sponsored by the Western Potomac Chapter of the American Red Cross (which includes Garrett County). The holiday event will take place on Friday, Nov. 30, and Saturday, Dec. 1.

The Huxfords are among five families taking part in this year's fund-raiser, along with one church, according to a Red Cross spokesperson. The houses range from contemporary to some that were constructed in the early 1800s, and the church is St. Paul's United Methodist in Oakland, established in the early days of the town's history.

The Huxfords have been involved with the American Red Cross for over 20 years and said they are happy to offer their contemporary home for the 2001 American Red Cross Christmas House Tour. Completed in 1996 by Cornerstone Construction, the house was based on plans purchased out of a magazine. The owners then hand-drafted changes to the plans to suit their personalities, including ample deck space, a garage with storage loft, a guest suite, and full computer network capabilities throughout the house.

The open floor design lends itself to cozy entertaining, with limited interior doors and ample windows overlooking the wooded lot. Placement of the home was chosen for maximum privacy during the summer, and for mountain views all winter long, the Huxfords said.

Furnishings in the home are eclectic, with contemporary and antique pieces side by side. For Christmas, the Huxfords have taken a themed approach to decorating, with everything from a period guest room to a "kitschy" study, and even a "classic Pooh" room. Trees have been placed throughout the house to display the substantial collection of Christmas ornaments the family has accumulated over three generations. On display will be family heirlooms, such as a childhood sled from Germany, a set of genuine sleigh bells, Red Cross items, part of their Royal Doulton character jug collection, and a collection of Hallmark ornaments.

The Huxfords enjoy living in a wooded setting, sharing their yard with a wide array of birds, deer, and other wildlife. The exterior will be decked for the holidays with hundreds of lights. The family welcomes all tour-goers to their home for the holidays as they share their personal desire to support the American Red Cross.

Raffles will be held at each of the tour sites, with gifts donated from area businesses. Tour hours are Friday, 4 until 9 p.m.; and Saturday, 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. Tickets, which are $5 in advance and $7 on the day of the tours, can be purchased at Proudfoot's, Gregg's, and Deep Creek pharmacies, as well as at Flowers by Webers in Oakland and Arrowhead Market at Deep Creek Lake.

The proceeds from this event will help meet the immediate needs of Red Cross projects, the spokesperson said.

Price Report On Timber Sales Is Released

Harvesting trees from Maryland forests is a $33 million dollar industry, and for the third consecutive year, a price report system that shows recent trends in timber sales in Maryland and Delaware will benefit owners of forested properties. The quarterly stumpage price report gives the prices paid for standing trees.

"This report helps landowners who want to manage their land but don't know where to start," said Hagner R. Mister, secretary of the Maryland Department of Agriculture. "It gives them an idea of how much money they might get, but more importantly, it directs them to professional foresters to help determine how best to manage the harvest."

The Maryland Department of Agriculture worked with the Maryland Cooperative Extension, Maryland Department of Natural Resources Forest Service, the Delaware Forest Service, the Maryland Tree Farmers, and forest landowners to develop a way to make the report both useful and economical. The quarterly report is used regularly by landowners and professional foresters.

The stumpage price report is divided into four regions to accurately reflect the forest product markets in Maryland and Delaware. It reports the stumpage price and information about how the values were calculated every three months. The report also directs readers to licensed professional foresters, educational publications, and scheduled forestry seminars.

"I find the report very useful for following price trends in our area," says Leonard Wrabel of MarLen Forestry in Westminster. "There is not much lo-cal forestry information around, so we are hungry for it."

Wrabel notes that it is a good guide, but landowners need to know the importance of having professionals evaluate their trees. For a variety of reasons, they may be more or less valuable than the prices listed.

Forest products on Maryland farms sold in the year 2000 added $33 million to the state's economy, according to the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service. The on-farm source of that $33 million is a segment of the much larger $230 million economic impact of timber management and harvesting estimated in a 1999 study produced by Agricultural and Community Development Services for the Committee to Study the Economic Importance of the Maryland Forestry and Wood Products Industry.

"Landowners who attend our forestry seminars like the report," said Robert Tjaden of the Maryland Cooperative Extension. The report gives them an understanding of how timber pricing works, but does not stand alone.

The sale of timber products should include: 1) the forest landowner selling the timber; 2) a licensed professional forester to assist the landowner in determining which trees should be harvested and working with the logger; and 3) the logger who carries out the actual harvesting of the trees. Foresters assist landowners in making informed decisions about the management of their forests before implementing harvesting activities. With the help of professional forest managers, the objectives of landowners can be balanced between the environmental and economic values each woodland is capable of producing. All foresters practicing in the state of Maryland must be licensed by the Maryland Department of Labor, Licensing, and Regulation.

The Stumpage Price Report and related information is available at http://www.naturalresources.umd.edu/Pages/May_Aug_2001_Stumpage.html. For a report on the economic importance of the forestry and wood products industry in Maryland, persons should go to: http://www.naturalresources.umd.edu/Pages/Forest Econ Impact.html.

"Wireless Heroes" Being Sought

U.S. Cellular is calling on "wireless heroes" nationwide to "stand up and be counted." Any U.S. Cellular customer who has used his or her wireless phone in a way beneficial to the community, such as saving a life or preventing a crime, is encouraged to submit his or her wireless success story to compete in a national awards competition. In June 2002, winners will receive an all-expense-paid trip for two to Washington, D.C. In the city, they will be honored at the VITA Samaritan Awards Dinner and will also meet with U.S. Congressional leaders.

Every day, wireless phone subscribers place more than 140,000 calls to 911 or other emergency numbers. These calls account for 96 calls per minute, or 51 million calls per year.

The 2002 VITA Awards will be presented to "wireless samaritans" from each state, as well as the District of Columbia, Guam, and Puerto Rico. All entrants must be U.S. Cellular customers. In addition, wireless hero stories must have occurred during 2001. All entries must be submitted by December 31, 2001, to: U.S. Cellular, External Communications Department, 8410 Bryn Mawr, Chicago, IL 60631. Previous VITA recipients are ineligible for this year's competition.

WARM THE CHILDREN

Providing New Winter Clothing For Needy Children

For the fifth year, The Republican is asking for your help. Without it, many Garrett County children will go cold this winter.

Just what is The Republican newspaper's WARM THE CHILDREN FUND?

The Republican's Warm The Children Fund is, basically, neighbors helping neighbors. We here at the paper are asking for monetary donations (tax deductible) from you, the readers. The collected funds are being used to purchase new winter clothing for Garrett County children in need. Because the newspaper administers the program, there are no added fees or overhead costs. Every penny donated is used to buy the winter items.

How are needy children being identified?

A special core of volunteers is working right now to identify those in need this year. Many have already been served. (Please do not call for the service. If you have been selected, you will soon be notified.)

How is the children's clothing be purchased?

Volunteers are taking the families shopping at Wal-Mart or through the J.C. Penney's catalog store in Oakland, or at the Ames in Frostburg. The children, with the help of their parents, may select their own new coats, hats, sweaters, long johns, jeans, boots, pajamas, or other needed winter items, spending up to $100 per child.

We need two things: volunteers and donations.

To volunteer as a shopper in Oakland, please contact Linda Thomas at 301-387-6203. To volunteer as a shopper at Ames, please call Lisa Broadwater at 301-895-5827 or 301-746-8223. For general information, you may call Mary McEwen at the newspaper office at 301-334-3963.

THE REPUBLICAN

To make a donation, please complete the coupon below, cut it out, and mail it along with your tax-deductible contribution to the address noted. All checks should be made out to Warm the Children Fund.

Please make your donations before November 30, 2001. Those collected after November 30 will be saved for next year's campaign.

TV PIPELINE

Guardian star began in Australia

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Q: Please give me some information on Simon Baker of The Guardian. I don't think I've ever seen him before. –Mrs. Gerry V., Skokie, Ill.

A: The Australian-born Baker, 32, was a TV star in his own country (as Simon Baker-Denny) before emigrating to Los Angeles with actress-wife Rebecca Rigg (L.A. Doctors). Upon arriving stateside, Baker quickly was cast in the Oscar-winning L.A. Confidential.

Simon Baker

Since then, the actor has worked steadily in such uneven films as the quirky Judas Kiss, Ang Lee's Western flop Ride With the Devil and the sci-fi disappointment Red Planet. He co-stars with Oscar winner Hilary Swank (Boys Don't Cry) in the upcoming feature The Affair of the Necklace.

Baker and Rigg welcomed their third child, a son, on Sept. 19.

Q: I thoroughly enjoyed the new History Channel episodes of A History of England, but was startled to see the name David Soul appear in the credits for the episode dealing with the American Revolution. Did the artist formerly known as Hutch really have something to do with this British-made series? –Brian P., Atlanta, Ga.

A: As a matter of fact, yes. Former Starsky and Hutch star David Soul, who lives and works mainly in England these days, provided the voice of Benjamin Franklin.

Q: Why did ABC drop The Mole II after only three episodes? There was no announcement as to why. Can you at least tell us who the Mole was? –Peggy Planin via e-mail.

A: The Mole II premiered earlier this fall to disastrous ratings, perhaps because Americans were more focused on "reality programming" of a very different kind in light of current events. ABC quickly pulled the show, but did announce to the entertainment press that it will be relaunched later this season, perhaps in March.

Q: Are Dana and Kim Delaney sisters? How about Rachel and Sela Ward? –Kathy Brown, Sebring, Ohio.

A: No to both the above questions – and Dana's last name is spelled Delany, not Delaney.

Q: I recently caught a rerun of Cosby that was all about Madeline Kahn. Did she die? –Michael Reid, Seattle.

A: Sadly, yes. The beloved Tony winner and Oscar-nominated veteran of several Mel Brooks movies died of ovarian cancer on Dec. 3, 1999. She was 57.

IN FOCUS

Elton John fans – including series creator David E. Kelley – will want to catch the pop icon's performance on Ally McBeal Monday, Nov. 26, on Fox.

John sings two new releases and his '70s megahit "Saturday Night's Alright for Fighting" in the new episode "I Want Love," in which Jenny's (Julianne Nicholson) mother (guest star Jacqueline Bisset) hires Ally and Glenn (Calista Flockhart, James Marsden) for a wrongful termination lawsuit.

FRIDAY

Julie Andrews stars as a governess who becomes instrumental in the lives of the Von Trapp family in The Sound of Music, airing Friday on Fox.

Home Care—"The Heart Of American Health Care"

Editor's Note: The following description of home health care services available locally through the Garrett County Health Department was supplied by a spokesperson for the Health Department as part of the November observance of National Home Care Month.

Home care is the oldest and most enduring tradition of health care delivery in the world. Recent changes in the health care system have brought about shorter hospital stays and the emphasis that being home speeds recovery. Most individuals do prefer to remain at home with their family and friends in surroundings that are familiar and comfortable.

Garrett County Health Department's Home Health Agency continues to offer a practical means of providing health care and related services to those in need with the expertise of a highly trained and efficient staff.

Garrett County HHA services offered in the home are skilled nursing, home health aide, physical therapy, occupational therapy, medical social worker, and nutrition consultations. To be eligible for Home Health services, individuals must be under the care of a physician, in need of intermittent, part-time skilled care, be referred by their physician, and be essentially homebound.

Anyone can contact the GCHD/HHA regarding information concerning the Home Health program. Free evaluations can be performed by the Adult Evaluation and Review Services team for information concerning available community resources.

In addition to Home Health services, the GCHD/HHA has been awarded a grant from the Maryland Health Care Foundation to provide venipuncture services for individuals in the county who are essentially homebound. Persons must be under the care of a physician and experience difficulty in traveling to the laboratory or physician's office for needed lab work.

Physicians can contact the Garrett County Health Department Home Health Agency with the request for patient's lab work. A visit to the patient will then be scheduled. For more information regarding the Venipuncture Grant you can contact the GCHD/HHA and/or your physician.

The Garrett County Health Department Home Health Agency has a professionally trained, licensed and certified staff with years of home health experience. The Home Health Agency is Medicare certified and licensed by the State of Maryland. For more information, persons may call 301-334-7750, 301-895-3111 or fax 301-334-7751.

Despite Lack Of Rainfall, State Is Not Yet Experiencing Drought

by Penny Riordan
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — There's no drought in Maryland, and despite the lack of rain, the state is better off than it was in 1999, state officials said.

"We're not getting too worried," said U.S. Geological Survey hydrologist Wendy McPherson. "Water supply is OK, there aren't many crops growing, but it's the future we're concerned about."

Maryland is in the "watch" stage, or the second of four stages used to determine drought conditions. The final stage is "emergency" and constitutes a drought.

Factors for defining drought include rainfall, stream flow, and groundwater and reservoir levels. Maryland's current groundwater and reservoir levels are mostly normal, but a lack of rain and low stream flow are of concern to officials. Rainfall is running 28 percent of normal for October, according to the Maryland Department of the Environment.

Some streams, particularly in Carroll and Harford counties, are at record low levels. The longer the area goes without rain, the worse the other factors get.

"This is the time that we usually get a recharge," McPherson said. "The streams are being fed mostly by groundwater and that's going to keep going down because there is no rain."

November is a critical month for determining the effects on next year's growing season. If a lot of rain comes within the next few weeks, then the chances of drought will be all but eliminated.

Because spring and summer brought sufficient rain, crops for the most part fared well compared to the summer of 1999.

"The timing of the drought was fairly good for the summer crops," said Don Vandrey, spokesman for the Maryland Department of Agriculture. "The drought of 1999 was all summer long and the summer crops just never got off the ground," he said.

However, if rain doesn't come within the next few weeks, crops like winter wheat could be damaged, Vandrey said.

"If we don't get water within the next three or four weeks, the seeds themselves can die," he said.

A continuing lack of precipitation through the winter would have a negative impact on the spring growing season, McPherson said.

"We may go into next year with a deficit," she said. "We're going to need above-level precipitation if we're going to have a normal spring."

The worst impact the lack of rain has had is the high number of wild fires. Area firefighters have responded to more than 100 fires in the past few weeks, said Department of Natural Resources spokesman Chuck Porcari.

"For Maryland, these are extraordinarily large fires," he said. "This is all relative to the fact that there is a lack of moisture in the ground."

Maryland's only weather-related restriction is a statewide ban on open fires in woodlands issued by Gov. Parris N. Glendening on Nov. 9. Although water restrictions are not in place, said Saeid Kasraei of the Maryland Department of the Environment, the state is encouraging people in northern counties within the drought watch area to conserve water.

"It's not time to panic," Kasraei said. "It's time to be concerned."

Free Workshop Set For Women Cancer Patients

Women undergoing cancer treatments are invited to a free Look Good...Feel Better workshop designed to help cope with the appearance-related side effects of treatment. The session is scheduled for Tuesday, Dec. 4, from 6 to 8 p.m., at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Look Good...Feel Better is a two-hour, hands-on group workshop conducted by volunteer cosmetologists that includes a 12-step skin care and makeup program. They also demonstrate how to use wigs, turbans, scarves, and hats to enhance appearance. Patients must be undergoing chemotherapy or radiation treatment to participate.

The program is a partnership between the American Cancer Society, the Cosmetic, Toiletry, and Fragrance Association Foundation, and the National Cosmetology Association.

Persons interested in registering for the workshop may contact Dena Clester at GCMH, 301-533-4295.

Library's Teen Book Club Sets Dec. Discussion

The upcoming monthly book discussion of the Ruth Enlow Library's Teen Book Club is set for Saturday, Dec. 8, at 2 p.m. in the Oakland library. This month's book selection is Goose Chase author Patrice Kindl's adventurous twist on an old fairy tale.

"Alexandria Aurora Fortunato is as lovely as the dawn," librarian and book club coordinator Keela Pfaff said in outlining the book's plot. "She was just an everyday goose girl until a mysterious old woman bestowed on her three magical gifts. Aside from her newfound beauty, Alexandria now cries diamonds instead of tears and gold dust falls from her head each time she combs her hair.

"Locked up in a tower with a grille of iron bars over the window, Alexandria must choose between marriage to the bumbling Prince of Dorloo or his rival, King Claudio the Cruel. Not wanting to marry a man who covets only her beauty and her wealth, the independent and witty Alexandria decides her only option is to escape.

Aided by her twelve beloved goose companions, she embarks upon a journey full of magic and romance. Alexandria's adventure pits her against flesh-eating ogresses, dark dungeons, and the betrayal of her own hair."

Book discussions of the Teen Book Club are open to all interested youth. To reserve a copy of Goose Chase, participants may call the Ruth Enlow Library at 301-334-3996.

MINER KIDS SHOW DOGS, ACCUMULATE TROPHIES — The children of Ron and Wendy Miner of the Grantsville area are well on their way to filling a room with trophies given their success in training and showing registered coonhounds. Pictured from the left are Tosha, 14; April, 13; Amber, 12; Ronnie Jr., 7; and Jasmine, 10. Each of the children, along with their father and mother, have produced some fine coondogs, with at least three grand champions among the group including Ronnie Jr.'s "Billy Willy," a treeing walker; Amber's "Jack," a black and tan; and Ron's "Zip," a treeing walker that has captured three grand champion designations. To rate as grand champion, a dog must accumulate 100 points in various shows, and take a Best of Show honor in a "bench show" where the dog must pass a rigorous inspection by a trained judge who rates stance, position, posture, bearing, and concentration, among other factors. The Miners dogs aren't just for show, however, as the entire family goes coon-hunting together every chance they get, hitting the woods at dusk on Saturday evenings and not returning home until anywhere between 1 and 5 a.m. The fall coon season is wrapping up this week, so if anyone has noted the Miners bearing a slight resemblance to their prey (dark circles under the eyes), now you know why.

Antiques

by Ralph and Terry Kovel

Serving cheese for dinner? Looking for an antique serving piece? Two styles of cheese dishes were used in the 19th century.

The cheese trolley is an English design that has never been adapted by the silver and dinnerware makers of most other countries. This specially shaped dish was neither bowl nor tray. It was used to hold the very large rounds of the popular English Stilton cheese. The trolley is usually about 15 inches long and less than 8 inches high. It is boat-shaped with a center shaped to hold the rounded edge of a wheel of cheese. These cheese trolleys are sold primarily as table decorations. They are used to hold fruit or flowers.

The other type of cheese dish that has gone out of style is a covered dish similar to a cake dish. The plate was rectangular, not round. The top was shaped like a wedge of cheese, not a dome. Most hostesses today serve cheese on a tray, and the old-fashioned shapes of past centuries are forgotten.

Q • I have a strange old bottle that • reads "Soda Water, Property of Coca-Cola 1923." Could this be an old Coke bottle?

A. Yes. The Coca-Cola Company has made many different bottles in the years since it was founded in 1886. Any bottle that has the name Coca-Cola printed or embossed on it was used by the company. Any item that is connected with the company — ads, trays, bottles, thermometers, even gum wrappers — is worth money because there are many collectors of Coca-Cola memorabilia.

Paw's corner

by Sam Mazzotta

A holiday dog dilemma

Q. This Thanksgiving, we had a large number of people over for the day. Our golden retriever, Sally, is a well-behaved dog, so we let her mingle. But she acted horribly! She growled at some of the adults and frightened the kids. Why was she so bad?

A. Sally wasn't being "bad" — she was stressed out!

Golden retrievers are naturally sociable dogs, but they are dogs nonetheless — and your home is her territory. Having one or two people over for dinner is no problem for a well-socialized dog, but when a pack of unfamiliar humans crowd into her living space, things get confusing and frustrating very fast.

Try to visualize Sally's point of view: You're two feet high, wandering through a suddenly unfamiliar landscape of legs, tennis shoes, loafers and spike heels. A thousand strange smells assault your sensitive nose. Hands big and small pat you all over, some not so gently. And now a toddler is tugging on your ears! Ouch! You don't want to bite a human — after all, Mom and Dad will punish you — but at the same time, this is your home! Hey — someone's standing on your sleeping rug! And the couch is completely filled with humans! That's it, I'm putting my paw down!

And Sally starts barking, jumping, growling and — basically — acting like a dog.

Now, you can't stop having parties for Sally's sake. So the best solution is to limit your dog's interaction during big get-togethers. Keep her in a quiet room, or in her kennel cage (preferably placed out of common areas) with lots of toys, food and water. Stop in to visit with her every hour or so. And if the party isn't too crowded, bring her out for a short period of time to say hello.

With Christmas fast approaching, you'll probably be under stress yourself with all the parties, projects and other obligations. Keep in mind that Sally will be a bit anxious from all the excitement. Schedule some quiet time to play with your dog. She'll be a lot calmer, which will minimize her anxiety as the holiday approaches.

100th Birthday Celebration Set

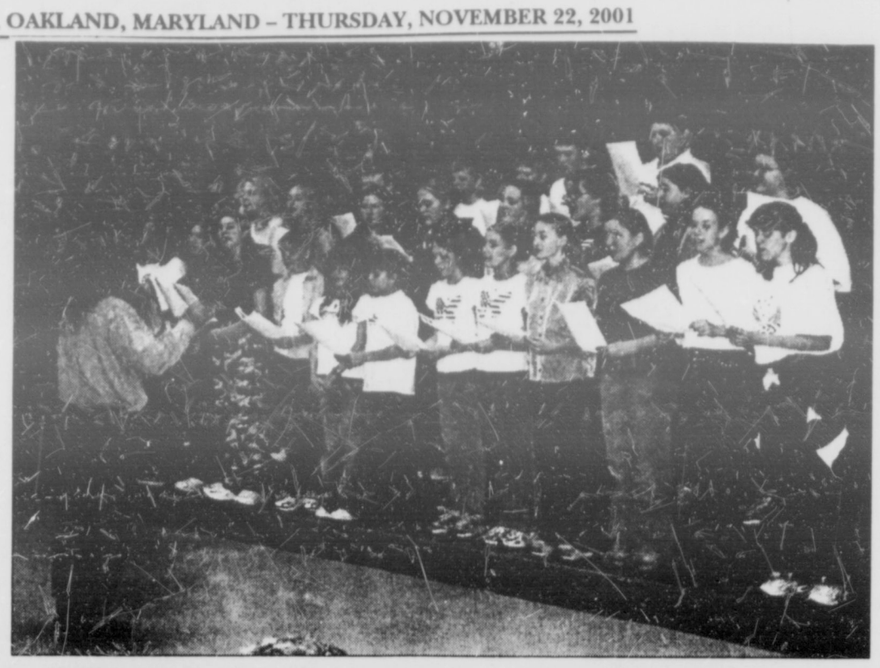
Leona S. "Granny" Pennington will celebrate her 100th birthday on Nov. 29. A long-time resident of Mt. Storm, W.Va., she was a homemaker and a cook at local restaurants before becoming a cook at the Mt. Storm Elementary School. This is where she acquired the name "Granny" and is still known by that name today.

She is the second of 15 children, with only one sister, Azonia Lawrence, still living. Participating in the celebration will be her three grandsons, Tommy, Donnie, and Ronnie Kuhn; one great-granddaughter, Sarah S. Kuhn; and one foster granddaughter, Shirley Kuhn Anthony.

Herman C. Pennington, her husband of 67 years; her only child, Mildred P. Kuhn; grandson, Lonnie Kuhn; and foster son, Vernon Judy, are deceased.

The family invites all friends and relatives to join in the celebration of this milestone with a cake and ice cream social at the Dennett Road Manor, 1113 Mary Drive, Oakland, on Saturday, Dec. 1, in the East Wing Day Room, from 1 to 3 p.m.

The family requests that individuals do not bring gifts, but cards are much appreciated.



IN A SALUTE TO OUR VETERANS, students at Southern Middle School presented a Veterans Day program last Friday. The entire student body and faculty staff attended the event, which was coordinated by SMS teacher Sue Harkins and band director Neil Krebs. The seventh grade chorus, shown above performing under Krebs's direction, presented a selection of patriotic songs including "America the Beautiful" and "My Country 'Tis of Thee." Some of the words that continue to help shape this country's vision of freedom and equality were shared through a "Great Moments in American Oratory" program, including a rendition of "The Gettysburg Address" by seventh grader Joey Simpson, pictured right in a Lincoln mask. Other notable speech re-creations included student portrayals of Patrick Henry, Martin Luther King Jr., and Robert and Edward Kennedy. "We thought this year was a very important year to recognize Veterans Day," said Harkins. "Our kids have gained a new appreciation of the sacrifices our veterans have made in the past, and their own responsibilities in maintaining our nation's freedoms now and in the future."

Kitzmiller Man Handed 30 Days For Assault

A Kitzmiller man who entered a "not guilty" plea to second degree assault was nonetheless convicted in a Garrett County District Court hearing, with Judge Ralph Burnett presiding.

Shawn Smith, 19, was handed a one-year sentence, all but one month of which was suspended, and was fined $200 and placed on one year of supervised probation. Smith's September arrest by Garrett Bureau of Investigation detectives stemmed from an incident at the Garrett Highway Reel Video store, when he assaulted a man in the parking lot. Approximately 10 punches were thrown by Smith, according to the police report, and the victim sustained facial wounds and damage to his teeth. A woman who was accompanying the victim at the time of the assault was also allegedly struck, and a second assault charge stemming from that portion of the incident resulted in a stet ruling.

In other district court news, Richard Louis Cramer, 44, Petersburg, pleaded guilty to a marijuana possession charge and was handed a six-month sentence, all but one day of which was suspended, and was fined $200 and placed on one year of unsupervised probation. Cramer's July arrest came after sheriff's deputies were summoned to provide assistance for a rescue squad crew responding to assist a passenger in his vehicle who had suffered a seizure. While emergency personnel were tending to the patient, a deputy observed two bags of marijuana lying in plain view in Cramer's car. The contraband was seized after consent was gained to search the vehicle.

Jonas Diener, 24, Harrisonburg, Va., was handed a probation before judgment (PBJ) ruling in connection with charges of marijuana and drug paraphernalia possession. He received a 30-day sentence with all but two days suspended, a $300 fine, six months of unsupervised probation, and 40 hours of community service. Deputies arrested Diener in August when a search that stemmed from a Route 50 traffic stop uncovered a jar of suspected marijuana and a smoking pipe. A bottle of suspicious dried mushroom-like substances led to an additional charge of possession of hallucinogenic psilocybin mushrooms, which was not prosecuted.

Keith Allen Chapman, 34, Oakland, pleaded not guilty to a charge of telephone misuse via repeated calls, and was handed a PBJ. He was handed a 60-day suspended sentence, a $50 fine, one year of unsupervised probation, and an order to complete 40 hours of community service. Chapman had been jailed by deputies in September after a period during which he had made over 100 unwanted calls to his estranged wife, who had logged them using caller ID. He was exonerated of two additional charges of telephone misuse and one count each of making obscene phone calls and harassment.

Jamie Edward Droppleman, 22, Swanton, and Kenneth James Murphy, 21, Deer Park, were both handed stet rulings on their respective marijuana possession charges, and each was ordered to complete 20 hours of community service. Deputies arrested the pair at a May party after finding a bag of suspected marijuana sitting on Murphy's truck and a second bag lying on the ground nearby.

Matthew Edward Thomas, 21, Barton, was handed a stet ruling on a marijuana possession charge, with an order to complete 20 hours of community service. Thomas's July arrest stemmed from a traffic stop during which a deputy reportedly witnessed him hiding something in the car he was riding in. A container of suspected marijuana was discovered during a search of the vehicle.

Kelly Danielle Harris, 26, Mineral, W.Va., was handed a stet ruling on a second degree assault charge, with an order to complete 20 hours of community service. Maryland State Police troopers arrested Harris after a July domestic altercation at the Friendsville residence she was sharing with her boyfriend when she allegedly bit him and threw some items at him during an argument.

Garrett Keith Barclay, 20, Grantsville, and Joshua Francis Gilpin, 19, Bittinger, were both handed stet rulings on each of three counts of malicious destruction of property, with accompanying orders to complete 20 hours of community service each. The pair's August arrest by state troopers stemmed from a vandalism incident along River Road near Grantsville, when the men allegedly threw rocks and caused over $500 worth of damage to a farmhouse and two barns.

Herbert Eugene Wolf, 36, Oakland, was handed a stet ruling on a second degree assault charge. Wolf's October arrest by deputies came after he allegedly struck his wife with his hand and a belt during a domestic altercation.

Kathleen Lynn Kerr, 42, Oakland, was handed stet rulings on charges of keeping a disorderly house and disturbing the peace. Deputies arrested her in August after complaints of numerous loud early-morning parties at her residence over the course of the summer. Summoned at 2:30 a.m. on the most recent occasion, police arrived to find a crowd of approximately 15 disorderly subjects at her home.

Charles French Stinson, 46, Oakland, was handed a stet ruling on a trespassing charge filed when deputies arrested him in August for refusing to leave a Sang Run Road residence. He was reportedly extremely intoxicated when he entered the home and refused to leave.

Sabin McNeil Pennington, 37, Cumberland, was not prosecuted on six counts of violating an ex parte order and one count of telephone misuse via repeated calls. He had been arrested in September by the Cumberland Police Department for allegedly making the calls to his estranged wife, a McHenry resident.

Jason Wayne Hale, 25, and Robert James Collins, 58, both of Swanton, were each deemed not guilty of assaulting the other in an August confrontation. Hale was also exonerated of charges of second degree assault filed by his wife, Cynthia Hale, who had claimed that he pushed her to the ground during an August domestic dispute.

David Ray Shillingburg, 24, Mtn. Lake Park, was deemed not guilty of a second degree assault charge stemming from a September incident. Terry Broadwater claimed that Shillingburg had assaulted him in front

Farming On The Mountaintop

Ag Community Distressed With Nutrient Management Mandate

Many Farmers Do Not Have Plans

Deadlines for the Water Quality Improvement Act of 1998 have the agricultural community in turmoil, according to Maryland Farm Bureau president Stephen Weber. The law requires farmers to have plans by the end of this year and to implement them by the end of next year. As it stands, a large number of farmers who wish to meet the deadlines cannot do so, and the state is ill prepared to administer the program, according to the state's largest agricultural organization.

"The goal of every farmer in this state is to stay economically viable while being environmentally sound," the ag leader said. Farmers are stewards of the land and our first concern is caring for the land."

President Weber said the state and the farmers find themselves in this situation for many reasons. First and foremost is that a voluntary nutrient recommendation system has been turned into a mandatory fertilizer limitation regime — causing major problems for both bureaucrats and private industry.

"The state lacks the infrastructure to effectively communicate with the public or to properly prepare for the transition of data from planners to government accounting personnel," Weber said. "Planners and farmers who use modern computer technology are being forced to hand-write data on forms and recreate nutrient recommendation programs because computer systems are incompatible. Necessary filing forms have been delayed and have been released in the eleventh hour to a farm community that was in the middle of fall harvest. Soil analysis measurements and nutrient guidelines have been altered to the point that farmers and planners lack confidence in the formulas they are required to use to write plans."

Secondly, there has been insufficient funding from the state. To get plans, 13,000 farmers must either compete for the services of a handful of state-employed plan writers available for free through the Cooperative Extension Service, or they must hire one of 105 certified private consultants. "When the law was written, legislators acknowledged the significant cost involved and authorized funding for a cost-share program," the Farm Bureau president said. "Unfortunately, after the first year, cost-share funds were more than halved. The reduction of funds occurred before the regulations were even final and before a farmer could apply for their use."

The private consultant industry has been unable to pick up the slack for farmers who cannot be served by Cooperative Extension. "From the consultant's viewpoint, the cost of writing a plan for a customer has increased significantly as compared to the pre-1998 law," Weber explained. "The time required to gather information and write plans is considerable. Fertilizer companies (where many private consultants are employed) are facing economic distress. Many are reducing rather than increasing their staff."

"The loss of cost-share funding for plan writing in the state budget has caused some companies to change plans and forgo the hiring and training of new consultants. These businesses recognize that farmers are in a tenuous financial position and cannot afford to pay an additional $800 to $4,000 each year for a plan," Weber said. "Many fertilizer companies have made a business decision to write plans only for their fertilizer customers. This means that livestock producers and other users of organic fertilizer have no choice but to use Cooperative Extension planners. If that waiting list is full, farmers have no alternative."

According to the bureau, Cooperative Extension currently employs less than 30 agents to write plans. The waiting list in each county is far longer than one agent can expect to handle this year. There are questions as to the ability of Extension planners to write plans by next year when the state intends to assess penalties for noncompliance.

In addition, Weber said that farmers are getting conflicting advice from state agencies. Many report that their nutrient management plan puts them at odds with the directions they received from the Soil Conservation Service with regard to incorporating animals' manures into the soil.

The Maryland Farm Bureau leader also contends that farmers have spent many hours attending mandatory nutrient applicator classes that have not added to their practical knowledge. Most have found the program to be insulting and many believe they have wasted their time, he added. The voucher mandate was a well-intended effort to bring new information and technology to farmers, but it has not developed into a worthwhile endeavor, according to Weber.

The problems outlined above are just the "tip of the iceberg." Farm Bureau leaders claim that the cost of paying for a plan is simply the beginning of the economic loss to the farmer. A concerted effort appears to be under way to "ratchet down" the amount of fertilizer used in Maryland. If farmers are forced to grow fewer bushels per acre because of a "slide-rule calculation" for nutrient use, the price paid to implement this law will be tenfold and will be unbearable and unjust, according to the bureau.

"Planners report a high level of 'rejected' plans as the state's new nutrient enforcement staff carefully comb through plans that are filed in advance of the deadlines," President Weber said. "Farmers and their consultants have been forced to repeatedly defend their yield goals and nutrient recommendations. Planners who have been in this business for years are frustrated. Farmers who have tried to help the state make this new mandate work are throwing their hands in the air in disgust."

For all of these reasons, it may be time to re-evaluate the 1998 law, Weber indicated. "We should be asking, 'Does every farmer and owner of six horses need a Cadillac-style plan to address an issue that science has come a long way toward solving in the past three years?' Already scientists have developed techniques that can reduce the phosphorus levels in poultry litter by 20 to 70 percent," he said. "A much better nitrogen/phosphorous balance now exists in poultry litter and the nutrient value is in demand. The risk of phosphorous overload is greatly reduced today compared to 1998."

Maryland Farm Bureau leaders said that farmers have continued to use "best management" practices to reduce the threat of nutrient runoff into the Bay. "The state has identified an urgent need to repair municipal waste treatment plants," Weber said. "The state must determine where the financial resources are best placed. If the answer is that the state cannot honor its pledge to provide a consistent level of funding for nutrient management, then the state should make significant changes to what it requires of the farm community."

For more than three decades, Maryland farmers have been partners in the effort to clean up and protect Maryland's natural resources, according to Weber. "For more than three years we have tried to help the state meet the goals of the Water Quality Improvement Act. Unfortunately, the requirements are now more than the state or its farmers can handle," he said.

Soybean Harvest Nearly Complete

Harvesting activities are running well ahead of schedule, with soybeans being no exception. The soybean harvest is near completion, with 94 percent of the crop harvested, 17 percent ahead of last year, and 15 percent ahead of the five-year average. Although the dry weather has progressed the soybean harvest, yields may have been negatively impacted as a result, and are expected to be lower than last year's harvest.

Farmers had another full week of fieldwork last week as the dry conditions persisted throughout the state. No counties received precipitation for the second week in a row. Precipitation for November so far remains at zero, with the exception of Harford and Garrett counties, which received 0.1 and 0.4 inches, respectively, early in the month.

Crop and pasture conditions are declining because of the lack of moisture, but most are still rated in fair to good condition. Small grain conditions, for example, are holding at mostly fair to good ratings, although moisture is needed to alleviate stress that is beginning to show, particularly in barley. Thirty-one percent of the barley crop is in good condition, 35 percent fair, 29 percent poor, and 2 percent very poor. The winter wheat crop is rated 29 percent in good condition, 52 percent fair, 15 percent poor, and 4 percent very poor. Rye is rated 38 percent good, 40 percent fair, 21 percent poor, and 1 percent very poor.

Topsoil and subsoil moisture is rated mostly in short to very short supply. Topsoil moisture is rated 6 percent adequate, 41 percent short, and 53 percent very short. Subsoil moisture is 10 percent adequate, 51 percent short, and 39 percent very short.

Spain Judges Maryland Wheat To Be Superior

The export market for the class of wheat grown by Maryland farmers is experiencing a major surge this year, and Spain is leading the way with fast growing interest.

Maryland wheat growers produce soft red winter (SRW) wheat, a class of wheat that is used for producing a wide range of confectionery products like cookies, crackers, and cakes. About 40% of the SRW wheat grown in the U,S. is exported yearly, but global export sales of soft red winter wheat this year are running nearly 25% more than the same time last year, with current sales at 3.4 million metric tons, compared to 2.6 million metric tons at the same time last year.

For the first time in about 20 years, buyers in Europe have started buying SRW. Spain is leading the way, purchasing 310,600 metric tons already this year. Last week, U.S. Wheat Associates (USW), the industry's export market development organization, held a series of crop quality seminars with some of the Spanish mills and asked the millers what they thought of the wheat.

"We are pleased to report that several of the mills judge the SRW to be superior to the British 'biscuit wheat' that they've been using for years," said Vince Peterson, USW vice president in Europe. In an extraordinary turnaround, Peterson explains, one of the primary Spanish mills is now using 50% U.S. wheat.

European buyers and millers, like their colleagues around the world, attend USW seminars to learn about supply and demand, prices, and quality information on this year's wheat crop. In Europe this year, USW experts provided separate quality criteria for East Coast SRW, differentiating it from the soft red winter wheat that is grown in the nation's midsection and transported out of the Gulf of Mexico.

USW will be providing the East Coast SRW information to approximately 500 buyers, millers, and bakers in 14 European countries during November. For years, the U.S. wheat organizations have been pursuing European market access by seeking changes in EU ag policy. Finally, this season, import duties for SRW have been essentially zero.

"We are doing everything we can to promote U.S. wheat in this new market environment with near-open access," Peterson said. "The U.S. has now sold some 15 million bushels of SRW to the EU, and the potential for additional sales is set."

"Once again, the use of Maryland grain checkoff funds to support marketing programs has paid off. U.S. Wheat Associates has made great strides in improving the market opportunities for SRW," said Joe Mulhausen, president of the Maryland Grain Producers Utilization Board.

Lice Control On Cattle

The avermectin parasite control products may make lice control easier this winter for some beef cattle producers. Three pour-on products are now commercially available in the U.S. The three are Ivomec Pour On, Dectomax PourOn and Ivomec Eprinex. All three pour-on products now have a persistent lice control guarantee.

These lice guarantees all have similar components. All cattle must be treated shortly after they enter a cattle herd. The Dectomax guarantee provides that a group of cattle must be put together within a 30 day period of time. Cattle must be treated according to label directions and at appropriate dosage levels. They must also be housed so that they do not become exposed to non-treated cattle.

Cattle that meet these requirements are then guaranteed to stay free of clinical lice infections for an extended period after treatment. The Dectomax claim is for 240 days, the two Ivomec products for 180 days. If cattle do become infected the guarantee provides free product to retreat them and a handling fee for readministering the products. Cattle that are thought to have become reinfected must be so certified by a veterinarian.

Historically, even when cattle were treated for lice as a group in the fall, there has been a concern about reinfection. Producers have either retreated cattle routinely mid-winter or observed them closely for reinfection and treated if signs of infestation occurred. These products will hopefully allow cattle producers to forego this mid-winter treatment. This is due to the essentially 100% kill rates these products achieve coupled with the persistence of the active ingredients on the hair and skin for some time after their administration.

Lice infestations result in production decreases in cattle. The most common cattle lice are blood suckers that also irritate cattle. Irritated cattle scratch themselves in pens, mangers, etc., causing damage to their skin, unsightly hair loss and damage to facilities. In severe cases young calves may become ill and even die if infestations become severe enough.

There are several approved lice treatment products in the U.S. Systemic organophosphates are popular because of their pour-on convenience. They are also available in spray, back rubber and dust forms. Pyrethroid products are likewise available in pour-on, spray and dust forms. The newer pour-on avermectins listed above give producers another tool in controlling lice.

Because of their high cost, they would typically be used in young cattle, where their excellent stomach worm control characteristics along with their ability to control external parasites would make their use economically advantageous.

Regardless of the product or route chosen, lice control should be a priority for all beef cattle producers during late fall and winter when lice populations begin to increase. The most advanced cases of lice are seen in Garrett County in February and March, but losses probably begin before the worst hair loss and scratching begin.

Management Notes

* How often do you clean the watering toughs? Dirty watering troughs provide an excellent environment for many pathogens that have the potential to be harmful to animals that consume the water. Salmonella and E. coli are commonly found in dirty troughs. In most instances the harmful effects on animals are chronic rather than acute. Maybe your animals are losing a few pounds of milk or your beef calves are not gaining that extra pound.

* To balance an accurate feeding ration you need to know what nutrients and the amount available are in the feedstuffs. Compiling this important information starts with gathering a silage and haylage sample that truly represents what is being fed. In upright silos, take at least 15 samples at different times of unloading and blend the samples together. From a bunker silo, take the samples from the top, middle and bottom. You will need about a quart of material in a sealed plastic bag for analysis. Store in the refrigerator until delivered to the point of analysis.

Bill Could Increase Funding, Push Delmarva Conservation

by Marie Beaudett
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON — Maryland officials Thursday hailed a U.S. Senate bill that would increase conservation funding to the state's farmers more than five times over, and would target the Delmarva Peninsula for land conservation and wildlife preservation efforts.

The Conservation Assistance and Regional Equity Act, introduced by Sens. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., and Harry Reid, D-Nev., would more than double funding for farm conservation efforts to $5 billion nationwide. Supporters estimate that Maryland's share of conservation funds could rise from the current $4.8 million to $27.4 million.

The bill also encourages the establishment of "conservation corridors" on Delmarva that would encourage farmers to take a regional approach to preservation. The conservation corridor language is almost identical to an approach that Rep. Wayne Gilchrest, Md. R-Kennedyville, has been trying to get included in the agriculture appropriations bill.

Gilchrest and Maryland Natural Resources Secretary J. Charles Fox praised the senators' bill Thursday at a Capitol Hill news conference, saying such conservation incentives are vital to the health of the Chesapeake Bay.

"This legislation is probably the single most important action we can take today to protect and improve the health of the Chesapeake Bay," Fox said in a statement, "as we look forward in the future, not just in this region but around the country.

"We simply cannot save the bay without a strong conservation title in the farm bill," he said at the news conference.

Gilchrest said it is important to establish conservation areas on the Eastern Shore that reunite fragmented habitats.

"Because it's a microcosm of America, we have lost and fragmented both ag lands and habitat for wildlife," Gilchrest said. "What this legislation does is focus on helping to keep ag land contiguous."

Gilchrest said farm-oriented conservation efforts would benefit family farmers in Maryland and help protect the environment at the same time.

Another aim of this bill is to achieve geographic equity in the distribution of farm dollars, said Leahy. Supporters of the bill note that 15 farm states currently consume about three-quarters of the federal subsidy payments for commodity crops. Most of the nation's farmers do not grow crops that qualify for support.

Leahy said his bill would guarantee "that every state is involved. Most of it (subsidy funding) goes into just a handful of states."

Gilchrest and Reps. Ron Kind, D-Wis., Sherwood Boehlert, R-N.Y., and John Dingell, D-Mich., tried unsuccessfully to get a conservation funding formula in the House agriculture appropriations bill, in an effort to spread subsidies among more regions of the country.

"Maryland farmers year after year after year are on a waiting list for conservation funds because we just run out of money," Gilchrest said in September.

General Forestry Course Set For Spring Semester

Landowners, farmers, and others interested in forestry can learn to manage their wood lots for timber products, wildlife, and overall forest health by taking a General Forestry Correspondence Course developed by Maryland Cooperative Extension specialists at the University of Maryland's College of Agriculture and Natural Resources. Registrations are being accepted now for the spring 2002 semester.

The General Forestry Correspondence Course provides the basics of forestry, forest ecology, and forest health. Studying in the comfort of their home, students learn how to protect trees from insects, diseases, and fire, and explore the details of the forestry business, including tax nuances and the sale and harvest of forest products. They can use their own property, a friend's forest, or nearby public lands to apply practical exercises in forest management. Ultimately, the course exercises will help them develop an actual forest management plan.

The course is presented as a notebook of lessons and supplemental readings. Its six units each contain several lessons with questions at the end of each unit. Maryland Cooperative Extension experts at the university's Wye Research and Education Center correct answers and return them throughout the course, so students have constant feedback.

As part of the $150 registration fee, learners receive a General Forestry Correspondence Course text notebook and separate Appendices packed with resources. Supplemental readings provided include A Sand County Almanac, The Woodland Steward: A Practical Guide to the Management of Small Private Forests, and American Forests: A History of Resiliency and Recovery. A certificate of completion is awarded when all assignments are completed.

For more information or to register, persons may contact Bob Tjaden or Nancy Stewart at the Wye Research and Education Center, P.O. Box 169, Queenstown, MD 21658; phone 410-827-8056; or e-mail rt20@umail.umd.edu or ns111@umail.umd.edu.

Youghiogheny Lake Selected For Pilot Study

A federal interagency council has selected Youghiogheny Lake, located just north of Garrett County in Pennsylvania, to take part in a nationwide program to determine how recreation can be enhanced at the nation's more than 1,780 federally constructed lakes.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers manages Youghiogheny Lake. The agency is a member of the joint Federal Recreation Lakes Leadership Council, which established the Pilot Lakes Demonstration Program. The other council agencies are the Bureau of Land Management, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, National Park Service, Bureau of Reclamation, and the Bureau of Indian Affairs of the Department of the Interior; the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Forest Service; and the Tennessee Valley Authority. The agencies have selected 31 recreation lakes in 20 states to serve as pilot study projects.

"We are very pleased that Youghiogheny Lake has been selected as a pilot project," said Clyde Braun, resource manager. "We welcome the opportunity to work with local and regional groups to further enhance services for the 600,000 visitors who enjoy the lake each year."

Overall, the pilot projects are expected to last from one to four years. The Youghiogheny Lake program is expected to be in effect for four years. The lake was originally selected for participation in the program for the ongoing real-location study, which has recreational benefits. Since selection into the pilot program, the staff at the lake has been working with local tourism associations and advocates of the Youghiogheny River Trail on other ideas that will benefit the visitors. Lessons learned from this and the other 30 pilot projects will help guide recreation lake management nationwide.

The Youghiogheny staff would like to establish a citizen's advisory council to assist in generating and implementing ideas associated with this program. Interested individuals may contact Ranger Kevin Nogroski at the project office at 814-395-3242.

The pilot projects will be able to streamline processes and procedures, within legal guidelines, in order to speed progress to achieve project goals. The projects will have the freedom to be creative and innovative, and to take risks. Emphasis will be on cooperative efforts between federal agencies and others interested in federal recreation lakes. Successful projects will serve as role models for nationwide lake enhancement efforts. For projects to be successful, they should increase visitor service and satisfaction.

The Federal Recreation Lakes Demonstration Program was undertaken in response to recommendations made by an interagency National Recreation Lakes Study Commission established in 1998. The subsequent Federal Lakes Recreation Leadership Council established the demonstration program. For further information, persons may contact Clyde Braun, resource manager of Youghiogheny Lake, at 814-395-3242.

Adventist Svcs. Kicks Off Fund Drive For Needy

Neighbors Helping Neighbors is the theme of this year's Adventist Community Services (ACS) Campaign for Community fund drive. The drive, which begins this Saturday, Nov. 24, and concludes Tuesday, Dec. 31, benefits the community's needy by funding services provided by ACS and local Seventh-Day Adventist churches.

"Adventist Community Services was in the forefront of the response to the worst flooding in history of certain counties of West Virginia this past summer," an ACS spokesperson said. "ACS was officially appointed by the state to operate warehouses in Summersville, Princeton, and Charleston, W.Va., to receive and distribute much-needed relief supplies. The warehouse in Summersville and Princeton are now closed, but the Summersville facility alone was able to distribute 45,297 cases of supplies, utilizing the help of 352 volunteers who logged in 6,968 hours of work to directly help 14,211 flooded families.

"The other warehouse in Charleston continues to operate, providing assistance to flood victims who must rebuild homes or relocate. While thousands of homes were extensively damaged and needed much renovation and repair, a total of 770 homes were condemned, requiring families to relocate. The Charleston warehouse is currently responsible for distributing building supplies for these repairs to those families who lost everything and have been forced to move.

"Adventist Community Services is helping our neighbors. Adventist Community Services gives hope to our neighbors. And you can too," the spokesperson concluded.

For more information about Adventist Community Services or to send a tax-deductible donation by mail, persons may write to: West Virginia and Western Maryland Adventist Community Services, P.O. Box 602, Oakland, MD 21550.

Garrett County Chamber of Commerce UPDATE

Home of Deep Creek Lake

The Board of Directors of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce held its regular monthly meeting at the Visitors Center in McHenry on Thursday, Nov. 15, presided over by vice chair Jerry Geisler.

Treasurer Jim Murray provided an overview of the Chamber's financial performance for the past fiscal year. He reported that the results are much better than budget due in large part to cost cutting and increased Vacation Guide ad sales, delays in hiring staff during transitions, lower than budgeted insurance costs, and better than expected Autumn Glory results. Based on last year's experience, adjustments were made in this year's budget.

Chamber president Ken Wishnick reported that the new Community Profile and Membership Directory is completed and being distributed throughout the county. He also told the board that the Chamber will start the travel show schedule by exhibiting at the 10th Annual Fly Fishing Show, slated in College Park on Jan. 12-13.

Wishnick presented samples of one-minute promotional videos that can be placed on the chamber's web site. The board agreed to pursue this concept.

Steve Green, chair of the recreational trails task force, reported that the county has sent to potential vendors the request for proposal for engineering design of the bike path project from Deep Creek Lake State Park to the Wisp.

Geisler, chair of the packaging, small meetings, and retreats task force, said the group is developing a listing of conference and meeting facilities for publication in the Vacation Guide.

Bob Browning, chair of the lake affairs task force reported on concerns expressed at a recent meeting regarding the conversion of commercial lakefront businesses to residential uses. On a motion by Len Eiswert, the board unanimously passed a motion urging that the Commissioners retain an "outside" professional planning consultant to reevaluate the county's land use plan as a basis for recommending changes to the zoning ordinance that are supportive of business retention, expansions and new ventures.

Jerry Geisler, chair of the Vacation Guide task force, noted that several design changes have been proposed by Kim Scott-Carl of Genesis Publishing that will make the next year's edition even more user friendly than it has been in the past. More information will follow in the Chamber's newsletter to be mailed in early December.

Asa McCain, chair of the Autumn Glory task force, said he is compiling a five-year schedule for Autumn Glory Festival dates.

In the absence of Lynn Newman, chamber representative from the Greater Grantsville Business Association, Wishnick reported that mayor Gerry Beachy will be speaking at the group's next meeting on Wednesday, Nov. 28, 8:30 a.m., at Penn Alps.

The board approved payment of a $500 fee for the chamber to exhibit at the upcoming PACE reception in Annapolis. Criss Sweitzer said that local businesses may contribute door prizes for the event.

Three new policies were set as follows: The board voted to divide the chamber's Calendar of Events into two publications for 2002 — spring/summer and fall/winter. The fall listings may also become part of the Autumn Glory brochure. The board also decided that if more than one individual in a member company wants to receive all Chamber mailings, there should be an extra $20 annual assessment per additional mailing to cover the cost. It was also decided that any promotional efforts to attract group meetings and conferences should be limited to in-county members' facilities.

Wishnick reported that only 6,000 copies remain of the 32,000 county maps printed last June. Mr. Phil Hageman, representing map maker CommunityLink, asked that the Chamber renegotiate and renew its contract for the publication. Although no decision was reached, the staff was asked to consider other alternatives that would greatly reduce or eliminate display advertising to make the map size smaller and easier to read. Advertising had paid for the full cost of map production, so alternative sources of funding would be needed.

The Wisp Hotel is planning to invite 100 group-meeting planners, travel writers, and state officials to visit their facility in mid-December and Sue Edwards, representing the hotel, asked the Chamber to contribute $3,000 toward the event. After much discussion, it was decided that the Chamber would conduct a county familiarization tour at its expense. This was justified on the basis that each participant has the potential to encourage a large number of individuals to return here.

The following new members were approved by the board: Landis Office Center Inc., Cumberland; Shoup Design owned by Jay R. Shoup, McHenry; Beeghly Construction owned by Thomas R. Beeghly, Oakland; Tub Tech LLC, Jeremy Graham, Oakland; Emporium Antiques & Gifts owned by Sandra and Ricky Cassidy, Oakland; Haven owned by Aimee Elisabeth Hagerty, Deep Creek Lake; and Mountain Maryland Entrepreneurial Development Center, Cumberland.

NOW A TRADITION IN OAKLAND is the annual miniature train display, set up every year by Scott Atwill and hosted by First United Bank & Trust. Conductor Atwill, along with his wife, builds the tiny city each year, much to the delight of all who pass by. This year's display is currently under construction (the photo is of last year's exhibit), an activity also worth watching. The entire display will be fully up and running for all the downtown Christmas events. It is located along Second Street in the First United bank offices, next to Proudfoot's Pharmacy. All are encouraged to come see the display while shopping in downtown Oakland and supporting the local merchants, who in turn support the community.

Young Writers Describe The Best Christmas Gifts They Ever Gave

For the second year, The Republican newspaper has asked for young writers to take part in a holiday essay contest, and several children entered. We thank all who took the time to write essays and send them in for judging.

The winners of the 2001 Christmas Wonders essay contest in the 10-12 age group are: Josh Daniels, first place; Holly Logsdon, second place; and Nicole Gallagher, honorable mention. In the 7-9 age group, Tiffany Morgan won first place, and Jaymes Kelly won second. All of these winners may pick up their prizes at The Republican office, or call the office at 301-334-3963 for more information.

(All essays with the entrants' pictures will be available for pick-up at the office until the end of December.)

This year's essay contest theme was "The Best Gift I Ever Gave." The winning essays follow:

My opinion is that homemade gifts are better than store-bought gifts. I know this because my mom still has a clay bowl that is on the kitchen window sill. I made it in the first grade for her and now I'm in the fifth.

So about two years ago, while I was looking through a colorful craft magazine (my mom brought home from work), I got a great idea for a gift I could make for my Uncle Mike — a wooden notepad. I knew my uncle needed one. Since my Uncle Mike has a car shop, I figured he could use a notepad to organize his plans for each day.

My mom agreed to order and even pay for the box of materials to build it. It was about nine bucks. When the craft box came in the mail, I looked at the directions and thought, "I'll never be able to do this." But I did! (with a little help from my dad.)

The hardest part was sanding the edges so they would fit together. When it was done, I put it into a shoe box and wrapped it. When my family went to Uncle

Mike's house on Christmas Eve, I put it under his tree. When he opened it, he said he really liked it and was going to use it.

He hung it up on a big door in his garage, and he still puts notes on it today! This was the best ever Christmas gift I ever gave!

In 1996 I woke up to a beautiful crisp morning and could smell a nice batch of chocolate cookies coming out of the oven. I'm glad my mom enjoys making lots of different kinds of cookies! She bakes them for almost every holiday. So a few years ago at Santa's Workshop at my school, I found the perfect gift for my mom — a cookie sheet!

Since it was near Christmas, we got off school at 12:00 that day. I ran off the bus holding the cookie sheet in my hands. Just a few more steps and I would be home. I ran into Mom's room and asked her if she wanted an early Christmas gift and she said, "Sure!" When she opened the cookie sheet, she was really happy! Later she made me Christmas cookies on it. Now she stores it with all her other sheets for baking. That was the best Christmas gift I ever gave her!

My mom really loves the smell of strawberry. She loves to eat strawberries in the summertime. She even has some strawberry-flavored lotion.

So when I went to my school's Santa's Workshop last year, I was very surprised and excited to see that one of the gifts there to buy was strawberry bubble bath! It would be a great gift for my mom! So I bought it. The parent volunteers even wrapped it for me.

When my mom opened it, she loved it. She used it every time she took a bath, and sometimes she even let my sister and me use it, too. The whole house smelled like strawberries. This bubble bath was used so much that it only lasted about two weeks. It was the best Christmas gift I ever gave my mom!

I hope that it will be at this year's Santa's Workshop so I can get another jar!

The best Christmas gift I ever gave was last year. I had been in the hospital at Ruby Memorial during Halloween and my birthday. When I finally got to come home, I was out about two weeks and I got really sick again and had to be rushed back, and I was put in the Intensive Care Unit. I had to spend another two weeks so that meant I had to spend Thanksgiving in the hospital too. My grandparents brought dinner to me. I then got to come home again.

I was just happy to be home in time for Christmas, so I asked my mom and dad if I could buy Christmas gifts for all the kids that would be in the hospital during Christmas. Mom took my sister and I shopping and got enough gifts for all the kids there, and we took them over and filled up some wagons, and I delivered them to each room and wished all the kids a "Merry Christmas!" I was just so happy to know I didn't have to spend another holiday, especially Christmas, in the hospital again that year, because I have cystic fibrosis. Merry Christmas.

Second Place
JAYMES KELLY
Age 8
Friendsville

I gave love and kindness to my mom and dad, who liked this very much and gave me love and kindness back. I was very pleased with this, and they were too. After we opened all the presents, for breakfast we had a lot of stuff that was very good because I gave love and kindness for Christmas to them. Then they gave me a very big present for the love and kindness that I gave to them.

Then we all went outside and had a snowball battle, and I won because I hit everybody three times. Then we had a sled race and the winner would get a snack and hot cocoa. My brother and I tied for first so we both got the snack and hot cocoa. Then we had to build the best-looking snowman. We were to knock it down by digging through it with our bare hands so we could win one hour on the Nintendo by ourself and nobody else.

Joy Of Christ Celebration Set

Several area churches are coordinating the third annual Joy of Christ Celebration to be held Dec. 10 through 14, from 6 to 9:30 p.m., at the Oakland Armory.

Musical, vocal, and dramatic performances by regional bands, churches, schools, and individuals will be performed throughout the evenings.

A different program will be performed each night. Performances include handbell ringers, bluegrass bands, rock bands, interpretive dance, and antique instruments.

Admission is free to the general public. Approximately 1,200 Christmas music compact discs will be given away. Complimentary refreshments will be provided.

Members of the audience may come and go as they please. A schedule of performances and additional information may be found at www.joyofchrist.com, or by calling 301-334-3122.

Get The Gear To Help You Become One With Winter

As the holiday season approaches, visions of candy canes, eggnog, and fruitcakes dance in our heads (not to mention our bellies). We eat too much and exercise too little, using the bone-chilling cold as an easy excuse to put off another day's workout. We look out the window, see the dark clouds hanging overhead, and face a moment of truth: Go or don't go.

Three-time New York City Marathon champion Alberto Salazar knows how challenging and rewarding running in bad weather can be. "When training in tough conditions you've just got to realize it is going to make you tougher," Salazar says. "The worse it was out there, the more miserable, the more discomfort I was going through, the tougher I felt."

You don't have to be a world-class runner to experience the exhilaration of training in the great outdoors this winter — you just need to dress like one. Salazar says runners should not face the elements without the proper clothing and footwear. "Use a layering system that wicks sweat away from your body, which will keep you warm and dry," advises Salazar.

Nike's new line of footwear and apparel helps runners brave the elements this winter. When the temperature drops, slip on Nike's Stretch Laminate Jacket. The jacket's three-layer construction provides water and wind resistance with a high-level of breathability. The fleece inner layer will keep you warm and comfortable in the coldest conditions without added bulk.

Seek out all the puddles of slush you can find when you're wearing Nike's Air Terra Contego. The combination of comfortable mesh and synthetic leather makes the shoe water-resistant and easy to clean. As you plow through snow-covered running trails, you'll also have the confidence of knowing the shoe's BRS 1000 waffle outsole will grip the road when it gets slippery.

Adopt a new holiday spirit this season and become one with the weather. "The key is not to let the weather control you," Salazar says. "With the proper clothing there is really no excuse not to train when the weather isn't ideal."

These and other products for cold-weather running can be found at www.niketown.com.

Cleaning Tips For Game Day

Somewhere beyond the frenzy of football stadiums housing cheese-heads, seas of red, Touchdown Jesus', and playing fields a "mile high," there is another mass of devoted fans munching on buffalo wings and bringing the game-day hysteria of potato-chip crumbs and catsup stains from the stadium to the house.

According to the Gallup Poll, more than half of Americans (54 percent) consider themselves professional football fans, and that means a majority of Americans are doing some kind of game-day partying. With so many people celebrating, things are bound to get messy.

"Football is a messy sport," says Kim Wilson, spokesperson for THE MAIDS International, a professional maid service, "The players are rowdy, and the fans are rowdy. Put those together with some snacks and drinks, and you could have a disaster on your hands."

THE MAIDS Home Services provides the following cleaning tips to help game-day party hosts and hostesses keep their homes in working order before and after a game-day party:

•Use paper products for easier clean-up. Place several garbage cans throughout the house for disposal.

•Keep a recycling bin within guests' reach for bottles and cans.

•Messy fingers have a tendency to roam at will; place moist towelettes near finger-foods.

•Large crowds and flames do not mix. Put away all candles. Leave a bowl of potpourri or a scented jelly jar out to refresh the air — especially in the bathroom.

•Invest in machine-washable slipcovers for your sofas and chairs. They make cleaning easier, and the slipcover is easier and less expensive to replace than your upholstery.

ELKS READY FOR CHRISTMAS GALA — "Tis the season" is fast approaching, and the members of Oakland Elks Lodge #2481 will be getting the holiday season under way with their annual Christmas Gala fund-raiser, set for Saturday, Dec. 1, at the lodge. The gala will feature a full buffet and open bar, catered by the Deep Creek Brewery, and the swinging sounds of the Graham Grubb Orchestra, a 16-piece band specializing in the dance music of the Big Band era. All profits from the event will go to benefit the United Way of Garrett County, which will distribute the funds to local charities. Tickets are $50 per person and can be purchased by calling 301-334-1119 or 301-334-1763. Shown above is lodge member and Christmas Gala chairman Mark Grimm, left, and local United Way chairman Dave Thomas. "It's a rare occasion that one can enjoy such a classy evening and at the same time benefit our local charities. We invite interested businesses to sponsor corporate tables of 8 to 10 seats this year to reward their employees, managers, and board members."

Deck The Halls — Dress Up Your Home For The Holidays

The holiday season is a time to gather with family and friends. Whether you're hosting a holiday open house for 50 or an intimate family dinner, treat your guests to the best your home has to offer. Most hosts know that the right lighting adds the perfect touch to a holiday home. In fact, a recent survey commissioned by GE Lighting found that 76 percent of people believe lighting helps set the mood for holiday entertaining.

According to Catherine Bailly Dunne, award-winning interior designer and author of Interior Designing for All Five Senses, there are some quick and easy ways to transform a home for the holidays. "Around the holidays there is a renewed focus on the home and making your surroundings as cozy and inviting as possible. I believe anyone can create a warm and wonderful home for the holidays. All you need is a little creativity," she says.

Following are some of Dunne's favorite light and color tips to make your home more cheerful and comfortable this holiday season.

1. Create a Unique Theme: Bring a touch of whimsy to your holiday decorations. Consider creating a fun theme throughout your home. Whether it's a favorite family activity such as skiing or golf, or a design element such as plaid bows or stars and stripes, incorporate it into your holiday decor.

2. Spotlight Your Decor: The right lighting can bring out the beautiful colors in your holiday decorations and add a spirit of warmth to a home. People are attracted to areas that emit pleasing, inviting light. Achieving the ideal light can be as simple and affordable as switching your existing light bulbs. Replacing ordinary light bulbs with GE Reveal light bulbs makes holiday colors such as greens, reds, blues, and silvers pop, and your treasures and seasonal accessories appear more vibrant and rich. These bulbs can enhance your home's decor year-round.

3. Offer Seasonal Tastes: When you decorate for the holidays, colorful food is a traditional way to signal the season. Fill a festive bowl with pomegranates or cranberries and place it where least expected. An oversized basket filled with pinecones and limes outside your front door can welcome guests as surely as a wreath.

4. Form a Holiday Rainbow: For many of us, the holidays not only signal cheer and togetherness but also chilly weather and less light. For the time of day when the light begins to fade, brighten things up with colored glass bottles on windowsills. The light shining through blue, green, or red bottles fills a room with glorious shades, and the bottles look decorative even when there is no sunlight.

5. Make Your Home Glisten: Silver objects and mirrors reflect light and bring shine to a room. For touches of holiday shimmer everywhere, fill silver bowls with colored ornaments or candy canes. Display holiday greeting cards and letters in sterling picture frames. To add luster to unexpected places, set holiday greenery and berries on a mirror and display them under a favorite lamp to reflect the colors.

The holidays are most joyful with the right combination of color and light. Simple tips and convenient tools can make the process easy and enjoyable. Oakland Train Station Setting For Caroling

Oakland has a magnificent new Christmas decoration this year — the community Christmas tree that stands in front of the newly renovated Oakland Train Station. A new tradition will begin this year as well, as all interested local residents come together to lift their voices in song for an old-fashioned evening of Christmas Eve caroling around the town Christmas tree on Monday, Dec. 24.

The 30-minute event will get under way at 6 p.m., as carolers, accompanied by an ensemble from the Southern High School Band, rekindle this old-time Christmas tradition by candlelight. Participants are asked to bring a candle and Christmas carol lyrics, which will be printed in the Dec. 20 issue of The Republican. The Christmas caroling will take place regardless of the weather.

Rejoice!

Park Decorating Contest Scheduled

The annual Christmas decorating contest sponsored by the town of Mtn. Lake Park will be held the evening of Tuesday, Dec. 11. Residents interested in participating are asked to turn on their outdoor Christmas lights by 6 p.m. that evening. Judges will drive by the decorated homes that evening.

The cash prizes to be awarded are $100 for first place, $50 for second place, and $25 for third place. Three honorable mentions will also be awarded. The first place prize may only be claimed by the same home once every three years.

Winners will be announced the night of the Girl Scout and Cub Scout caroling event, Thursday, Dec. 20, at 6:30 p.m., at the Mtn. Lake Park ticket office. The winners will also be published in The Republican.

Improving Conditions For Holiday Sales Reported By Merchants

Despite the great uncertainty in the retail community and the nation's economy caused by the tragic events of September 11, Maryland retailers are gaining confidence for the upcoming holiday season as the country bounces back from September 11.

Based on a survey of its members and other indicators, the Maryland Retailers Association (MRA) is forecasting a 2.0%-2.5% increase in 2001 holiday sales over 2000. "There's no doubt that 9/11 and the following days were a severe blow just as sales were improving," said MRA president Tom Saquella, "but members have seen marked improvement since then." Saquella pointed to the October sales reports by major retailers and a recent survey by the National Retail Federation showing that 83.6% of those surveyed plan no shopping change from last year.

"It will be a challenging holiday season like the year so far, but not the disaster everyone feared back in September," he said. Saquella cautioned that there could be a wide variance in sales among the different industry segments.

The MRA survey results certainly showed the impact of September 11 with the war and the economy replacing staffing and weather as the factors most affecting sales. Fifty percent of the survey respondents reported a "positive momentum" for the holiday season from sales July through September. This was down from 75% last year, but Saquella felt this was quite remarkable in light of September 11. Sixty percent reported sales through September above or even with those in 2000 even though compared to the very strong (up 9.3%) through the 3rd quarter in 2000, while 69% reported carrying the same or less inventory compared to 2000.

Shoppers can expect retailers to be sharpening their pencils with aggressive pricing and great bargains. Reflecting a more cautious lifestyle and a "home for the holidays" theme, products for the home and convenience are expected to sell best. The NRF survey reported strong consumer interest in home decor and furnishings merchandise. Electronics should also do well, including DVDs, digital cameras, and big screen TVs.

Harry Potter and other movie-related merchandise is expected to lead a resurgence in toy sales. Patriotic merchandise will also sell well along with traditional clothing items like sweaters and ties. Jewelry will see a rebound in yellow gold with diamonds and sapphires as the most popular gemstones. Gold stud earrings will be popular along with simpler jewelry pieces having larger but fewer stones.

Saquella commented that the patriotic resurgence following September 11 could bode well for neighborhood and main street stores. "With this renewed patriotism comes some old fashioned nostalgia. Plus concern for crowded public places could push traffic to other shopping venues," he said.

The Maryland Retailers Association is the merchant community's major statewide trade association. MRA's 800 plus members covers all segments of the industry and includes both local stores and national chains.

ROTARY CHRISTMAS PROJECT GROWS — The annual Oakland Rotary Club Christmas project is set to begin the week of Thanksgiving, and the number of trees and families throughout the county has increased this year. Trees will be set up at many local businesses, like this one in Oakland's McDonald's, and persons are asked to take a card, purchase the item listed on the card for a needy Garrett County child, and return the gift to the tree by Dec. 9. The preparation will be held at Simon Pearce, and interested persons may help with the preparations and distribution of the gifts and food baskets on Dec. 14 and delivery on Dec. 15. Persons with questions may call Daryl Walters at 301-334-7600 or Kathy Zimmerman at 301-334-2820. Standing around the tree, clockwise, is Trene Rowan, store manager; Jack Regentin, president; and Walters, vice president.

Old Fashioned Christmas Part Of Friendsville's Holiday Activities

The mayor and town council of Friendsville will sponsor an Old Fashioned Christmas Celebration as part of the annual Christmas Tree and Holiday Decoration Light-Up on Friday, Nov. 30, starting at 6 p.m.

This year the majority of the activities will take place in the Friendsville Community Park. After the lighting of the tree, Santa Claus will arrive at the park at 6:30 p.m. After his visit, an old fashioned hayride will carry carolers throughout the town. Musical entertainment as well as food and craft vendors will be part of the celebration.

All groups, organizations, and individuals are welcome to participate in this annual community event. Fund-raiser tables may be set up in the park to sell items such as crafts, hot beverages, baked goods, candies, sandwiches, funnel cakes, or the like. Electrical hook-ups will be available if vendors supply their own extension cords.

According to Mayor Spencer Schlosnagle, this is a time for sharing, and nothing would make the elderly or shut-ins happier than having someone in the community remember them this holiday season.

As part of the Old Fashioned Christmas Celebration the mayor and town council will be distributing bagged treats to the town's shut-ins.

Persons wanting additional information may contact council member Frani King at 301-746-4441, or clerk-treasurer Sara Sines at 301-746-5919.

The mayor and town council will also once again be sponsoring the annual Holiday Decorating Contest for town residences and businesses.

Cash prizes will be awarded as follows: first place residential, $50; second place residential, $30; third place residential, $20; and first place business, $25.

Independent judging will take place starting at 5:30 p.m. on Thursday, Dec. 20. Winners will be announced at 7:30 p.m. during the mayor and town council's annual Christmas dinner at Old Mill Restaurant that same evening. No residence is eligible to win first place for two consecutive years.

Holiday Events Planned In Accident

The town of Accident is planning many activities for its holiday celebration, Christmas in Flowery Vale, scheduled for Saturday, Dec. 8.

The events will be held at the Flowery Vale Senior Center. A craft show will be held from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. The Fireflies 4-H Club will be providing a luncheon from 10:30 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Later in the evening a dedication ceremony will be held from 6 to 7 p.m. The activities include a dedication of the town lights, the lighting of the town tree, various speakers, a variety of music, and a live nativity.

The Holiday Festival of Music, starting at 7:30 p.m., will feature the Accident Concert Band and Community in Harmony Chorus. Refreshments will be provided by the Aid Association for Lutherans 5821, and Santa Claus will be arrive with treats. There is no admission charge, but a free-will offering will be held to benefit Garrett County veterans.

A tour of the Drane House and the Zion Lutheran Church will be held from 4 until 5:45 p.m.

The events are sponsored by Accident Cultural and Historical Society and the Aid Association for Lutherans 5821.

"Christmas On Main Street" Festivities Set

The Oakland Main Street program is once again gearing up for "Christmas on Main Street," which is scheduled for Friday, Nov. 30, and Saturday, Dec. 1.

The festivities will begin at 5:30 p.m. on Friday with singers of the Pleasant View Baptist Church. The Snowflake Queen and her princesses will be crowned at 6:15 p.m., followed by the procession of Santa Claus and the tree lighting.

At 7 p.m., Santa will be at the gazebo to greet the children. All children may have a free photo taken with Santa. Lillian Steele of Long and Foster will be Santa's elf. She has once again volunteered to take the complimentary photos.

Food vendors and crafters will be set up at the Oakland train station.

Some of the food vendors will be BumBle Q's, Sugar and Spice Bakery, and Pappy's Place. Robin Steam, Fran Shugar, Pat Hart, Yolanda Broadwater, and Ron Coddington are among the many crafters scheduled for the two-day event.

Santa and his live reindeer will be back at 10 a.m. on Saturday for more photos. He will be accompanied by two new reindeer additions: Jingle and Holly. The baby reindeer will be on leashes and will be available for petting. Small goats will also be present for the children to pet.

Seven winners of $500 of GOBA (Greater Oakland Business Association) bucks will be named. The bucks may be redeemed at any of the local participating sponsors.

Persons wanting more information may call Connie Margison at 301-334-2575.

Food, Ornaments, Activities Add Signficance To Holiday Traditions

There is no time of year more steeped in tradition than the winter holidays. Whether you and your family celebrate Christmas, Hannukah, Kwanzaa, St. Nicholas Day, winter solstice, New Year's Day, or any other special day, your celebration probably includes special rituals, foods, and other traditions that have evolved over the years.

This year there seems to be an especially strong movement toward tradition, as Americans gravitate toward home and hearth in response to the changes and conflict in the world around us. Families may want to begin some new traditions that will encourage everyone to spend time together, slow down, and enjoy the season.

Traditions can be developed involving food, music, a special ornament, or a shared activity. Many families spend time together doing holiday baking or shopping; others have candles or other holiday decorations that hold special meaning.

Here are some ideas you can use or adapt to begin new traditions that reflect your family's heritage and beliefs about the holiday season.

•Begin a family journal in which family members can make entries every year during the holidays. Parents or older siblings can write down the thoughts of younger children, and children's drawings can be included as well.

•Read together. Choose a story or a poem that has special significance and gather everyone around to read it aloud at the same time each year.

•Remember the animals. Make ornaments for the animals using pine cones, peanut butter, honey, and birdseed. Take them into a wooded area and hide them in trees and bushes for the birds and animals, and put a few around your yard to provide hours of animal-watching from your own window.

•A memory bag. Find or buy a drawstring bag to hang on a Christmas tree or from a window swag. Have family members write their best memory of the year on a slip of paper and put it in the bag. Take out old memories to share when the holiday decorations are unpacked each year.

•Special ornaments. Whether they're hung on a tree, grouped in a window, or displayed on a shelf, many families collect and display ornaments. Some families have a special ornament for each member, which takes on special significance when a loved one can't be home for the holidays or a family member dies. Other families collect ornaments that represent the year or symbolize a special event. Swarovski, the crystal style expert, offers a new, collectible ornament every year. The 2001 Annual Edition ornament ($55), eleventh in the series, features a delicate snowflake design with expert faceting that will delight first-time and seasoned crystal collectors as it refracts light and creates shimmering rainbows.

•Help others. Families often decide that the best way to express the holiday spirit is to collect items for a local food shelf, serve meals at a homeless shelter, or donate toys for less fortunate children. Decide as a group what your family should do to help others and get everyone of all ages involved.

For more ideas on developing traditions, check your local bookstore or library for books, including Unplug the Christmas Machine, and The Heart of a Family: Searching America for New Traditions that Fulfill Us. If you decide to begin an ornament collection, Swarovski's crystal ornaments are available at department and specialty stores nationwide and in Swarovski Gallery Stores in select cities. A STAINED GLASS CHRISTMAS is the name of this year's holiday concert by the Garrett Choral Society. The choral group, under the direction of Nancy Learey, will present a program of music celebrating the birth of Christ, including well-known holiday favorites, along with works by Bach, Handel, and Mozart. The concerts, to be held at St. Paul's United Methodist Church in Oakland, are slated for Friday, Dec. 14, and Saturday, Dec. 15, at 7 p.m., and on Sunday, Dec. 16, at 2 p.m. Tickets, which can be purchased from any choral society member or at Gregg's Pharmacy in Oakland, are $6 for adults and $3 for children 12 and under. More coverage of the concert will appear in The Republican as the event nears.

Tips Offered On Finding The Perfect Gift For Kids

Parents spend the largest amount of money on toys at the holiday season and it is a challenge to find the "perfect" gift. Since children spend most of their leisure time playing with new holiday toys, it is important to find gifts that both intrigue and challenge them. Yet, since children change so quickly throughout the year, it is often difficult to predict which toys will hold their attention in both creative and intellectual ways.

Child development experts say that 10 to 20 minutes of parent/child quality time per day is essential for a child's social and intellectual development. Parents can choose games they can play along with the child, or books and puzzles that encourage quality play time. The most important suggestion to offer is that time spent with a child is the most precious gift a parent can give.

Keep the following tips in mind when selecting holiday gifts and stocking stuffers for children.

•Make sure it's age appropriate. Select a gift that a child can play with now, not one they will grow into.

•Keep it interesting. Different kinds of toys give kids freedom to choose the activity they want to do.

•Buy what a child likes. Select a toy that is appropriate for each unique child.

This year, with gifts inspired by such exciting films as Jurassic Park III and the upcoming re-release of E.T. The Extra-Terrestrial, along with classic characters like "Curious George" (who is celebrating his 60th birthday this year) and all-time holiday icon "The Grinch," even the most finicky of tastes can be satisfied.

The range of items includes the super-cool and high-tech products such as the Animatronic E.T. ($59.99), the Jurassic Park Dino Dex, a hand-held electronic encyclopedia of dinosaur information ($24.99), and the Re-Ak-A-Tak Animatronic Spinosaurus with life-like skin and motion ($49.99) suitable for children ages five and above.

For kids who love to read, there are also new books available in celebration of "Curious George's" 60th birthday such as Houghton Mifflin's anniversary edition of The Complete Adventures of Curious George ($30) and the holiday themed Curious George in the Big City ($12). Classic "Curious George" wooden train sets ($19.95-$39.95) and unique hand

Handbook Available For Caregivers

For many, the holiday season is a time filled with loving family and friends, laughter and reminiscing, happiness and joy. Caring for a loved one with Alzheimer's disease can change those once special times into times of stress, frustration, and loneliness.

"Home for the Holidays," a brochure developed for caregivers of loved ones with Alzheimer's disease, offers ways to help cope with the many challenges of maintaining a happy home during the hectic holiday season. The brochure includes creative tips and practical advice on balancing one's needs as a caregiver, an individual, and a family member.

To request a free copy of "Home for the Holidays" or other information about Alzheimer's disease or caregiving, please call the Alzheimer's Association, Western Maryland Chapter, at 800-696-6830, or visit www.alzwmd.org.

Give Safe Toys For Safe Holiday

This holiday season, the toy aisles will be packed with thousands of eye-catching selections. Choosing a toy that is both fun and safe can be an overwhelming decision. So where do you begin? Here are some tips to help you give safe, fun toys this year.

Match the Toy to the Maturity

According to the Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC), last year an estimated 140,700 children were treated for toy-related injuries in U.S. hospital emergency rooms and 13 children died. Before buying a toy for a child, always consider age and maturity level. Almost all toys today have a recommended age sticker on the front of the packaging. Also keep in mind:

- Toys intended for children over age 3 should never be given to infants or toddlers. These toys may have small parts that can pose a choking hazard for young children. Children under age 3 also should not be given toys with cords or strings longer than 12 inches, which can be wrapped around a child's neck.
- Children under age 8 should not be given toys with sharp edges or toys that run on electricity (not including batteries).
- If you're buying for an older child, consider the risks the toy may pose for a younger child in the house. While an electric football game may be great fun for a 10-year-old, it can be unsafe for his or her 2-year-old brother. This doesn't mean older children should be denied certain toys, but they should be taught to keep their toys away from younger siblings.

Don't Forget Supervision

Even the best behaved, most mature child can use a seemingly safe and age-appropriate toy in a dangerous way. Have you ever seen an Easy-Bake Oven melt crayons? The best way to protect your children is to supervise them as they play.

Main Street Festivities Set This Weekend

A full schedule of events including Santa and his live reindeer will highlight the festivities for Oakland's "Christmas on Main Street" set for this Friday and Saturday.

The two-day event will be kicked off at 4 p.m. on Friday with crafters exhibiting and selling their handmade items in the Oakland Railroad Station. Food vendors will also be set up along Second Street.

Jerry McGee will play the Allen digital organ from St. Matthew's Episcopal Church at 5 p.m. The children's choir and several soloists from the Pleasant View Baptist Church will be singing at 5:30 p.m. in front of the railroad station.

The 2001 Snowflake Queen and her court will be crowned at 6:15 p.m., immediately followed by the lighting of the town tree.

Shortly after 6:30 p.m., the traditional Santa Claus parade will begin. Santa will stop at the gazebo on the corner of Second and Liberty streets to visit with the children. Each family will receive one free photo with Santa. Additional photos may be purchased for $2.

This year Santa will be bringing along two new additions to his reindeer crew. The two baby reindeer, Jingle and Holly, will be in the park beside Englander's Restaurant.

The crafters, Santa, and the reindeer will return to Oakland on Saturday from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m.

Our Town Theatre will present a vignette from its currently running play, Sanders Family Christmas at 11 a.m.

As a grand prize drawing for the area, hundreds of

HAY! HAPPY HOLIDAYS! Christmas decorations are springing up all over the county as the holiday approaches (only 25 shopping days left). While some are content to hang a few lights and slap up a wreath, others put more into it, like the DeBerry family, who operate a farm just north of Oakland. These unique Clauses are out standing in their field. (ha!) There was a round-bale Christmas tree behind them, too, but the wind brought it down. Don't you just hate it when that happens? Thanks, DeBerrys, for keeping us entertained. Photo by John McEwen

Spruce Forest To Host Annual Christmas In The Village Fest

Grantsville's Spruce Forest Artisan Village has scheduled its 16th Christmas in the Village festival for Friday and Saturday, Dec. 7 and 8. The hours are 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. Friday and noon to 8 p.m. Saturday, and there is no admission charge.

The annual festival draws thousands of local residents and tourists to the village, where the early 19th century cabins and other buildings are decorated in old-time Christmas styles and over 500 candle luminaries line the walkways. The event features artisans displaying their wares, sales of gift items, musical performances, complimentary refreshments, doorprizes, and children's art activities and raffles.

Each evening at 6:30 p.m. the Mt. Top Youth For Christ group will present a live outdoor Nativity, followed by a 7:30 p.m. concert in the Village Church building. Friday's concert will feature the holiday and patriotic selections by the Grantsville Community Choir, and Saturday's performance by the Frostburg United Methodist Church's Mountain Top Ringers will include an opportunity for audience members to play the bells along with the choir.

Artisans on hand for the festival will include blacksmith Jody Best, stained glass artists Jim and Mary Ann Cummings, teddy bear

GC Community Action Receives $449,656 Grant

Garrett County Community Action Inc. is one of the many organizations that will benefit from the $25,495,971 in grants recently approved by President Bush and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to provide housing and supportive services to homeless families and individuals in Maryland.

This announcement is part of more than $1 billion to help the homeless nationwide — the largest amount of homeless assistance in history. Community Action will receive $449,656.

"I am pleased to join President Bush in announcing the largest amount of homeless assistance in our nation's history," said Mel Martinez, HUD secretary. "These grants will not only provide food, shelter, and job training, but also new opportunities to bring hope and encouragement to our nation's homeless. Time and time again we've experienced our country's great generosity when fellow Americans are in need — and this is a perfect time to show our support for local charities and community caretakers who serve the homeless."

The grants, part of HUD's Continuum of Care and Emergency Shelter Grant programs, will help the homeless to find emergency shelter, transitional housing, and a permanent home.

HUD and the Department of Health and Human Services are working closely to coordinate the government's approach to serving the homeless. The two departments are sponsoring training sessions with state agencies to improve access by homeless men and women to the services they need.

Earlier this year, Martinez also reactivated the Interagency Council on the Homeless and put it back to work planning and coordinating federal homeless programs and offering assistance to those who help homeless Americans at the community level.

Officials Reopen Savage Reservoir For Public Use

The Upper Potomac River Commission (UPRC) announced last week it will reopen Savage River Reservoir for public use during daylight hours. The Dam Safety Division of the Maryland Department of the Environment, based on the recommendation of the commission, closed the popular recreation site for security reasons following the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks.

In order to deter possible terrorist attacks to the dam, the general public had been denied access to the reservoir. "No Trespassing" signs, motion sensors, fencing, gates, and dusk-to-dawn-lighting had also been installed at the reservoir for added security. However, after receiving a petition containing approximately 3,000 signatures from across the state requesting that reservoir be reopened, the UPRC met last Tuesday to re-evaluate the possible threat to the dam.

Many of the businesses near the closed recreation site have also been eager for it to reopen. Garrett County Commissioner Wendell Beitzel, who is a member of the UPRC, said that businesses near the reservoir were very adversely af-

THE COMMON THREAD WAS PATRIOTISM, and American flag pins, at the office of the Board of Garrett County Commissioners earlier this week when Southern Middle School students Adrienne Yoder, standing at left, and Jessica Sypolt were recognized for their fund-raising pin-making effort by Commissioners Wendell Beitzel, Fred Holliday, and Ernie Gregg. The two 12-year-old seventh-graders started making the red, white, and blue beaded flag pins, which each of the pictured individuals are wearing, in late September. They gave dozens of the pins away before a family friend suggested they sell them as a fund-raising project, and since doing so they have sold approximately 200 pins at $1.50 each, accruing $333.33 which they have donated to the American Red Cross's regional office for local disaster relief. A sample of the girls' work is shown in detail below. Each flag pin requires 66 beads and a total of 12 safety pins. Oakland's NuWay Cleaners donated 2,000 pins for the project, and the girls' parents donated the rest of the supplies. Working before and after school, and on the weekends, the girls invested over 50 hours in their work. They have sold all the pins they had available, and say they are likely to take a hiatus from the project until early spring. Adrienne is the daughter of Oren and Wendy Yoder of Mtn. Lake Park, and Jessica is the daughter of Diane and John Bateman of Loch Lynn.

Oakland Man Fatally Injured In ATV Accident

An Oakland man was fatally injured in an accident at his residence involving a four-wheeler Saturday around 6 p.m., according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

James William Murphy, 66, was returning to his residence after hunting and was attempting to park his 1985 Yamaha in the garage, which was dark and contained a mechanics pit which was normally covered.

Police said Murphy drove the four-wheeler into the pit, was ejected over the handlebars, and struck his head on the concrete floor.

Murphy was not wearing a helmet, police said.

Southern Garrett Rescue Squad and Oakland firefighters also responded to the scene.

For complete obituary, see page A-6.

BOE Seeks Funding From Commissioners

The Garrett County Board of Education requested an additional $368,995 for its 2002 budget from the county commissioners last week. Superintendent Wendell Teets and Ervin Fink, director of finance/human resources, cited the reduction of funds from the state's tax amnesty program as the reason for the request.

State officials had initially earmarked some of the money for education that they expected to collect from delinquent state income tax payers. But the actual amount collected from the program was far less than anticipated.

The superintendent indicated that the board normally does not factor expected funding into its budget, but state officials had assured him that it could expect to receive $842,738 from the state program. So now, as a result of the shortfall, the board needs additional money. However, since the board had a carryover of $473,783 from its 2001 budget, it would only be short $368,995.

The commissioners suggested that the board first find ways to save money, but if it still had a shortage of funds at the end of the fiscal year, they would try to help.

"The board and commissioners plan to meet periodically to talk about the situation as the year progresses," said Monty Pagenhardt, county administrator.

In order to help it find ways to cut costs and assess its current financial situation, he added, "We need to better understand the board's carryovers."

A KEY CEREMONY — The Pritts building located across from the Oakland Train Station was recently purchased by Garrett County Community Action Committee Inc. from First United Bank and Trust for $85,029. The building will be developed into an arts center and a business incubator. Plans call for an additional floor to be added for office space. The plans for the building are part of Oakland's overall revitalization effort to attract more people downtown. Shown above giving away the key to the building is Bill Grant, president of First United, on the left, and Duane Yoder, president of GCCAC, accepting the key.

County Agency Leaders Provide Monthly Reports To Commissioners

The Garrett County commissioners held their November staff meeting this week, hearing reports from 12 departments and agencies. Staff members gave updates on items such as the Health Department's new facility, county tourism, grants, statistics from Mtn. Top Mental Health, state cut-backs, the new Grantsville Library, GCC's anniversary, and the Sanitary District's new location.

Health Department

Rodney Glotfelty, county health officer, reported that his department had moved into the new facility along Memorial Drive in Oakland. "The staff is enthusiastic and happy to be there," he said. He commented on how convenient it was now to be able to just walk down the hall to discuss issues with other staff members. According to Glotfelty, not only will the department benefit from the integration of all the offices and staff members under one roof, but the community will as well.

An open house for the new facility will be held on Tuesday, Dec. 18, at 10 a.m., with a ribbon-cutting ceremony scheduled for 11 a.m. Glotfelty said that invitations to the event would be mailed this week.

The health officer also reported that local physicians, nurses, pharmacists, and other health care workers will attend a bioterrorism training seminar on Friday. Dr. Julie Acsani will instruct the health care workers on the impact of bioterrorism and patient management during a crisis. Acsani worked closely with state officials during the recent anthrax crisis, Glotfelty said.

Chamber of Commerce

Ken Wishnick, president of the Chamber of Commerce, told the commissioners that his office had received phone calls from various publications after September 11 asking what impact the possible threat of terrorism was having on local tourism. "Tourism is doing very well during this time," he said, due, in part, to the fact that most people who visit the county travel independently, rather than in organized groups. Areas that depend upon tour groups for most of their tourism, Wishnick said, are not faring as well.

He told the commissioners that some publications — in particular, The Baltimore Sun — would be featuring Garrett County as a safe place to relax during this stressful time. The Sun article will appear in the Monday, Dec. 3, issue, according to Wishnick.

Children and Families

Lou Ellen Sturm-Skipper, coordinator for the Infants and Toddlers Program of the Partnership for Children and Families, reported that the agency had applied for two grants — the Youth Strategies Five-Year Consolidated and the Mtn. Lake Park HotSpot Community Partnership. Both grants are funded by the Governor's Office of Crime Control and Prevention.

The Youth Strategies grant will help fund 10 major program components, including combating underage drinking, expansion of the after-school programs, and expansion of Healthy Communities.

The HotSpot grant will fund four components: local coordination service, Healthy Communities, youth and youth leaders development, and community policing, according to Sturm-Skipper.

Mtn. Top Mental Health

Fred Polce Jr., representing Mtn. Top Mental Health, reported that his agency was working to provide more geriatric programs. He said that there was a great need in the area for supervised housing for

AIDS DAY PROCLAIMED IN GC — World AIDS Day is this Saturday, Dec. 1, and the Garrett County Board of Commissioners is supporting the annual observance with an official proclamation. "I Care...Do You?" is the United Nations' international theme for the day, while the United States and President George W. Bush have meshed that theme with the U.S. theme of "I Care...Do You? Youth and AIDS in the 21st Century." This year marks the 20th year since the world's first confirmed case of AIDS was detected, and since then nearly 22 million lives have been claimed by the disease, according to the American Association for World Health (AAWH). The commissioners seated, from the left, are Wendell Beitzel, Fred Holliday, and Ernie Gregg. Representatives of the Garrett County AIDS Council standing are: Department of Social Services HIV/AIDS regional case worker Hector Gomez; Garrett County Memorial Hospital social worker Sara Browning; Mtn. Glade Adult Day Care Services R.N. Joanne Harsh; GC AIDS Council chairperson Donna McClintock; Southern High School Pandora's Box troupe members Nicole Ray, Chrissy Hamilton, and Joanne Buckle; and Pandora's Box director Florence Campbell of the GC Health Department. The plague-like scope of the epidemic is underscored by AAWH projections that the number of deaths caused by AIDS in just the next 10 years will exceed the combined fatalities in all 20th century wars. Beverly Beard Honored With Hospice Award

Beverly Beard, president of the board of directors for Hospice of Garrett County, was recently honored with a "You Make a Difference Award" during the Hospice Network of Maryland's dinner. These awards are presented annually by that network to individuals for extraordinary commitment to the hospice concept and to their hospice patients and families.

Beard received this award for her contributions to the Hospice of Garrett County board of directors. Beard came to Hospice after retiring from the Garrett County Department of Social Services, where she held the position of assistant director.

"Ms. Beard is devoted to Hospice," said Brenda Butcher, executive director. "She is always available to our board and staff. She shows compassion, love, and concern, but has the ability to be firm and authoritative when needed."

According to Jay Cross, vice president of the board of directors, Beard has been dedicated and committed to the agency's principles and goals. "Her loyalty, availability, and effectiveness are exemplary," Cross said. "It is a pleasure to have the opportunity to recognize her service."

Beard said that after retiring from 30 years of social work, she still wanted to help people. "My belief that people should die at home, in their own bed, with their family around them fit perfectly with Hospice's philosophy," she said. "My Hospice activities let me spread the work in the community about something I believe in and let me feel I'm helping people. It's been a perfect match."

Liz Freedlander, president of the Hospice Network of Maryland, said Beard demonstrates the spirit of hospice. "She is the committed, caring, and giving individual who makes a difference every day in serving the needs of hospice patients and their families. We are honored to know her."

In addition to this award, a special award was presented to past president Dr. F. Michael Gloth III for his contributions to the Hospice ideal and his service to the Hospice Network of Maryland.

Dr. Gloth was a founder of the Pain Hotline, which provides consultations for community physicians in treating patients who are experiencing severe pain, and a leader in the development of the Maryland End-of-Life training project providing education to physicians in hospitals throughout the state.

He is a private practicing gerontologist in Carroll County, chief of gerontology at Union Memorial Hospital in Baltimore, and a frequent speaker on hospice and pain management to both the public and medical communities locally and nationally.

DC Commissioner Office Closing In Grantsville

A pilot project examining the need for the Garrett County District Court commissioner's office to maintain a presence in Grantsville has concluded with a decision to discontinue the service. The last day of operation of the court commissioner's office at the Grantsville town hall will be tomorrow, Friday, Nov 30. The move is being made because of a lack of court-related activity at the office, according to Annetta Lamonica, administrative commissioner for Allegany and Garrett counties.

The Oakland District Court commissioner's office will be staffed on weekdays from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., and again on weekday nights from 8 p.m. to 4 a.m. A commissioner is also available in the office on weekends from 8 a.m. until noon and 8 p.m until midnight. No appointment is necessary. The commissioner may be reached by calling 301-334-8030, or toll-free from within Maryland at 877-519-9766.

A District Court commissioner is an officer of the court whose function is to accept Applications for Statement of Charges from law enforcement officers and citizens who wish to press criminal charges against another party. A commissioner also conducts Initial Appearance hearings for persons who have been arrested, and determines the conditions of pre-trial release. Commissioners accept bail bonds for persons posting bond for their release, and provide information about other court functions.

MSP Jail Suspect In W.Va Stolen Vehicle Incident

The driver of an allegedly stolen vehicle was arrested after the car was stopped Monday night along Interstate 68 near Keysers Ridge by a Maryland State Police trooper assigned to Barrack W in McHenry and a Natural Resource Police officer.

Thomas Kenneth Swisher, 37, Charleston, W.Va., faces charges of motor vehicle theft, felony theft, driving under the influence (DUI), and driving on a suspended license. He remains incarcerated in the Garrett County jail on a $25,000 bond.

After receiving a region-wide lookout for a stolen 1985 Chevrolet Astro van, reportedly taken from a Fort Ashby, W.Va., location, Tfc. Keith Stakem began checking I-68 for the suspect vehicle. Working in conjunction with NRP officer Dennis Cease, Stakem located the van just east of Keyers Ridge shortly after 9 p.m., and the two officers arrested Swisher without incident.

In other state police arrests, three 18-year-old men face drug charges after their vehicle was stopped along I-68 early Monday morning.

Sean Patrick Brady and Michael Ryan Martin, both of Fairfax Station, Va., and Douglas Kerr Monahan of Bowie were stopped for speeding along the westbound Interstate at the Friendsville exit at 12:14 a.m. The odor of suspected burnt marijuana was detected coming from their 2001 Audi sedan, and a subsequent search uncovered suspected drugs.

Each of the three suspects were charged with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia, and Brady was handed an additional charge of possession of opium. The three were subsequently released after posting unspecified bond amounts.

A Pittsburgh man was charged with marijuana and drug paraphernalia possession in the wake of a Friday afternoon traffic stop.

William Seward Hays Jr., 47, was stopped for speeding along westbound I-68 at the exit to northbound Route 219 at 1:55 p.m. When the trooper noted the odor of suspected burnt marijuana coming from Hays's 1998 Ford Escort, he undertook a search that revealed a bag of suspected marijuana, several suspected marijuana cigarettes, and drug paraphernalia. He was later released on an unspecified bond amount.

"THE PRIDE OF WEST VIRGINIA," West Virginia University's renowned marching band, celebrated its 100th anniversary during the recent homecoming football game vs. Rutgers, and at least two Garrett County natives who happen to be first cousins were among the celebrants. Pictured are Christine Cropp, left, a 1991 graduate of WVU, and her cousin, Bethany Savage, who is a current member of the band. Spectators were nearly blown out of the stands by the music, as approximately 900 current and former band members covered the field during pre-game and halftime ceremonies. Cropp, daughter of Joyce Chaney, Deer Park, holds both bachelor's and master's degrees in mechanical engineering from WVU, and is employed by Arion Systems Inc. in Chantilly, Va. She resides in Alexandria, Va., with her husband Aaron. Bethany, daughter of Terry and Carol Savage, Nest Lick Acres, is a sophomore at WVU who plays piccolo in the band and is a member of Alpha Xi Delta sorority. Both are former members of the Southern High School band. The WVU Marching Band was formed in 1901 with eight members and now has 350 members. In 1997 the band was presented the John Philip Sousa Foundation's Sudler Trophy, known as the Heisman Trophy for bands, awarded to the top collegiate band in the nation. The band will present its annual concert at the Creative Arts Center in Morgantown this Monday and Tuesday evenings, Dec. 3 and 4. Persons may telephone 1-304-293-SHOW for information.

Donald Richard Friend, 23, Friendsville, was arrested shortly after 2 a.m. Friday morning and charged with DUI and DUI per se.

Civic Club Seeks Non-Profits In Need Of Funding

The Civic Club of Oakland is offering its annual contributions to local non-profit organizations that can demonstrate a need to fulfill their stated objectives. Any organization interested in applying for this funding is encouraged to send a description of the project for which the funds are sought, and an approximate dollar amount that would be of assistance in completing the project, to: Civic Club of Oakland, P.O. Box 167, Oakland, MD 21550-0167.

To be considered, requests must be received by Monday, Dec. 31, according to the Civic Club's by-laws. As in previous years, representatives of the organizations requesting funds should plan to attend the club's March meeting of Tuesday, March 26, to describe their needs to the Civic Club's members.

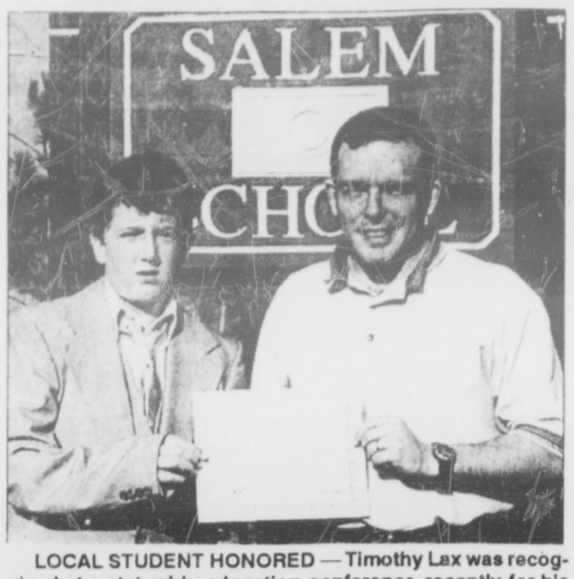
Salem Student Earns Maryland Education Honor

Timothy Lax, a ninth grader at the Salem School, has received statewide recognition for his progress in being a positive influence in the classroom and learning to work independently. The honor was bestowed recently at the 18th annual Maryland Association of Nonpublic Special Education Facilities (MANSEF) conference in Baltimore. Lax was one of only 12 students recognized among the thousands of students placed in MANSEF programs.

"Timothy has been an outstanding student and a great role model for the other students in our classroom," said Lax's teacher, Julie Thompson. "Timothy has worked diligently over the past several years," commented Runetta Field, the boy's mother. "His progress has achieved him this honor. I am very proud of him and thankful for the dedication and understanding of the Salem staff. I am grateful that we have a school such as Salem."



LOCAL STUDENT HONORED — Timothy Lax was recognized at a statewide education conference recently for his academic and personal progress at Salem School. The ninth grader was honored at the annual conference of the Maryland Association of Nonpublic Special Education Facilities in Baltimore, one of just 12 students so recognized. Lax is shown above, left, with Salem School education director Todd Mechem.

"The positive change in Timothy is an excellent example of what can be achieved when a student, parent, school and board of education work together in the best interest of a child," stated Salem education director Todd Mechem. "Tim has great potential, and we look forward to the work God will do through him."

Salem School, located near Avilton, is a division of the Maryland Salem Children's Trust, providing an educational program approved by the Maryland State Department of Education. The school offers a transition program for students grades K-12 in need of an interim alternative educational placement, as well as a full-day special education program for students referred by local school systems.

For more information about the Maryland Salem Children's Trust and its programs for children in need, persons may call Mechem at 301-689-0322.

Home For The Holidays Tours Begin Tomorrow

The 10th annual Home for the Holidays House Tours event will get under way this weekend, Friday, Nov. 30, and Saturday, Dec. 1, with the homes of five families open for touring, as well as St. Paul's Methodist Church in Oakland. The annual event is sponsored by the Western Potomac Chapter of the American Red Cross, which includes Garrett County.

Items for raffles and drawings at the tour sites have been donated by Joanna's Floral and Crafts, Radio Shack, Country Garden Expressions, crafts by Jo-Anne Glotfelty, and Flowers by Webers.

In addition to the church, the homes of the following families will be on the tour: Dave and Wendy Berry, Gortner; Walt and Pat Copeland, Ben DeWitt Road; Donald and Carol Moss and Dusty and Elizabeth Huxford, both of the Blakeslee; and Bob and Anne Proudfoot, Mtn. Lake Park.

Tour hours are Friday, 4 until 9 p.m.; and Saturday, 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. Ticketholders may visit the homes any time between these hours in any order they choose. Tickets are $5 in advance and $7 on the day of the tours, and can be purchased at Proudfoot's, Gregg's, and Deep Creek pharmacies, as well as at Flowers by Webers in Oakland and Arrowhead Market at Deep Creek Lake.

The proceeds from this event will help meet the immediate needs of Red Cross projects, a spokesperson said.

Correction Noted To Court Report

Last week's Garrett County District Court reporting contained an error that requires a correction.

Herbert Eugene Wolf, 36, Oakland, who was handed a stet ruling in connection with a second-degree assault charge, had been accused of striking his daughter during an altercation at their home. Wolf's wife interceded to end the confrontation, but was not struck, and no charge was filed on her behalf. Sheriff's deputies had made the arrest on Oct. 13, and the court hearing was earlier this month.

Garrett Hwy. Crash Injures Oakland Woman

A rear-end collision on Garrett Highway near Deep Creek Lake Saturday evening slightly injured an Oakland woman, who was also charged by Maryland State Police troopers assigned to Barrack W in McHenry.

At approximately 5:36 p.m. Laureen Kooyman, 46, was driving a 1996 Ford Taurus south along Garrett Highway when she came upon a 1998 Toyota Camry that was stopped, allowing pedestrians to cross in the crosswalk in front of Uno Restaurant. Kooyman allegedly failed to stop in time, and struck the Toyota in the rear. Neither the Toyota's driver, Robert Monroe, 45, Severn, nor the pedestrians were injured in the crash.

Kooyman was transported by the Northern Garrett Rescue Squad to Garrett Memorial Hospital, where she was treated and released. State troopers charged her with failure to control speed to avoid the collision.

A single-vehicle accident along Rt. 40 in eastern Garrett County injured a Cumberland woman Saturday morning.

Alison Welborne, 22, was traveling eastbound at approximately 7:17 a.m. when she lost control of her 1993 Ford [illegible] near the summit of Big Savage Mountain. Welborne's car went into a skid while negotiating a sharp curve on rain-soaked pavement, struck a guardrail on the right side of the road, then traveled across the roadway where it hit an embankment and overturned.

Welborne was transported by the Frostburg Ambulance Service to Cumberland Memorial Hospital, where she was treated and released. The Eastern Garrett Volunteer Fire Department also responded from Finzel. No charges were filed in the accident.

Let's Declare War...

One of our human weaknesses is our tendency to not get involved in negative issues unless and until they directly affect us. Even though we know that a crisis is brewing somewhere else, and even though we know that it could eventually involve us, we still usually turn our backs and ignore it until it arrives in our own back yard.

Such could be said, at least to a certain extent, about the September 11 attacks. It was common knowledge to us that Osama bin Laden was involved in terrorist activities on a regular basis, and that the people of Afghanistan, especially the women, under the harsh rule of the Taliban were being treated far worse than animals. We were doing nothing about that, primarily because the abusive behavior didn't directly affect us.

The same thing happened 60-plus years ago when Adolph Hitler was exterminating the Jews and seizing control of one nation after another. We knew about most of what was going on, but we refused to get involved. Only after the Japanese attacked us did we respond, and by that time Hitler had nearly overrun most of Europe.

There is a more subtle, but just as deadly, enemy that we as a nation need to attack with more vigor, and we can do so in this case without dropping bombs and risking the lives of our military. It is HIV and the resulting deadly disease, AIDS. Nearly 40 million people in the world are infected with HIV, but only about a million of them are Americans. Most are Africans, and many are Asians. While we have made a number of strides in the treatment of AIDS, it seems that awareness and the level of alarm have decreased of late. Our media is totally occupied with the war against terrorism and with anthrax, and is in the meantime virtually ignoring AIDS and dozens of other crises. As Garrett County Commissioner Wendell Beitzel said this week, the threat of anthrax (which has killed five people) "pales in comparison" to AIDS.

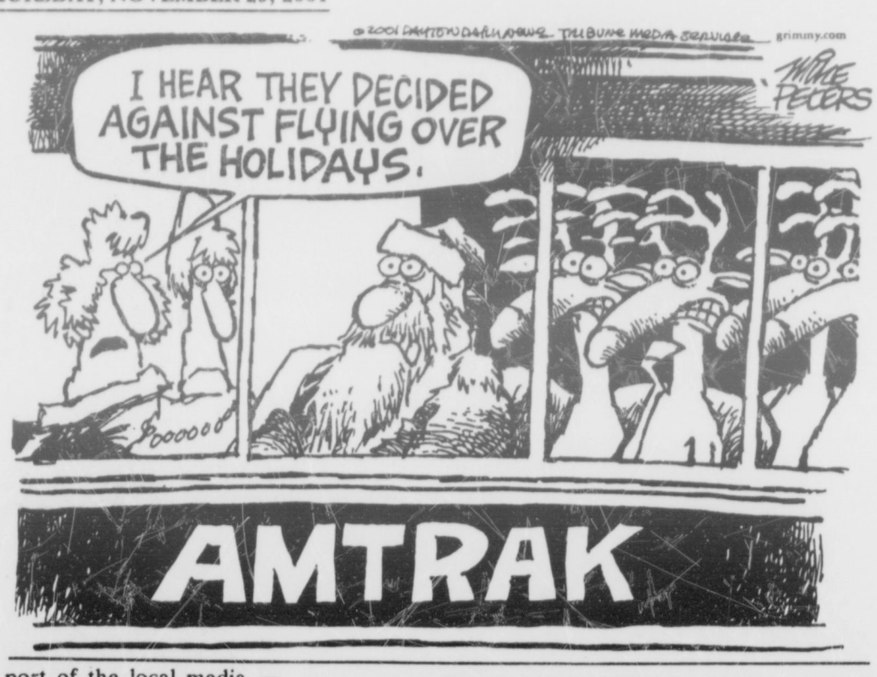
The September 11 attacks claimed approximately 4,000 lives, but meanwhile, there are 8,000 people in the world dying of AIDS every day. In the United States, an average of two of our young people under the age of 25 are being infected by HIV every hour. Somewhere in the world a child dies of AIDS every minute.

Once again, many Americans are not yet directly affected by HIV and AIDS, but unless we do more now to stop the epidemic, most of us will eventually be affected, and it may not be until after it's too late for hundreds of thousands of us.

World AIDS Day is this Saturday, and it is past time for an all-out world effort to wipe out this virus, just like we did with smallpox a few decades ago. It doesn't matter that AIDS was in its early days primarily a gay man's disease. Each and every young person, as well as a huge number of adults, is at risk of contracting this life-ending virus. Let's not wait until it's running rampant right in our own neighborhoods before declaring war on this disease.

We were pleased with and proud of our county commissioners this week, who each spoke out about the importance of the AIDS awareness and prevention education. Less than a decade ago many elected officials regarded this as a taboo subject, and thus did not have the courage to speak out publicly about it.

Perhaps the best thing we can do as individuals is to educate, educate, and re-educate our children about how to protect themselves against this virus and horrible disease.



Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

This is an open letter to Mountain Lake Park residents, so that other families can avoid the heartache of losing a loved family pet.

Please take good care of your pets and watch out for them day and night. I ask this of you, as there is someone in our neighborhood who is too cowardly to come and knock on your door to tell you your animal is offending them, but instead calls Animal Control and reports your dog is creating a nuisance. The first you know of it is when Animal Control visits you.

We received such a visit last week and were in the process of rectifying the matter, but strangely our dog got loose and unfortunately got hit by a car. Due to the extent of his injuries we had to have him put to sleep.

So please keep a good eye on your animals so you don't have to explain to your children what has happened to their pet.

Sincerely yours,
Gillian Shreve

To the Editor:

As we stated in last weeks edition of The Republican, Community Action's Area Agency on Aging is restoring one of the two lost meal service days to our frail homebound elderly. We couldn't have done it without you, The Republican. Because of your willingness to include articles and other information about the Meals on Wheels program and its difficulties in every edition of the paper for the past month or more, people have learned about the problem facing the agency and have responded with donations and other support. The agency wished to extend a heartfelt thank you to the staff of The Republican for their commitment to this very worthy cause, specifically you and Mary McEwen.

Also responsible for the success of the fund-raiser was WKHJ and The Cumberland Times-News. The radio station ran continuous PSAs and did several interviews to highlight not only the fund-raising event held on November 16, but also to draw attention to the plight of the elderly affected by the reduction in service. The Cumberland Times-News kept the issue in the forefront through several articles and reminders of the event. It is very gratifying to have the support of the local media — we sincerely thank you. A special thank you also goes out to Glenn Tolbert, who unselfishly made the restoration of meal service a personal mission.

The agency was especially grateful for your editorial which explained that the existing crisis was an excellent outreach opportunity for local churches. Unfortunately, the challenge for churches to budget funds to support the program has, for the most part, gone unmet. To date, two churches have responded to the challenge. St. Matthew's Episcopal Church provided the postage for the 800+ invitations that were mailed, as well as for the RSVP envelopes. The Catholic Daughters of America from St. Peter's Catholic Church provided one of the first donations to the program in the amount of $500.

Fortunately, business, civic organizations, and individuals in the community did respond. With the continued support of the community, the agency is committed to accomplishing its goal of restoring meal service to five days per week. Donations may be sent to the Area Agency on Aging, 104 E. Center St., Oakland, MD 21550. Make checks payable to the Area Agency on Aging. Please note that the check is for the Meals on Wheels restoration fund. 100% of the donations will be used to restore meals.

Again, thank you for your commitment to the frail elderly of the community.

Sincerely,
Adina Brode
Director, Area Agency on Aging

To the Editor:

At a recent meeting of concerned citizens, Garrett County Commissioners and the Maryland State Highway Administration, one of the Maryland State Highway officials made the statement that they were "not accustomed to putting stop lights in the middle of nowhere."

In response to the State Highway Representative's rather "cartoonish" and immature philosophy on making decisions about our public safety on the highways, I have written my response to his opinion accordingly — Dr. Seuss style.*

Although I have chosen to respond with a tongue-in-cheek retort, the fact remains that this is a deadly serious mistake that needs public support to be righted! The flashing light has done absolutely nothing to improve the dangerous traffic problems at the intersection of Mosser Road, Deep Creek Drive, and Rt. 219 in McHenry.

Sincerely,
Addie Glotfelty

seniors as well.

He also reported that the number of consumers that his agency has served increased from 462 in 1998 to 826, as of Aug. 31, 2001. According to Polce, Mtn. Top Mental Health has provided $3,250,000 worth of mental health services to its consumers during these years. The largest age group served was those between the ages of 22 and 64.

Community Action

Community Action president Duane Yoder reported that the state was currently in a "fiscal crisis," with officials making funding cuts and hiring freezes. "We're looking at a 5% statewide cut," he said.

He also reported that members of his staff had won a Team Excellence Award at a ceremony held in Baltimore, recognizing outstanding government employees and agencies. Yoder was a keynote speaker at the event.

Additionally, he said that Community Action had adopted an abandoned puppy, named Wellington. Wellington will be a mascot and therapy dog, helping some of the agency's customers.

Ruth Enlow Library

Cathy Ashby, library director, said that a Request for Proposals (RFP) for an architect to design the new Grantsville Library would be advertised this week in The Republican and the Times-News. Proceeds from Leo Beachy prints that will be sold during Grantsville's Christmas tree lighting event tomorrow, Nov. 28, will benefit the new library, she added.

Ashby also reported that the Oakland branch of the library has adapted its computer stations to accommodate persons with various disabilities, such as blindness and physical imparments. The library held an open house on Tuesday to unveil the redesigned stations. Ashby invited persons with special needs to the library to learn to use the computers.

Garrett Community College

Dr. Steve Herman reported that "GCC would quietly be celebrating its 30th anniversary." He said that in light of recent events and cutbacks in state funds, the college decided not to throw any elaborate celebrations. However, GCC will recognize the anniversary during commencement in May. A nostalgic theme is planned for commencement, with some of the college's first graduates participating in the event, Herman said.

The president also reported that the president and vice president of Maylin College, located in western North Carolina, were to visit GCC this week to study how the college supports the local economy. The Maylin representatives want to "get our economic development perspective on the county" and adapt something similar in their area, Herman said.

Sanitary District

Ron Petrella, administrator of the Sanitary District, reported that his department has moved to its new location at 14689 Garrett Highway, north of Oakland. The building was previously occupied by the Health Department's administrative office. Petrella noted that his department's new phone number is 301-334-1887. The new fax number is 301-334-3171.

RAGGEDY ANN HALL

Discovering books with my children, my nieces, and nephews has given me great joy over the years. Sometimes the same books receive new life when read or heard by the next child. Other times the old books just do not repeat their appeal somehow, and others take their places.

One artifact of my elder daughter's earliest years is a large Raggedy Ann doll that, at present, sits on a chair upstairs in a space about which there is more to be said shortly.

There are 13 years and six other children between the elder of my daughters and the younger of my nieces. All those years and children passed through childhood without Raggedy Ann making a prolonged appearance. Four years ago I gave Grace, the younger of my nieces, The Original Adventures of Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy for her birthday. Ann, Andy, and Grace formed an immediate bond.

I have read the stories to Grace, but for the pleasure of us both. I had known of Raggedy Ann and Andy, but had never really made their personal acquaintance. They lead very busy lives with the other dolls when their mistress, Marcella, is not commanding their attention. They have remarkable adventures with dogs, kittens, and even chickens. There is many a close call in the pages of The Original Adventures.

One year in the run up to Christmas I searched for Raggedy Ann and Andy dolls to give to Grace. When I finally found them I was dismayed to discover that they had tags sewn to them which proclaimed "Made in China." It seems that just about everything nowadays is made in China. That Raggedy Ann and Andy should be made there was just too much for me. After all, they were born in Connecticut, the home of their historian, Johnny Gruelle.

Christmas morning arrived, and I had no present for Grace. In a fever of activity — amidst other activity since we were giving the family Christmas dinner — I sewed a Raggedy Andy from old clothes.

Grace remembers this; she reminded me of it when she spent the night here a few weeks ago. There was a knocking at the door. I suggested to Grace that she accompany me to see who had come to visit us on Christmas Day. When we opened the door, there was Raggedy Andy. What a marvel that was!

A few years passed, and Grace came to live with me for some months. The house was full, and Grace drew the shortest straw of the upstairs hall where my daughter's Raggedy Ann was sitting so well-behaved.

One of my habits of life is to name the rooms of my house. There is the Oxford Room, my study, in honor of two years spent in that great English university city. There is Rivendell, the living room, in remembrance of Tolkien's refuge of rest and refreshment.

Grace was quite taken with this habit, and proposed that the hall where she slept should be forever after known as "Raggedy Ann Hall." So it is, and may it ever be so.

I still wanted proper Raggedy Ann and Andy dolls for Grace, so I asked one of my yard-sale-attending parishioners to keep her eye open for me, which she did. A few months ago her husband opened the trunk of their car, and produced Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy, each a little more raggedy than was absolutely necessary. Some neighbor ladies, who specialize in needlework, made away with that excessive and superfluous raggediness.

Now the newly introduced Raggedy Ann and Andy sit cozily together in a child's rocking chair, each with an arm around the other. They sit opposite the older and bigger and — dare I say — more elegant Raggedy Ann.

Part of the magic of Raggedy Ann and Andy is that they are never quite in the exact position on re-entering their hall as when one left it. As an adult I must attribute those changes to the vibrations of the floor caused by the heavy tread of yours truly.

The child in me, however, imagines that in my absence and, especially, during the long lonely hours of the night, Ann and Andy may be giving a tea party or perhaps they gallivant somewhere with the Wind Fairies.

They are dear dolls. Not wanting to cause me any alarm or trouble, they rush back to their chair, always in time for me to see them in their places when I open the door. Raggedy Ann and Andy hold court in a space all their own where they gladly welcome children and the child in us all.

More Subsidized School Breakfasts Provided In Maryland Last Year

by Kristyn Peck
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON — The number of Maryland schoolchildren receiving free or reduced-price breakfasts at school jumped by 8,401 last year, even as the number of schools offering breakfasts fell, according to a report released Tuesday.

The annual report by the Food Research and Action Center said the number of Maryland children getting subsidized school breakfasts grew from 85,785 in the 1999-2000 school year to 94,186 in the 2000-2001 school year. It came as the number of schools serving such meals fell from 1,445 to 1,355.

The percentage of Maryland schools offering both a subsidized lunch and breakfast program was 15th-highest in the nation — a sharp drop from the previous year when Maryland ranked fourth.

The report said that, of state schools offering a free or reduced-price lunch program, the percentage that also offered a breakfast program fell from 98.2 percent in 1999-2000 to 89.9 percent last year.

Maryland State Department of Education officials declined to comment on the report, saying they had not had a chance to review it yet.

Officials with the Food Research and Action Center could not explain the disparity between the growth in children served and the drop in schools serving in Maryland, but praised the state for reaching more children.

"The important thing is the kids, not the number of schools," said Jim Weill, president of the center. "The school number can be driven by unusual things like consolidation."

But they said more could be done.

Lynn Parker, the center's director of child nutrition programs and nutrition policy, said that the increase in low-income students eating school breakfast is "good news." But she added that there is still room for improvement.

There were 23,000 more low-income children in the state who could have received a subsidized breakfast, she said. Had the state reached all of them, it could have received an additional $3.7 million in federal funding.

Nationally, school participation in the subsidized breakfast program has increased since last year. In 2000-2001, there were 73,058 schools offering both breakfast and lunch, up from 72,085 the year before, and the number of low-income children served grew by 68,320, to more than 15.2 million.

The report also said that 42.8 percent of students who eat a subsidized lunch also got free or reduced-price breakfast last year, the highest ratio ever.

"The good news is the number of children and schools participating are both up," said Weill. "The bad news is that there are still millions of children who are not getting the day off to a good start."

Parker said a good breakfast "makes a difference all day long" for students.

Weill said that the nation's schools passed up the opportunity to grab another $300 million in federal aid for breakfast programs by not reaching all qualified children.

The School Breakfast Program, authorized in 1975, reimburses schools for all or part of every meal, depending on the child's financial ability.

Weill said that students often refrain from eating school breakfast because of the stigma that it is only for poor students. The solution would be making breakfast free for all, which he said could be done at a "modest cost." Weill said the savings in paperwork alone, by making free breakfast universal, "would offset the school breakfast costs."

fected by its closing — in particular, BJ's store along Savage River Road. One of the owners of the store, Jim Minogue, attended the UPRC meeting with Beitzel.

After meeting, the UPRC decided to allow unlimited public access to the reservoir from daylight until dark. Should the need arise, the new fencing and gates would allow the area to be closed again, according to Beitzel.

Ken Pavol, a western Maryland fisheries biologist with the DNR, said that he felt it was actually better to keep the reservoir open to the public. By having fishermen in boats out on the reservoir, there would be "more eyes watching" for potential trouble at the site.

LIONS LEARN OF CANAL HISTORY, FUTURE — U.S. National Park Service Ranger Robert Borland presented a program during a recent meeting of the Oakland/Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club detailing the history of the C&O Canal and development of the C&O Canal National Park site. The 184-mile canal ceased transport operations in 1924 and subsequently fell into disrepair. The efforts of a number of history devotees, spearheaded by Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, resulted in a National Monument designation for the canal in 1961, and 10 years later the site was elevated to National Park status (as the thinnest park in the system). Ranger Borland told the Lions that the Park Service, in cooperation with the Canal Place organization in Cumberland, is providing opportunities for development of the area. In the future these organizations intend to offer canal boat rides, hiking, biking, and other outdoor activities, facilities for festivals, and shops, markets, and museums. Shown above, Ranger Borland, center, receives a certificate of appreciation from Lion first vice president Robert Stocksleger, left, and Lion president David Slagle.

In Loving Memory of our Mother

Marie Ellen Friend who passed away on November 27, 2000

We Heard the Angel Say

We thought we saw your face today,
In the sparkle of the morning sun.
And then we heard the angel say,
"Her work here is done."

We thought we heard your voice today,
Then laugh your hearty laugh.
And then we heard the angel say,
"There's peace dear one at last.

We thought we felt your touch today,
In the breeze that rustled by.
And then we heard the angel say,
"The spirit never dies."

We thought we saw our broken heart,
In the cresent of the moon.
And then we heard the angel say,
"The Lord is coming soon."

We thought that you had left us, for the stars so far above.
And then we heard the angel say,
"She left you with her love."

We thought that we would miss you so,
and never find our way.
And then we heard the angel say,
"She's with you everyday."

"The sun, the wind, the moon, the stars will forever be around, reminding us of the love we shared,
And the peace you've finally found."

Sadly missed by, her daughter Cheree and all her family and friends

SMALL CHANGE EQUALS BIG DONATION — This group of Broad Ford Elementary School fifth graders sponsored a small change drive recently to raise money for the Warm the Children Fund of The Republican. Their efforts, which included school-wide reminders issued during the morning PA announcements, the placement of coin collection cans in each classroom, and a letter-writing campaign to give parents the opportunity to donate as well, resulted in an accumulated donation of approximately $344 for the children's winter clothing fund. Shown above, from the left, are students Laura Wilhelm, Ryan Hershman, Josh DeWitt, Ryan Fitzwater, Robert Shiflett, Stephen Cosner, and Kayla Petrella, and in the background is Frostburg State University student intern Natalie Carlson, who helped coordinate the project. The students are putting their charitable efforts to double use by building several classroom lesson plans around the collection, including graphing their results in a math exercise.

The Republican

POETIC LICENSE

Garrett County, Maryland

Editor's note: The following poem, written in the style of the late/great Dr. Seuss, is an original by Addie Glotfelty in response to a comment made recently by a Maryland State Highway official in regard to the new flashing light that is located at the intersection of U.S. Rt. 219 and Mosser Road in McHenry. See Ms. Glotfelty's accompanying letter in today's Letters to the Editor section on page A-4.

So, without further waiting
Without further adieu
In my best Dr. Seuss voice
I say to you:

This may not be Whoville
We're certainly not Whos
But a Grinch lurks among us
This much is true!

Instead of our Christmas
This Grinch withholds
Installing of stoplights
Or so we are told.

"We don't put stoplights
In the middle of Nowhere!"
Obviously, this Grinch
Doesn't know how to care.

How could he uphold
Such a devious ploy
Without thought of protecting
Each girl and each boy?

"Why, what's wrong with the light
I have given to you?"
Can't he see it won't do
What we need it to?!

For "Nowhere" is growing
From its bottom to top
And with it the traffic
Is coming non-stop.

Sometimes the drivers
That visit "Nowhere"
Become more the wildlife
Than the deer or the bear.

With their hurrying, scurrying
And screeching of tires
And their straining of necks
For the Lake to admire.

With their zipping and zooming
All over the place
From Deep Creek to Mosser
Is a dangerous place.

Now the people of "Nowhere"
Have learned to adjust
But maybe it's time
That we make a fuss.

First, it's an insult
To think that we Would not be offended
By the Grinch's decree!

We were told and were told
By the powers that be
"A stoplight you'll have Because that's what you need!"

HURRAY! Now we won't have to wait and to ponder
Just how to get 219
Safer, we wonder?

For surely, the safety
Of every "Nowhere" child
Is the concern of officials
From the meek to the wild!

How could they not see
The dangers that teem
When leaving Mosser
For Rt 219?

The traffic is heavy
The people don't look
Someone's bound to get killed
Here in "Nowhere's" nook.

We understand sometimes
The seasons are slow
For this, turn it off
No Red Stop and Green Go.

But please don't belittle
The dangers that are
For if YOU lived here
It'd be different, by far.

Please don't wait 'til discussions
Are well beyond broke.
We're just as important
As those "Somewhere" folk.

We'd, PLEASE, like a stoplight
To be safe and secure
For the friends, the families,
And our children galore!

We've used all our manners
We've been patient and kind
We're just hoping and praying
Some help we can find.

For we know every Grinch
Has his humanly parts
We just hope this Grinch soon
Finds his humanly heart!

Respectfully Submitted by a Caring Mom from "Nowhere"
Addie Glotfelty

"HEART AND SOUL: Mountain Blues and Tales" will be presented by the area duo of storyteller Ilene Evans, left, and blues musician Richard Smith at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 8, at the Aurora (W.Va.) Community Building. The original production tells the story/history of African Americans in this section of the Appalachians through the spoken word, songs, and photographs. The performance is free of charge, and donations will be accepted for the Aurora Area Historical Society. The Aurora Community Building is located a few miles west of Garrett Highway along Rt. 50 in Preston County.

Aurora Is Setting For Heart And Soul: Mountain Blues And Tales

Singer and storyteller Ilene Evans of Preston County and noted Detroit blues musician Richard Smith of Elkins will present their original work, Heart and Soul: Mountain Blues and Tales, at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 8, at the Aurora Area Community Building. Admission is free, although donations will be accepted for the not-for-profit Aurora Historical Society (AAHS), which is sponsoring the event along with Aurora Elementary School.

Evans and Smith created Heart and Soul... to interpret the African-American presence in this region's mountains through the traditional blues music, the spoken word, photographs by John Warner, and stories that present the history of the mountains.

"Blues built the tracks for the trains [that] cleared the mountainsides and brought people here looking for a better life," Evans said. "Blues followed the trains everywhere they went. Blues stayed here when the trains left . . . full of life, adaptable, forgiving, faith-filled, [strong people] taking joy where they could find it."

As part of the AAHS heritage program, Evans will be presenting interactive workshops on storytelling at Aurora Elementary School during the coming week. The workshops will culminate in a performance by third- and fourth-grade students at 2 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 7.

This performance of Heart and Soul: Mountain Blues and Tales is funded in part by the West Virginia Humanities Council. The AAHS is planning to use the event as a springboard for a series of heritage music programs by local performers. Individuals or groups interested in performing traditional music at the Aurora Community Building can forward a professionally produced audiocassette or CD, along with a proposal, to Alice Penzo, RR1, Box 66, Aurora, WV 26705. If an audio recording is not available, persons may send information on where and when the performer(s) will appear in this area.

The Miller House and Village Office will be decorated with numerous candlelights and Nativity scenes. Other attractions will include a children's cookie art activity in the Compton School, and strolling carollers on Saturday afternoon from Allegany College of Maryland and the First Presbyterian Church of Frostburg.

The Yoder House Museum will be open for guided tours that will include stories and traditions of the Yoder family way of life. Volunteers will also offer complimentary refreshments and a roaring fire in the home's room-wide stone hearth fireplace. Visitors may visit the 1835 Miller House Peace Center and the church.

The Village Office will be hosted by volunteers, who will offer complimentary beverages and recipes for the Courtin' Fudge that will be served in the Miller House while volunteer guides share stories of the Benedict Miller family.

The Penn Alps Restaurant and Crafts Shop will be open each day of the festival until 9 p.m. for gift shopping, and coffee and dessert. The restaurant will also offer a special festival buffet during the event, and the crafts shop will be extending discounts for shoppers.

Complimentary refreshments and samples of hand-dipped chocolate marshmallows will be available at the Elliott House Victorian Inn, which will mark the grand opening of its Gift and Chocolate Shop during the festival. Parlor tours will be offered of the decorated inn, built in 1870 and still located along the Old National Road in its original location. A doorprize drawing of a two-night stay at the Elliott House is also scheduled.

The annual Christmas in the Village festival is sponsored by the Maryland State and Garrett County arts councils, and also by Penn Alps. Donations to promote the non-profit artisan village's mission of preserving the area's heritage and culture will be accepted at the free event.

BLACK KNIGHT

Black Knight, the medieval fish-out-of-water comedy starring Martin Lawrence, is proof of my personal theory that for every one quality film available to the viewing public, there are at least 10 worthless filler movies made solely to attract the undistinguished tastes (and dollars) of indiscriminate moviegoers. Written by Darryl Quarles, Peter Gaulke, and Gerry Swallow, and directed by TV director Gil Junger, whose only other film to date has been 1999's 10 Things I Hate About You, this movie brings new meaning to the word "waste," blowing a million dollars' worth of period sets and costumes (which are easily its most impressive elements), using up tons of film and equipment and the expertise of industry technicians who could be put to better use, and wasting an hour and a half of my time, which I could be using to do something more enjoyable, like trimming my toenails. Well, it takes that long to really manicure them properly.

Blending a hollow, sophomoric plot with the energetic yet inconsequential performance of its star, Black Knight casts Lawrence as Jamal Walker, a disgruntled employee at a medieval-themed amusement park in South Central L.A., who falls into the moat and emerges in 14th-century England. After going through the obligatory period of thinking everyone's just putting him on, he learns from a comely young chambermaid named Victoria (Marsha Thomason) that he is in the court of King Leo (Kevin Conway), a corrupt ruler who usurped the crown from its rightful owner, the queen. Along with his arrogant and merciless knight Percival (Vincent Regan), Leo is in the process of crushing a popular rebellion of which Victoria is a part. So Jamal, mistaken for a French dignitary and given the royal treatment, is pressed into service by Victoria to help unseat the cruel monarch.

This movie is about as forgettable as they come. Featuring get-out-of-the-way performances by most of its supporting cast, it allows Lawrence to do more of his "good-natured black man surrounded by hostile crackers" schtick, most of which fails to register a chuckle. I don't know which is more tiring—watching Lawrence jump around, groan out Ebonic slogans, and mug for the camera, or watching the rest of the cast members (especially Tom Wilkinson, who plays a friendly but down-on-his-luck knight) try to maintain their dignity. An apt assessment of the film is spoken by one of its characters, who mistakes Jamal for a court jester: "You have to admire his commitment—it's no longer funny, but he refuses to give up on the joke." ★½

SPY GAME

Rated R - Running Time: 2:07 - Released 11/21/01

Spy Game marks the second time this fall (after October's The Last Castle) that we see Hollywood bigshot Robert Redford headlining a major feature release without producing or directing it. Perhaps Redford, tired of qualified reviews for his beautiful but overindulgent productions like The Horse Whisperer and The Legend Of Bagger Vance, has decided to get back to his roots. Or maybe he just needs some quick cash to make a boat payment. Whatever his reasons, he shows he can still hold his own in front of the camera, as long as his character doesn't have to show any significant emotion, and his co-star Brad Pitt is no less effective. Directed by Tony Scott, whose credits include such military/government-related thrillers as Top Gun (1986), Crimson Tide (1995), and Enemy of the State (1998), Spy Game follows a similar formula, relating the ins and outs of international espionage while maintaining tension with the urgency of a ticking clock.

The film, written by Michael Frost Beckner and David Arata, begins with an exciting attempted prison rescue in China, in which CIA agent Tom Bishop (Pitt) is caught trying to spring an unnamed prisoner. Nabbed at the last minute, he is dragged back in and given his very own cell, where he can immediately begin enjoying the amenities associated with the facility's most deluxe accomodations, such as regular beatings and a sentence of execution. Unfortunately, the film seldom reaches this same level of intensity during its over-2-hour running time. The real story involves retiring agent Nathan Muir (Redford), who taught Tom the game but parted ways with him after a bitter disagreement. Soon after Nathan hears that his ex-partner is scheduled to die in 24 hours, he finds himself being questioned, on his last day, about Tom's history by a round table of coffee-swilling bureaucrats while the hours and minutes until the planned execution tick away. It seems that, as the U.S. is in the middle of a strained trade negotiation with China, Nathan's superiors are planning to let Tom go down to avoid a political incident. After all, you've gotta have your priorities in order.

As Nathan begins relating the history of his partnership with Tom, we see a series of flashbacks which span many years and take us from Vietnam to Berlin to Beirut and elsewhere. We learn of their original meeting, their early relationship, and the many operations in which they worked together as partners. We also learn of their differing opinions on how to play the "game," and the role a woman named Elizabeth Hadley (Catherine McCormack) plays in the current situation. The relaxed pace of the flashbacks, forced by Nathan's intentional nonchalance, counterpoints the urgency of the impending deadline, the remaining time of which is often displayed on the screen. Under director Scott's guidance, Redford translates this pressure-building dichotomy to the screen, appearing unflappable to his boss (Larry Bryggman) and a suspicious investigator (Stephen Dillane), while feverishly attempting to arrange a last-minute rescue with the help of his ever-faithful secretary (Marianne Jean-Baptiste). But sometimes the two parallel timelines seem to work at cross-purposes, clouding the pace.

Meanwhile, Chinese prison inmate Pitt (who, in an interesting sidebar, is banned from entering China because of his role in 1997's Seven Years in Tibet), plays his character with intense charm, from his spy-related adventures of years past to his current getting-the-crap-beaten-out-of-him predicament. He and Redford, whose last project together was Redford's 1992 paean to fly-fishing, A River Runs Through It, seem at ease together. Furthermore, Scott's choices of music, from classic pop tunes like Dire Straits's "Brothers In Arms" and Joe Walsh's "Rocky Mountain Way" to the original score of Harry Gregson-Williams, add a palpable atmosphere to this gripping tale. ★★★★

Soccer Assn. Receives Grant From Partnership

The Mountaintop Soccer Association (MSA) recently announced that it had received a grant of $1,800 from the Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families Inc. "We applied for the grant funds in August 2001," said Ron Petrella, president of MSA, "and we were very pleased to find out that we were approved to receive the money."

MSA provides a fall youth soccer program for approximately 550 youth in Garrett County.

"Soccer has grown dramatically in Garrett County, with a large increase in the fall recreational program, the summer camp, which was attended by 140 kids, and the addition of the girls' soccer programs at Northern and Southern high schools," Petrella said.

He explained that MSA provides youth soccer so young people can stay active and develop their skills accordingly. "It also develops good character, good sportsmanship, tools for working together, and learning to win graciously and to lose with dignity. Most of all, MSA promotes fun," he said.

"We are very proud of our organization," said Petrella. "The combination of grant money and team sponsorships helps to keep costs at a minimum for area families. We purchase uniforms, which the kids get to keep, equipment, insurance, and other items to keep our program running."

Petrella noted MSA's appreciation to the officials of the Maryland After-School Opportunity Program and the Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families for their assistance in making the MSA program such a success.

Arsenal Club Elects Directors, Names Coaches

Arsenal Football Associates recently held its annual meeting, at which Mel Menker, club president, introduced current executive board members, thanking them for their service. A special mention of thanks was made to Bill Grant, who retired from the board. After addressing two changes in the Articles of Incorporation, the club held election of officers for the next two years. Those elected to two-year terms to serve on the club's executive board are: Steve Anderson, Mary Callis, Randee Craig, Denise Kerr, Bobbie Rhodes, and Bob Ulino.

Arsenal has six teams this year: U-12, U-14, and high school teams, all for both boys and girls. Coaches for this year are: Steve Allison, Melissa Anderson, Bob Bonser, Gary Brack, Mike Browning, Ron Gnegy, Cathy Menker, Chris Menker, John Menker, Mel Menker, Larry Mullenax, Rick Perry, Ron Petrella, and Bonnie Riley. The club has a player development plan that will be utilized this year in an effort to strengthen individual player progress. Another major addition is goalkeeping training.

The club will play in its first tournament at the Soccer-In-Schools Tournament in Morgantown, W.Va., over the December 7-9 weekend. For more information about Arsenal's soccer program, persons may contact Mel Menker at 301-334-5906.

Jeff Friend Rolls Another Perfect Game

For the second time in his amateur bowling career, Jeff Friend recorded a perfect game, and in the process finished with the second highest set ever recorded at Par-Matt Lanes in Oakland. Par-Matt opened its doors 30 years ago.

Friend's 300 was earned in the second game of his set last Wednesday, Nov. 21. He rolled a 244 in his first game and had a 267 in his third game to finish with a set of 811.

Friend, who is a member of the Wednesday Civic League, rolled his first 300 game about 10 years ago at North Garrett Lanes in Grantsville.

NEW LAKER SCOREBOARD - Thanks to the generosity of two local businesses, the Garrett Community College basketball program is the proud owner of a new scoreboard. McDonald's Restaurant and the Coca-Cola Corporation combined efforts to help GCC purchase the new board, which replaces the former board that had become obsolete. The former board was purchased also via the assistance of Coca-Cola. "This was a much needed upgrade," said GCC men's coach Dennis Gibson, "and these two businesses have gone out of their way to help us improve our facility. I can't say enough about their willingness to help out, not only our athletic programs, but our community in general. You see the results of their good deeds everywhere you go in the county." Gibson also noted his appreciation to assistant coach Jamie Workman, who was instrumental in working with the businesses to acquire the scoreboard. Pictured below, from left, are Gibson, Amy Brock of Coca-Cola, assistant coach Dave Martin, and McDonald's regional manager Bob Turner.

Garrett's Women Cagers Aim To Keep Momentum Of Quick Start

As a sports philosopher once said, "It's all about the 'mo,'" ("mo" being momentum). The women's basketball team of Garrett Community College is hoping to keep the "mo" going after jumping out to a 2-0 start as reported in last week's sports pages of The Republican.

New Lakers' head coach Steve Willison has inherited a solid core group of sophomores from retired coach Ann Wellham, who has stepped down after seven seasons as head coach while remaining the college's athletic director at the school. Willison, having served as Wellham's assistant coach last year, has an advantage over other first-year coaches, who must learn their program and their players' strengths from the ground up.

"Our four sophomores are providing the leadership and game experience essential for a successful program," Willison said of his returning upperclass nucleus of forward Donna Lyles (5-8, of Calvert City), and guards Christi Edgell (5-5, of West Union, W.Va.), Crystal Kimble (5-6, of Seneca Rocks, W.Va.), and Donielle Gaines (5-8, Cambridge). "Each one of those players will probably start at various times over the course of the season."

The Lakers' second-year quartet is joined by a group of eight freshmen recruited from Maryland, West Virginia, and Pennsylvania high schools. "I feel that our freshmen are so strong, that we could field two starting teams at any time," commented Willison.

Among the new recruits are forward Charlena Reeves (5-8) and guard Amber Stewart (5-4), a pair of Oakland residents who graduated from Southern High School last spring. Reeves and Stewart were members of a Ram varsity squad that recorded a 20-5 record last season, claimed the Western Maryland Class 1A Region crown, and narrowly missed a win in a state title game that went down to the final minute.

Frosh forward Mindy Miller (5-6, Preston County, W.Va.) averaged 10 points per game at Preston High last season, and center Shalonda Reid (6-0, of Cambridge) netted 13 ppg and ripped down 15 rebounds per contest last year at South Dorchester High.

Forward Kristen Maynard (5-9, Delbarton, W.Va.) was the captain of her high school squad last year, and earned West Virginia All-State honorable mention recognition by averaging 15 ppg and proving to be a top rebounder. Maynard also recorded an 80% free-throw shooting figure. Guard Juakeena Bell (5-9, of Temple Hills), a four-year player for Largo High, averaged 12 points and four rebounds per game over her high school career.

Guards Angel Kendall (5-7, of Schenley, Pa.) and Carrie Pardue (5-9, of Hamlin, W.Va.) round out the recruiting class. A defensive specialist, Kendall also averaged 6 points per game last season and took part in the Kenny Durrett All-Star Game. Pardue started all her squad's games during her senior year and averaged 16 points and 8 rebounds as captain. She was named to the second team in West Virginia's All-State Tournament.

The Lakers take to the road Saturday to face the College of Southern Maryland, the beginning of a seven-game road trip that will include a showdown with arch-rival Allegany College of Maryland on Saturday, Dec. 8, and an appearance in the Hagerstown CC Tournament the weekend of Jan. 5-6. Garrett won't return to the friendly confines of its home gym until a Saturday, Jan. 12, match-up with Baltimore City CC.

OFF TO A WINNING START this season is the Garrett Community College women's basketball team, which will resume its schedule this Friday at the College of Southern Maryland. The Lakers, directed by new coach Steve Willison, are 2-0 and will begin a long road trip this Saturday at the College of Southern Maryland. Their next home game will not be until January 12. Pictured from left, seated, are: Juakena Bell, Angel Kendall, Donelle Gaines, and Shalonda Reid. Kneeling, from left, are: Amber Stewart, Crystal Kimble, and Carrie Pardue. Standing are: Donna Lyles, Charlena Reeves, Kristen Maynard, Christi Edgell, and Mindy Miller.

DNR Announces Annual Duck Stamp Contest

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources has opened its annual Maryland Duck Stamp Contest, officially known as the Maryland Migratory Waterfowl Stamp Design Contest. Submissions from any Maryland citizen interested in participating will be accepted through March 13.

"Maryland's waterfowl, and their natural habitats, have long been a vital part of our state's heritage, economy, and quality of life," said DNR Secretary J. Charles Fox. "Many of America's most beloved waterfowl artists have received their inspiration from Maryland's shorelines. I am confident this year's contest will celebrate that proud tradition, introduce new talent, and showcase Maryland's beauty."

The design competition is being held in conjunction with the third annual Patuxent Wildlife Art Show, set for April 6 at the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center. Entries will be judged at the event.

For complete contest rules and information, persons may contact DNR online at www.dnr.state.md.us/wildlife/duckstamp or call 877-620-8DNR, ext. 8001, a toll-free number in Maryland.

A HAPPY GRANDPA, Kitzmiller resident Lee Paugh is shown with two of his grandchildren, Faye Paugh, right, and Michael Paugh Jr., after he bagged this 8-point "piebald" buck on the opening day of deer firearms season. The 108-pound, white and mottled brown deer had light blue eyes, unusual for any deer, and was very big for a piebald, according to a wildlife biologist with the Department of Natural Resources. "Piebald and albino deer are both extremely rare, at less than 1% of the state's entire deer population," Doug Hotton, DNR's Deer Project leader for the entire state. "However, those genetic mutations, caused by a recessive gene, are not the best thing for the population as a whole. Those deer often exhibit skeletal deformities, shorter legs, and heart defects, among other handicaps, that make it hard for them to survive. As the goal of nature's wildlife is to find food and shelter, and reproduce, it's actually best to remove genetic defects from the population rather than have them proliferate. It's just one of those hard facts of nature."

Seeks Funding

He and the county's finance office staff are currently reviewing the board's carryovers from previous years to find out how it has spent excess money in the past.

Pagenhardt pointed out, however, that redesignating money is not an easy task, since the state places restrictions on how the board may use certain funds. For example, money allocated for special education cannot be used for transportation, even though the board may have extra funds from that category.

The FY 2002 operating budget allocated by the commissioners to the Board of Education was $15,225,279, which is $700,677 more than they allocated for 2001 and $1,575,279 more than 2000.

The board's budget accounts for approximately 30% of the total operating budget for the entire county.

Teens, Adults Join Forces To Check For Illegal Tobacco Sales

Teams of Garrett County Health Department personnel, Northern and Southern High School student STEAM (Student Tobacco Elimination Among Minors) program participants, and local law enforcement officers have been conducting checks at area stores to ensure compliance with Maryland tobacco laws. The compliance checks are part of an effort aimed reducing illegal tobacco sales to minors in Garrett County.

Maryland law makes it illegal for merchants to distribute or sell tobacco to persons under 18. The compliance teams have visited 32 merchants so far, and six of those were not in compliance with the law. "Although a few merchants were not in compliance, we were pleasantly surprised to find a majority of the merchants requested an ID before selling," said Northern High STEAM supervisor Brenda Frazee of the GCHD.

"The project began this fall and is designed to provide positive reinforcement to retailers who comply with the law by rewarding them with publicity and a compliance kit," added GCHD health educator Mike Wilburn. "The Health Department and the STEAM students will provide educational material to the merchants during their visits. In addition, local law enforcement agencies will be notified of the non-compliant merchants. Local law enforcement officers will be contacting the non-compliant merchants as a reminder."

Wilburn commended the following merchants for their compliance during the recent checks: Chestnut Ridge Gas & Liquor, Get 'n Go, Markwood's Convenience Center, Keyser's Ridge Trading Post, Short Stop, 135 Amoco, Deep Creek Foodland Fresh, Food Lion, Grantsville Market, Hartman's Accident Amoco, Oakland Exxon, Sheetz, Friendsville Discount Liquors, Grantsville Station, Keyser's Ridge Truck Stop, Midway Discount Beverages, Grantsville Foodland, Proudfoot's Oakland Pharmacy, Grantsville Liquors, S & S Market, Brodak's Discount Liquors, Crellin Service Center, CVS Pharmacy, and Rite Aid in Grantsville.

"The efforts of the Health Department to educate local merchants and encourage their compliance with the tobacco retail laws will be ongoing," Wilburn commented. "The checks will be conducted periodically throughout the year."

ROTARY TREES ARE POPPING UP ALL OVER the county, as this one did recently at the Garrett County Health Department's new offices along Memorial Drive. Pictured with the tree are Bob Stephens of the Oakland Rotary Club and Linda Sisler of the health department's WIC program. Last year's Rotary Christmas Project donors and volunteers accounted for the delivery of over 2,000 toys to local children, and this year the need is even greater. Interested persons are encouraged to take a card or two from any tree, purchase the item listed on the card, and return both card and gift (unwrapped) to the same tree by Sunday, Dec. 9. Volunteers will also be needed to help wrap gifts and prepare food baskets at the Simon Pearce glass plant on Friday, Dec. 14, and to deliver gifts across the county on the following day. Further information can be obtained by calling Daryl Walters at 301-334-7600 or Kathy Zimmerman at 301-334-2820.

Attorney General Warns Retailers To Stop Selling Cigarettes To Minors

by Jill Caniglia
Capital News Service

ROCKVILLE — Maryland Attorney General J. Joseph Curran Jr. will try again in January to pass a bill allowing county health officials to civilly sanction tobacco retailers caught selling cigarettes to children.

Montgomery, Howard, and Prince George's counties have ordinances that allow them to do this now.

Since its ordinance took effect three years ago, Montgomery County has seen increased compliance. The county now boasts a 95 percent compliance rate, the highest in the state.

In other counties, however, only police or Curran's office can enforce the law.

County officials say this is a problem.

"They [police] have priorities. Tobacco has not been a priority," said Dennis Theoharis, executive director of Montgomery County's Board of License Commissioners.

A similar bill introduced last legislative session never got off the ground because officials got in the game too late, Theoharis said.

The decision to advocate such a bill comes after a sting operation earlier this year in Baltimore, Baltimore County, and Prince George's County revealed cigarettes are too accessible to children. Out of 42 attempts, children successfully purchased cigarettes 62 percent of the time.

Nearly 30,000 children buy more than 12 million packs of cigarettes each year, Curran said. About 13,000 of those 30,000 children will become regular smokers, he added.

Until a bill is passed, Curran and county officials are banding together to attack the problem at its source — the retailers.

"We need the cooperation of the retailers to reduce youth access to cigarettes," Curran said at a Tuesday news conference in Rockville announcing a statewide crackdown on cigarette sales to minors.

The 7,000 tobacco retailers statewide, with the exception of Anne Arundel County, will get a joint letter from Curran and county officials and guides reminding them of Maryland's laws and penalties. Anne Arundel County will hand out its own version of the guide.

The initiative, funded by the attorney general's office, will cost about $4,000.

Curran said his office may resume sting operations and fine retailers if the compliance rate doesn't increase after the guides are distributed.

PLEASE TELL ME A STORY

Does this headline bring back pictures of tales you were told in your childhood, or the feeling of safety in the storytellers' arms? If yes, you are one of millions who grew up learning valuable lessons from Grimms', Andersen's, and other authors' tales.

We live now in a time period where it seems cruel to have the wolf devour the grandmother only to have to give her up again when help arrives, yet our small children can watch bombing and killing for hours and days on end and we think that is OK. At best, we watch for damage to become apparent and then look for help.

I am writing this article as a gentle reminder that our children need safety within the family and learning — a lot of it! Instead of buying Christmas gifts this year could you search out children and read stories to them? They could be your own, grand- or great-grandchildren, a neighbor's child, or youngsters from a one-parent family where no one reads. Speak to library personnel or Head Start—Maybe you could read to their children or you may be good at telling them tales. Check with a hospital—There surely will be children whose eyes would light up at a good story.

What is the difference between the killings portrayed in children's fairy tales and those reported on the nightly news?

Television, obviously, brings you stories with sound and in living color. As in the case of September 11, the story was played over and over again for days. Even adults are affected by this power. What happened was beyond children's understanding. Many children feared for their safety without a helpful explanation forthcoming from the adults that might have alleviated their fear.

Old-time tales were never meant to be meaningless stories to pass the time. They were told generations before someone wrote them down and always were used to teach behavior, goodness, strength, humor, cooperation, and many other aspects helpful to daily living within a family or community. Often they emphasized that doing the right thing has rewards, that after a difficult time the sun will shine again, and that bad deeds will be punished.

When children hear a story told, they create their own picture of what people look like and the surroundings. They can even make their own sound track if invited to play it out. This will all be at a level the child can handle and relate to, depending on what has been stored in the child's mind up to that point. Telling Little Red Riding Hood to a 3-year-old creates different pictures from sharing the story with a 7-year-old, but each can draw manageable lessons from it. Neither child is locked into seeing the same picture in bright colors with a fear- evoking sound track that tests emotions to the extreme, making them unmanageable.

The psychiatrist Bruno Bettelheim said that old-time tales on the surface seem not to relate to our "oh-so-modern, fast-paced world"; however, they work with people's emotions and find solutions. Dreams, fears, happiness, and love will be experienced over and over again from the time a child is born to the time we leave this earth. Each one of those emotions needs experience and practice to mature to the level appropriate for an adult.

Tales address reality, yet touch the subconscious. The child learns where the action of the story fits into her or his life. The child can build on that information to make him or herself a part of the solution (to save a girl from a mean king, or run faster than the giant, for instance). A child may want to be the hero and dress up like in the illustration, then forge ahead and team up with the pet dog to stage a rescue.

Children can take the same theme and create different stories with themselves as the heroes. They will have to repeat this story until all emotions they are capable of at that point are worked through. That takes time. Repeated reading and answering questions will be necessary to help the child with this important step toward growing up. In some of the imagined stories the atmosphere may be scary, but stops short of damaging fear. There is an age when children love scary stories, but only from the safety of being able to flee to a trusted adult, siblings or friends.

Stories teach children to daydream, to think ahead ("What would I do if . . .") and combine reality with fantasy—the fabric goals are made of ("When I grow up I want to be a fireman."). Stories also help adults and the older generations relive their early years and, in children, find interested listeners for the stories of their own youth.

The Maryland state FCE is involved in a project recording stories of older people in which they learned to master hardship and difficult times, and came out of it stronger and wiser than they were before. The stories will be offered to young people to manage difficult situations and see them as challenges rather than obstacles.

If you are interested in sharing a story from your life where hopelessness was changed into a hopeful situation, please write it down and send it to me or let me know and we will put it on paper for you. What You Can Do For Varicose Veins

Varicose (enlarged) veins affect up to half of all adult women in the US. Unlike spider veins, varicose veins are usually more than a quarter inch in diameter, bulge and/or twist out from the surrounding area, and can be painful. They result when veins lose their elasticity and blood begins pooling on its way back to the heart. The veins bulge and produce the typical varicose appearance. Complications may include swollen ankles or itchy or scaly patches of skin near the affected areas.

Walking regularly and finding several times throughout the day to elevate the legs can help relieve symptoms. Compression hose or stockings that can be found in many pharmacies apply consistent pressure to help push blood upward to the heart. Aspirin or ibuprofen may alleviate occasional pain and inflammation. Finally, evaluation of and/or correcting the factors that can lead to varicose veins also may help. These factors include prolonged inactivity; obesity; excessive abdominal straining; birth control pills; and estrogen replacement therapy.

Church To Host China Outreach Ministries Leader

William R. Snodgrass will be the guest speaker at Faith Evangelical Free Church (located along Route 135 in Mountain Lake Park) this Sunday, Dec. 2. The service will begin at 10:45 a.m.

Snodgrass is the director of special projects for China Outreach Ministries Inc., a non-denominational body committed to "getting the good news of God's love to the people of China." He works in the area of pastoral care, budget and support raising, accountability, training, and team building. He sets up and hosts tours to China, and is working to bring groups of Chinese businessmen to the U.S. on tours.

Snodgrass said that C.O.M.'s efforts are focused in two principal thrusts: placing campus workers on or near American university campuses to "share Christ's love with the people of China" through person-to-person contact with China scholars (doctors, engineers, technicians, and other professionals), and Christian radio broadcasts to Mainland China.

Snodgrass also serves on the board of directors of Christian Bow Hunters, which is a national organization committed to "bringing Christ" to the archery target/hunters in North America and around the world. There are over 2,000 members, with 42 chapters nationally.

A nomination committee was appointed by Ganoe at the last regular monthly meeting of the NGRW. Members are Zeola Robeson, Mildred Husselbaugh, and Brenda Butscher. The committee will give a report at the December luncheon. Proceeds from the annual auction will help the club participate in future projects.

New Germany Earns DNR Clean Marina Status

New Germany State Park has been named a Maryland Clean Marina Partner, the sixth public facility in the state to earn the designation. The Maryland Department of Natural Resources' Clean Marina Partner designation indicates that the park managers minimize their own pollution and actively promote clean boating habits.

Today the 13-acre lake is open to non-motorized craft such as canoes, kayaks, and rowboats. To maintain the natural resources of the area, park manager Michael Gregory and his staff minimize the use of pesticides; recycle used oil, antifreeze, paper, and aluminum; and ensure that the park's rescue boat is fueled away from the water while on a trailer.

"DNR's mission is to inspire people to enjoy and live in harmony with our natural environment," Secretary J. Charles Fox said. "Our state parks convey this message through the special places they maintain and the environmentally responsible practices they adopt."

Maryland's Clean Marina Initiative promotes voluntary adoption of measures to reduce pollution from recreational boating. The Clean Marina Partner designation was created to recognize boating facilities other than marinas, boatyards, and yacht clubs that are implementing pollution prevention measures.

The goal of the Clean Marina Initiative is to certify 25 percent of Maryland's 600 public and private boating facilities as Clean Marinas or Clean Marina Partners by 2004. To date, 129 boating facilities have taken the first step and signed the Clean Marina Pledge, 36 have been certified as Clean Marinas, and eight have been certified as Clean Marina Partners.

For more details about the Maryland Clean Marina initiative or to order free pollution prevention materials for boaters, persons may call DNR at 877-620-8DNR, ext. 8770.

Deep Creek Lake PRB Sets Meeting

The Deep Creek Lake Policy and Review Board will meet at 7 p.m. Monday, Dec. 3, at the Deep Creek Lake State Park Discovery Center. As with all DCL PRB meetings, the session is open to the public and the board will be accepting public input and comment during the evening, according to a spokesperson for the Department of Natural Resources.

The agenda for the upcoming meeting includes discussion of a draft Request for Proposals for a lake carrying capacity study, slated to being in the summer of 2002. Funding was recently secured to conduct the study, which will focus on lake boating and commercial issues. The study is expected to be carried out during the 2002 and 2003 recreational seasons.

Other agenda items include an update from lake manager Paul Durham on power line safety, and a DNR response to a previous board recommendation that would require future lake regulations to be consistent with the recently approved DCL Recreation and Land Use Plan.

Further information on the meeting can be obtained from Durham by calling 301-387-4111.

Notes from Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

I can guess what most people from Bittinger were thankful for last Thursday as they gathered around many groaning tables loaded with feasts set for a king. I am pretty sure that most of the extensive families were gathered most of the times at Grandmother's house. Unfortunately, instead of a horse-drawn sleigh, we now like the convenience of the car, van, and pickups to transport us to these celebrations. We can still go "over the river and through the woods," and even over the creeks to Grandmother's house. This transportation is not bad, but less pleasing than being driven in a horse-drawn vehicle with harness and bells jingling.

Our "Pappy" Dale still has a long strap of sleigh bells hanging by his kitchen door at his house.

Probably most feasts are not now held at Grandma's house because most places they now live in are not a big house and don't have enough room for the grandchildren to run and play away from the adults. Anyway, that is the way it is now with my family. Instead of at Gram's (Ruth DiPaolo) house, we held our branch of the Glotfelty clan dinner at Rodney and Marci Glotfelty's house.

Unfortunately, Marci had to leave for work in the afternoon at Meyersdale Manor Nursing home before she was able to sit down with our family to eat the feast that she made in the morning. But she was not completely absent from our feast. Before dinner we ask each one to say what he/she is thankful for, and one of the first mentioned was, Marci's family was thankful for her and the wonderful meal she had prepared. Someone also said that he was thankful that she worked at the nursing home where she could share her abundant love with the elderly homesick people. Of course, they also wished that she could be home with their family.

One of the cousins was thankful for "Pappy" Dale's winning the battle with cancer so he could be with us. We were also blessed with the presence of Aunt Helen Englar and her two sons, Mike and Courtney. They were always there when I was a kid at the home of my grandparents, Orval and Emma Glotfelty. It wouldn't be complete without them.

I was thankful that I could share this Thanksgiving with my precious girls, Claire, Caitlin, and Mere, while their father dined with the Jim Sherrard family in Accident. Although I always treasure my time with them, I still resent it very much when Lloyd swept them away to go downstate to see his family. They even ate one meal at their house which was cooked by "Nana" Ruthe. Most of the time they either eat take-out Chinese food or eat out for Thanksgiving dinner. But that is how it is in suburban areas, especially when they live in a retirement community like Leisure World.

Besides visiting with Pop and Nana, they also visited Lloyd's long-time best friend, in fact, the best man at our wedding, Howard Goldstein, and family in downtown D.C. My girls first saw Georgetown on the way to drop off Howard's son Sam at a basketball game. Then they all went down to the mall and took in the new National Building Museum and his show at the Modern Art Museum, and my personal favorite, the National Gallery of Art. They caught a glimpse of the new World War II monument.

In Bittinger we had many veterans of that war, as well as World War I, including my grandfather, Orval Glotfelty. Thankfully, he got home OK from the war in Europe, but his brother Robert died in a battle in France and now rests in peace in the old family cemetery on the old Glotfelty homeplace. In Bittinger we are thankful for the many brave men who defended our freedom in the armed services and those who worked for peace in the world like my brother Scott, who died in Africa while serving in the Peace Corps. I think that most Bittinger residents know that they live in one of the most beautiful places anywhere, and every time we see the beauty around us we are ever so thankful. Of course, we are all very thankful for our big, close families. I am thankful for the good rain we are getting this morning. Maybe it means that the drought that we have been experiencing is at its end.

Getting back to our Thanksgiving feast, following dinner we were all invited down to the Whittemore home to join Lesa, David, Greg, and Maddy for an array of all kinds of pies. Lesa said she used enough cream, eggs, and butter to sink a ship. Along with the Housley family, we had two different kinds of pumpkin pies with different spices. Greg even made a chocolate cream pie "from scratch" that was delicious. We also were treated to pecan, cherry, and apple pies. I was already stuffed from the big turkey dinner, and then I had to try all those different kinds of pies. Lesa has quite a hidden talent in baking such good pies.

Carol and Kevin Bass and their children left Tuesday night to visit with his parents, Bill and Barbara Bass, in Anderson, S.C. They returned Sunday after an enjoyable visit.

Ken and Harriett Buckel visited Estella and Kermit Bittinger, Shawnee Lane, recently. Also visiting the Bittingers was their granddaughter, Tammy Goehringer, from Fairmont, W.Va.

Bonnie, Tracey, and Tony McEnroy, Mt. Airy, visited her parents, Ken and Harriett Buckel, over the holidays.

Cathryn Buckel, York, Pa., and Ralph and Ethel Buckel were Thanksgiving Day dinner guests of Gary and Sharon Buckel and daughters. Cathryn spent the holiday weekend with her grandparents. Recent guests of the Buckels were Bill and Jane Boddicker, Knoxville, Shirley Panther, Oakland, Sally and Ken Slack, Worton, Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Buckel Jr., Chestertown, and Mark and Tamy Buckel, Hershey, Pa.

Thanksgiving guests of Sally, Lenny, and Torrey Poholsky were Brent, Kelley, Wyatt, and Teagan Beachy, Grand Rapids, Mich., Dave and Nancy Beachy, McHenry, Ferne Beachy, and Cindy, Sam, and Aaron Stanton. Leah Stanton visited with a friend in California over the holidays.

Gathering for dinner last Sunday at the home of Ida Reckner were Jeff and Sheli Gray and daughters Ashlin and Abigail, Hanover; Lillian and Charee Reckner, and Michaele Puliti, McHenry; Linda Oester, Salisbury, Pa.; and Jim and Donna Glotfelty. Jeff returned to Hanover and his job after spending the weekend here, but Sheli and the girls remained to spend several days with relatives in the area.

Relatives here have received word of the death of Leo ("Boots") Reckner, 84, of Jamestown, Pa., Saturday evening. Funeral services were held Wednesday at the Harold Coleman Funeral Home in Linesville, Pa. "Boots" and his wife Marion visited frequently with relatives in this area, and he was an avid hunter and fisherman. He was the last remaining member of the late George and Jessie Reckner family.

Thanksgiving dinner guests of Jim and Donna Glotfelty were Jeff and Sheli Gray and daughters, Hanover; William and Linda Oester, Salisbury, Taylor and Tim Glotfelty; and Laura Bach. Weekend guests were Dwaine and Lisa Platter, Adam and Amanda, Smithsburg. Dwaine remained here for a few days hunting in the area.

Signatures To Be Launched Into Space By NASA

A poster with the signatures of Terra Alta East Preston, W.Va., students will be launched into space today, Nov. 29, at 7:41 p.m., aboard the space shuttle Endeavour, Mission ST-108. The Student Signatures In Space Project is sponsored by NASA and Lockheed Martin.

East Preston was one of 600 schools worldwide selected by the sponsors to participate in the program. The school was chosen due to the efforts of the Mars Millennium Group (MMG), a group of nine sixth graders at East Preston, who have been studying space for the last two years, according to Cathy Teets, MMG sponsor and parent volunteer.

"NASA sent us a 'Space Day' poster, and MMG went to every classroom to get every student's signature on the poster," Teets said. "During their classroom visits, [MMG] gave a report on their trip to Washington, D.C., last May to attend Space Day at the National Air and Space Museum. While there, the group got to meet former astronaut Senator John Glenn. It was a once-in-a-lifetime experience for all of us."

After Endeavour returns, which is slated for 3:41 p.m. on Monday, Dec. 10, the poster will be sent back to East Preston with certification from NASA stating that the poster was in space, along with a photo of the shuttle crew.

The launch of Endeavor will be broadcast live on NASA TV (Channel 1). NASA TV is located on GE-2, transponder 9C, at 85 degrees west longitude, vertical polarization, with a frequency of 3880 MHz, and audio of 6.8 MHz.

More information about NASA TV (including program schedules) may be found at http://www.nasa.gov

Many web sites also provide real-time launch viewing and access to NASA TV, said Teets. One site that she recommends is sponsored by the United Space Alliance, which can be accessed at http://www.unitedspacealliance.com/live.

A list of other web sites that offer launch coverage may be found at http://www.nasa.gov.ntv/ntvweb.html.

The main goal of the space shuttle crew is to exchange crews in the International Space Station (ISS). According to Teets, the mission's launch window is less than five minutes, which means that controllers have less than five minutes in which they can launch the shuttle and still attain the correct orbit to rendezvous with the ISS. "Anything after that," Teets said, "and their trajectory will not be in line with their ISS target, so they'll have to wait for another opportunity to launch, like the next evening, for example."

WARM THE CHILDREN

Providing New Winter Clothing For Needy Children

For the fifth year, The Republican is asking for your help. Without it, many Garrett County children will go cold this winter.

Just what is The Republican newspaper's WARM THE CHILDREN FUND?

The Republican's Warm The Children Fund is, basically, neighbors helping neighbors. We here at the paper are asking for monetary donations (tax deductible) from you, the readers. The collected funds are being used to purchase new winter clothing for Garrett County children in need. Because the newspaper administers the program, there are no added fees or overhead costs. Every penny donated is used to buy the winter items.

How are needy children being identified?

A special core of volunteers is working right now to identify those in need this year. Many have already been served. (Please do not call for the service. If you have been selected, you will soon be notified.)

How is the children's clothing be purchased?

Volunteers are taking the families shopping at Wal-Mart or through the J.C. Penney's catalog store in Oakland, or at the Ames in Frostburg. The children, with the help of their parents, may select their own new coats, hats, sweaters, long johns, jeans, boots, pajamas, or other needed winter items, spending up to $100 per child.

We need two things: volunteers and donations.

To volunteer as a shopper in Oakland, please contact Linda Thomas at 301-387-6203. To volunteer as a shopper at Ames, please call Lisa Broadwater at 301-895-5827 or 301-746-8223. For general information, you may call Mary McEwen at the newspaper office at 301-334-3963.

To make a donation, please complete the coupon below, cut it out, and mail it along with your tax-deductible contribution to the address noted. All checks should be made out to Warm the Children Fund.

THE REPUBLICAN

Please make your donations before November 30, 2001. Those collected after November 30 will be saved for next year's campaign.

Second Maryland College Savings Plan Unveiled

The Maryland College Investment Plan, the state's second "529 Plan," was unveiled this week by Governor Parris N. Glendening. The new plan offers 10 different investment options managed by T. Rowe Price Associates of Baltimore, and joins the existing Maryland Prepaid College Trust as an avenue to accumulate savings, with built-in tax advantages, for a college education. The College Investment Plan goes into effect Monday, Dec. 10, while the Prepaid College Trust opened its fifth enrollment period earlier this week.

Like the Prepaid Trust, the Investment Plan allows assets to grow tax-deferred. The earnings, when used to pay for qualified higher education expenses, are tax-free in Maryland and beginning in 2002 will also be federally tax-free. Both plans allow for a Maryland State income deduction of up to $2,500 of the contributions per account annually. Maryland taxpayers can still take advantage of the 2001 State income deduction by enrolling and making a contribution in either plan by noon on Dec. 31.

The Prepaid Trust, which currently has more than 10,000 accounts and a commitment from the account holders of more than $200 million, will accept enrollments through March 22. The Trust is open to children currently in the ninth grade or younger, including newborns. Either the account holder or child must be a resident of Maryland or the District of Columbia when the account is opened. The new Investment Plan does not have any age or state residency restrictions.

The Investment Plan offers 10 investment options managed by T. Rowe Price Associates. These include seven enrollment-based portfolios, which are comprised of a mix of investments that are periodically adjusted based on the beneficiary's age and expected college enrollment date, and three fixed portfolios, which are set and have varying levels of risk and return potential. Account holders can open accounts in one or more of the portfolios. Starting Jan. 1, the Internal Revenue Service will allow account holders the option to move their investments between portfolios once a year.

More information on the two college savings plans is available online at www.collegesavingsmd.org or by calling toll-free 1-888-4MD-GRAD (1-800-463-4723).

Horse Liniment Eases Arthritis Pain

OCALA, FL -- An ingredient derived from hot peppers that decreases inflammation in racehorse's legs, is now recognized as safe and effective for human use. The ingredient has been formulated into a product called ARTH-Rx™ and comes in a strength designed for humans. Researchers are excited and say the formula can relieve arthritis pain for millions.

Developed by the Phillips Gulf Corporation, ARTH-Rx is a breakthrough in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, tendonitis, backache and more.

Although the mechanism by which ARTH-Rx works to relieve pain is not totally clear, scientists suggest that pain is relieved because ARTH-Rx intercepts the messenger substance that sends pain signals to the brain.

ARTH-Rx is available in a convenient roll-on applicator without a prescription. According to a spokesperson for the company, due to the overwhelming demand for ARTH-Rx, supplies are sometimes limited. ARTH-Rx can also be ordered by calling 1-800-729-8446. © 2000 PGC

Real, Artificial Christmas Tree Debate Continues

by Justin Paprocki
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — The great holiday debate continues — real vs. artificial Christmas trees.

There's nothing like going to a tree farm and cutting down your own tree, farm owners say. But an artificial tree can save time and money during an already hectic holiday season, and it reduces the risk of fire, artificial tree dealers said.

In recent years, more people have sided with the dealers.

About half of American households had an artificial tree in 2000, up from 40 percent in 1996, according to a survey by the National Christmas Tree Association. A real tree was in about 31 percent of households last year.

Time constraints are driving more people away from the countryside and into the stores to pick out a tree, farm owners said. An artificial tree lasts longer, doesn't require much maintenance, and is easy to assemble and decorate, said Sandy Gamble, the Christmas buyer at American Plant Food Co. in Bethesda.

"It's about convenience," she said. "There's not a lot to it."

But an artificial tree just isn't the same, said Lucretia Tanner of Tanner's Enchanted Forest in Brandywine.

"People think it's easier, but is that what it's all about?" she asked.

A trip to the tree farm is more than just cost or convenience, she added.

"It's about building memories," she said. "That's what the holidays are all about."

The 110-acre Tanner farm offers hot tea and candy canes to visitors, who can come and enjoy the ambiance of the farm, with its barnyard animals and peaceful atmosphere, while they shop for a tree.

"People come and make it a tradition to pick their tree," she said. "You get the feel of the tree, the smell, the enjoyment of having your own tree."

But it's getting harder to tell the real trees from the fake ones, Gamble said.

"[Artificial trees] have come a long way in the past couple years," she said. "Some of these you have to walk up to and feel to make sure it's not real."

An artificial tree can cost from $80 to more than $500, depending on the size, shape or added features, such as frosted branches or built-in lights.

Not only have artificial trees started to look more like their natural counterparts, but they can last up to 20 years, giving the purchaser "more bang for their buck," said Allen Blakey, spokesman for the Vinyl Institute, an Arlington, Va., organization that represents vinyl manufacturers.

A real tree can from cost from $20 to $75 and can be a fire hazard if not properly cared for. Artificial trees, most of which are primarily made of vinyl, are flame retardant, Blakey said.

More than 400 residential fires are started each year from real Christmas trees igniting, according to the National Fire Protection Association. But the fires that do start each year represent less than 1 percent of the more than 33 million real Christmas trees that are sold annually, according to the National Christmas Tree Association.

If the tree is watered carefully and kept away from heat, fire can be easily avoided, according to the association. Trees should immediately be placed in water after being cut, and the water supply should be refilled as it empties. Trees can absorb up to a gallon of water in the first day after it is cut and one or more quarts daily after that.

Once the holiday season is over, a real tree can be easily recycled, while artificial trees don't decompose easily, tree farm owners said.

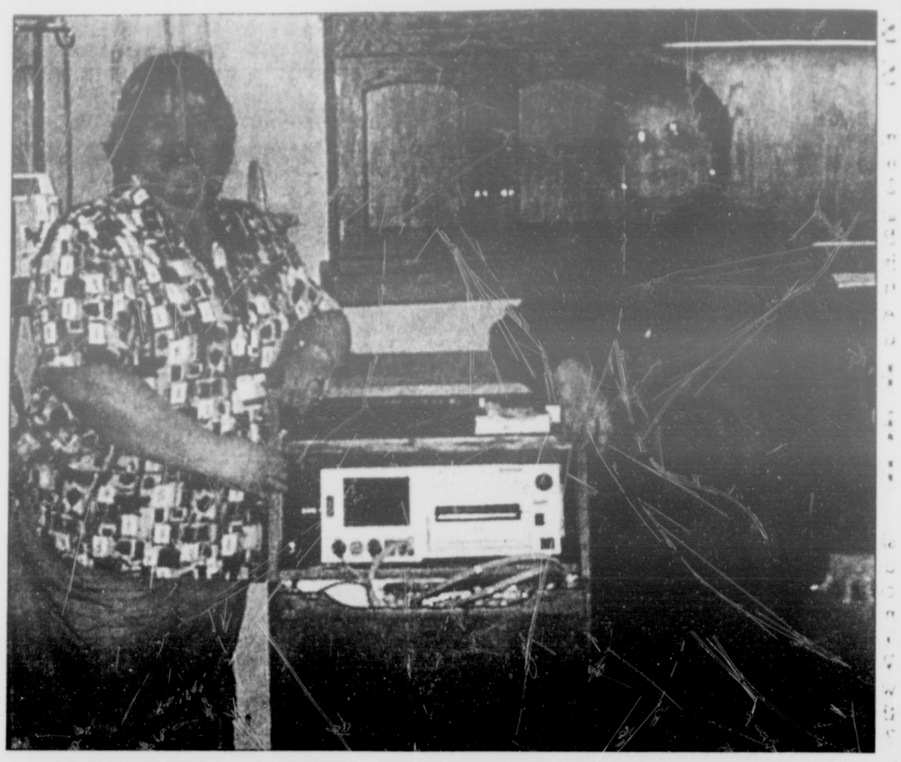
Trees are also a good crop to grow because they provide habitat for wildlife, hold soil in place, prevent runoff, and give off oxygen, said Wayne Thomas, owner of the 85-acre Thomas Tree Farm in Manchester.

"A lot of folks say, 'How can you cut down such a beautiful tree?'" But it's beneficial because a seedling will be planted to replace the old one, he said. "The live tree is definitely an outstanding environmental benefit."

But a real tree can pose environmental problems if not properly disposed of, said Beck Cowles, a spokeswoman for the Ecology Center, a nonprofit environmental research group in Berkeley, Calif.

Neither artificial nor real trees will break down much in a packed landfill, she said. Reducing a real tree to mulch will have a better ecological impact.

Buying a live tree, then planting it again afterwards, she said, is the more ideal environmental situation.



NEW EQUIPMENT FOR GCMH — The Garrett County Memorial Hospital Foundation recently purchased two new fetal monitors for the Family Centered Maternity Suite. The new equipment can monitor the mother's contractions, blood pressure, oxygen saturation, and EKG, as well as monitor the baby's heart rate. "We are so grateful to the foundation for their hard work and donations," said Charlene Bennett, FCMS nurse manager. "They enable the FCMS to provide our patients with state of the art equipment." The GCMH Foundation is the primary fund-raising arm of the hospital, and uses donations to assist in funding equipment and capital needs for the facility. Pictured above with one of the new monitors are Bennett, on the left, and Louise Conjura, GCMH Foundation chairman.

FOODLAND Fresh

Many young people dream of owning their own computer. That dream came true for two excited individuals on October 31, 2001. Hugh Umbel and Dale Umbel, the owners of Deep Creek Foodland Fresh and Grantsville Foodland, made a decision early in October to sponsor a contest that would promote education among the area's youth, as well as create an exciting and fun atmosphere at Halloween. "Guess the Weight of the Pumpkin" contest was the result of this decision. A very large pumpkin was displayed at each food store with instructions on how to proceed. No touching or lifting was permitted.

As you can imagine, a number of guesses were recorded at each store. Amazingly, many guesses were very close to the actual weight. When asked how he felt about winning a brand new computer, Connor Rock replied, "Pretty good!" The actual weight of the pumpkin displayed at Grantsville Foodland was 48 lbs. and 8¾ oz. and Connor's guess was 46½ lbs. Connor, a first grade student at Rt. 40 Elementary School, enjoys playing games on his computer, especially dinosaur games. He also uses it for school projects and enjoys math games because math is his favorite subject. Connor's mother said Connor was so excited and jumped in the air yelling, "Yippie" when he was informed about the win. She also commented that this was a "once in a lifetime thing" and that she and her family felt very fortunate. Pictured above is Connor with Dale Umbel, co-owner of Grantsville Foodland.

Jackie Smetzer, Friendsville, was the recipient of the computer given away at Deep Creek Foodland Fresh. Jackie reported that she was very shocked when she first heard the good news. She enjoys using her computer for homework and chatting on line with friends. The actual weight of the pumpkin was 58 lbs. and 8½ oz. Jackie guessed 58.5 lbs.

In conjunction with the Grand Opening of the Grantsville Foodland, a mountain bike and canoe were also given away at Deep Creek Foodland Fresh. The winner of the mountain bike, William McCombie, and Jackie Smetzer are pictured with Scott Browning, Assistant Manager. Jeremy Fontane, Accident, was the winner of a canoe.

Title VI of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, as amended by the Water Quality Act of 1987 (the "Clean Water Act"), authorizes the United States Environmental Protection Agency (the "EPA") to award grants to qualifying States to establish and capitalize State water pollution control revolving funds ("SRFs") for the purpose of providing loans and certain other forms of financial assistance (but not grants) to finance, among other things, the construction of publicly owned wastewater treatment facilities, estuary conservation management plans and the implementation of nonpoint source management programs.

In addition, the Safe Drinking Water Act of 1986, as amended by the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1994 (the "Safe Drinking Water Act"), authorizes the EPA to award grants to qualifying States to establish and capitalize SRFs for the purpose of providing loans and certain other forms of financial assistance (but not grants) to finance, among other things, the construction of water supply systems.

The General Assembly of Maryland at its 1988 session enacted the Maryland Water Quality Financing Administration Act, as amended, codified at Sections 9-1601 through 9-1622 of the Environment Article of the Anotated Code of Maryland (the "Act"), establishing the Maryland Water Quality Financing Administration (the "Administration") and establishing an SRF designated the Maryland Water Quality Revolving Loan Fund (the "Water Quality Fund") to be maintained and administered by the Administration and in its 1993 session enacted amendments to the Act establishing an SRF designated the Maryland Drinking Water Revolving Loan Fund (the "Drinking Water Fund") to be maintained and administered by the Administration. The Act, as amended, authorizes the Administration, among other things, to make loans from the Water Quality Fund to a "Local government" (as defined in the Act) for the purpose of financing all or a portion of the cost of a "wastewater facility" (as defined in the Act) and to make loans from the Drinking Water Fund for the purpose of financing all or a portion of the cost of a "water supply system" (as defined in the Act), the Town of Grantsville (the 'borrower") is a "local government" within the meaning of the Act.

The Borrower has applied to the Administration for a loan from the Water Quality Fund to assist in the financing of a certain project which constitutes a "wastewater facility" and for a loan from the Drinking Water Fund to assist in the financing of a certain project which constitutes a "water supply system" within the meaning of the Act. As contemplated by the Act, the Administration and the Borrower will enter into two loan agreements (each, a "Loan Agreement"; collectively, the "Loan Agreements") to effect and evidence the loans.

The Borrower has determined that it will issue its bonds (hereinafter defined), each of which constitutes a "loan obligation" within the meaning of the Act.

There was a prior Water Quality & Drinking Water Ordinance passed and enacted by the Town of Grantsville. It was introduced at a meeting on May 7, 2001. Said Ordinance was not published, and any legal effect it may have had is nullified by this present Ordinance.

NOW THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED AND ENACTED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE TOWN OF GRANTSVILLE:

Section 1. Pursuant to the authority of the Maryland Water Quality Financing Administration Act (codified as Sections 9-1601 to 9-1622, inclusive, of the Environment Article of the Annotated Code of Maryland (1996 Replacement Volume and 2000 Supplement) (the "Act"), Sections 31 to 37, inclusive, of Article 23A of the Annotated Code of Maryland (1998 Replacement Volume and 2000 Supplement), and Sections 18-59 and 18-61 of the Charter of the Town of Grantsville (the "Charter"), the Town of Grantsville, a municipal corporation of the State of Maryland (the "Borrower"), hereby determines to borrow money and incur indebtedness (i) for the public purposes of financing or refinancing improvements to certain wastewater facilities (the "Wastewater System Project") and (ii) for the public purposes of financing or refinancing improvements to the water supply systems (the "Water System Project") and, in each case, related architectural, financial, legal, planning and engineering expenses permitted under the Clean Water Act and Safe Drinking Water Act. The Wastewater System Project and the Water System Project are each described in Exhibit A. The Wastewater System Project constitutes a "wastewater faciliy" and the Water System Project constitutes a "water supply system" within the meaning of the Act.

As contemplated by the Act, such borrowing and indebtedness shall be made and incurred in accordance with the provisions of loan agreements (cach, a "Loan Agreement"; collectively, the "Loan Agreements") between the Borrower and the Marylard Water Quality Financing Administration (the "Administration"). Each Loan Agreement shall be in substantially the forms set forth in Exhibits B-1 and B-2 attached hereto as a part hereof, with such insertions, omissions or variations as may be deemed necessary or appropriate and approved by the officers executing the same (their execution of the Loan Agreements to constitute conclusive evidence of such approval). The Borrower hereby approves the forms of and authorizes the execution and delivery of the Loan Agreements in substantially the forms set forth in Exhibit B-1 and B-2, including all covenants and conditions set forth therein. The Loan Agreements and all the covenants and conditions set forth therein, including, without limitation, payment to the Administration of the annual Administrative Fee described in such Loan Agreements, are hereby approved and adopted as the obligations of the Borrower.

Section 2. To evidence the payment obligations of the Borrower under the Loan Agreements, the Borrower, acting pursuant to the authority of the Act and the Charter, hereby determines to issue and sell, upon its full faith and credit, (i) a general obligation installment bond, in the principal amount not to exceed FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLARS ($50,000.00), to be known as "The Town of Grantsville Water Quality Bond" (the "Water Quality Bond") and (ii) a general obligation installment bond, in the principal amount not to exceed TWO HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS ($200,000.00), to be known as "The Town of Grantsville Drinking Water Bond" (the "Drinking Water Bond" and, collectively with the Water Quality Bond, the "Bonds"). There shall be added to the title of each Bond a designation corresponding to the year in which such Bond is issued. The Bonds shall be dated the date of delivery and shall be issued in the form of two fully registered installment bonds, without coupons attached, numbered R-I and R-2. The Water Quality Bond, numbered R-I, shall bear interest at a rate of 45% of the Bond Buyer 11-Bond Index for the month preceding the date of its delivery and the Drinking Water Bond, numbered R-2, shall bear interest at a rate of 45% of the Bond Buyer 11 Bond Index for the month preceding the date of its delivery. The first payment of principal on each Bond shall be paid no later than one year after the estimated date of completion of each respective project as described in Exhibit A, and subsequent installments of principal shall be payable annually until the principal on such Bond is fully paid, except that the final installment of the entire indebtedness evidenced by each Bond, if not sooner paid, shall be due and payable no later than 20 years after project completion, and except that prepayments may be made as provided in the relevant Loan Agreement. Interest due on the unpaid principal amounts advanced under the Loan Agreements shall accrue on the basis of a 30-day month, 360-day year from the date of the respective advances of such principal amount, and shall be paid semiannually on the 1st day of February and August in each year until such principal amount has been paid.

Section 3. The Bonds shall be executed in the name of the Borrower and on its behalf by the Mayor of the Town of Grantsville. The corporate seal of the Borrower shall be affixed to the Bonds, attested by the signature of the Clerk-Treasurer of the Town of Grantsville (the "Town Clerk") The principal of and interest on the Bonds shall be paid by the Borrower by electronic funds transfer, check or draft mailed (by depositing such check or draft, correctly addressed and postage prepaid, in the United States mails on or before the payment date) to the registered owner at its address as it appears on the books kept for that purpose at the office of the Clerk-Treasurer in the Town of Grantsville, Maryland in the event any official whose signature appears on a Bond ceases to be an official prior to the delivery of such Bond, or shall have become such official after the date of this Ordinance, such Bond shall, nevertheless, be the valid and legally binding obligation of the Borrower in accordance with its terms.

Section 4. Except as provided hereinafter or in any ordinance or ordinances of the Borrower adopted prior to the issuance of the Bonds, the Bonds shall be issued in substantially the form provided for in Exhibit F of each Loan Agreement. Appropriate variations and insertions to provide dates, numbers and amounts, and modifications not altering its substance may be made by the Town Mayor of the Town provided that the face amount of the Bonds shall not exceed the limits set forth in Section 2 of this Ordinance. All of the covenants contained in Exhibit F of each Loan Agreement are hereby adopted by the Borrower as and for the form of obligation to be incurred by the Borrower, and the covenants and conditions contained therein are hereby made binding upon the Borrower, including the promise to pay therein contained.

Section 5. The Bonds shall be sold to the Administration at private (negotiated) sale, without public bidding, in accordance with the provisions of the Act. The Town Mayor with the Consent of the Town Council of the Town is authorized and directed to enter into such agreements with the Administration as they shall deem to be in the best interests of the Town in order to accomplish the public purposes of this Ordinance.

Section 6. The Town Mayor of the Town is expressly authorized and empowered to take any and all action necessary to complete and close the delivery of the Bonds. The Town Mayor of the Town is expressly authorized to make such changes or modifications in the forms adopted herein as may be necessary or appropriate.

Section 7. The Town Mayor, or in his absence, the Clerk-Treasurer of the Town, is hereby designated to receive payment on behalf of the Town of the proceeds of the sale of the Bonds. Such proceeds shall be used and applied by the Town exclusively and solely for the public purposes described in Section 1 of this Ordinance. If the proceeds received from the sale of the Bonds exceed the amount needed for such public purposes, the unexpended excess shall be applied as soon as may be practicable to the prepayment of the Bonds as provided for in Section 2 of this Ordinance, unless a supplemental ordinance is passed and approved by the Town to provide for the expenditure of that excess for some other valid purpose authorized by the Act and the Charter.

Section 8. The principal of and interest on the Water Quality Bond and the Drinking Water Bond shall be payable in the first instance from funds received from the imposition and collection of wastewater and water user charges, respectively, including any and all fees for the use of the wastewater system or public water system, respectively, or connection thereto established by the Town in accordance with the Charter. In the event that such charges and fees are insufficient to meet the debt service requirements on the Bonds the principal and interest on the Bonds shall be payable in accordance with the Loan Agreement. If, in any fiscal year during which the Bonds may be outstanding, either of such funds are insufficient promptly to meet the debt service requirements of the respective Bond the Town shall levy ad valorem taxes, in accordance with the Charter, upon all assessable property liable to taxation in the Town at the regular lax-levying period in rate and amount sufficient to meet and pay promptly the principal of and interest on such Bond when due in each such fiscal year. If the proceeds from the collection of taxes so levied in any such fiscal year are inadequate for such payment, additional taxes shall be levied in the succeeding fiscal year to make up such deficiency. The full faith and credit and unlimited taxing power of the Town are hereby irrevocably pledged to the payment of the principal of and interest on the Bonds as and when they become due and payable and to the levy and collection of the taxes herein above described as and when such taxes may become necessary in order to provide sufficient funds to meet the debt service requirements of the Bonds. The Town hereby covenants and agrees with the registered owner of the Bonds to levy and collect the taxes hereinabove described and to take any further action that may be appropriate from time to time during the period that the Bonds remain outstanding and unpaid to provide the funds necessary to pay promptly the principal thereof and the interest due thereon.

Section 9. The Town hereby covenants and agrees to pay all administrative fees and expenses charged by the Administration under the Loan Agreements.

Section 10. The prior Ordinance referenced in the Recitals introduced at the May 7, 2001, meeting is of no legal effect.

Section 11. This Ordinance shall become effective twenty (20) days following its enactment by the Council of the Town of Grantsville, Maryland, provided that it is published at least twice in a newspaper having a general circulation in the Town.

Garrett County Introduced To "Assertive Technology"

by Thomas S. Pessini

What is assistive technology? According to Scott Hollingsworth, director of the day program at Appalachian Crossroads, assistive technology is hardware and software that assists people with disabilities to use computers.

At present, Garrett County does not have technical capabilities to help adults of the community with disabilities to learn about or use computers. This deficiency puts these people at a disadvantage in acquiring data entry positions.

"This hinders the growth potential of our citizens with disabilities," Hollingsworth said. "While the general public is becoming computer literate, people with disabilities in our county are not."

During the past year, Hollingsworth has been working on solutions to rectify the technology shortcoming. He drafted the "Plan for Building a Computer and Technology Option at the Day Program" at Appalachian Crossroads. His plan describes building a system to assist his trainees with disabilities, as well as the general public.

"My objectives are to make work stations available to people with disabilities and create a demonstration center for all county citizens," he said.

Hollingsworth's plan also addresses three basic needs of people with disabilities as being employment, enhanced communications, and personal growth. Another part of his plan deals with system specifications, pricing, and needs. He acquired most of his information for specifications by visiting the Maryland Technical Rehabilitation Center Program managed by Susan Levi, a technology demonstration specialist for the Maryland Eastern Region in Baltimore.

Once he had written his overview, identified his objectives and clients' needs, and attended the technical program, Hollingsworth's next step was to determine which program would best meet the needs of people with disabilities in Garrett County.

"The program Susan Levi told me about was Intellitalk II from Intellitools Inc. The program also helps people access other programs, such as word processing and Co-Write, and uses an array of hardware, such as a keypad for use with overlays," Hollingsworth said.

After acquiring the necessary hardware and software, Hollingsworth obtained the volunteer help of this writer, Tom Pessini of TP Publications, to teach the programs to staff members Debbie Dumire and Sherry Freeland.

"One trainee, Emily, has already benefited from the technology," Hollingsworth reported. "She was unable to use a regular calculator. Tom Pessini worked with her, and they created an overlay of a simple calculator for the keypad. She uses the overlay with the computer's on-screen calculator to do simple math."

Hollingsworth is not alone in his interest of assuring the availability of technology for county residents with disabilities. Cathy Ashby, director of the Ruth Enlow Library, completed a grant proposal, received funding, and now has hired a technical assistant, Mark Kohan, to work with the library's system.

In her proposal, Ashby stated that the Ruth Enlow Library has been offering the public access to the Internet and word processing since 1996. She further added that the library is the place where citizens come to access technological and informational tools beyond the school and workplace.

Ashby's proposal shed light on some disturbing facts: 1. Garrett County lacks the infrastructure to support the type of advanced technologies that are available in the Baltimore-Washington areas. 2. The unemployment level for adults in Garrett County is higher than in the rest of Maryland. 3. The unemployment rate for people with disabilities in Garrett County is especially high.

Her grant request further indicates her objectives, methods, evaluation, and future funding. Her goal is to provide basic computer and Internet skills to county adults who are under-served and disabled. These methods include library staff training, contractual staffing and equipment such as adaptive technologies. Evaluation for the use of the technology will be ongoing. Future funding will address the issue of technological improvements over time.

Kohan, who is working under Ashby's grant, is installing two types of programs on the library computer systems. One program, JAWS, in a text-to-voice reader for users with little or no vision. The second program, Zoomtext, is a screen magnifier for people with visual impairments.

"When the grant request was written, two important objectives of it were to make sure adults over 18 are getting computer training, and that adults with disabilities are not pushed aside," Kohan said.

Hollingsworth, Ashby, and Kohan are collaborating to insure maximum use of both systems. And although the technology issue addresses people with disabilities, they are working on solutions to help all county residents who lack skills using computers.

CLOSING IN ON DIGITAL DIVIDE — Steps are being taken locally to assure that Garrett Countians with disabilities have access to computers and the skills to operate them. Scott Hollingsworth has spearheaded a plan to provide training and equipment to the staff of Appalachian Crossroads, and to extend that help to all residents of the area. See story. Pictured above is Emily Fitzpatrick as she operates a calculator with the help of a keyboard overlay. Hollingsworth is pictured below as he tries his hand with a new program. He is seated between instructors Debbie Dumire and Tom Pessini.

Garrett Trustees Focus On GCC's Financial Challenges

The Garrett Community College board of trustees met last week for its final regular monthly session of the fall semester. Among the topics discussed was the growing financial stress faced by GCC and its neighbor to the east, Allegany College of Maryland (ACM). The chief factors contributing to the situation are external developments that have impacted the way Maryland's 16 community colleges are funded by the state, according to Garrett president Dr. Steve Herman.

"There's a huge disparity in funding between 'Mountain Maryland's' two community colleges, Garrett and Allegany, and the rest of the state," Herman told the trustees. "The current funding designs, which will probably remain in place for the foreseeable future, are enrollment-driven, and don't account for the special circumstances we face in this part of the state."

Herman shared his concerns with the trustees through a discussion sparked by a short report titled "Mountain Maryland Community Colleges: Unique Challenges." The document outlines the effects of the Cade Formula, the current formula used to calculate disbursement of state funds to Maryland's community colleges. It also compares, for illustrative purposes, the community colleges of those county economies that lag behind the rest of the state designated under the One Maryland Program for Distressed Counties.

"The Cade Formula works for the rest of the state, and the One Maryland Program works for most of the community colleges that fall under its auspices, but they both leave the two 'Mountain Maryland' colleges out of the mainstream of the Maryland community college system," Herman stated. "The funding gap between GCC and ACM, in relation to the rest of the state's community colleges, continues to widen at an alarming rate. This poses dire circumstances for us and, even more importantly, the communities we serve."

In the five years since the Cade Formula went into effect, the average increase in state funding was 61.2% per institution; included in that percentage, however, are Garrett's increase of 16.1% and Allegany's 23.1% rise, both far below the increase for any of the other community colleges. By way of comparison, the three largest percentage increases were: Anne Arundel—89.2%; Howard—70.5%; and Montgomery—68.8%. Similarly, three downstate local economies served by the One Maryland Program have seen their community colleges — Baltimore City, Chesapeake, and Wor-Wic — garner an average funding increase of 63.9% since FY 1998, again compared to GCC's 16.1% and ACM's 23.1% rates of rise.

"The special challenges we face in this part of the state only exacerbate the problems posed by the current funding situation," Herman said. "We're isolated from the orbit of the state's commercial center by our geography, so we can't participate equally in the state's economy. Historically, we suffer from an unemployment rate that can range from two to three times the statewide average, and our median family incomes are the lowest in the state. Opportunities for well-paying jobs are limited, so a number of our young people leave the area."

Perhaps the most distressing circumstance, Herman continued, is that Garrett County has the second-lowest per capita income in the state at just over $30,000, while its annual in-county full-time tuition rate falls in the upper end of the state system because tuition must be higher in part to make up for the relative lack of state funding. If those figures are compared via an "index of affordability ratio,", a GCC education is the second most expensive education in the state, surpassed only by Allegany College.

In comparison, colleges that serve some of the wealthiest communities have some of the least expensive educations. Using the ratio comparison, Montgomery County has the least expensive education in the state when viewed in light of its $68,100 median household income. Harford and Howard are next, and their median income levels are $58,400 and $75,500, respectively.

"Our state funding increases are so far below the system as a whole that we cannot possibly compete in offering equal educational opportunities, maintaining our physical plants and instructional equipment, and competing for qualified faculty and staff," Herman observed. "Nor can we compete in offering education at a reasonable and comparative cost to the student. This calls into question whether the people of Mountain Maryland can receive an equal education at an affordable price.

"Clearly something has to give, yet the options are limited: 1) state funding improves, giving these institutions a measure of comparability to the state as a whole; 2) tuition rates continue to rise sharply, making a higher education even less affordable; and 3) educational quality suffers and equal opportunity is denied."

The solution, according to Herman, is to develop legislation outside the funding formula targeted specifically on Mountain Maryland as a unique and distressed part of the One Maryland designated area. "The Cade funding formula works for the rest of the state, thus the solution is not to change the Cade Formula but to create special legislation designed to help the two Mountain Maryland colleges move toward the mainstream of the system," said Herman.

"The community colleges in Garrett and Allegany counties are asking that legislation be passed in the General Assembly's 2002 legislative session to carry us through the next year, and be funded in the governor's next budget submission to go into effect in FY2003. Once part of the governor's budget, we're asking that these appropriations be increased each year by the percentage increase in the four-year aid per FTE (full-time equivalent enrollment).

"What we would need to match the 61.2% statewide average increase would be $866,692 for Garrett and $1,288,569 for Allegany," Herman noted. "We need to be realistic in what we're asking for, however, so we're proposing Garrett be funded an additional $433,346, and Allegany receive an additional $644,285. This request amounts to half of the average percentage increase experienced by the total of all other Maryland community colleges since the Cade formula was implemented."

Herman urged the board of trustees, and all interested citizens, to support the efforts of area state legislators, especially Cas Taylor, George Edwards, and John Hafer, who are working to implement a solution to this problem, and to contact other legislators and the governor with their concerns and opinions. "This is an urgent matter, no doubt about it," he said.

Gear-Up Program

Dr. Lillian Mitchell spoke about the college's Gear-Up Program, which brings local high school students to the college during the intersession break for academic enrichment activities and career development exploration.

Phase 1's enrichment activities will serve approximately 30 students who will participate in two-hour sessions in written and spoken language arts, and two-hour sessions of math and science activities. The theme of the first phase of the program is "Deep Creek Lake — Past and Present," which will incorporate studies of the history of the lake and surrounding region with an examination of its hydrology and geology. The participants will have access to a global position system that will enable them to study the lake and its water holdings in minute detail.

Phase 2's career development activities will introduce participants to GCC's career programs of Natural Resources and Wildlife Technology, Agriculture, Art Therapy, and Business and Information Technology. The directors of each of the respective programs will lead the hands-on, activity-oriented sessions.

Retirement Plan

The board gave its approval to a proposed college policy change that will allow GCC to make mandatory contributions for retirement in behalf of its employees. The new plan will allow employees a tax bene-

Prunella vulgaris May Fight Herpes Infection

For centuries traditional herbalists in China have boiled the tiny stems of the Prunella vulgaris plant to produce medicines used to treat skin sores and numerous other ailments. Now researchers are taking note of the compounds in this herb, known as selfheal. According to Dr. Spencer Lee of Dalhousie University in Halifax, Nova Scotia, there is interest in the potential of P. vulgaris extracts as virus-fighting agents because they appear to be nontoxic.

Compounds from P. vulgaris stems were extracted and tested for antiviral activity. The extract was found to contain a carbohydrate compound that did not adversly affect influenza virus, poliovirus, and other common viruses. However, when cells infected with herpes simplex virus came into contact with the extract, the growth of viral cells was stopped. The extract was effective against herpes simplex virus as well as the strains of the virus already resistant to acyclovir, a widely-used antiviral agent. Tests conducted on cells of mammals revealed no toxic effects, even with high doses of the extract.

"Can I Touch God?"

"Can I touch God?", asked a little one.
"Yes, my child; with every ray of sun
That warms your feet as through the grass you run...
You can touch God."

"Can I see God?", the tiny voice went on.
"Yes, my child; with each mornings dawn
As the birds in the heavens swoop and sail along...
You can see God."

"Can I hear God?", the little one then wondered.
"Yes, you can; in every clap of thunder
His voice rings out casting any doubt asunder...
You can hear God."

"Do I know God?", the innocent one then mused.
"Yes, my love; you need not be confused.
For if your senses you wisely use...
You will know God."

God is waiting to speak to a child in your life this Sabbath. "Let the little children come to me." (Matt. 19:14)

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

TIME TO QUIT?

December 2, 2001

Background Scripture:
Isaiah 49:1-7.
Devotional Reading:
Isaiah 49:8-13.

The crisis which faces us and of which we have become painfully aware since September 11, 2001, has forced many Christians to realize that the religious statistics are not very comforting. Islam is growing by leaps and bounds at a time when Christianity is struggling for its life in America and Europe. It would seem that both our democracy and our faith are under attack.

The 20th century began with many Christians taking up the call to 'win the whole world for Christ.' The 20th century was to become the Christian Century and a prominent interdenominational magazine took that as its name. But as the century came to a close, Christianity seemed to be losing ground: practically every religious denomination in the USA has experienced steady declines in membership for the last four or five decades, in England and Europe the great cathedrals are virtually empty and fewer and fewer people identify themselves as disciples of Jesus Christ.

So, perhaps we can truly appreciate the lament of the prophet Isaiah when he proclaims to the peoples of the world that, despite the fact that God had called and equipped Israel to be the servant through whom God would be glorified among the nations, still "I have labored in vain, I have spent my strength for nothing and vanity..." (Isaiah 49:4).

Faith, Not Success

Are there not many among us today who feel pretty much the same way? Even if we didn't succeed in taking Christ to all the nations, couldn't we at least be gaining instead of losing? Israel is honest to admit its frustration. Take a look at the statistics, Lord, things are not going well with this mission. You called us, yes, but nothing is going the way it should.

Notice the dialogue here. God says "You are my servant..." and Israel replies, "But...'I have labored in vain..." Then, instead of replying to Israel's complaint, God calls his servant to an even greater mission: "...is it too light a thing that you should be my servant to raise up the tribes of Jacob and to restore the preserved of Israel; I will give you as a light to the nations, that my salvation may reach the ends of the earth" (49:5,6).

Forget the statistics; this is not about whether you are winning or losing, but whether you are doing what I have called you to do and be. Leave the winning or losing to me. You are called not to be successful, but faithful.

A Light To The Nations

Christians today are not called to compete with or to be successful over Moslems, Hindus, Confucians or Jews. God has called us instead to be "a light to the nations." If we concentrate on that mission, we can leave to God the end result: "...that my salvation may reach to the end of the earth." Bigger churches, more members, more prosperous denominations, larger head counts—none of these are important unless they make brighter our "light to the nations."

So the big questions today are not

TV PIPELINE

Carrere lends her voice to family film

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Tia Carrere

Q: What can you tell me about the future plans of Tia Carrere, presently starring in Relic Hunter? –Lawrence Palmer, Ann Arbor, Mich.

Q: What nationality is actress Tia Carrere? –Tom Nelson, Asheville, N.C.

A: Carrere joins Ving Rhames, David Ogden Stiers and Jason Scott Lee in the 2002 family film Lilo & Stitch, but – in a classic case of good news/bad news – the feature is animated, so the 34-year-old beauty will be contributing only her vocal talents.

Born Althea Janairo, Carrere is a native of Honolulu and says her family heritage is a blend of Hawaiian, Chinese, Spanish and Filipino. "Tia" comes from her little sister's attempts to pronounce "Althea," while her professional surname salutes another actress she admires, Barbara Carrera.

Q: Will Twice in a Lifetime be returning to the Pax Network? That was one of my favorite shows. –Sherry Canaday, Lakewood, Calif.

A: Sorry, Sherry. Pax executive Laurel Whitcomb says the series no longer is in production, but reruns of it will continue on Saturday nights for the foreseeable future.

Q: On the season premiere of The Guardian, who played the doctor who had killed his wife? He looked so familiar. –Saundra Murray, Boynton Beach, Fla.

A: That was a very fine actor named Tom Amandes, who previously starred in the NBC sitcom Pursuit of Happiness and the syndicated series remake of The Untouchables, as well as Brokedown Palace, Second Chances and several other features and TV movies. Amandes recently co-starred with Christopher Lloyd in the ABC Family Channel original Halloween comedy When Good Ghouls Go Bad.

Q: In those Friends episodes where Ross was dating one of his students, was she played by Alexandra Holden, who played Fern in the movie Sugar & Spice? –Brandi Hammond, Uniontown, Ky.

A: Yes, Holden played Elizabeth Stevens in those hilarious Friends episodes from the 1999-2000 season.

Q: I've seen Jennifer Garner of Alias referred to as a "Felicity semi-regular." Did she play Julie? –Vicki Drakes, Arlington, Texas.

A: No, Amy Jo Johnson always has played Julie Emrick on Felicity. Garner appeared on a couple of episodes during the 1998-99 season as Hannah.

Driving Wrong Way Up Street Leads To Arrest

Many charges were filed against a Dundalk man late Saturday night after Garrett County sheriff's deputies stopped him for driving the wrong way on a one-way street.

Clifton E. Johnson, 38, failed field sobriety tests and was arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol (DUI). While searching Johnson, deputies located a small quantity of suspected marijuana on his person. A wooden corn cob pipe was also located during the search, police said.

Johnson was charged with DUI, driving the wrong way on a one-way street, possession of marijuana, and possession of drug paraphernalia.

He was released from the Garrett County Detention Center after posting $1,000 bond.

Just minutes after being released by a district court commissioner for DUI, a Terra Alta, W.Va., man was arrested again for the same charge.

Joseph F. Hauger, 68, was arrested by deputies for failing to drive right of center and DUI on Thursday around 9:45 p.m. He was arrested on the earlier charge at 1:15 a.m. that same day by an Oakland City Police officer.

Following the second arrest, Hauger was released from the detention center after posting $5,000 bond.

An Oakland woman and her juvenile passenger received minor injuries when their vehicle was involved in an accident after hitting a deer around 7 p.m. on Friday.

Lisa Suzanne Brenneman, 36, was traveling northbound on Route 219, just south of Oakland, when a deer ran into her lane of travel, police said. After striking the deer with the front of her 1998 Chevrolet Malibu, she lost control and the vehicle overturned in the northbound drainage ditch.

No charges were filed in the accident.

fit without cost to the college, as the institution will make payments directly to eligible retirement accounts and will no longer treat such payments as subject to federal taxation.

The plan will go into effect at the beginning of the first fiscal quarter following final approval of the Maryland State Retirement Agency, tentatively expected prior to the first of the year.

ASI Manual

An Adventuresports Institute Policies and Procedures Manual has been developed by program director Mike Logsdon. The document prioritizes specific procedures that must be followed to ensure the safety of adventure sports students when engaging in activities that carry a risk factor.

"The college needs to show that it acted responsibly," said Herman. "Although students are required to sign a release form for every activity, the reality is that these matters can still end up in court." The trustees adopted the manual in a show of support.

Beachy Prints

Board member Suzanne Beachy and her husband Gerry, the mayor of Grantsville, recently donated four framed Leo Beachy photograph prints that are on permanent display in the GCC Board Room. The limited edition prints are being sold to benefit the new building fund for the Grantsville branch of the Ruth Enlow Library.

Enrollment Report

Mitchell presented the final fall enrollment report, noting that there has been a slight decrease from last fall's figures. The headcount was 387 students compared to 403 last year, a 3% decrease, and FTE dropped to 228, down 5% from last year's 241.

The decrease may be due to a double-edged sword, Herman noted, as it is possible that a declining unemployment rate had caused fewer prospective students to enroll for the start of the fall semester. Garrett County's unemployment rate stood at 6.5% in late summer, one of the lowest figures in recent memory. "The rule of thumb is, when more people have jobs, less people go to college," the college president said.

"We hope that we'll see an increase in adults enrolling in Continuing Education courses to help offset the increase in total enrollment. This is very important, because total enrollment will affect our FY2004 funding situation." He added that the move to hire Crystal Roberson as new director of enrollment development should help alleviate the situation somewhat. A marketing professional with a strong background, Roberson will be an asset in upping the enrollment figures, especially in non-credit classes, Herman said.

Financial Report

Michael Kilgus reviewed the college budget report as of Oct. 31. Even spending at that point would be 33.3% of the fiscal year budget, and actual overall spending stood at 33.9%. Academic support, institutional support, and operation of the plant were above even spending due to full-year encumbrances, while instructional costs were below even spending as class had only gotten under way the previous month. Scholarships and fellowships have been awarded and account for the lion's share of spending, at 49.7%. Garrett's cash position remained strong, Kilgus noted in his discussion of the combined operating and cash flow forecast.

Herman expressed the board's appreciation to Kilgus and Peggy Knox for their strong financial management during a very tight budget year. Facing a fourth year of no new state funding, the college president said that GCC has exhausted its normal ability to put money aside in savings, and one of the routes toward building the savings account has been through the deferral of much-needed purchases. For example, the college needs to have computers that are capable of running state of the art software, Herman noted, adding that he and Kilgus are conducting an exhaustive search of options to fund that purchase and/or lease.

Auditor's Report

Jim Murray of Rodeheaver and Associates presented the FY2001 financial report for the year that ended on June 30. The accounting firm expressed an unqualified opinion on the financial statements of the college, noting no instances of non-compliance and no matters involving the internal control over financial reported considered to be material weaknesses.

Murray seconded Herman's approval of the financial management efforts of Kilgus and Knox, and Herman added that their efforts are strongly supplemented by the oversight review of Rodeheaver and Associates.

The next meeting of the GCC trustees is set for Jan. 15.

Ballroom Dance Class Scheduled For Dec. 19

Garrett Lakes Arts Festival has established a ballroom dance class as a brush-up course prior to the holiday dance featuring the Sammy Kaye Orchestra.

The class will be held Wednesday, Dec. 19, at the Elks Club, Oakland. Steve and Gail Herman have volunteered to teach the two-hour session from 7:30 until 9:30 p.m

Looking for a bargain-priced piece of majolica? Majolica is the name for a special type of pottery. It was made with a tin glaze that created a brightly colored surface. Most 19th-century majolica was made with a smooth glazed surface or a rough finish. Collectors have concentrated on the smooth-finish pieces and now pay high prices for them.

Recently the Jones Museum of Glass and Ceramics in Sebago, Maine, had an exhibit featuring the less-well-known sanded majolica. It was made from 1850 to 1900. The "sand" used as a background is really small pieces of clay applied to create a textured surface. The "sand" was made in different colors. Applied, raised decorations, usually flowers, were often added. So was gold trim. Some pieces were made with a sanded section and a smooth glazed section. The same type of sanded surface was used on mocha ware, lusterware, Satsuma and other porcelains.

Q. My father kept my two battery-operated tin toys from the 1950s in very good shape. What kind of battery did they take? Is it a kind I can still buy?

A. Toys that moved with the help of tiny electric motors powered by batteries were invented by Japanese toy makers after World War II. Throughout the early years of production, the toys used the large D batteries, the same size that operates standard-size flashlights. If your father has run the toys periodically, they might still work with new D batteries. If not, try a lightweight spray lubrication on the mechanism, and be sure the contacts for the batteries are clean.

Picking the Right Cat

Q. I'm interested in adopting a cat, but I'm not sure where to start. What type of cat should I look for? Should I get a kitten or an adult?

A. Before I answer those questions, I want to sound a cautionary note. If you are planning to give a pet to someone for Christmas, please reconsider. Adults may not be looking for a furry companion, and many children aren't prepared to assume responsibility for a kitten. So instead of surprising a loved one with a cuddly bundle of joy, hold several discussions with the family, do some reading and make an informed decision.

That said, I'm pleased that you've decided to adopt a new friend. The type of cat you select should be based on several factors, including your own temperament, the physical and behavioral traits you'd like to see, and the cat itself — its unique personality.

Some breeds, like the Scottish fold, are docile, cuddly pets that need constant reassurance. Others are active, independent pets — like the Siamese, whose distinctly loud voice and propensity for trouble are legendary. And there are the unique breeds that draw guests' attention, like the huge Maine coon, the tailless Manx and the hairless Sphynx.

If physical traits are less important than personality, the American shorthair is your best all-around bet. Basically your common housecat, this breed is generally good-natured; gets along with children, visitors and other pets; and has few of the inherited problems of many "specialty" cats.

Adopting a kitten, rather than an adult cat, will allow you to develop a close bond with him or her. Taking in an adult — whether from a friend, the shelter or a neighbor — is sometimes iffy. The cat may be insecure or unfriendly, and developing a bond may take time. If you have other cats, an adult may have more difficulty being accepted by them. However, some adult cats move right in with no problem. In either case, agree upon a trial period with the shelter, owner or breeder in case things don't work out.

Students Hold Teleconference With TV Director

Frostburg State University students from the Mass Communications Department recently had the opportunity to ask questions of a TV writer and director presently working in the field.

Students from the "Writing for Electronic Media" courses conducted a teleconference with daytime drama director Anthony Morina and head writer Sally Sussman Morina, the husband and wife creative team behind the MTV soap "Spyder Games."

Sally Morina, who made daytime history by creating the first minority-based soap opera, "Generations," in the late '80s, has more recently served as head writer of NBC's "Days of our Lives." Anthony Morina currently directs ABC's "Port Charles." The pair fielded questions concerning acting for soap operas, breaking into the TV industry, and producing, directing, and writing for a daily show.

The teleconference was the brainchild of FSU instructor and former soap actor Edward Mallory, who played Dr. Bill Horton on "Days of our Lives" from 1966 to 1980 and later directed several dramas, including "Generations," "All My Children," and "The Young and the Restless." A resident of Swanton, Mallory now teaches three classes at FSU, including Writing for Electronic Media.

For more information on the FSU Mass Communications Department, persons may call 301-687-3049.

Initially, we were looking to purchase a house that was less than $200,000 and ended up spending about 2.5 times that amount based on education and confidence in your organization. . . . We talked to an agent from another company and did not get the warm and fuzzies. My wife was sold on doing business with you after our first encounter. We appreciate your due diligence on the area, pricing advice, follow through on referring contractors for minor work and your overall professional demeanor. POA Seeks More Representation On Commission

The Garrett County commissioners heard from a representative of the Deep Creek Property Owners Association on Tuesday requesting that property owners in the watershed area of the lake have more representation on the county's planning commission. Fred Thayer, POA member, said that there is no geographic requirement to be on the commission, and, currently, there is only one member out of the seven who lives at Deep Creek Lake.

As a result, Thayer said, many property owners feel that they are not being fairly represented or having their concerns taken seriously by the board. The other planning members live in Herrington Manor, Bittinger, Accident, Grantsville, Friendsville, and Kitzmiller, according to Commissioner Fred Holliday.

"Our members feel that the board is out of sync with what's happening with Deep Creek zoning, which focuses on the lake and not the whole county," Thayer said. He cited the "population explosion" and loss of commercial businesses at the lake as examples of issues that POA members felt the board was not addressing.

He indicated that lake residents would have more first-hand experience to contribute to the planning commission, which hears recommendations from the Deep Creek Lake Zoning Board.

"We would like the commissioners to consider that we need better representation from the board," Thayer said.

He suggested that the commissioners consider amending the current ordinance or drafting a new one that would require that a certain number or percentage of the members be from the lake area. Since lake property owners contribute 50 percent of the county's assessible tax base, Thayer said, it seems only reasonable that they should have more representation on the planning commission.

A HARDTACK ADVENTURE — The sometimes frantic process of making hardtack candy was in full swing at St. Mark's Lutheran Church this week, where the women's group gathered to make the sweets for the church's shut-ins. Tammy Lewis, a member of the church as well as its secretary, organized the event, which involved over 15 workers and produced 65 pounds of hardtack. Some of the volunteers had never made the candy before, and even a few had never tasted it. But after several hours of work, most are now versed in the process, which involves boiling Karo syrup, sugar, and water to 300 degrees and adding flavoring. Then the mixture is poured out on either marble or formica, and when it is tacky enough to be pushed up a little at the edges, the cutters start cutting. The glass-like pieces gradually cool, and then can be packaged. Pictured above, hard at work, are (from left) Mary Ann Vincent, Joyce Chaney, Angie Mucha, Deirdre Kildow, Lewis (partially hidden), and Cheryl Wotherspoon.

Jeremy Robinson Named Towson University "Man Of The Year"

Jeremy T. Robinson, Friendsville, above right, was recently named as Towson University's "Man of the Year," one of the university's most prestigious awards. To be nominated for the honor, students must have a cumulative grade point average of at least 3.0, be of junior or senior status, and be involved in campus and community activities.

Robinson, who maintains a 4.0 GPA, is currently a senior physics major with minors in chemistry and mathematics. He has received numerous university, national, and international honors for the various types of physics research in which he has been involved.

Towson faculty and staff members nominate students for Man and Woman of the Year at the beginning of the fall semester. This year 80 students were nominated for the honor from a college enrollment of more than 17,000 students. A committee selected the finalists, four men and four women, from the list of nominated students.

After the finalists were interviewed by a nine member panel, the Man and Woman of the Year were chosen. The awards are based on various criteria, such as work experience, university involvement (academically and nonacademically), and other pertinent data.

Dan Jones (shown above, left), provost, presented the award to Robinson at Towson's homecoming football game on Nov. 10. In addition to the award, Robinson will receive a $1,000 scholarship.

He is the son of Rita and Bill Robinson, Friendsville, and the grandson of Alfreda Friend, Bear Creek, and William and Romaine Robinson of LaVale.

Local Woman To Carry Torch For 2002 Winter Olympics

by Beth L. Bowers

The official nominating form for the 2002 winter Olympic torch runners suggested that candidates should "embody the inspirational spirit of the Olympic movement," and according to Shannon Bittinger, her mother-in-law, Esther Trautwein, does just that.

Bittinger, of Columbia, submitted an essay to Coca-Cola about her mother-in-law's inspiration to others during her recovery from breast cancer.

"Even though it was a tough struggle, she was the strongest in the group (her family)," Bittinger said. "Since her recovery, she is very in love with life. She is extremely happy, and has made all of us realize all the things we take for granted every day."

But participating in the torch run almost didn't happen for Trautwein when she nearly missed the deadline to accept the nomination. She and her husband Charles (Buck) were returning from vacation when they discovered the anonymous nomination in the mail.

"When I read the letter I started to cry," she said.

She said after several phone calls she discovered her daughter-in-law had nominated her. According to Trautwein, the information had to be returned in seven days, and time was running out.

"My husband called the Olympic Committee and they said we could fax in the information," she said. "We almost didn't make the deadline."

GC Commissioners And Chamber Discuss Expanding AG Festival

Members of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce's board of directors met with the Garrett County commissioners this week to discuss establishing a non-profit foundation in order to expand the county's Autumn Glory Festival.

"The chamber has the ability and interest to run [Autumn Glory] under the current mechanism as it is," Ken Wishnick, president of the chamber, said. But if the commissioners and community want the festival expanded, he indicated, the chamber needs help.

Wishnick explained that the festival was "a tremendous undertaking for the chamber," but recently a few changes had been made "to lighten the load." For example, the Dowe Center this year successfully ran the Banjo and Fiddlers Contest, and next year the Deep Creek Lake Lion's Club will be in charge of the food vendors, he said.

The president indicated that more than 50 different entities were now involved in Autumn Glory, in various capacities, which could be brought together in some type of non-profit organization, such as a 501-C. The organization would not only help expand the festival, but would also provide more "broad-based" input from the entities, according to Wishnick.

"This does not mean that the chamber would step away," stressed Len Eiswert, 2nd vice chair of the chamber's executive committee. "It would still be willing to make Autumn Glory a success." He said that after

Kitzmiller Man Killed In Car Accident Friday

Inclement weather and wet road conditions were said to be the cause of an early morning accident Friday that claimed the life of a 22-year-old Kitzmiller man.

Jason Daniel James was traveling west on state Route 956 with three passengers around 12:40 a.m. when he lost control of his vehicle, according to West Virginia State Police.

After losing control of the vehicle, police said it hit an embankment and rolled over an unknown number of times before coming to rest on its top.

James was partially ejected and became trapped underneath the vehicle. He was pronounced dead at the scene, said Trooper J.D. Bird.

Two passengers, Wiley Anderson, 19, Mt. Storm, W.Va., and Paul Howdyshell, 22, Kitzmiller, were both fully ejected. Both were taken to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, where Anderson was admitted and later released. Howdyshell was treated and released.

The third passenger, Shawn Durst, 22, Kitzmiller, was the only occupant of the car wearing a seat belt and was uninjured, police said.

Occupants of the vehicle stated they were traveling between 50 and 55 mph on the wet roads through very foggy conditions. According to police, James was traveling too fast for the road conditions, which caused the accident.

Alcohol is not believed to have been a factor in the accident, which closed the highway for about two hours.

Young Boy Dies From Injuries After Being Struck By Vehicle

Investigation is continuing into a motor vehicle accident that occurred Wednesday afternoon along Garrett Highway just south of Mason School Road in which a 10-year-old boy was killed, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Investigation revealed that Alfred L. Stemple, 85, Aurora, W.Va., was southbound en route to his residence when for undetermined reasons he failed to see a stopped Garrett County school bus with its flashing red lights and stop sign displayed, police said.

Stemple, who was operating his 1980 Chevrolet, struck Melvin Andrew Beachy, who was crossing the roadway after exiting the school bus.

Beachy was transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where he succumbed to his injuries.

The accident is still under investigation by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office crash reconstruction unit.

No charges have been filed at this time, police said.

As of this morning, funeral arrangements by Stewart Funeral Home, Oakland, were incomplete. See complete obituary in next week's edition of The Republican.

A BIT OVERDRESSED for the highly unusual weather in Garrett County was jolly old St. Nick himself, who worked a visit to Oakland into his incredibly hectic schedule during the town's Christmas on Main Street last weekend. He also made stops in many other Garrett County towns over the past few weeks to listen to the requests of youngsters who can hardly wait until the a.m. of December 25. The record-breaking temperatures of late are supposed to last only through today, however, as a cold front arriving Friday night is predicted to bring with it some light snow. Oakland Man Held Without Bond On Attempted Murder Charge

An Oakland man is being held without bond in the Garrett County jail on a charge of attempted murder and various other charges after he allegedly shot his former employer, local construction company owner Daniel Bruce Bosley, 44, at Bosley's residence along Lake Shore Drive Friday afternoon.

According to a report from the Garrett Bureau of Investigation, Harold Wesley Goode, 27, allegedly shot Bosley, owner of Daniel Bosley Construction, at about 4:45 p.m., moments after Bosley arrived home with his 5-year-old daughter Kambrie. Bosley's other two daughters, Emilee, 9, and Torie, 10, were already in the house, allegedly being held hostage by Goode.

The report said that Bosley was confronted by Goode in the garage and, when he realized Goode meant to harm him, tried to escape. Bosley was then shot by a single shotgun blast to his right arm and upper torso.

According to a family spokesperson, the youngest Bosley daughter went into the house and ran upstairs while Bosley was still in the garage. A few minutes later he heard someone coming down the steps, and assumed it was one of his daughters. But he looked up and saw that it was Goode, armed with a shotgun. Goode then allegedly said, "Danny, we need to talk," then aimed the gun at Bosley's face, and pulled the trigger. The gun did not fire.

Bosley said he then knew that Goode intended to shoot him, and as Goode repumped the gun for a second attempt, Bosley turned to run and was hit by the blast.

Although bleeding profusely, Bosley ran to neighbors' houses, but found no one home at the first three houses. He finally found someone home at the Charles McFarland residence and was able to call for assistance. He was transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Southern Garrett Rescue Squad and then flown to Ruby Memorial Hospital, Morgantown, W.Va.

When officers arrived at the scene, they were informed that Goode and Bosley's daughters were still inside the residence. The Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Company responded to the CITIZEN RESCUER HONORED BY DNR — The Maryland Department of Natural Resources presented Deep Creek Lake area resident Ed King with a heroism award recently, in recognition of his lifesaving action this summer. The presentation was made at a meeting of the Deep Creek Lake Lions Club. In early July the mast of a sailboat touched an overhead electric line as it was docking near the Glendale Bridge. A fireball erupted, and 9-year-old Phillip Hatfield, apparently thinking the boat was on fire, jumped into the electrified lake water and was rendered unconscious. His father, Brian Hatfield, jumped in to save him and was electrocuted. As the DNR citation noted, King, who was boating nearby, dove into the still dangerous water and pulled the unconscious and near lifeless youngster to safety, while other boaters retrieved the father. King administered CPR and artificial respiration on both victims until rescue personnel arrived. By then the youngster had begun to regain consciousness, and officials later said that without King's action the boy would not have survived. In his remarks, King said he truly believed it was "divine intervention that ordained that I be nearby to save the boy." Pictured, from the left, are DNR Western Region Lt. D.H. Simmons, DCL Recreation Area manager Paul Durham, King and his wife Jean, and DCL Lions Club president Bill Thoman. A longtime Lion, King has held every office in the Deep Creek club. He was also honored for his rescue action by Woodmen of the World.

GBI Jails K.C. Construction Owner Again

A Garrett Bureau of Investigation probe into allegations of illegal homebuilding practices has led to additional charges for a West Virginia-based homebuilder who had been hired to construct log homes in Garrett County.

Kirk Wesley Overfield, 43, Morgantown, owner of K.C. Construction, was arrested this week on charges relating to the Maryland Custom Home Protection Act. He faces two counts of failing to properly deposit escrow monies in association with his work, and three counts of failure to comply with a trust. These latest allegations come in the wake of Overfield's early October arrest on three counts of failure to properly deposit escrow monies and one count of failure to comply with a trust.

Overfield's firm, which has been operating in Garrett County for a number of years, allegedly failed to comply with Title 10 of the Custom Home Protection Act. The law requires contractors to supply the homebuilder, within 30 days of completion, a list of all subcontractors who have been paid for work valued over $500. This stipulation is intended to ensure that no mechanic's liens are placed on the property. Overfield reportedly failed to comply with the law on all three properties, and also allegedly failed to deposit escrow monies for one of the homes into an appropriate bank account.

The potential penalties for a conviction on these charges are 15 years in jail, per count, and/or a $10,000 fine for failure to deposit escrow monies, and one year in jail and/or a $1,000 fine for failure to comply with a trust.

Overfield was released from the Garrett County Jail after he posted an unsecured $25,000 bond.

Md. State Police Investigating Two Car Crashes

The Maryland State Police responded to two vehicle wrecks Sunday, which resulted in injuries to at least four individuals, although none were seriously hurt. Charges are pending against one driver who is alleged to have left the scene.

According to the report, John W. Wilburn, 38, was driving a 2000 Ford truck southbound on New Germany Road. At about 2:20 a.m., he reportedly failed to negotiate a turn and crossed the center line. Wilburn then over-corrected, which caused the truck to skid off the northbound lane side and go over the embankment. He is reported to have then left the scene and could not be located.

A passenger in the truck, Ruth M. Hetz, 37, Meyersdale, Pa., was picked up by a passing driver. She was later taken to Cumberland Memorial Hospital for treatment of minor injuries, according to the police. This crash, which was responded to by Cpl. M.W. Jones, is still under investigation.

Responding to the scene along with the state police were the Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department and the Northern Rescue Squad.

Another wreck occurred at 7:26 p.m. Sunday when a 16-year-old driver allegedly turned directly in front of another vehicle. The teenager was traveling on Rt. 40 about one mile east of Pocahontas Road. She apparently stopped her 1990 Dodge Shadow on the westbound emergency shoulder, and then made a left turn onto Rt. 40 to go east. She is alleged to have turned directly in front of a 1993 Dodge Grand Caravan being driven by Jay Alan Moon, 44, Frostburg. The Caravan struck the Shadow broadside on the driver's side, according to the report filed by Tfc. M. Clapper.

Charlene Marie Moon, 37, a passenger in the Caravan, was transported to Cumberland Memorial Hospital, where she remained at least overnight, and was later released. Six children were also riding in the Caravan, but the hospital would not comment on whether or not they were treated for injuries.

The teenage driver was also transported to Cumberland Memorial, where she was treated and released. A passenger in her car, Sherry Lynn Perkins, 18, was uninjured.

The 16-year-old was charged with failure to yield to oncoming traffic, the report stated.

Also responding to the scene were the Frostburg Ambulance Service and the Eastern Garrett Volunteer Fire Department.

Grant Given

vices for children from birth through age 6.

"This is a partnership with Community Action," said Dr. Wendell Teets, school superintendent. "We are very appreciative to Duane Yoder and our working relationship with Community Action. This program will have a very positive impact on our preschool students as it increases their readiness for school."

Judy Centers, which are based in or affiliated with local elementary schools, provide full-day, full-year services designed to foster the young child's physical, social, emotional, cognitive, and linguistic readiness for school, according to Linda Bazerjian of the Maryland State Department of Education.

"Judy's passion to ensure that every child succeed was her life's work," said Maryland Congressman Steny H. Hoyer, husband of the late Judy Hoyer. "Her vision was that we would marshal our resources to achieve that end."

The grants will be received from January 2002 through June 2003. "This will give us the capacity to really look at how the early childhood education program impacts school readiness," said Duane Yoder, president of Community Action. "This is a very close partnership between Community Action and the three elementary schools and Southern High School."

The effectiveness of the centers will be measured by a statewide study on how they impact children's readiness for school and subsequent school success. All early childhood programs at Judy Centers must meet or be working toward national or state standards through accreditation. The centers must be community-based and provide strong links and transition to elementary school programs.

According to Dr. Don Forrester, director of elementary education, this will bring together many services and resources to one location to meet the needs of children and their families.

"The sooner we can intervene in some children's lives, the better," he said. "This will help us improve the lives of our young children."

The center will run programs geared to the community's needs. All centers must include research-based, quality early childhood programs, including pre-K, kindergarten, Infants and Toddlers, pre-school special education, and before and after care; family support services such as parent development and home visitation; information and referral for child care, health services, including health screenings; and staff development.

TOYS FOR HAPPINESS HELPED BY TRUCKERS — A portion of the proceeds from this year's Western Maryland Truck Show are being used to support Toys for Happiness, a 20-year-old annual effort to provide toys for children in need. Toys for Happiness serves the nearby tri-state area of Maryland, West Virginia, and Pennsylvania. The program was initiated in 1981 by the Country Club Mall, WTBO radio station in Cumberland, and the Western Potomac Chapter of the American Red Cross. Children in Garrett County are eligible for the program (see application included in this section of The Republican). The applications are due by Dec. 13. Pictured above is a Toys for Happiness drop-box located at the Grantsville Foodland. Donors may bring toys (unwrapped) to the box, or may donate money to the cause at the Country Club Mall. The truck show event, which was held for the third year this summer, is a non-profit organization, and in addition to providing financial help for the toy project, the organizers have also helped out with gift-wrapping and with manning the Toys booth at the mall. Pictured from left are Dale Umbel, co-owner of the Grantsville Foodland; Jim McFarland, truck show organizer, holding Hana Takhvar (who had just dropped a toy in the box); Shawn Skidmore, store manager; Sally Weimer, treasurer of the truck show; and Melanie McFarland.

DUI Arrest Leads To Many Charges For Local Woman

An Oakland woman is facing several charges after Garrett County sheriff's deputies stopped her along Hutton Road around 1 a.m. Thursday for driving while under the influence (DUI).

Susan Marie Warner, 42, was placed in the jail awaiting a bond hearing when she destroyed a light cover, police said. After correctional officers confronted her and tried to calm her down due to her unruly behavior, she then assaulted one of the officers, according to the report.

She has been charged with assault on a correctional officer and malicious destruction of property under $500, in addition to the DUI charge.

Warner was released from the jail after posting $1,000 bond.

Correction Noted To Brown's Report

Last week's article about county agency leaders' monthly reports to the Garrett County commissioners requires a correction.

Henry Brown, director of Garrett County Social Services, not Duane Yoder of Community Action, reported to the commissioners that his staff had won a Team Excellence Award at a ceremony held in Baltimore, recognizing outstanding government employees and agencies. Brown was a keynote speaker at the event.

Additionally, he said that Social Services had adopted an abandoned puppy, named Wellington. Wellington will be a mascot and therapy dog, helping some of the department's customers.

Brown also reported that the state was currently in a "fiscal crisis," with officials making funding cuts and hiring freezes. "We're looking at a 5% statewide cut," he said.

Red Lights Mean Stop...

Tragedy occurred yesterday afternoon when one of "our" children ("our" meaning our community's) was struck and killed after disembarking a school bus on Rt. 219 south of Oakland. The elderly gentleman who was driving the car that struck him said he did not see the flashing red lights of the bus.

The purpose of this column today is not to chastise or accuse or judge the driver of the car. In fact, there have not yet been any charges leveled against him, so there may be extenuating circumstances. However, the accident vividly reminds us once again of the extreme dangers of not heeding the warning lights of a bus, and the fact that far too many drivers are violating this law on a regular basis. It is a wonder that many more of our children are not injured or killed.

The numbers speak for themselves, as one local bus driver we know recorded 120 cases of vehicles ignoring the flashing red lights on her bus during the last school year. So far this school year, 40 drivers have done so. Undoubtedly her story is not unique among the scores of other bus drivers in the county. Unfortunately, it is almost impossible for a bus driver to be able to see and report the license numbers of these offenders, and a vehicle description alone is not enough evidence. Plus, the bus driver's primary focus must be on the boarding and disembarking children rather than oncoming vehicles.

There are, then, two requests we make today. The first is simply asking all drivers to obey this law, and to be particularly alert when traveling the roadways during those hours that the school buses are en route to and from school. It takes only one violation, one lapse in concentration, to end up with a lifetime of regret and heartache, not to mention the death of an innocent child.

The second request is for all drivers who witness violation of this law to do their best to get the license number of the offender and report it to the police. The bus driver will at least know that a driver has ignored his/her flashing lights, and would thus be able to corroborate a witness account.

Our children who ride buses should, of course, be taught to also be aware and cautious when they are boarding and disembarking, but it is difficult for children to always remember to do this. It is the absolute responsibility of the adults who are operating the vehicles to always stop for the flashing red lights.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Normally I don't pay much attention to this section of the newspaper. For some reason though the letter from Michele E. Maust in a previous paper sparked some interest. I was glad to see somebody stand up against the books and movie of Harry Potter. I guess the sad thing is I would expect more letters to the editor voicing their opinion about the two. I hate to use the word opinion, but if I don't I know there will be a rebuttal stating that this is only an opinion. The only thing, though, is my opinion is backed by facts.

Deuteronomy 18, verses 10 and 11, states, "Don't let anyone among you offer a son or daughter as a sacrifice in the fire. Don't let anyone use magic or witchcraft, or try to explain the meaning of signs. Don't let anyone try to control others with magic, and don't let them be mediums or try to talk with the spirits of dead people." (Taken from Max Lucado's New Century Version.) How many parents have taken or let their children go to this movie?

I don't know about anybody else, but I have a hard enough time now with my child, let alone having my child put a curse on me. I know this seems stupid, but I've known several people who have let their children read these books, and now their children want these books and witchcraft books for Christmas. (Notice there is Christ in Christmas!) Have you ever wondered why children rebel so much? It's going to get worse if we don't do something about it now!

I've heard some professors on TV, and saw in the Editor's note, that children should have a connection between fantasy and real life. Why don't we show them the stories from the Bible? For example, Jonah in the whale, Moses and parting the water, Noah's Ark. These are a few of the great stories that can spark the imagination of our children. The cool thing is, all these stories are true. These same professors also state that the children should choose between what is fantasy and true. The truth is that the parent is held accountable for the actions of the child until the age of accountability. (Also in the Bible.) If you hold a carrot and a cookie in front of a child most of them will pick the cookie. How can we let them decide?

In my travels I have seen many signs that say, "God bless America." How can we believe that God will bless us if we are letting our children as well as ourselves watch something that God does not approve of? It boggles my mind that the movies will allow movies like this, but when a Christian movie comes along we have to petition the theater to get the movie. I think the theaters are afraid of what will happen if they show Christian movies because it will convict them. I guess that is their business. I'm not held accountable for the people who go to such movies.

As in regard to the Editor's reply, I must state that I am a Christian. If I asked you to jump off a bridge would you do it? I hope not! Take no offense to this question, because this in my mind is the only way I can get my point across. Because somebody says that they are a Christian doesn't mean they are! I know that's sad, but it is true. I do agree with the quote from that "Christian" author. These books and movies do have a direct connection to the Bible. The connection is, God tells us not to do these things. Because somebody says they are a Christian, don't rely on their opinion. Base your thoughts on the facts of God's word, the Holy Bible.

Yours truly,
Coit E. Custer

To the Editor:

I lived with it for 10 years, until I thought I was going to do something horrible. I knew I had to get out before someone ended up dead. But where could I go with three kids, no job, and no money? My family thought I should stick it out because it's best for the kids to keep the family together. I didn't have friends to turn to anymore — he made sure of that. I looked in the phone book and called a pastor for help. He just told me that I needed to stay and try to work things out. Do they know what its like to be hit over and over, and wonder when it will happen again? Have they ever wanted to die rather than go through another beating? Probably not. No one understands.

I can't say I remember everything that happened that day — the day I left. I do know the fighting was worse than usual because he was drunk again. He was upset with me because I told him the bank had called and said the car payment was overdue. I tried to get away, but it did no good since he is much stronger than I am. I took the beating in silence because my kids have already seen more than any child should ever see. He left soon after that, so I gathered up the kids and left, with nothing more than a diaper bag, so he wouldn't notice things were missing and come after us. We drove around a little while since there was nowhere to go that he wouldn't find us, and I knew we couldn't be home when he returned. I stopped at a pay phone and called 911.

That phone call saved my life. They hooked me up with the Dove Center. I had heard of it, but had never called. The crisis counselor was so understanding and listened as I explained through tears, what had happened. I couldn't believe it, but she told me that I could stay at their shelter, with my three kids, and they would help me get on my feet so that I wouldn't ever have to go back again.

We did go to the shelter, and everyone there was so helpful and understanding. It was wonderful to have a safe place to be where staff was available 24 hours a day, and there were other clients who understood what we had been through. The staff was warm and friendly and made us feel right at home. Most importantly, we felt safe, which meant everything. I also started seeing a counselor, who helped me realize that no one has the right to treat me like that and that I had the right to be happy and safe. I learned what it is to have good self-esteem and like myself. I started feeling like a new person.

We stayed there for a month, and when we left it was like leaving our family. But I knew what I wanted, where I was headed, and what to expect, thanks to the Dove Center. We now have our own place to live, I have a job, and my kids and I are no longer afraid to go home. I still go to the Dove Center for counseling and stay in touch with the staff at the shelter. If you need help or know someone who does, please call 301-334-9000 or 800-656-4673.

This letter is based on the lives of millions of women who live in fear every day. There is domestic violence in Garrett County and it's everybody's business. It could be your neighbor, co-worker, sister, mother — you. The shelter is there to provide a safe environment when it's needed most. The shelter is one of the core services offered at the Dove Center. For help, call the Dove Center's 24-hour Hotline at 301-334-9000 or 800-656-4673.

There is no excuse for abuse.

Governor Giving State Workers Christmas Eve As Paid Holiday

by Bobby White
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS - Gov. Parris N. Glendening is giving state employees the day off on Christmas Eve to thank them for their hard work since the tragedies of Sept. 11. All state offices will be closed with the exception of agencies with 24-hour operations, such as state hospitals, Baltimore/Washington International Airport, and correctional facilities, Glendening announced Wednesday.

"This is our chance to say thank you and to give a little back to the public servants who have given so much to us," Glendening said. State employees, he said, have been "working extra hours and performing above and beyond the call of duty" in keeping state services running after the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks.

The closure will effect 60,000 state employees and will have a price tag of about $2.5 million dollars, said Raquel Guillory, Glendening's spokeswoman.

State employee unions were delighted with the gift.

"This is a welcome break for hard-working state employees in lieu of Sept. 11. This is another recognition of public employees that serve the residents in Maryland and other states as well," said Daniel Kaufman, spokesman for American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

The price tag on Glendening's gift left a few legislators wishing the governor took his Christmas cues from Scrooge rather than Santa Claus.

"It's appropriate to at least have a half day," said Sen. Larry E. Haines, R-Carroll, minority whip. "Taking employees out of production is going to have an economic impact and more than likely a negative one."

Glendening recently announced $205 million in cost-saving measures over the next two years, including a hiring freeze, to shore up the state budget in the wake of the economic downturn since the terrorist attacks.

Yet, the closure is also convenient. With Christmas falling on a Tuesday and employees having that day off, it would have been awkward to have employees come in Monday after a weekend, said a state spokeswoman.

This is not the first time Glendening played Santa. In 1997 when Christmas fell on a Thursday, he gave employees the following Friday off.

View From My Window

by Jeffrey Wilson

SAINTS NICHOLAS AND LUCY

I was born into a community that was implicitly, and sometimes explicitly, anti-Catholic. Over the course of my 46 years I have learned much about the Catholic Church. First, I learned as one who had been formed to disagree and even to dislike her. I was like a little boy who had been taught to distrust a most beautiful and wise lady.

For her part, the lady was bemused by my opposition. She remained herself, which is to say she remained winsome. Over the years I have come to know her and to love her. Only in an abstracted kind of way can I remember when and how I disliked her, or that anyone can still feel and think as I once did.

One of my discoveries within the Catholic Church was the company of saints. A Catholic is never alone, rather, traveling always in the company of those who have gone ahead, who have been received into the heavenly city. There are companion saints for men and women, for every occasion, time of life, and calling.

Two of those saints, Nicholas and Lucy, are particular companions for children and in preparing for Christmas. St. Nicholas is remembered today, and St. Lucy one week hence. Catholic boys and girls do not lack role models, especially in the weeks leading up to the solemnity and feast when children are dearest of all the year.

Nicholas and Lucy lived at about the same time, born in the years leading up to the 300th anniversary of the Savior's birth. Both of them lived within the Roman Empire and during the final and bitterest persecutions of Christians. Each gave a good witness to Christ though exemplifying two very different virtues.

Lucy prayed for the healing of her mother who was deathly ill. When her mother recovered, Lucy used her dowry as a thank offering to the Lord. Her fiancé was furious at that, because Lucy had given away money that he thought to be rightfully his. As revenge he denounced Lucy to a Roman official.

The official gave Lucy the opportunity to save herself by renouncing her faith, which she refused to do. The official ordered her to be raped, which she somehow escaped. She was then consigned to be burned, but the wood did not burn. At last, capital punishment was accomplished by running a sword through her neck.

Lucy died as she had lived, a virgin dedicated to Jesus Christ. She exemplified what one writer has called "subversive virginity," chastity that confounds the powers of the world. Lucy's name means "light." Her life is a light that shines brightly in our own dark time when chastity is despised by so many. Lighting candles is a simple way of remembering Lucy as the days grow ever darker.

Nicholas personified generosity and charity, the most famous story of which also has to do with dowries. There were three sisters whose family was so poor that they had no dowries essential for marriage, which meant an uncertain and perhaps disreputable future for the girls. When the sisters did their laundry, and hung their stockings to dry, Nicholas — already a bishop — dropped a bag of gold into a stocking of each one. The girls then had their dowries, and could marry.

St. Nicholas is the historical figure who stands behind Santa Claus (St. Nick). The tradition of hanging stockings on Christmas Eve comes from his act of kindness. Distribution of gold-foil covered chocolate coins is a happy and simple way of celebrating St. Nicholas's Day.

The generosity and sacrifice of these two companion saints provide splendid and — dare I use the word again — winsome contrasts to the smutty commercialism which the world foists upon us. The Catholic Church provides two extraordinary examples, for boys and girls, men and women, as we wend our way through the ever darker days of Advent until we behold the glorious light of Christmas.

GOBA BUCKS WINNERS — Winners of the Christmas on Main Street drawing for "GOBA bucks" were announced Tuesday, according to Amy Rudy, spokesperson for the Greater Oakland Business Association (GOBA). There was no purchase necessary to win the prizes, Rudy noted. Pictured above, seated, are Gold winners Davey DeWitt, Oakland; Donna McClintock, Accident; and Milly Lucas, Kitzmiller. Standing in the same order are Silver winners Mabel Smouse, Oakland; Snowflake Queen Shayla Collins; Betsy Harper, Oakland; and Louise Friend. Winners who have not yet picked up their GOBA bucks may do so at Rudy's Clothing in Oakland. The bucks are redeemable at any of the Christmas on Main Street sponsoring businesses, which include nearly every store in the Oakland area, along with some from throughout the county.

AG Festival

hearing such strong opposition from various groups about its decision to change the date for next year's festival, the chamber realized that the event is now more than a business interest.

"It's entertainment and a homecoming," he said. "And as long as [the chamber] receives some funding, it has some public responsibility." Eiswert said the chamber had no specific plan to expand Autumn Glory, but it had scheduled the meeting with the commissioners "to generate discussion."

"We're here as a sounding board," Jon Kessler, chair of the chamber's executive committee, said. After researching how other areas, such as Elkins, conduct their events and analyzing spending patterns, he said he could "see potential for expanding" Autumn Glory. He added he had gotten the impression from many people, including the commissioners, that they would like to see more activities held throughout the county, not just in the Oakland area.

Kessler also said that several people had expressed interest in contributing to a 501-C3. He acknowledged that forming a new organization would be "a big undertaking." But, he added, the organization could have professionals who work full time on Autumn Glory alone. "The Forest Festival has a full-time staff of three," he said.

Commissioner Fred Holliday noted that past attempts to expand the festival beyond the Oakland area had not been successful, such as the Fiddlers' Contest and turkey dinners being held at Northern High School. He also pointed out that area motels are booked to capacity during the festival and that finding accommodations for more visitors would be a problem in the future.

Commissioner Wendell Beitzel acknowledged that Autumn Glory was a lot of work for the chamber, and expressed concerned that the chamber would stop participating in the event.

"We have no plans to drop Autumn Glory," Kessler said. "We're just here to tell you that there is considerable potential for the festival, beyond our capacity."

Commissioner Ernest Gregg pointed out that whether the festival expands or not, "It's essential to keep a set day [for the event]." He said that the Buckwheat and Forest festivals, which attract large crowds, have always taken place on the last weekend in September and the first weekend in October, respectively.

Kessler said that the chamber's decision to change the date was done in an attempt to improve the festival. "We're doing the best that we can do," he added. "The chamber is a business association, naturally, we're going to make decisions based on that, which may not be the most prudent."

The chamber and commissioners discussed what roles the chamber and volunteers would play if a 501-C3 were established and having more festivals throughout the year, but decided not to establish a foundation to run Autumn Glory right now.

Holliday stressed, however, that regardless of what decisions were made concerning the event, "the goal should be the betterment of Garrett County, not the pocket book."

"This is the eighth year for the Tree of Lights, and the support for it just keeps growing," said Louise Conjura, GCMH Foundation chairman. Donors are recognized in the Foundation's annual report. GCC Gallery Showing Works Of "Thursday Night Art Group"

The Art Gallery of Garrett Community College is currently hosting a display of recent artwork produced by participants in the GCC "Thursday Night Art Group." The show includes drawings, paintings, original prints, and a variety of pottery forms, most of which are for sale. The public is invited to a closing reception and Christmas celebration on Friday evening, Dec. 14, from 7 to 9 p.m. The Art Group is currently composed of Elee Bookout, Carl Heselbach, Ron and Lorie Skidmore, Jane Moreland, Ken and Judy Carbone, and David Higdon.

"The Art Group was formed over 12 years ago as an avenue for local artists to work together in a relaxed atmosphere that is conducive to experimentation and inspiring creative energies," commented GCC art professor Ron Skidmore. "It also provides an opportunity to socialize and to share ideas and criticism that is necessary for artistic growth. All those involved in the group share one common goal: Make art."

The informal Thursday Night Art Group has acted as support for the GCC art department as resources for instruction and mentors for students, exhibitors in the gallery, and contributing to an active and prolific arts community, Skidmore added. "Participants in the Art Group have changed over the years, but they have always ranged diversely in experience and interest from professional to amateur, and their artforms from abstract to realistic in varied media," he said.

Bookout has been a professional potter for about 50 years, having started her artistic career in conjunction with teaching ceramics at the University of Maryland, the Corcoran Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C., and high school art in Prince George's County. For 12 years she was associated with the Torpedo Factory in Alexandria, Va., where she worked as a resident artist and helped set up and manage a gallery. Elee now works in the "Bear Creek Pottery," based in her home studio near Accident, where she enjoys a slower pace of production that allows her to explore new ideas in clay work.

Heselbach has an extensive background in art with numerous exhibitions and awards. He studied art at Baltimore City College, the Rinehart School of Sculpture, the Maryland Institute of Art, and Le Millet School of Art in Baltimore. For five years he owned and operated his own gallery in Ellicott City, where he also redesigned and refurbished five buildings for a community renovation project. Heselbach currently resides in the Swanton area and works as the director of the Copy Center at GCC. His paintings are done with acrylics mixed with polymers, often suspended for long periods of time to dry, and achieve an effect of pure color, space, and texture.

Ron Skidmore has been teaching art at GCC for 18 years, and coordinates the exhibits in the art gallery. His background includes a degree in art education and a graduate degree in printmaking, but he works in several artistic mediums. Most recently he has been exploring possibilities of ceramic forms, glaze chemistry, and kiln designs and firing processes. In the past year he was granted an award for professional development which he has used to attend various workshops to study these interests.

Lorie Skidmore is a GCC graduate who excelled in ceramics, and now operates a home studio named "Laurel Ridge Pottery." She is currently employed as the manager of "Jackie's II Gallery," an art gallery that recently opened in the McHenry Plaza. Her ceramic work displays a wide range of talent, including coordinated pieces such as salad sets, tumblers, and an array of functional and decorative wares.

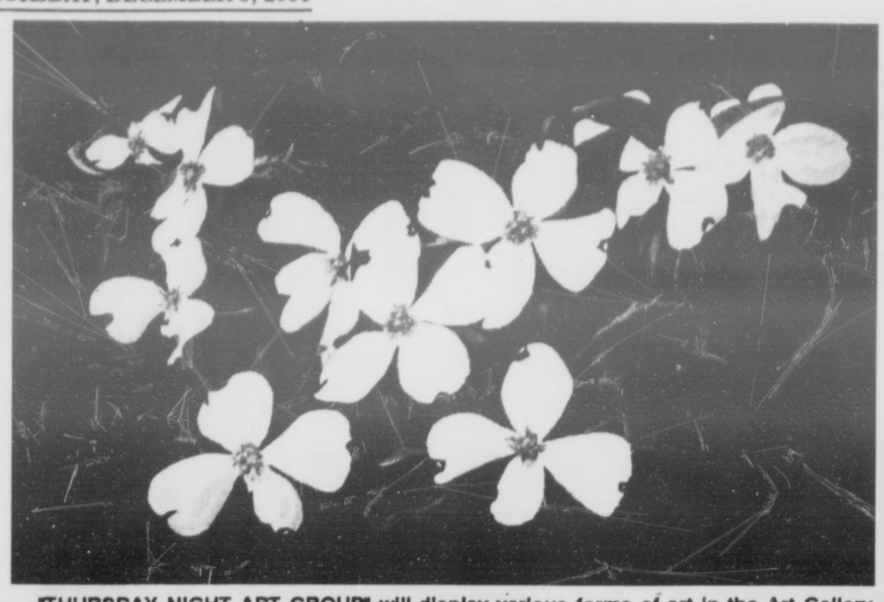
Moreland is an advanced art student at GCC and has focused primarily on oil painting and printmaking techniques. Her first solo exhibition occurred this past June at the GCC Art Gallery, in which she displayed many complicated art processes such as color reduction printing, multi-plate color etchings, and varied tonal line etchings and aquatints. Her subject matter reflects her environment and her interests in nature, horses, and farmlands.

Ken Carbone is showing his photography for the first time in this show. His work includes photographs from around Garrett County and Deep Creek Lake, as well as from his travels to locations such as Spain, Alaska, and the Southwest. Having learned photography from his father, Carbone has been working in black and white for the past 15 years, and this year started working with color. He is employed as a software engineer.

Judy A. Carbone said she has long been interested in pottery but started learning and practicing it seriously a year and a half ago. After taking several ceramics classes at GCC, her passion for pottery grew. She recently assembled a pottery studio in her home in order to devote more time to the craft. This is her second showing at GCC. In her professional career, Carbone is a degreed counselor and certified coach who conducts workshops and works with private clients looking to identify a new career/life direction.

Higdon is currently a sophomore art student at GCC and has been attending the Thursday nights regularly for two years. His career goal is to become an illustrator, and his "potential is obvious with the drawings included in this show," according to Skidmore, his art professor.

The GCC Art Gallery is open to the public from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m weekdays, and on evenings and weekends during special events. For more information, persons may contact the college's art department at 301-387-3024. This exhibition is made possible in part by a grant from the Garrett County Arts Council and the Maryland State Arts Council.



"THURSDAY NIGHT ART GROUP" will display various forms of art in the Art Gallery of Garrett Community College. The Art Group is currently composed of Elee Bookout, Carl Heselbach, Ron and Lorie Skidmore, Jane Moreland, Ken and Judy Carbone, and David Higdon. An untitled painting of dogwoods is pictured above by Jane Moreland. Moreland is an advanced art student at GCC. Her subject matter reflects her environment and her interest in nature. Ken Carbone is showing his photography for the first time in this show. His work includes photographs from around Garrett County and Deep Creek Lake, as well as from his travels. This photo, pictured to the right, titled "Morning on the Mediterranean," was taken in Nerja, Spain. The GCC Art Gallery is open to the public from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. weekdays, and on evenings and weekends during special events. For more information, persons may contact the college's art department at 301-387-3024.

Local Students Traveling To See "Nutcracker"

Ninety-six students and six chaperones from Southern and Northern high schools will board school buses on Friday, Dec. 7, to travel to the Bennedum Center in Pittsburgh to see the Pittsburgh Ballet Theatre's production of The Nutcracker. The trip has been organized by Garrett Lakes Arts Festival and has been made possible by a gift from David and Irene Eyer of Oakland.

Coordination for the trip has been made with the assistance of Jane Avery of Southern High School and Sharon Derlan of Northern High School. Both are teachers of the performing arts.

The show, with music written by Peter Tchaikovsky, features the original George Balanchine choreography.

"GLAF is thrilled to be a part of this effort to enhance the lives of the young people of Garrett County," said Beth Johnson, executive director of GLAF. "As we reflect on the tremendous value that art has in our lives and in educating our children, we realize its role in perpetuating culture and beautifying lives."

Johnson added that in 2001, GLAF has exposed over 2,000 students to performing arts or arts education through performances, workshops, and camps.

TOPPING OFF THE TREE in front of the Oakland Train Station, town employee Jerome Moats is shown getting a lift from the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department ladder truck as he places a lofty decoration. The town's Christmas tree will be "dressed" for the season through the first of the year, and the only trimming the tree is missing at this point is a dusting of—dare we say it?—snow. For the foreseeable future, however, our imaginations will have to suffice in place of the white powder.

GCNet Providing Free Site For Meals On Wheels

A web site for the Area Agency on Aging's Meals on Wheels program is now on-line, according to Glenn Tolbert of Garrett Community Action. Local Internet provider GCNet has constructed the site and is hosting it free of charge, Tolbert said.

The site can be found at www.garrettmealsonwheels.-com. It is yet another endeavor to garner financial support for the local Meals on Wheels, which is a program that delivers food to home-bound Garrett Countians. The program has in the past offered five meals per week to the approximately 150 recipients, but because of budget cuts was reduced to three meals per week. After a successful fund-raiser, the Area Agency on Aging was able to restore another day.

The goal of the organizers is to raise $50,000 in donations, which would restore the fifth day for the recipients. The recipients of the meals do pay a small fee if they are able to do so, and many pay more than the suggested amount, according to program organizers.

The web site includes photographs, newspaper articles, and a listing of the persons and businesses that have already made donations to the program.

"It's a great site," Tolbert said. "We really appreciate all the work GCNet is doing for us."

Panel Recommends Kindergarten Age Cut-Off To Be September 1

by Justin Paprocki
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS - Maryland's kindergarten classes could get a little older in the coming years, according to a proposal approved by the State Board of Education yesterday.

Children would have to turn 5 on or before Sept. 1 instead of Dec. 31 to be eligible for kindergarten under recommendations made by a committee assigned to study improvements in early education programs. The school board will hear public comment on the recommendations and will vote to approve it at future meetings.

The recommendation by the kindergarten committee, a 15-member panel appointed earlier this year, was made in part to help students meet state testing standards.

"We need to conform to the needs of the students rather than have them conform to us," said committee chairwoman Jacqueline Haas, Harford County Public Schools superintendent. The rigorous testing employed in later grades has increased the difficulty of the kindergarten curriculum, according to the committee.

"While research does not provide conclusive evidence that a change in the cut-off date would be more beneficial to children, several policy-making groups consider an adjustment of the date an effective strategy to make the curriculum more developmentally appropriate with an older age group," the committee's report stated.

Maryland is one of four states with the Dec. 31 cut-off date. The age change would be phased in beginning next school year by being be pushed back a month each year until 2007.

Mandatory kindergarten in Maryland has been in effect since 1992, with about 54,000 students enrolled this year, said Rolf Grafwallner, early learning section chief at the state Department of Education. About 10,000 children in 2007 would be left out of kindergarten if the recommendation is approved, but parents would be able to request waivers from their local school boards so their children could start at a different age, he said.

About 20,000 children are in pre-kindergarten programs, which are aimed at students living in poverty and at-risk of falling behind. About 3,000 of the students affected by the date change in 2007 would be qualified as at-risk.

The panel also recommended full-day kindergarten be implemented statewide, something the state board of education pushed for last year. Several counties already have full-day kindergarten, but it is not fully funded by the state.

A study conducted earlier this year in Montgomery County found that 71 percent of at-risk students who attend full-day kindergartens mastered reading fundamentals by the end of the year, compared to 54 percent of those enrolled a half day.

State Superintendent Nancy Grasmick last year outlined a proposal to implement full-day kindergarten, but a $60 million General Assembly bill to fund the program failed.

This year, the Commission on Education Finance, Equity and Excellence, charged with overhauling the state's education funding system, is recommending $1.1 billion in increased state spending for public education, including a plan for full-day kindergarten.

To Carry Torch

Trautwein, who has been given a clean bill of health, was recently involved in the Style Show held through the Western Maryland Health System.

Throughout her battle, she said she relied heavily on Becky Masters, Oakland, who is still battling cancer.

According to Trautwein, Masters has gone through chemotherapy treatment longer than any other patient at WMHS.

"Whenever I had questions or needed to talk, Becky was there. She is my inspiration," she said.

Trautwein also said she owes a lot to the school system, the entire community, and her family.

She said employees of the entire Garrett County school system donated sick days to her for when she needed to travel to Cumberland for treatment.

Trautwein, a teacher's assistant in kindergarten at Broad Ford Elementary School, said she couldn't have done it without the generosity of her fellow employees.

She said she also contributes a great deal of her strength to the family, including her daughter, Angie Rush, McHenry; two sons, Chad Bittinger, Oakland, and Dale Bittinger, Columbia; and two step-sons, Chuck Trautwein, Grantsville, and Craig Trautwein, Oakland.

"I am very proud of her," said Buck Trautwein. "She really deserves it, and I am behind her all the way."

She will be running for the Appalachian Region in the Uniontown area on Thursday, Dec. 20. The Salt Lake Organizing Committee (SLOC) has requested that the media not give a detailed description of the route until the day before the run for security purposes.

The SLOC has provided her with a uniform, which she will be able to keep.

The torch run has recently added 100 runner slots "devoted to the heroes" of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, and small adjustments have been made in the route to "commemorate" the deaths in New York, Washington, D.C., and Pennsylvania.

The Olympic flame will land on U.S. soil in Atlanta, Ga., on Dec. 4 to begin an inspirational 65-day journey across the country. Approximately 210,000 people were nominated for the 11,500 slots. More than 4,000 slots are filled with international Olympic officials, Salt Lake organizers picked about 2,500 runners, Coke picked 2,700 runners, and Chevrolet chose 2,000.

The 11,500 torchbearers will each carry the 3-pound torch about a quarter mile. The Flame will travel through 46 states and cover more than 13,500 miles on its way to Salt Lake City, where the official games will commence on Feb. 8, 2002.

The 2002 Olympic torch embodies several themes: "Land of Contrast — Fire and Ice," "Light the Fire Within," and "Taming of the West — the Past and Present."

All torch colors are in the cool spectrum except for the flame, which is showcased by its vibrance and warmth.

The Olympic Flame, which can be seen burning inside the torch's glass crown, is a metaphor for Olympians' passions for competition and victory. Each torch will be unique, just as every Olympic athlete is a true individual.

The center section of the torch has an aged, slightly time-worn finish, while the bottom has a clean, high-polish finish. Torchbearers will hold the torch at the junction of these two surfaces, representing the bridging of the past and present.

The materials of the torch represent ideals of the Olympic Winter Games. Glass represents winter and nature as well as ice and purity. High-polish silver represents modern technology. Aged silver finish stands for the heritage, traditions, and heirlooms of the West. Copper represents the fire, warmth, and passion of Utah's history.

Man Held

scene and blocked off the road on both sides of the crime scene, police said.

Officers from the Maryland State Police and Garrett County Sheriff's Office entered the residence and removed Bosley's daughters to a safe area. A search of the remainder of the residence revealed that the suspect had left the scene prior to the arrival of law enforcement officers.

Goode was arrested without incident near Alpine Village at Deep Creek Lake approximately three hours later.

Goode was charged with attempted first degree murder, first degree assault, burglary, and use of a firearm in the commission of a crime.

Bosley's wife Angela was at work at the time of the incident, and arrived home at about the same time as police were arriving.

According to the family spokesperson, Goode allegedly entered the Bosley house and confronted the two older daughters. He told them to remain quiet, and that he was there to see their father. He allegedly threatened one of the girls with the gun, which belonged to Bosley.

Goode was also charged with first degree assault and false imprisonment regarding the three girls.

When asked about a motive for the attack, the spokesperson said that it was still a mystery. There was a rumor that Goode had been fired from his job by Bosley, but in fact had voluntarily quit his job last Wednesday.

"Danny has no idea why this man wanted to kill him," the spokesperson said. "In fact, he (Bosley) had been very supportive of Mr. Goode, had provided employment for him, and had just recently helped him when he was in some trouble. We just have no idea why he would want to do this."

The spokesperson said that Bosley has responded well to treatment at Ruby Memorial Hospital and is now listed in "satisfactory" condition. "He may be able to come home this weekend, but will then have to go back next week for some reconstructive surgery on his arm."

Bosley also sustained pellet wounds to his liver and other organs. He had one completely collapsed lung, and the other was partially collapsed.

Bosley has battled a liver ailment for many years and, ironically, the disease probably saved his life, the family spokesman said.

"The medication that Danny takes thickens his blood, which probably kept him from bleeding to death," he said.

He added that that Bosley's "spirits are very good," and that physicians expect him to eventually regain near normal use of his arm.

The weapon used in the shooting has not yet been located, and may have been thrown into Deep Creek Lake. The incident remains under investigation by the GBI. Also assisting at the scene were officers from the Department of Natural Resources police.

In Loving Memory during the Holidays of John L. Lee & John R. Lee
Should You Go First

Should you go first and I remain
To walk the road alone,
I'll live in memorys garden, dears,
With happy days we have known.
In spring I'll wait for the roses red,
When fades the lilac blue;
In early fall when brown leaves call,
I'll catch a glimpse of the two of you.

Should you go first and I remain
To finish with the scroll,
No lengthening shadows shall creep in to make this life seem droll.
We've known so much happiness,
We've known our cup of joy,
And memory is one gift of God
That death can not destroy.

Should you go first and I remain
For battles to be fought,
Each thing you have touched along the way
Will be a hallowed spot.
I'll hear your voices,
I'll see your smiles.
Though I may grope.
The memory of your helping hands
will buoy me on with hope.

Should you go first and I remain,
One thing I'd have you do:
Walk slowly down the path of death,
For one day I'll follow you.
I'll want to know each step you take,
That I may walk the same
For some day down that lonely road,
You'll hear me call your names.

Deeply loved and sadly missed,

FLATTENING NUMEROUS OPPONENTS in a tri-match last night were the Northern Huskies, who opened their 2001-02 wrestling season by easily defeating both Hyndman and Keyser. Above left, Mike Wolf continues the legacy of his brother, state champion Mark Wolf (now wrestling for West Virginia University), as he works to record a lopsided 16-1 decision over Dereck Phennicle of Hyndman in the 130-pound division. Above right, Northern's Jordan Brenneman is in the process of pinning Brandon Phennicle in the 150-pound clash. Below left, Husky Dan Ganoe controls Hyndman's Dereck Scritchfield and goes on to win via a pin. Below right, 103-pound Randall Frantz of Northern (left) battles Hyndman's Brooks Emerick and ultimately loses on points, 7-2. But Frantz then defeated his Keyser opponent. See story for details.

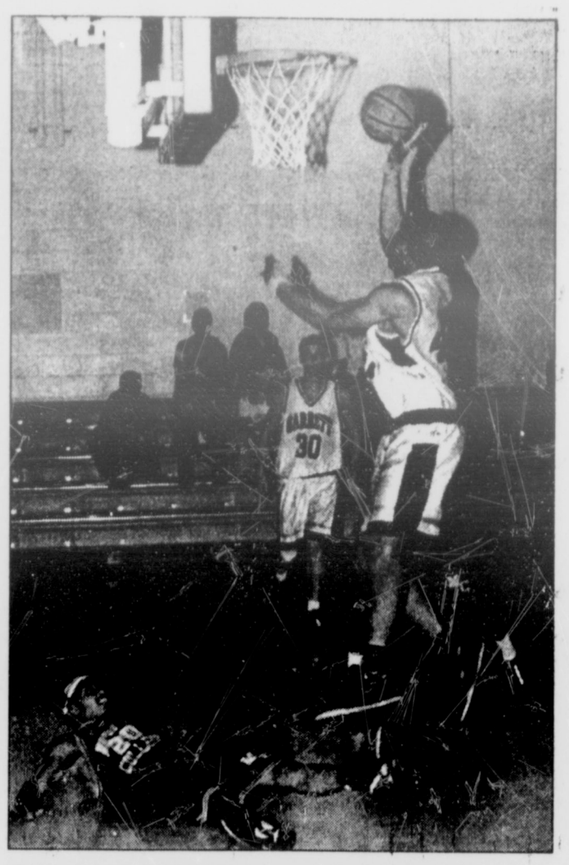
LAKERS FLY TO 8-1 MARK — The men's basketball team of Garrett Community College continued its stellar play this week by rolling up three straight wins to take its record to 8-1. After starting the action with a pair of blowout wins over CCAC South and Harford, respectively, Garrett squeaked by visiting Montgomery Rockville last night by a 90-88 margin. Sophomore guard Kortaa Hall (#24), shown above left streaking in for two of his 18 points, coolly connected on a pair of free throws with six seconds on the clock to give GCC the two-point victory. Following the action in the same photo are center Jontae Harrington



(#42) and forward Andrew Wass (#30). Harrington is pictured at the right leaving a Knight strewn in his wake as he puts up a lay-up of his own. The 6-6 sophomore is making a name for himself during his first year in a Laker uniform, and last night led all scorers with 29 points. Garrett travels to Trojan Square Garden in Cumberland Saturday to take on the nationally ranked Allegany College of Maryland.

Lakers Mow Down South, Harford; Edge Rockville

Continuing to mow down opponents and rip the nets for nearly 100 points per game is the Garrett Community College men's basketball team, which crushed two more opponents and nipped one this past week to up its record to 8-1. The Lakers flattened host CCAC South, 105-65, last Thursday, rolled over visiting Harford Community College on Saturday, 107-79, and just got by Montgomery-Rockville last night in McHenry, 90-88.

Kortaa Hall led the Lakers in scoring against CCAC South as he poured in 25 points, while Jontae Harrington netted 18, Darren Stackhouse grabbed 10 rebounds, and Duke Cooper dished out 15 assists and contributed nine points. Also reaching double figures in scoring were Andrew Wass with 14 points and Darvus Gray with 10.

The Lakers seized control of the game in the opening minutes, jumping out to a 21-7 lead and then stretching that margin to 48-26 by halftime.

Pacing the Tigers offensively were Rich Ford with 18 points, Jamie Coll with 11, and Josh Renwick with 10 points and nine assists.

Harrington matched Hall's scoring effort in the victory over Harford on Saturday by recording 25 points, and he also pulled down a game-high 12 rebounds. Wass scored 15 points, including nine from three-point range, Stackhouse netted 11, and Hall contributed 10. Gray also reached double figures in rebounding with 10, and Cooper in assists with 12.

The Lakers led by only six points, 45-39, at intermission, but then outscored the visitors by a 62-40 advantage in the second half.

Leading all scorers was Harford's Tylan Gatling, who finished with 33 points.

Donald Eason also reached double figures with 17 points and 11 rebounds.

"We really stepped it up and played well in the second half," stated GCC coach Dennis Gibson. "I was particularly pleased with the defensive play of Jontae and Kortaa."

It was a pair of free throws by Hall with just seven seconds to play last night against Mongtomery Rockville that gave the Lakers their eighth win of the young season and their second win without a loss in Maryland JUCO competition.

Harrington had his biggest game of the season to date, as he pumped in 29 points, while Hall netted 18 and Darren Stackhouse recorded 14 points and 10 rebounds.

Harrington's total came on 10 field goals and a 9-for-12 effort at the foul line. He also grabbed five rebounds.

The score remained close from the opening tipoff, and the Lakers held a four-point edge at halftime, 38-34.

Also providing a balanced performance for the Lakers was Duke Cooper, who scored eight points, pulled down five rebounds, and dished out nine assists. Andrew Wass contributed eight points and five assists.

Leading Rockville's scoring were Jamal Schools and Dee Adams, who netted 26 and 22 points, respectively, while Darrell Simpson had a double-double with 11 points and 11 rebounds.

Total rebounds and total fouls were just as close as the score would indicate, as the Lakers led in boards by a 38-36 margin and Rockville held a 25-24 edge in fouls.

"We didn't shoot the ball well at all," stated Coach Gibson. "We're going to have to get better, more consistent play if we want to compete at a higher level.

"I was pleased with our sophomores, though, who really stepped it up down the stretch and hit the shots that we needed."

The "higher level" of competition will certainly be needed in the Lakers' next outing, as they are slated to travel to Cumberland this Saturday to take on nationally ranked Allegany College of Maryland. They will then be off most of next week for final exams, and then travel to Rockingham, N.C., to play in the Rockingham Classic next Friday and Saturday, Dec. 14 and 15.

After jumping out to a 2-0 start at the outset of the season, the Garrett Community College women's basketball team dropped to .500 this week with a 58-48 loss to the College of Southern Maryland Saturday, and a 89-56 throttling at the hands of CCAC-Allegheny Monday. The Lakers will try to rebound back into the win column Saturday afternoon during a 4:45 p.m. match-up with arch-rival Allegany College of Maryland in Cumberland.

Garrett let Saturday's game slip through its fingers, as the Lakers saw a 23-23 halftime tie collapse into the 10-point defeat. Southern Maryland was up only by four points with 1:20 to play, well within GCC striking distance, but the Knights hit a couple of late field goals to ice the win on their Waldorf home court.

The lion's share of the Lakers' scoring came from their backcourt, as Crystal Kimble connected for 14 points, Donielle Gaines netted 12 points, and Angel Kendal scored eight points. Donna Lyles pulled down eight rebounds, and Shalonda Reid recorded three steals. Southern Maryland's Megan Briskins led all scorers with 18 points.

Monday's game at CCAC-Allegheny (no box score available) saw the Lakers sputter to a 40-30 halftime deficit en route to the 33-point defeat. The only Laker to hit for double figures was Gaines, who netted 11 points, while Kimble scored eight points and forward Charlena Reeves contributed seven points. The hosts' Nicole Fischer led all scorers with 22 points.

Mtn. Top League Play Under Way

Play in the Mountain Top Basketball League got under way this week at Garrett Community College, with defending league champion Condoerr, Deep Creek Ready Mix, and Skile's Bunch all recording victories.

Condoerr found itself down by as many as 20 points in the second quarter against upset-minded Mt. Top Glass, but Tony Doerr and Mike Saturday paced a rally that knotted the score at 59-59 by the end of the third period. Poke Winters then took over the scoring chores, hitting 14 of his game total of 18 all in the fourth stanza and allowing Condoerr to pull away for an 81-69 win.

Mike Browning of Mt. Top Glass was unstoppable, and finished with a game-high 33 points, with teammate Mike Fazenbaker netting 14. Leading Condoerr in scoring was Dennis Gibson with 23, while Winters hit 18 and Doerr scored 14.

The game between Deep Creek Ready Mix and Copeland's Squad was also close until the final period when Greg Inglese and Joe DiSimone led a scoring streak that gave Deep Creek a 77-58 victory. Doug Copeland led his team and all scorers with 27 points. DiSimone and C.J. Getson each had 24 points for the winners, and Jason Skipper contributed 12.

Heavily favored Skile's Bunch struggled in the third game against 84 Lumber, as the score was tied at 52-52, when 84's Gary Upole hit a jumper with less than a minute to play. Skile's responded with a three-point bucket by John Orendorf to make it 55-52.

After missing a jumper on the ensuing possession, 84 Lumber was forced to foul, putting Orendorf at the line with a chance to ice the game. He missed the front end of a one-and-one, however, giving 84 another opportunity to tie. But they could not get the ball to J.C. Whitehall, who had five three-pointers in the game. A long-range shot to tie at the buzzer was short.

Orendorf and Stan Skiles led the winners in scoring with 16 and 14 points, respectively. Whitehall hit a game-high 22 to pace 84 Lumber, while Greg Mortimer and Upole each recorded 10 points.

In games slated for this Sunday, Dec. 9, Condoerr will meet Copeland's in the 1 p.m. contest, Smiley's will play Deep Creek Ready Mix at 2 p.m., and 219 Motors will face Skile's Bunch at 3 p.m. Respective scorekeepers will be Smiley's, Condoerr, and DC Ready Mix.

SHS Girls' Hoops Squad Has States In Its Sights

The Southern High School girls' basketball team had a phenomenal season last year, leaving only one task undone—win the big one. Picking up where that squad left off, the 2001-02 Rams got off to a winning start with last night's 34-point blowout at Keyser (see game coverage), and appear to have the talent to make another long run through the Maryland Class 1A Tournament.

"We have some mighty big shoes to fill, but we also have some fine young players who appear to be ready to step up," SHS head coach Don Stemple said this week. "We've got a great foundation in senior leaders Ashley Liller (5-7, guard) and Jennifer Bosley (5-8, forward), who have been in a number of big games in their careers, and last year starters Robbin Gregg (5-4, guard) and Becca Flanagan (5-9, forward), both of whom are just sophomores. Adding some of our excellent underclass girls into the mix, especially Justine Pagenhardt (5-6, guard), helps a lot, plus junior Melissa Flanagan (5-7, forward), and sophomores Nina Stoner (5-8, forward), Sabrina Scheffel (5-2, guard), and Mandi Stahl (5-8, forward)."

Liller is entering her fourth year in the Rams' starting line-up, with last year first-team All Area and Western Maryland Interscholastic League Player of the Year honors under her belt. The versatile #21 was Southern's top scorer last year at 15.7 ppg, and also held the top spots in assists (5.5) and steals (4.6), and tied for the rebounding lead (4.7). Liller is poised to move into second place on the all-time scoring list, as her 1,075 points are only 93 behind Emily Friend. Jenny Hillen's top tally of 1,838 appears untouchable for the foreseeable future.

Bosley averaged 9 points as she garnered All-Area honorable mention status, Gregg tallied 8 points and 3.4 assists, and Flanagan netted 6.6 points while pulling down 4.7 rebounds.

"We'll have to make some adjustments this season to replace Charlena Reeves under the basket," stated Stemple. "We're looking at posting Jennifer Bosley and Becca Flanagan down low, and going with a three-guard offense of Ashley Liller, Robin Gregg, and Justine Pagenhardt. We hope our quickness will be able to offset some of the height advantage we'll be giving away to other teams."

Southern's program lost five graduates last spring—starter Charlena Reeves, and Ashlee Spady, Kate Dugan, Holly Shaffer, and Amber Stewart. Reeves has gone on to play both basketball and volleyball locally for the Garrett Community College Lakers. The quintet of departed Rams combined to average 10 points per game last year.

The 2000-01 Rams amassed a 21-6 record last season, second-best in SHS history, along with WMIL and Class 1A West Region titles. They were narrowly defeated by state champ Glenelg in a heart-breaking final, 45-42. Despite those accomplishments, and his superb overall 273-137 head coaching record, Coach Stemple said he is most proud when his former players graduate and go on to begin their college studies. Each of last spring's graduates are in college now, he noted.

Ram Girls Off And Running With 69-35 Romp At Keyser

A team on a mission, the Southern High School girls' basketball squad wasted no time in establishing its dominance last night on the way to a 69-35 season-opening win at Keyser. The defending Maryland Class 1A West Region champs controlled both ends of the floor, with fine positioning down low that resulted in a 14-rebound advantage for the Rams, an especially gratifying performance considering the Golden Tornado held a decided height advantage.

"We're tickled to jump out of the blocks like that," SHS head coach Don Stemple commented. "We kept them at arm's length for the first half, then exploded in the second half. I don't think that more than one of our shots in the second half came from over 10 feet from the basket, we were working the ball around well and using our fast breaks to get lay-up after lay-up."

Southern jumped out to a 12-6 first quarter lead, and opened up a 13-point lead at the half, 29-16. Keyser got a pair of back-to-back three-pointers as the third quarter got under way to pull back to within seven, but SHS roared over the remainder of the contest by going on a 40-15 run en route to the final buzzer.

That Southern second-half flurry was sparked by a number of fast breaks, as the Rams took advantage of some strong rebounding and a number of steals on Keyser's end of the court. SHS's speedy guard triumvirate capitilized on the strong post play as Ashley Liller, Justine Pagenhardt, and Robbin Gregg used some fine passing and unselfish play to scoot the ball down the floor before the Keyser defense could recover. Southern connected on a mind-boggling 14 of 15 field goal attempts in the fourth quarter, as Becca Flanagan and Gregg each hit for eight points to account for 16 points as SHS mounted a 28-9 tally over the final stanza.

Flanagan paced the offensively balanced Rams with a game-high 19 points on nine field goals and one free throw, while grabbing six rebounds. Liller recorded 18 points on seven field goals and a perfect four-for-four tally from the free throw line, and just missed a rare triple-triple by leading the squad in rebounds with 10 and assists with eight.

Gregg hit for 12 points on six field goals and led SHS with six steals, and Pagenhardt added six points. Bosley scored six points and pulled down seven rebounds. Sabrina Scheffel came off the bench to score four points, and fellow reserve players Nina Stoner, who did an excellent job underneath in spelling Flanagan when the starting center got into foul trouble, and Mandi Stahl netted two points each.

Keyser's Autumn Beavers led the Golden Tornado with 11 points.

Among the many keys to Southern's victory were a fine team performance, speed, passing, and, perhaps most gratifying for Coach Stemple, a 34-20 rebounding advantage. Keyser had a huge height advantage, but SHS's zone defense put Liller into position to nab rebound after rebound, and Bosley and and Bosley worked their box-outs to near perfection.

SHS's junior varsity unit fell 22-28. Jasmine Scheffel netted nine Ram points, while Keyser's Nicole Zacot led all scorers with 12 points.

Southern's home opener will take place tomorrow night as the Rams host perennial West Virginia powerhouse Tucker County in a 7:30 p.m. varsity match-up that follows a 6 p.m. JV game.

"We've scouted Tucker, they have three starters back from last year's West Virginia State Tournament squad," remarked Stemple. "As with practically everybody we play this year, we'll be outsized, but our guards are just as quick as their guards, who happen to be their two best players. If we don't get sloppy and turn the ball over, we have a chance at beatiig the Mountain Lions—and you don't have the opportunity to say that too often. A big, loud, crowd would help us out immensely."

SHS rounds out the week with a trip to Westmar Monday, and a visit to Petersburg Wednesday for a 7:30 p.m. road contest that will be broadcast on 92.3 FM, "The Train."

House Of Hope Food Run Set For December 15

The annual House of Hope Food Run is slated for Saturday, Dec. 15, starting at 9 a.m. at Arrowhead Market near Deep Creek Lake. The entry fee is a monetary or food donation to the House of Hope.

This 8.3-mile run starts at Arrowhead Market and goes along U.S. Route 219 to downtown Oakland, ending at Proudfoot's Pharmacy along Second Street. This is a point-to-point run, so participants should arrange their own transportation back to the start.

Local Students Meet Each Other In Track Event

Two Garrett County students who competed against each other in high school track and field a few years ago met each other again on Saturday in an indoor collegiate meet, and in fact, finished almost side by side in the same event.

Kristin Lander, a graduate of Northern High School and a freshman at Elizabethtown College, finished fifth in the women's 55-meter hurdles with a time of 10.08 seconds, while Jody Bowser, a graduate of Southern High School and a junior at Western Maryland College, placed fourth with a time of 9.99 seconds. The race was one of the events of the Dickinson College Holiday Meet, which included teams from the aforementioned three colleges, plus Ursinus, Franklin and Marshall, and Juniata colleges.

Lander was also a member of the Elizabethtown 4 x 200 meter relay team, which placed third, and the 4 x 400 relay team, which placed fourth.

BEST TO STAY OUT OF THE SINESES' SIGHTS, if you're a buck during the current rifle season, which wraps up this Saturday. The Friendsville family killed a pair this week, as Marvin Sines Jr., is shown above with his daughter Summer and the buck he took on opening day. The fine 8-point had a spread of 20 and 1/4 inches, and was taken near the Sang Run/White Rock area. Summer is pictured below with her proud papa and the first deer of her hunting career, taken on Nov. 10.

POA Seeks

"I appreciate the efforts, concerns, and suggestions that the property owners have contributed," Commissioner Wendell Beitzel said. "I think it's a fair request to have more people from Deep Creek on the commission." But he added that the request needed to be discussed more.

Holliday acknowledged that the lake area had certainly gone through some dramatic changes in the last six months. "But I'm not 100% convinced right now that a new ordinance is needed," he said, but added that he was not completely opposed to the idea. Holliday said the current ordinance, which was established in 1972, was working well.

"We need a diversity of people from the entire county on the planning commission," he said. He indicated that there could be a problem with self-interest issues if the commission were not so diverse.

He also voiced concern that having a quota could set a precedent. "If we start designating that some people have to come from a certain area [to serve on a board]," Holliday said, "then other boards might ask for the same."

John Nelson, director of planning and zoning, said there was an unwritten policy that representation would be from different areas of the county. As a result, he indicated, commission members have different backgrounds and experiences to contribute.

Thayer indicated that POA members had no self-interests to promote; they just wanted to have their concerns taken into consideration.

Commissioner Ernest Gregg said that the matter "certainly warrants discussion," but he also indicated that the issue would have to be examined further before any decisions could be made.

MULHOLLAND DRIVE

Rated R - Running Time: 2:26 - Released 10/19/01

It is altogether fitting that Mulholland Drive debuted at my local theatre on November 30, on the day of the second full moon of the month, because only once in a blue moon does a movie like this come along. Written, directed, and produced by David Lynch, who has given us such freaky mind-benders as Blue Velvet and Twin Peaks, this movie is what Eyes Wide Shut and The Cell both wanted to be. Combining the excellent performances of a varied and sometimes surprising cast with Lynch's wildly conceptual cinematic art, Mulholland Drive tells a circular story that twists and turns and doubles back on itself and sometimes even switches actors around between parts. The result is a dreamy, nightmarish, highly contemplative piece of celluloid that, while it will certainly not appeal to everyone, is just the kind of thing critics love: something different.

Although explaining the plot of this movie is like trying to describe the nature of existence using only hand motions, it begins with two young women: Betty Elms (Naomi Watts), a talented but innocent young actress who has just moved to Hollywood to seek her fortune, and "Rita" (Laura Harring), who only takes the name "Rita" because she is suffering from anmesia after receiving a concussion in a car accident. They meet when Betty arrives at her vacationing aunt's empty apartment where she's going to stay until she finds her own place. Rita is there, having found her way in after the aunt left town. Betty thinks at first that she is a family friend, but when she learns the truth, she agrees to help Rita try to find out her true identity.

As the women get to know each other, their friendship grows into something more intimate. In between Betty's auditions, where she meets a young director (Justin Theroux) who will figure significantly into Rita's story, she accompanies the confused girl on her quest to find out who she is. As they begin investigating possible leads, they discover a woman named Diane Selwyn (Missy Crider), whom Rita apparently knew before the accident. That is, they discover Diane's body. And with that discovery begins a chain of events that unravel the very fabric of time and space, reality and fantasy, waking and dreams, rendering our two co-protagonists as alter-egos of themselves, or perhaps mere figments in the mind of another. That's all I'm going to say, although that barely begins to scratch the surface.

This film, which Lynch originally produced as a pilot for a television series that was rejected for being too dark, went on to win Lynch the Best Director award at the Cannes Film Festival. Pushing the envelope of ingenuity the way Being John Malkovich did, it forces the viewer to unravel many barely explained nuances of theme and character. I mean, you practically need a sliderule to figure this thing out. But besides being compelling in its complexity, it contains some amazingly real performances and hauntingly creepy plot devices, boasting everything from casual murder to supernatural whimsy to lesbian sex to hiccups in the space/time continuum. In addition to Watts, who won Movieline's inaugural "Breakthrough of the Year" award for her work, and Mexican-born former Miss USA Harring, who puts forth a performance no less compelling, it features a multitude of fascinating supporting parts and some surprising casting choices, like Ann Miller, Billy Ray Cyrus (of "Achy Breaky Heart" fame), and Chad Everett. Added to their varied and surprising performances, Peter Deming's cinematography and Angelo Badalamenti's compelling musical score add significant depth.

You should definitely see this film if you're interested in the art of cinema, but you're going to have to buy the DVD if you really want to understand it. ★★★★★

BEHIND ENEMY LINES

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:45 - Released 11/30/01

Owen Wilson, the puckering-lipped pretty boy who has starred in such silly comedies as Shanghai Noon (with Jackie Chan) and Zoolander (with Ben Stiller), bursts into action-hero mode with Behind Enemy Lines, the debut film from director John Moore. A thrilling survival story written by brothers Jim and John Thomas and adapted for the screen by David Veloz and Zak Penn, it follows a downed Navy navigator on the run from Serbian manhunters in war-torn Bosnia. Beautifully framed by cinematographer Brendan Galvin and featuring a memorable musical score by Don Davis, it builds expertly from its opening until about four-fifths of the way through, when director Moore decides to go full-throttle with the John Wayne heroics and his final reel devolves into ridiculosity. Look it up. Opposite Wilson (although they almost never share the screen together) is Gene Hackman, who again maintains his rock-solid standing as one of the most versatile and reliable actors working. If it weren't for Hackman, this film would not be half what it is, but his presence makes a difference.

Wilson plays Lt. Chris Burnett, an F-18 navigator stationed aboard the aircraft carrier Carl Vinson in the Adriatic Sea. Tired of being on the sidelines of the situation in Bosnia and cynical about the Navy's ineffective position in the conflict, Burnett has already expressed his retirement plans to his superior officer, Adm. Leslie McMahon Reigart (Hackman). Perhaps in return for this, Reigart gives Burnett and his pilot, Lt. Jeremy Stackhouse (Gabriel Macht), a Christmas day reconnaissance assignment. Burnett gripes about being given such a routine mission "during the one good meal of the year," but when he sees something interesting in enemy territory they deviate from their flight plan and enter restricted air space. Within minutes of flying over a suspicious site (and taking digital pictures of it), they find themselves engaged by a band of Eastern European soldiers, who have launched a surface-to-air missile. Unable to evade the deadly rocket, Burnett and Stackhouse are forced to eject over hostile territory and watch as their destroyed plane crashes in the distance. Soon Stackhouse is killed, and Burnett is on the run from the Serbs, who know that the pictures he took would incriminate them. Meanwhile Reigart, prevented from launching a rescue mission for fear of endangering peace talks, is forced to watch and listen from the sidelines. Like Snoopy making his way through occupied France, Burnett must try to reach friendly ground on his own without any hope of rescue.

Wilson does admirably well with his first starring role as an action hero, bringing an easy charm and a distinct "regular guy" sense to his characterization. Hackman, decorated veteran of many military-themed movies (including Bat 21, in which he played a downed pilot behind enemy lines in Vietnam), is as effective as ever in another such role, but since he's forced to spend most of the movie pacing around the ship worrying, he's not allowed to join in much of the fun. Speaking of fun, the most engaging part of this movie is no doubt the F-18 flying sequence where Stackhouse and Burnett are being pursued by the SAM. It is incredibly exciting, with fast-paced cuts and thrilling music layered onto the controlled intensity of the actors' performances, which are really just vocal performances since we can't see much more than their eyes through their flight gear. It's the kind of riveting jet warfare footage that made Top Gun so popular all those years ago. More importantly, it is believable, a claim that the other main action setpiece, which occurs during the climax, cannot make. ★★★★

ACCIDENT

- The annual "Christmas in Flowery Vale" will be celebrated on Saturday, Dec. 8. Numerous activities are being planned starting at 3:30 p.m. at the Flowery Vale Senior Center.
- The council approved the facility plan submitted by Thrasher Engineering for the sewer rehab project.
- Accident's annual Christmas decorating contest will be held during the week of Dec. 17. Residents are invited to participate in the contest.

FRIENDSVILLE

- It was noted that numerous trees have been planted in town, partially through an Allegheny Power $750 tree voucher presented to the town by Louise Uphold of the Department of Natural Resources. The additional expense of the tree purchase and plantings was paid for by the town. Additionally, it was noted that the State Highway Administration will be completing the Streetscape Program with the planting of trees and shrubs along First Avenue, in the "parklet" at Maple Street, and in the community park.
- The annual Light-Up Night and Old Fashioned Holiday Celebration which was held on Nov. 30 was a huge success with a large number of participants, according to town staff.
- The mayor and town council members noted that the town residents have "outdone themselves with the beautiful holiday decorations this year." Out-of-town visitors are invited to ride through town any evening to enjoy the festive lights. Local residents are reminded that the judging for the annual Christmas Decorating Contest will be held Thursday, Dec. 20, starting at 5:30 p.m. The winning displays will be announced at the mayor and council's annual Christmas dinner at the Old Mill Grill that evening.
- The clerk-treasurer reminds any town property owners with outstanding real estate or personal property taxes to make an effort to pay these prior to Dec. 29 in order to avoid inclusion in the Certification of Taxes Due Report. This report is required by state law and is used by the county treasurer to determine which properties will be listed in the annual tax sale.

The next regular meeting of the mayor and town council is scheduled for Monday, Jan. 7, at 7:30 p.m.

Young Finzel Man Bags Life Lessons From Hunt

"I love to think of nature as an unlimited broadcasting station, through which God speaks to us every hour, if we only tune in."

— George Washington Carver

by David Foster

The woods can be the greatest classroom of all for a willing student, and 19-year-old Malcolm Simmons of the Finzel area is constantly applying the lessons of Mother Nature to shape his life and future direction. As true hunters do, Simmons has embarked on a lifelong pursuit of all he can learn from what the woods have to offer, and is sharing his avocation with others. His love for the sport has even taken him to the unlikely setting of the Maryland statehouse in Annapolis.

MALCOLM SIMMONS

"The House of Delegates was being pushed to shut down outdoor rifle ranges across the state, so my grandfather, Buddy Duckworth, took my cousin Darric and me to Annapolis so we could speak before the House of Delegates," Simmons explained of the action that would intimidate many of his peers. "The folks who wanted to shut down the rifle ranges had built their houses next to ranges that were already there, and then filed noise lawsuits against them.

"I told the committee that shutting down the rifle ranges would harm youth hunting and the future of hunting in the state, and even more importantly, our wildlife itself. People don't realize that the license fees and other costs paid by hunters go into the Department of Natural Resources to benefit its wildlife management programs. These programs help the wildlife, and hunting itself also helps manage animal populations, keeping the numbers in check so that the food supply can support them and so that diseases don't spread. It's also important that we have rifle ranges where young people can learn how to shoot safely, because young people are the future of hunting."

Thanks to the testimony of Simmons and his other family members, Senate Bill #655 passed, protecting rifle ranges from impending closures. "We got an ovation after we spoke, even though the House is known for its anti-gun stance. It's important that people who hunt speak out in favor of hunting if we want it to be around for the kids of the future. I've read that in the 1960s there were 300,000 hunting licenses sold in Maryland each year, and now its down to less than 90,000. I don't like that; we have to do something."

Simmons's way of "doing something" in the woods, and otherwise, may come from his father, Verl "Spike" Simmons, who was killed in a car accident when Malcolm was just 7. Verl Simmons left behind another son, 3-year-old Nathan, and the boys' mother Maronda.

"I can remember riding on my dad's shoulders in the woods," Malcolm recalled. "He would point out and name the different trees and show me tracks and tell me what animal made them; he told me what the different noises were. And he said, 'Never litter—always ,pick it up; and if you see someone else's litter, pick it up too.'"

"Doing something" is also what Simmons will be shown doing on national television in the future, as he recently completed taping a "Hunt of a Lifetime" segment of Ultimate Outdoors with Wayne Pearson, ESPN2's top-rated outdoor program. Pearson, known for his promotion of youth hunting activities, took Simmons and with his uncle, Rob Wilt, of Grantsville on a two-day quail hunt near Albany, Ga. It was the young man's introduction to quail hunting and to the Georgia woods.

"We spent our time walking with the bird dogs. There were two pointers that would locate a bird, and a third dog to flush out the birds and retrieve them after they were shot. We got 35 birds the first day and 25 the second. It was a lot of fun, and a lot different from the turkey hunting I'm used to where you have to sit still and call the birds to come to you." Besides the birds, Pearson also sent Simmons home with a 20-gauge pump shotgun, a gun cleaning kit, a pair of hunting boots, a pair of hunting pants for walking through brambles and briars, and a duffle bag.

Although the broadcast date for the Ultimate Outdoors segment has not been set, Simmons will soon be sharing his thoughts on hunting with a webwide audience as Northeast/mid-Atlantic editor for the on-line magazine Arizona Outdoorsman. Knowing that those readers will likely already be avid sportsmen, Simmons still would like to reach a wider audience to promote the value of hunting and the values of nature.

"Reaching non-hunters is a tough question—I really don't know the answer. We make magazines and write articles, but those people don't read those kinds of magazines." Given the chance, Simmons said he would let non-hunters know "that there is nothing like being out in the wild. You become so much more aware of your surroundings and all the beauty nature has to offer. What does a person do without hunting and fishing? What do kids in towns do? Get in trouble?"

With his life ahead of him, like an early-rising hunter, Simmons is setting out with a goal in mind while enjoying the journey along the way. "I'll going to Garrett Community College starting next month to study in the Natural Resources and Wildlife Technology program. I'm interested in becoming a natural resources officer, or a professional hunter and guide. Either way I could have the best of both worlds, being in the woods and sharing what I love with other people."

QUILT WINNER NAMED — Sharon Lowery won the Heritage Quilting Group quilt that the Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Company recently chanced off as a fund-raising project. The Grantsville Senior Citizens Quilting Group donated their time to quilt it. The Heritage Quilting Group has been making quilts for many organizations since it was organized more than two years ago. The quilters made a number of comforters, which were sent to Bosnia, supported Debbie Stemple's baby quilt project, and recently pieced together quilts for the Dove Center. They are starting a quilt which will be donated to the Grantsville Library for a fund-raising project this coming spring. The group also has plans to start another quilt in the near future to be donated to the Accident fire department as another fund-raiser. Persons interested in joining the group may contact Joan Chaney at 301-387-9365 or Thelma Emory at 301-245-4478. Pictured above, from the left, are Anna Sturtz and Minnie Bittinger, Grantsville senior citizen quilters; Lowery, winner; Chaney, of the Heritage Quilters; and Dottie Sines, Deep Creek VFC Ladies Auxiliary treasurer.

GCC's Support Of Local Community Subject Of Study

A team of administrators from Mayland Community College (N.C.) visited Garrett Community College recently to observe how the local college deploys its resources to serve the wider community.

The visitors were very impressed with GCC's efforts to support local economic development, according to Dr. Steve Herman, one of several community college presidents featured on the teleconference program. "They had heard about us on the nationwide teleconference about rural community colleges, and were very interested to learn more about the establishment of GRIC and the new Garrett Information Enterprise Center. They were also very interested in our outdoor programs."

Located in an area similar to Garrett County, Mayland Community College is about twice the size of GCC. "Mayland CC has some of the same programs we have such as adventure recreation, aquaculture and aquaponics," said Herman. "The college has been there for 30 years, but has no history of involvement with economic development in its community. The local industries are mainly textiles and wood products."

Members of the visiting team included president Dr. Thomas E. Williams, vice-president of instructional services Dr. Rick Garrett, and dean of the small business center and human resources development programs Robert M. Branch.

The visitors' itinerary included a tour of the McHenry campus and meetings with Kevin Dodge and Peter Skylstad of the Natural Resources and Wildlife Technology program, Willie Lantz of the Agriculture Management program, Don Storck of Information Technology and the Adventure-Sports Institute, Lowell Bender and Sandy Major of the Garrett Information Enterprise Center, and Mike Logsdon of the Adventure Sports program. They also met with Jim Hinebaugh and Frank Shap of the Garrett County Economic Development Office.

"They received a great deal of information from these folks," Herman said, "and they have a fund to support start-up businesses, so I expect to see some future progress there. It is good to know that GCC has acquired a reputation beyond the local region and can be of help to other small rural community colleges."

PROCEEDS TO BENEFIT HOSPICE — Green Acres Garden Center, Oakland, will once again share proceeds from Christmas tree sales with Hospice of Garrett County Inc. The trees have been locally grown at Forman's Tree Farm. According to a spokesperson for Hospice, all the trees are freshly cut, are 6 to 10 feet tall, and are available in Fraser fir, blue spruce, and white pine. "This is the sixth year that we have supported Hospice in the care of the terminally ill in Garrett County," Dave Taylor, owner of Green Acres, said. "Hospice has touched the hearts of many families as it continues to provide end of life care." Pictured above, left to right, with the trees at Green Acres are Denise Reese, employee, Ann Taylor, owner, and Brenda Butscher, executive director of Hospice of Garrett County.

Pearl Harbor Commemoration Set By Legion

The public is invited to attend the commemoration service of the 60th anniversary of the December 7, 1941, attack on Pearl Harbor. The service is sponsored by the Mountain District of the American Legion and will be held on December 8 at 7 p.m. at the Proctor Kildow Post headquarters in Oakland.

The program will include patriotic music, remarks, and refreshments. Longtime Legion member and Post 71 officer Moe Miller will be master of ceremonies. Legion and VFW member Paul Shogren will be the speaker.

Shogren served with the U.S. Marines in Korea from April 1952 to April 1953 as a sergeant in the Engineers. Later he served with the U.S. Army Reserve in military intelligence, retiring in 1989 with 21 years of active and reserve service. Presently he is assisting the Garrett County Historical Society with its oral history project of WWII and the Korean War.

The service is free and all are invited.

Inducted Into Pre-Medical Honor Society

Kathleen Saltysiak was recently inducted into the Pennsylvania Mu Chapter of the Alpha Epsilon Delta (AED) international pre-medical honor society. A junior at Franklin and Marshall College in Lancaster, Pa., Saltysiak is majoring in biology with a specialty in pre-veterinary medicine.

AED is both an honor society and a service organization, and membership recognizes academic achievement and a "genuine and demonstrated commitment to a career in the healing arts," a chapter spokesperson said, noting that AED members provide service to the Lancaster community.

Saltysiak is a 1999 graduate of the Maryvale Preparatory School in Baltimore. She resides in Hunt Valley with her mother, Maureen Roby, and is also the daughter of William A. Saltysiak, Esq., of Oakland. She is the granddaughter of Elaine Saltysiak Brickett of Oakland and the late Dr. Bernard A. Saltysiak, and step granddaughter of Robert Brickett.

Moose still top dog on the set of Frasier

By Taylor Michaels
TVData Features Syndicate

Q: I have noticed that they have a different dog playing Eddie on Frasier this season. I hope the original one didn't die. Did he? –Paul McHugh via e-mail.

A: Moose, a 9-year-old Jack Russell terrier, continues to play the furry little pal of Martin Crane (John Mahoney) and nemesis of Frasier (Kelsey Grammer), NBC publicist Deborah Thomas says. He appeared as the eccentric pup in the show's very first episode in 1992.

Kelsey Grammer with Moose

Q: Some of my friends do not believe that Bill Cosby ever hosted a TV version of You Bet Your Life. I remember it, but when and where did it air? –Elizabeth Sauerwald, Philadelphia.

A: After his hit NBC sitcom ended its long run in 1992, Cosby took a shot that same year at the game show Groucho Marx made famous. Robbi Chong (Poltergeist: The Legacy) was Cosby's sidekick and announcer.

The syndicated production was a huge flop, however, and barely lasted a single season. An earlier attempt to revive You Bet Your Life with host Buddy Hackett had failed in 1980.

Q: I know Jon Voight is Angelina Jolie's father, but who is her mother? Is she adopted? Does her brother have the same mother? –J.G., Roseville, Mich.

A: Both Jolie, 26, and her 28-year-old brother, actor-director James Haven, are the offspring of Jon Voight's 1973-78 marriage to an actress named Marcheline Bertrand. Both siblings were given the surname Voight at birth; Jolie and Haven are their real middle names.

Q: I saw former Thirtysomething actress Patricia Wettig on The Practice recently. Please remind me who her husband is. I know he also is an actor. –Jan Riepe, Creston, Iowa.

A: Wettig has been married since 1982 to Ken Olin, who is best known for playing Michael Steadman on Thirtysomething. This season, he's a director and co-executive producer on ABC's espionage drama Alias.

Q: On an old Maverick episode called "The Hostage," I recently saw an actress named Laurie Carroll who looked a lot like Marina Sirtis of Star Trek: The Next Generation. Could it be the same person? –D.D., Thief River Falls, Minn.

A: No. Sirtis is only 41, and that Maverick episode dates back to 1957.

Q: Why did Jo Marie Payton-Noble leave Family Matters during its last season? –Rhona Hall, Chatham, Ill.

A: The actress, who created the role of Harriette Winslow on Perfect Strangers two seasons before Matters premiered, had grown tired of playing the character and asked for chances to write and direct as well. When those chances did not materialize, she left.

Maryland Fares Poorly In Fed. Grant Programs

by Jennifer Dorroh
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON — Maryland is one of the wealthiest states in the nation, but it makes a relatively poor showing when it comes to federal aid to help the state's neediest people, according to a new study.

While Maryland state and local governments received a total of $4.4 billion in fiscal 2001 from the 50 largest federal formula grant programs, the federal spending from those programs per person lagged in the state.

Maryland received about $822 per capita from the 50 federal grant programs studied by the Northeast-Midwest Institute. That was about 20 percent less than the national average of $1,014 in aid per person, according to the institute's report, which was released last Thursday.

State officials and the report's authors noted that many of the grant programs, like Medicaid, Head Start, and children's health insurance, are geared toward helping the poor. Because Maryland has a high per capita income and a relatively low rate of poverty, the state receives less from such programs.

"Maryland has the lowest poverty rate in the nation," said Michelle Byrnie, a spokeswoman for Gov. Parris N. Glendening. "Clearly the state is doing something right. We're helping the people who need it most."

But advocates for the poor said the lower federal grants don't reflect the increasing needs of the population. Despite the state's wealth, they said, poverty is growing during this time of recession.

"Maryland professes to have the lowest poverty rate in the nation," said Alma Roberts, president and chief executive officer of the Center for Poverty Solutions. "But when you're here in the trenches you see the increasing number of people who need services."

The state must make up for the funds not provided by the federal government, Roberts said. But she worries that the state, faced with a potential budget shortfall as high as $1 billion in the next few years, might try to balance the budget through cuts to programs for the homeless and hungry.

But Byrnie insisted that the governor "will ensure that vital services to those in need are not impacted."

Although Maryland is better off than those who qualify for more federal anti-poverty dollars, Roberts said, the state should take poverty seriously.

"If you have even 1 percent [poverty] you need to be working as rigorously as any other state to eliminate poverty," she said.

"I, Laurie, take you Joey to be my husband..."

A bride...a groom... vows and rings carefully chosen; yet, we are all too painfully aware of the odds in today's fast-paced society. What can place this new family on a firm foundation? What will keep their relationship what it is on this day, and still let it grow and flourish as the frustrations of daily living seek to take their toll?

Included in this ceremony is a line from the book of Ecclesiastes 4:12 which says..."A cord of three strands is not easily broken." In this case, two of the "strands" are the couple, but that all-important third "strand" is God. The power of God will strengthen the success of their relationship if it remains an important part of their marriage throughout their lives together.

A Cord of Three Strands...

Whether or not you are married, God can be the strengthening strand in your life. Won't you worship this week in God's House?

Rare Mushroom May Fight Fatigue

Cordyceps sinensis is a rare mushroom that grows at altitudes of over 9,000 feet in Tibet and Southwestern China. Mushroom proliferation is dependent on a parasitic interaction with a certain species of caterpillar over a 5 to 7 year life cycle.

For at least 1,000 years Cordyseps has been used as a "restorative" in China - primarily by the rich. The mushroom is now gaining attention of American researchers because of its potential to fight fatigue. According to medical research summarized by the producer of a commercial strain, Cordyceps contains substances show to:

- reduce oxidative stress by scavenging oxygen free radicals in mitochondria;
- promote efficient utilization of oxygen;
- elevate energy states (ATP) in organs;
- redistribute the flow of blood to essential organs;
- improve functions of the liver and kidney through metabolizing and excreting toxic substances; and
- provide a positive benefit for sexual health.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

PIE-IN-THE-PIE

December 9, 2001

Background Scripture:
Isaiah 11:1-9.
Devotional Reading:
Isaiah 12.

In today's paper was a startling photograph of a Claremore, Oklahoma man snuggling with Toshi, a full-grown white Bengal tiger, recovering from surgery for an serious aortic condition. We are told that one does not hug a well tiger, let alone a sick one, but the picture shows a rather cozy twosome.

I recalled a fascinating non-fiction book, The Man Who Listens to Horses by Monty Roberts (Random House). Raised to believe the conventional wisdom that, before you can train a horse, you must first break his spirit and dominate him. Monty Roberts has discovered that it is far preferable and more effective to "listen" to the horse through his or her body language. He has been so successful in dealing with "problem horses," that he frequently is called to England to work with the horses of Queen Elizabeth II.

The prejudice against which Monty Roberts has worked throughout most of his life is one that seems to permeate human minds when it comes to our relations with the world in which God has placed us. Too often we have attempted to assert our dominance over God's creation and creatures. God has called us to be good stewards of his creation, not dominate it. Similarly, many parents believe that the only way to raise their children is to break their wills and dominate them.

Peaceful Coexistence

Isaiah, however, tells of a future in which "the wolf shall live with the lamb, the leopard shall lie down with the kid, and calf and the lion and the fatling together..." (11:6). Through the symbolism of the peaceful coexistence of a variety of wild creatures, he foresees a day when former enemies will live in peace—Christians living peacefully with Moslems, Irish Catholics with Protestants, Israelis and Palestinians dwelling side by side or even Democrats and Republicans "burying the hatchet" and not in each other.

Isaiah looked for a Davidic descendant to reign over Israel and restore the nation. Some scholars believe he used these words when he anointed Hezekiah to be King of Israel. This "anointed one" would embody all the Davidic ideals. In fact, he expected what most of us look for in a leader: *"And the spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the

by Ralph and Terry Kovel

Prices for antiques are based on beauty, desirability, historic importance and appeal. Recently, an elephant-shaped inkwell was offered for sale at an auction. The black elephant with a gilt metal covering was made in the 19th century. This inkwell, which was on President Ulysses S. Grant's desk in the White House, might have inspired the Republican Party to choose an elephant as its symbol. The first time the elephant was seen as a symbol of the Republican Party was in an 1874 cartoon by Thomas Nast. The famous inkwell was auctioned recently for $26,050.

Q. Have you ever heard of "whale-end shelves"?

A. The term is not in common use among collectors. Whale-end shelves are book or display shelves with plain, straight shelves and tall, shapely ends. The end pieces holding the shelves look like the silhouette of a whale. The larger part of the end, which stands on the floor when the shelves are upright, is in the shape of a whale's head. The middle of the end is narrower, like a whale's tapering body. And the top of the end extends out, like a whale's tail. Whale-end shelves probably originated in New England coastal areas during the early 19th century. You can find them in mahogany, walnut and painted poplar or pine. It's a good idea to place them against a wall. They can tip over easily.

Purr-fect Gifts For Pets

It's that time of year again, when pet owners stew over Christmas lists, rush around to buy things for their human relatives and completely forget their most faithful family members until the last minute. The result? Us pets receive the same old stocking-shaped doggy- or kitty-treat bag every Christmas morning.

It's not that we're complaining — much. It's just that I'm practically drowning in mouse-shaped squeak toys. But few pets can make out a Christmas list. Most of them can't write. Except me, of course, because I am a cat.

So — with the help of my human, of course — I've picked out a few items that many pets would love to have. All of these products won awards at the American Pet Products Manufacturer's Association (APPMA) trade show back in July, and they are now on the shelves at most major retail pet stores, awaiting a pet.

• For us cats, the Omega Paw Inc. Deluxe Window Seat ($19.99) is a must. This item placed second in the cat-products category at the trade show, but it ranks first in my heart. While there are several varieties of window perches out there, this one strikes a compromise between comfortable cat and design-conscious human. The seat is nicely sculptured and the padding doesn't stick out over the top, making it look like a windowsill rather than a cat's perch. Very classy. Look for it online at www.drsfostersmith.com or in Yahoo!Shopping.

• And here's the coolest pet gift I've ever seen for small pets like hamsters and guinea pigs. Super Pet's Critter Cruiser ($9.99 at PetSmart) just rocks! It's a "race car" powered by your small pet. Watching this plastic car roll across the kitchen floor under "critter power" is wild! The Cruiser can be adjusted so your pet can spin in place, roll on a flat surface or race along the Hamtrac accessory ($11.39, PetSmart), a critter-sized racetrack. This one took first place in the small-animal products category.

These are all great products, and will last so much longer than those rawhide chew toys or mousies. Not that I mind getting mousies. I could always use more. So get out to the store, or hop online, and check out these items!

Your pet will thank you.

911 Hang Up Leads To Arrest Of Oakland Man

An Oakland man was arrested and charged with second degree assault after Garrett County sheriff's deputies responded to Spring Lane in Oakland for a 911 hang-up call Sunday morning.

Upon arrival, the deputies made contact with a female who stated she had been assaulted, police said. Later in the day, deputies arrested Larry Gay Wilson, 39, and charged him with second degree assault.

Wilson was released from the Garrett County Detention Center after posting a $25,000 property bond. The female was treated at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Deputies responded to another reported assault Sunday morning along Baltimore Avenue in Mtn. Lake Park.

According to police, they arrested Jamie Lee Shiflett, 18, Terra Alta, W.Va., and charged him with assault in the second degree, driving under the influence of alcohol, spinning wheels, and various other traffic offenses.

Shiflett was released from the detention center after posting $2,500 bond.

In another incident, a Friendsville man was arrested for various charges after he was stopped by sheriff's deputies early Friday morning for speeding on Gorman Road.

Andrew Ray Gardea, 20, was charged with driving while impaired by alcohol (DWI), violation of a license restriction, failing to drive right of center, and speeding.

He was released from the detention center after posting $1,000 bond.

Garrett County SKIES

by Dr. Bob Doyle
Frostburg State Planetarium

THE SUN — In early December, the sun shines for 9.6 hours each day, which falls back to 9.4 hours in late December. December begins with 7:20 a.m. sunrises and ends with 7:39 a.m. sunrises. During December the sun's peak height stays at about 27 degrees with your shortest shadows being twice as long as your actual height. During December, sunsets fall back from 4:54 p.m. to 5:03 p.m.

December 21 is the first day of winter, the sun then rising and setting farthest south for the year. All through the winter and spring, the sunlight hours will slowly increase, reaching 15 hours on summer's first day.

THE MOON — December opens with a nearly full moon. After St. Nicholaus's Day (December 6), the moon shifts to the morning sky where it appears half full. The moon is last seen in the eastern dawn as a slender crescent on December 13. The moon returns to the evening sky as a razor sharp crescent on December 16. By December 22 the moon has grown to half full (like a letter "D") in the southern evening sky. This is the best time of the month to see the moon's craters with binoculars or telescope. The evening moon grows to full on December 30. Moon/planet lines in December include: Jupiter — 2nd, Mars — 20th, Saturn — 27th, and Jupiter — 29th and 30th.

THE BRIGHT PLANETS — Our five nearest planetary neighbors appear as points of light that shine more steadily than the twinkling night stars. But if a planet appears very close to the horizon or if it's windy, even the planet's light may flicker. In December, the planet Mars is in the west-southwest in the early evening. Look in the opposite direction for the planet Saturn, nearby a bright star (Taurus's eye). Above Saturn is the 7 Sisters star cluster, resembling a tiny dipper. In mid evening, the bright planet Jupiter appears low in the east. As it begins to get light at dawn, both Saturn and Jupiter are still visible in the western sky.

DECEMBER'S BEST SIGHTS — In the northeast, the golden star Capella shines brightly. To the right of Capella is the 7 Sisters star cluster, resembling a tiny mist of fireflies. In mid evening the bright star cluster group Orion surfaces in the east. Orion's most striking feature is his belt of three stars in a row.

DECEMBER ASTRONOMY ACTIVITIES — For the first three Sundays of December, the Frostburg State Planetarium will present "The Shepherds' Story," with free public showings at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. Also featured is a beginner's tour of the evening sky using our planetarium projector. The Frostburg State Planetarium is just off the front lobby of Tawes Hall. The Cumberland Astronomy Club will meet on Friday, Dec. 14, at the LaVale Public Library at 7:30 p.m. All interested sky gazers from the tri-state area are welcome.

Dr. Bob Doyle directs the planetarium at Frostburg State. Since the mid '70s, Doyle has been writing sky columns for beginners who would like to identify the brightest stars, planets, and sights in their backyards. To ask questions or get a free brochure, call the FSU Planetarium at 301-687-4270 and press 4. Doyle also hosts "Skywatch," a brief program on days of the week and sky sights, that airs on weekday evenings just before 9 p.m. on WFWM, Frostburg State's radio station that transmits at 91.9 FM in western Garrett County and at 96.3 FM around Oakland. Dr. Doyle's e-mail address is rdoyle@frostburg.edu.

Maryland Sees Little Change In AIDS Cases

by Alan Brody
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS - Despite ranking 19th in state population, Maryland is fifth in the annual number of AIDS incidences, a statistic fueled by drug use and cited by activists trying to make the state do more to combat the virus.

"I have seen the community be very scared and confused because of the myths that were out there originally, and some that are still out there about the transmission of HIV," said Stephanie Brooks-Wiggins, president of the People with AIDS Coalition of Baltimore and a person living with the virus for 17 years. "It's a constant struggle to get people to listen."

Friday, Nov. 30, marked the 13th annual World AIDS Day, seen by many HIV/AIDS carriers and activists as an opportunity to publicize their efforts to increase research, beef up prevention education and awareness, lobby for state funding, and help others fight the epidemic that has killed or infected 60 million people since its discovery 20 years ago.

Lt. Gov. Kathleen Kennedy Townsend and U.S. Rep. Elijah Cummings, D-Baltimore, launched a new initiative Friday, called Maryland PUSH, to fight the spread of HIV and AIDS in northwest Baltimore.

The campaign adds AIDS counselors, drug treatment slots, and testing sites to get more people into treatment and help prevent the virus's spread.

More than 22,000 Marylanders are living with HIV, or human immunodeficiency virus, or AIDS, acquired immunodeficiency syndrome, while more than 11,000 have died since the discovery of AIDS, according to a study by the state Department of Health and Mental Hygiene.

Baltimore has the eighth highest rate among metropolitan areas and accounts for more than half of all Maryland cases. Prince George's County ranks a distant second at 13.6 percent of HIV and AIDS cases. (Garrett County ranks last, with four known AIDS deaths and about 10 other HIV-related illnesses.)

Experts say rampant drug use is to blame for the high incidence rates in the metropolitan areas.

"Maryland's problem with the HIV epidemic is absolutely fueled by drug use," said Liza Solomon, director of the state AIDS administration. "We have to have our efforts dovetailed with drug prevention and drug addiction treatment. That's where the challenge is for us."

AIDS awareness and prevention education in the school system also needs to be part of the next step, said Brooks-Wiggins. And prices for medication, which can cost more than $20,000 a year, must come down.

AIDS activists worry that the state's budget contraction (the governor has ordered cost-saving measures worth $205 million and instituted a hiring freeze) will mean less funding for AIDS programs.

"Fewer than 5,000 were killed by the Sept. 11 disaster, yet hundreds of thousands are affected by AIDS," said Doug Rose, spokesman for the AIDS Legislative Committee, a Maryland grassroots advocacy organization. "There is a little terrorist already in our midst called the AIDS virus. We need not let down our guard on that virus or there will be many, many more deaths."

About 86 percent of the 2002 Maryland AIDS budget, totaling about $50 million, comes from the federal government. Some legislators said most of the funding is secure, but cautioned against too much optimism. Budget cuts in drug abuse treatment and sexually transmitted disease prevention are possible, said Sen. Paula C. Hollinger, D-Baltimore County, and that will affect AIDS rates because of the strong correlation between those behaviors and the disease.

Gov. Parris N. Glendening will await estimates from the Board of Revenues in mid-December before making any decision on budget cuts.

"It is way too early to be making any sort of forecast as to where the budget will be," said spokeswoman Michelle Byrnie. "The governor wants to make sure that services for people in need stay intact."

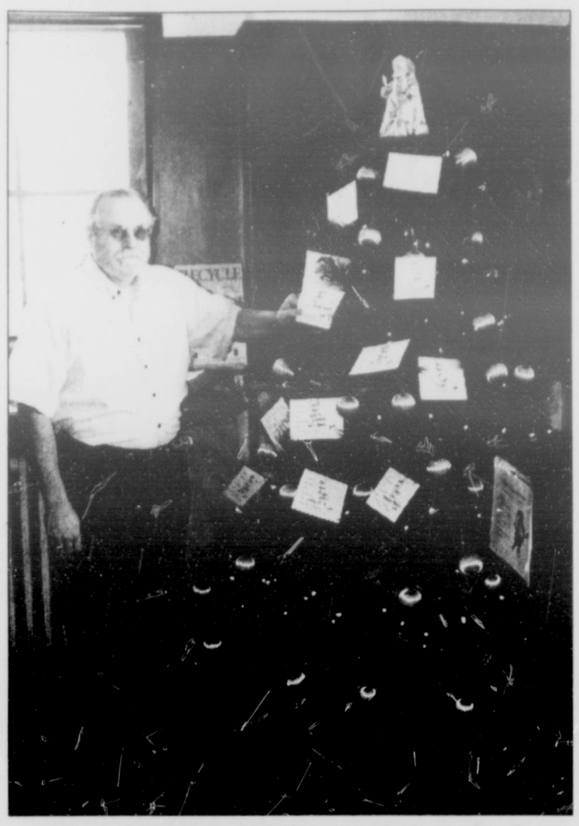
Despite a reduction in AIDS cases and a 42 percent decline in AIDS deaths in 1996-97 attributable to the discovery of antiviral medicine, the decline has leveled off and the Maryland health department study shows males and African-Americans remain at greatest risk of contracting the virus.

AIDS is also the leading cause of death among middle-aged blacks and black women, according to the national Black Coalition on AIDS.

"I've seen the introduction of AIDS drugs and seen people's quality of life improve dramatically, but the epidemic is not over," said Brooks-Wiggins.

She hopes breakthroughs in the establishment of a vaccine will occur within five years.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention estimates that 800,000 to 900,000 Americans are infected with HIV, including roughly 320,000 who have full-blown AIDS. As many as a third of HIV patients don't know they have the virus.



TIME IS RUNNING OUT for donations to the Rotary Club's annual Christmas project, according to member Ken Perrin, pictured above next to the tree located in the Oakland Post Office. Perrin said donations are down this year, especially financial contributions, and citizens are asked to do what they can to help. The cut-off date is early this year, Perrin added, set for Dec. 9. The trees are located at a number of businesses around Garrett County, and many still have several cards left. Perrin said he and the club members hope the tide will turn in the next several days.

JWCC DONATES TO MEALS ON WHEELS — The Junior Woman's Civic Club has accepted the challenge from a recent letter to the editor to all local civic organizations to support the Meals on Wheels program. Pam Holloway, JWCC member, presented a check for $400 to Adina Brode, director of the Area Agency on Aging, to help restore meal service to the frail elderly in Garrett County.

Garrett Planning Estonian Excursion For Late Spring

by Joan Crawford

A visit to Estonia last summer by Steve Storck, Garrett Community College associate professor of adventure sports, has led to the planning of a three-week trip for students next year. It has also left the GCC professor totally impressed with the country of Estonia and its people.

As part of a professional development grant from GCC, Storck flew to Helsinki, Finland, where he then took the ferry to the port city of Tallin—a trip he describes as "an interesting way to arrive." In Estonia he met Mart Reimann, who had spent last year at GCC as a visiting professor of ecotourism and who received an associate's degree in adventure sports during his time here. The two had planned the trip for the purpose of scouting the future student trip in cooperation with professor Steve Selin of the Recreation, Parks and Tourism Resources program at West Virginia University. Selin had recently spent a year on sabbatical in Finland.

Next year's trip is now being planned for 8-10 students to leave May 19 and spend three weeks traveling, eight days in Estonia and five days each in Finland and Russia. The students will visit forestry preserves, national parks, and other rural regions to learn about nature-based tourism and cultural aspects of the former Soviet states, as they relate to the land. Throughout the program, students will meet with business owners, researchers, tourism officials and resource managers to gain insight into local operating practices and issues. Along the way students will hike, bicycle, canoe and raft at various venues in the three countries.

They will also have the opportunity to visit Soomaa Rahvuspark, a large national park established to protect one of Europe's largest peat bogs and unique anthropology. "Because of the frequency of floods in this region, an ancient local tradition of building canoes out of whole birch trees was established," Storck said. "Our students will be able to see this process re-enacted."

During their trip the students will stay in small tourist lodges which are prevalent in Estonia, according to Storck.

"The majority of tourism in Estonia is small scale," he said. "There are many small lodges, beds and breakfasts, farm stays and hostels. In Estonia there has been an effort to preserve the historical landscape—and the integrity of the land. Many areas of the country have implemented zoning regulations to facilitate planned growth. Although some "cabin" resorts are beginning to be built by Finnish tourists, much more emphasis seems to be placed on preserving open space. Estonia's broad based ecotourism philosophy has made it an emerging destination for urbanite tourists from Germany, Denmark, Sweden, and Finland."

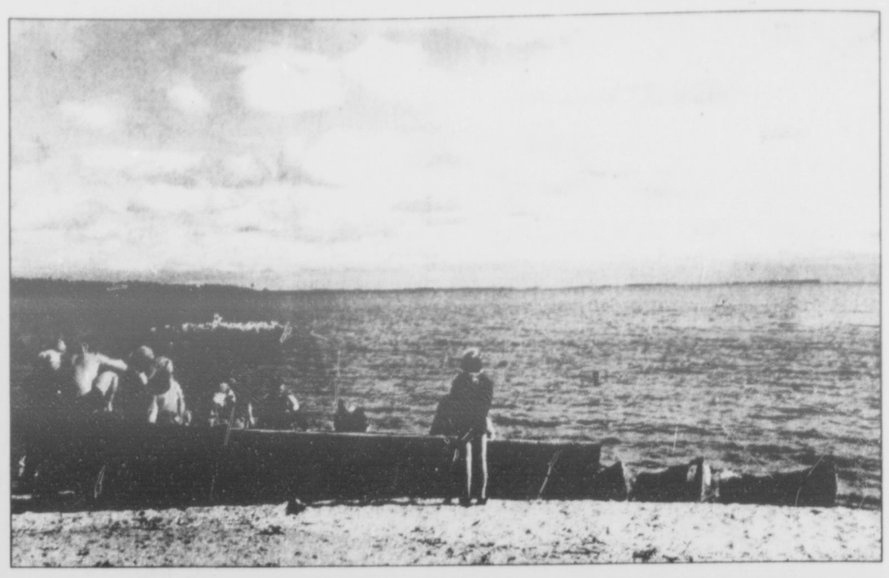
With reference to the 40 years of Soviet domination over Estonia, Storck mentioned that students will see remnants of the collective farms and industrial machine imposed by the Russians.

"Estonia was one of the first countries to leave the Soviet Union," he said. "During their subservience the people preserved their heritage and their traditions through their music. Large national choral festivals gave root to the movement that led to their independence, referred to by some as the 'singing revolution.'

Students on this trip will learn about the social aspects of the former Soviet domination and the changes that have occurred during Estonia's 10 years of independence."

He expressed his admiration for the country and the people. "It is growing incredibly. With a western-focused culture, most of the country is now led by young people who have great enthusiasm and optimism. Estonia has one of the highest literacy rates in the world and most of the people speak three languages. Everyone has cell phones and computers."

Students who take the trip next May will receive six academic credits, along with their experience—three in Park and Protected Area Management and three in Ecotourism. Persons interested in further information about the trip to Estonia may contact Storck at 301-387-3323.



JUST A FEW OF THE ESTONIAN SIGHTS that a group of Garrett Community College are shown here. The Baltic nation is capitalizing on its charming cities and villages, and open spaces, to emerge as a favorite destination for urban visitors from Germany, Denmark, Sweden, and Finland. GCC Adventure Sports professor Steve Storck will lead the Garrett group on a three-week sojourn through Estonia, Finland, and western Russia as the students learn of the region's natural and cultural heritage. Pictured at left is a Russian Orthodox Church located in the capital city of Tallin. The group will take part in a walking tour of the city and meet with local officials to discuss ecotourism issues. McHenry Man Exonerated Of Assault Charge

A McHenry man accused of assaulting his wife during a domestic disturbance was deemed not guilty during a recent Garrett County District Court hearing.

Matthew James Ptacek, 34, had been arrested by Maryland State Police troopers in early March after an alleged domestic disturbance. Visiting Judge Paul Stakem issued the not guilty verdict on the second degree assault charge.

In other District Court news, a not guilty verdict was handed down in the case of a Grantsville man after his alleged victim refused to testify against him.

James Allen Warnick, 40, Grantsville, had been jailed on a second degree assault charge stemming from an early September domestic altercation. The MSP's charges stated that Warnick had grabbed the woman during an argument, leaving visible bruises on her body. Judge Ralph Burnett presided at the hearing.

Christmas Bird Count Scheduled For December 15

The National Audubon Society calls upon volunteers in Garrett County to join with birders across the western hemisphere and participate in one of its winter-time traditions, the annual Christmas Bird Count (CBC), which will be held Saturday, Dec. 15, in the Oakland area. For more information or directions to the count, persons may contact Connie Skipper at 301-387-5227.

CBC began over a century ago when 27 conservationists in 25 localities, led by ornithologist Frank Chapman, changed the course of ornithological history. On Christmas Day 1900, the small group of conservationists initiated an alternative activity to the holiday practice typical of the time period. The "side hunt" was an activity in which teams competed to see who could shoot the most birds and small animals. Instead of hunting, Chapman proposed to count the birds they saw, thus founding one of the most significant citizen-based conservation efforts which has lasted for over a century.

Apart from its attraction as a social, sporting, and competitive event, CBC reveals scientific information on the winter distributions of various bird species. The CBC is important in monitoring the status of resident and migratory birds across the Western Hemisphere. The data, 100% volunteer generated, have become a crucial part of the U.S. government's natural history monitoring database.

Over 50,000 volunteers from all 50 states, every Canadian province, parts of Central and South America, Bermuda, the West Indies, and Pacific islands count and record every individual bird and bird species seen during one 24-hour calendar day. Over 1,800 individual count circles will be covered during a 2½-week official count period. Each group has a designated circle 15 miles in diameter — about 177 square miles — where volunteers try to "census" as much ground as possible within a day.

Founded in 1905 and supported by 600,000 members in more than 500 chapters throughout the Americas, the National Audubon Society conserves and restores natural ecosystems, focusing on birds and other wildlife, and their habitats, for the benefit of humanity and the Earth's biological diversity.

WOMEN HELPING WOMEN — Local members of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) worked together recently to pack gift bags for women who come to the Dove Center seeking safe haven. Toiletries and other small items were packed into more than 30 bags, which were then delivered to the shelter. Pictured from left are Gail Herman, AAUW president; Joan Crawford, secretary; Crissie Bezak, member; Heather Hanline, acting executive director of the Dove Center; Connie Herath, office manager; Lee Ann Shoup, child specialist; and Brenda LeMay, Dove Center/sheriff's office advocate.

GCC Sets Medical Transcription Open House Event

An open house for persons interested in medical transcription will be held at the McHenry campus of Garrett Community College at 6 p.m. on Tuesday, Dec. 18. Tom Kierstead, the college's Medical Transcription program director, and faculty, plus students who have completed the curriculum at GCC, will meet with prospective students in Room 305 of the Continuing Education Center to answer questions and discuss the opportunities of the medical transcription profession.

Representatives of a newly forming Garrett County transcription business will be on hand, and there is a possibility that this company may hire some graduates of the medical transcription class, according to Kierstead. Staff of the GCC Job Placement Office will also to help facilitate job searches in the field.

The medical transcription curriculum consists of 254 hours of instruction. Topics include anatomy and physiology, computer skills, medical science and terminology, and digital medical transcription lab. The next class is projected to get under way in March. The curriculum has recently been updated, and depending on participants' availability, may meet two evenings and Saturdays, or two weekdays, for approximately six months.

"This course of study is designed for students to move forward at their own pace," said Kierstead, "and those with medical backgrounds, as well as highly motivated individuals, may be able to complete and exit early. All prospective students should check with their tax advisors to see about the possible tax advantage of using the Lifetime Learning Tax Credit."

There is a competitive application process to enter the curriculum, and candidates' English and typing skills will be assessed upon receipt of application materials. Persons not able to attend the open house may call the Continuing Education and Training Office at 301-387-3069 and request that informative materials be forwarded.

Three Pickup Trucks Involved In Accident Monday

Three pickup trucks were involved in an accident at the intersection of G Street and Route 135 in Mtn. Lake Park around 3 p.m. on Monday, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Anthony Hinebaugh, 25, Oakland, and Judith Weimer, 48, Oakland, were stopped on Route 135 in the eastbound lane waiting to turn left onto G Street when a 1991 Ford Ranger driven by Justin Wayne Alexander, 24, Oakland, rearended the Weimer vehicle, causing it to hit the Hinebaugh vehicle, police said.

Weimer and her passenger were transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where they were treated and released.

Alexander was charged with failure to control speed to avoid a collision.

The Oakland fire department also responded to the scene.

Crellin Assembly Sets Variety Of Holiday Events

The members of the Crellin Assembly of God Church invite the community to join them in their Christmas celebrations.

The Sunday school department will present "The Best Present of All," a children's Christmas program, at 10:45 a.m., on Sunday, Dec. 16. That evening, at 6 p.m., a cantata/drama, "Tree of Light," conducted by the Rev. Tim Miller, will be presented along with a live nativity scene. The program was created and arranged by Dale Matthews and Michael Frazier. The theme of the "Tree of Light" is to show the spiritual symbolism in one of the world's most recognizable symbols, the Christmas tree. Refreshments will follow the production.

The cantata/drama will also be performed on Monday, Dec. 17, and Wednesday, Dec. 19, at 7 p.m. both nights.

Pastor Bruce Craig will lead the worship service on Sunday, Dec. 23, at 10:45 a.m. The Christmas Eve candlelight and communion service will be held Monday, Dec. 24, from 6 to 7 p.m.

Medicines Sometimes Help Autistic Children

Autism is a brain-related disorder that affects normal development of social and communication skills. Autistic children and adults tend not to form close personal relationships, won't cuddle, resist change, and often repeat certain acts and rituals. If speech develops it may be abnormal in word choice, rate, rhythm, or pitch. And in severe cases, aggressive or self-injurious behavior occurs in as many as 1 in 500 persons, with males more likely to be autistic than girls. However, autism affects persons of various races and social backgrounds about equally.

A variety of medicines that affect the brain and nervous system are often helpful, but they do not resolve the underlying problem. For example, the antipsychotic medicine haloperidol (Haldol) is used to control severely aggressive or self-destructive behaviors and abnormal repetitive movements. Clonidine (Catapres), which typically is used to help lower high blood pressure, may reduce irritability and hyperactivity and improve social functioning. Antidepressant medicines, including fluoxetine (Prozac), may be helpful in select instances.

Scores Of Companies Affected By EPA's New Clean-Air Regs

by Marie Beaudette
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON — Forty-seven Maryland companies will have to resubmit clean-air permit applications to the state, after the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency on Monday ordered Maryland to conform with federal clean air standards.

The companies had applications pending under the state law, which says only state residents have "judicial standing" to object to a permit application. The EPA said that violates the Clean Air Act, which says complaints can be filed by anyone who can show they would be affected by a permit.

"It becomes important when you are living right over the border," said EPA Region III spokeswoman Donna Heron. Anyone can comment, but "under the old Maryland law ... you would not have as much clout as under the federal regulations."

The EPA also gave the state 18 months to bring its law into compliance with federal law, or face the loss of federal highway funds. State lawmakers rejected such a change this year, but Heron said the EPA expects legislators will approve the change before sanctions have to be put in place.

While the EPA officially took over the program, it delegated authority to process permit applications back to the Maryland Department of the Environment. The department will continue to process and decide on applications, but it must follow the federal standards, and it can expect close EPA scrutiny.

"They'll be looking at every permit we issue under this program," said Karen Irons, the manager of the air quality permits program for the state.

Monday's action stemmed from a November 2000 settlement between the EPA and the Sierra Club, which sued the federal agency for its failure to force compliance with Title V, which regulates the states' largest air emissions sources. Under the settlement, 35 states were given until Dec. 1 to complete compliance with the federal standards.

Maryland and Connecticut were the only states that did not meet the deadline. The EPA did not take over Connecticut's program because the state expects to have new regulations approved within the next few weeks, according to David Baron, a lawyer with Earthjustice, which represented the Sierra Club.

Baron called Maryland's laws "archaic." In addition to not allowing nonresidents to object, he said state law also requires that a person must have been affected in a "substantially different" way from the rest of the population by the emissions.

"It's just astonishing to me that a state like Maryland still clings to these ancient outmoded notions of who can go to court," Baron said. "This is slamming the courthouse door to citizens who are concerned about protecting their health."

Business groups could not predict Tuesday the extent to which the permitting process in Maryland will change under the new rules.

"It could have the effect of delaying permits," said Jeffrey Marks, director of air quality for the National Manufacturers Association.

Because a federal agency is assuming oversight of a state-run program, Marks said administrative complications could delay the approval process.

But Heron said the application process "is not expected to take any more time." After a permit is issued, however, she said applicants should expect to do more emissions monitoring to remain in compliance because the federal standards are more stringent.

"Once the application is granted, there is going to have to be more work on the applicant's part," Heron said.

NO SMALL-FRY DONATION — The Oakland Rotary french fry sales work of Garrett County Big Brothers Big Sisters resulted in a $1,750 donation to the mentoring organization recently. The check represented the proceeds raised during the Garrett County Fair when BBBS representatives share the work at the Rotary french fry trailer, a shared effort that has resulted in some much-anticipated camaraderie for both service organizations. Shown are Rotary president Jack Regentin, left, as he presents the check to BBBS school-based caseworker Betsy Herpel. The Oakland Rotary is also a sponsor of the annual Bowl for Kids' Sake fund-raiser, slated for March 23 at Par-Matt Lanes in Oakland.

MEALS ON WHEELS GETS ANOTHER BOOST — Reverend Ivan Ackerman of the Loch Lynn Church of God is pictured as he presents a check in the amount of $1,000 from the church's mission fund to Adina Brode, Area Agency on Aging director. The donation is to go toward the continuing Meals on Wheels fund, as the agency works to restore five-day weekly service. The restoration goal is $50,000, and donations are greatly appreciated, Brode said.

Maryland Plays Starring Role In Chestnut Tree's Comeback

by Penny Riordan
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS - Jim Hill's 87-foot chestnut tree may be the unsung hero in the battle against chestnut blight — or the attempt to grow a nearly pure American, blight-resistant chestnut tree.

Miraculously, of the 200 chestnuts on Hill's Mt. Airy property, one tree, only 12 inches in diameter, has lasted 65 years without getting the blight that wiped out a species that used to grow in the billions up and down the East Coast.

Hill's tree is one of just a handful of trees nationwide that has resisted the blight. The pollen from his tree has been the root for the breeding project Sam Castleman runs in Thurmont with the American Chestnut Foundation. Castleman crossbreeds Chinese and American chestnuts in the hope he will eventually get a blight-resistant, pure American tree out of the 375 he has at different ages and percentages of the two species.

It will be about 8 to 10 years before they will have a resistant tree, said Castleman, who works with the American Chestnut Foundation to develop a regionally adaptable strand of the tree.

The first step in the breeding process is to cross a Chinese tree with an American tree. Then that cross is bred with another American tree, and so forth for a few generations, until a 15/16-pure American chestnut tree is created that has the blight-resistant characteristic of the Chinese chestnut.

Before the blight struck in about 1900, imported on Asian nursery stock, the American chestnut grew in about a 200 million-acre area. The tree grew in significantly high numbers in Maryland and it is estimated that it represented one in every four hardwoods.

"The American chestnut was the redwood of the East," Castleman said.

Hill thinks preserving these trees is part of preserving an East Coast culture.

"When the chestnuts died out, a whole culture died out," he said. "Back in the old days, all these people went into the Appalachian Mountains to get furs. When that ran out, all they had was moonshine and chestnut trees."

"At the present, it's only part of a song, but in the past it was really the mainstay of rural Appalachia," said Ana Ronderos, communications director for the American Chestnut Foundation. Ronderos was speaking of "The Christmas Song," which begins with the lyric, "Chestnuts roasting on an open fire . . ."

The American chestnut has more commercial value because it is larger and is highly rot resistant compared with the Chinese chestnut, as well as with other hardwoods.

"The American tree really looks a lot different," said Doug Boucher, an ecologist at Hood College. The American tree tends to dominate the forest canopy while the Chinese tree is usually smaller, he said.

The tree is known for making strong boards and providing food for animals and people.

"A lot of people depended on the chestnut," Ronderos said. "It was considered a cradle-to-grave tree, meaning it was used to make everything from baby furniture to coffins.

Although it still may be a few generations before the tree is once again common in the Appalachian Mountains, Boucher thinks they are more than halfway to getting a blight-resistant pure American tree. Seeing a pure American grown would be a significant accomplishment, Boucher said, since it was humans who brought about its demise through importation.

"Beyond the practical value, I think there is a real use to restoring the ecosystem the way it was," Boucher said.

"It's quite an important piece in the past," Ronderos said. "It's part of our heritage that we can't appreciate now."

SUB-ACUTE UNIT HOLDS ANNUAL REUNION — The Garrett County Memorial Hospital Sub-Acute Rehabilitation Unit held its third annual patient reunion recently. The unit at GCMH opened in 1997, and has helped hundreds of patients who are too sick to return home or who need additional short-term treatment or therapy, but not sick enough to remain in an acute hospital setting. "The GCMH Sub-Acute Unit reunion gives us a chance to check up on our past patients and see how they are doing," said Brenda Hartsell, activities/restorative assistant. Past patients and their guests were served refreshments and treated to an afternoon of games. Staff members and patients sang their favorite songs karaoke style. "We take pride in the personalized care that we give. Our staff members even made gifts for the unit alumni," said Elizabeth Daniels, sub-acute nurse manager. She added that, "The reunion also gives the hospital a chance to promote the sub-acute unit and its services." Pictured above are Hartsell and alumna Mary Mosser at the reunion.

Prescription Drug Relief Act Gets Thumbs Up From Seniors

by Nora Achrati
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS - Tens of thousands of low-income senior citizens have found relief from high medicine costs through Maryland's newly expanded prescription drug relief program, state health department officials reported to the General Assembly.

The Senior Prescription Drug Relief Act, signed into legislation last session, extended Maryland's drug subsidy plan, broadened the geographic scope of the Maryland Medbank program, and required the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene to take the first step in creating a state-run drug discount program.

Through CareFirst BlueCross BlueShield, Maryland's largest private health insurer, the short-term prescription drug subsidy plan now pays for $1,000 worth of drugs for Medicare-eligible seniors statewide. Before this year, the program applied only to eligible seniors in rural areas.

CareFirst representatives said the expansion has been a success, with enrollment in every county.

"Job well done," CareFirst lobbyist Fran Doherty told members of the health department and the Joint Committee on Health Care Delivery and Financing last week. "We feel the outreach has been really pretty terrific."

Of the 30,000 program slots opened this year, 26,418 have been filled, Doherty said, and more than $6 million in care has been paid.

Carefirst spokesman James Day said the pending merger with WellPoint Health Networks, a California-based insurance provider, does not affect the program's funding. CareFirst funds drug subsidies through hospital rate discounts granted by the state. In return, CareFirst acts as an "insurer of last resort," offering open enrollment to those for whom insurance is hard to come by.

The Medbank program, which helps uninsured Marylanders apply to pharmaceutical companies for free drugs, now operates statewide through five regional offices with a budget of $2.5 million, according to the health department. Medbank originally served Baltimore and Western Maryland.

The program has helped 5,705 people fill prescriptions this year — 3,189 since expanding July 1, the department reported. Both Medbank and the drug subsidy will end June 2003 or sooner, if a prescription drug benefit is added to the federal Medicare program.

The health department also requested a waiver from the federal government to allow the prescription drug purchasing discount for Medicaid to apply to Medicare recipients, too. The discounts come from the state's ability to purchase medicines in bulk.

If approved, the waiver would provide up to $28 million federal dollars for a program to offer drug discounts to all in-state Medicare patients who don't have prescription drug coverage.

Medicare is a federal program. Without the waiver, the discount plan would have to operate on only the state's $8 million. The department submitted its waiver application June 13. The discount program will begin enrolling members after Jan. 1, 2002.

Legislators were cheered by the report and say they would like to see the drug relief programs grow.

"We would love to be able to expand our role, to provide more assistance to these seniors," said Delegate Peter A. Hammen, D-Baltimore. "[Gov. Parris N. Glendening] has said time and time again that this is the responsibility of the federal government, but if over and over the federal government isn't acting, then we need to do something."

RECITALS

Title VI of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, as amended by the Water Quality Act of 1987 (the "Clean Water Act"), authorizes the United States Environmental Protection Agency (the "EPA") to award grants to qualifying States to establish and capitalize State water pollution control revolving funds ("SRFs") for the purpose of providing loans and certain other forms of financial assistance (but not grants) to finance, among other things, the construction of publicly owned wastewater treatment facilities, estuary conservation management plans and the implementation of nonpoint source management programs.

In addition, the Safe Drinking Water Act of 1986, as amended by the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1994 (the "Safe Drinking Water Act"), authorizes the EPA to award grants to qualifying States to establish and capitalize SRFs for the purpose of providing loans and certain other forms of financial assistance (but not grants) to finance, among other things, the construction of water supply systems.

The General Assembly of Maryland at its 1988 session enacted the Maryland Water Quality Financing Administration Act, as amended, codified at Sections 9-1601 through 9-1622 of the Environment Article of the Anotated Code of Maryland (the "Act"), establishing the Maryland Water Quality Financing Administration (the "Administration") and establishing an SRF designated the Maryland Water Quality Revolving Loan Fund (the "Water Quality Fund") to be maintained and administered by the Administration and in its 1993 session enacted amendments to the Act establishing an SRF designated the Maryland Drinking Water Revolving Loan Fund (the "Drinking Water Fund") to be maintained and administered by the Administration. The Act, as amended, authorizes the Administration, among other things, to make loans from the Water Quality Fund to a "Local government" (as defined in the Act) for the purpose of financing all or a portion of the cost of a "wastewater facility" (as defined in the Act) and to make loans from the Drinking Water Fund for the purpose of financing all or a portion of the cost of a "water supply system" (as defined in the Act), the Town of Grantsville (the 'borrower") is a "local government" within the meaning of the Act.

The Borrower has applied to the Administration for a loan from the Water Quality Fund to assist in the financing of a certain project which constitutes a "wastewater facility" and for a loan from the Drinking Water Fund to assist in the financing of a certain project which constitutes a "water supply system" within the meaning of the Act. As contemplated by the Act, the Administration and the Borrower will enter into two loan agreements (each, a "Loan Agreement"; collectively, the "Loan Agreements") to effect and evidence the loans.

The Borrower has determined that it will issue its bonds (hereinafter defined), each of which constitutes a "loan obligation" within the meaning of the Act.

There was a prior Water Quality & Drinking Water Ordinance passed and enacted by the Town of Grantsville. It was introduced at a meeting on May 7, 2001. Said Ordinance was not published, and any legal effect it may have had is nullified by this present Ordinance.

NOW THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED AND ENACTED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE TOWN OF GRANTSVILLE:

Section 1. Pursuant to the authority of the Maryland Water Quality Financing Administration Act (codified as Sections 9-1601 to 9-1622, inclusive, of the Environment Article of the Annotated Code of Maryland (1996 Replacement Volume and 2000 Supplement) (the "Act"), Sections 31 to 37, inclusive, of Article 23A of the Annotated Code of Maryland (1998 Replacement Volume and 2000 Supplement), and Sections 18-59 and 18-61 of the Charter of the Town of Grantsville (the "Charter"), the Town of Grantsville, a municipal corporation of the State of Maryland (the "Borrower"), hereby determines to borrow money and incur indebtedness (i) for the public purposes of financing or refinancing improvements to certain wastewater facilities (the "Wastewater System Project") and (ii) for the public purposes of financing or refinancing improvements to the water supply systems (the "Water System Project") and, in each case, related architectural, financial, legal, planning and engineering expenses permitted under the Clean Water Act and Safe Drinking Water Act. The Wastewater System Project and the Water System Project are each described in Exhibit A. The Wastewater System Project constitutes a "wastewater facility" and the Water System Project constitutes a "water supply system" within the meaning of the Act.

As contemplated by the Act, such borrowing and indebtedness shall be made and incurred in accordance with the provisions of loan agreements (each, a "Loan Agreement"; collectively, the "Loan Agreements") between the Borrower and the Maryland Water Quality Financing Administration (the "Administration"). Each Loan Agreement shall be in substantially the forms set forth in Exhibits B-1 and B-2 attached hereto as a part hereof, with such insertions, omissions or variations as may be deemed necessary or appropriate and approved by the officers executing the same (their execution of the Loan Agreements to constitute conclusive evidence of such approval). The Borrower hereby approves the forms of and authorizes the execution and delivery of the Loan Agreements in substantially the forms set forth in Exhibit B-1 and B-2, including all covenants and conditions set forth therein. The Loan Agreements and all the covenants and conditions set forth therein, including, without limitation, payment to the Administration of the annual Administrative Fee described in such Loan Agreements, are hereby approved and adopted as the obligations of the Borrower.

Section 2. To evidence the payment obligations of the Borrower under the Loan Agreements, the Borrower, acting pursuant to the authority of the Act and the Charter, hereby determines to issue and sell, upon its full faith and credit, (i) a general obligation installment bond, in the principal amount not to exceed FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLARS ($50,000.00), to be known as "The Town of Grantsville Water Quality Bond" (the "Water Quality Bond") and (ii) a general obligation installment bond, in the principal amount not to exceed TWO HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS ($200,000.00), to be known as "The Town of Grantsville Drinking Water Bond" (the "Drinking Water Bond" and, collectively with the Water Quality Bond, the "Bonds"). There shall be added to the title of each Bond a designation corresponding to the year in which such Bond is issued. The Bonds shall be dated the date of delivery and shall be issued in the form of two fully registered installment bonds, without coupons attached, numbered R-1 and R-2. The Water Quality Bond, numbered R-1, shall bear interest at a rate of 45% of the Bond Buyer 11-Bond Index for the month preceding the date of its delivery and the Drinking Water Bond, numbered R-2, shall bear interest at a rate of 45% of the Bond Buyer 11 Bond Index for the month preceding the date of its delivery. The first payment of principal on each Bond shall be paid no later than one year after the estimated date of completion of each respective project as described in Exhibit A, and subsequent installments of principal shall be payable annually until the principal on such Bond is fully paid, except that the final installment of the entire indebtedness evidenced by each Bond, if not sooner paid, shall be due and payable no later than 20 years after project completion, and except that prepayments may be made as provided in the relevant Loan Agreement. Interest due on the unpaid principal amounts advanced under the Loan Agreements shall accrue on the basis of a 30-day month, 360-day year from the date of the respective advances of such principal amount, and shall be paid semiannually on the 1st day of February and August in each year until such principal amount has been paid.

Section 3. The Bonds shall be executed in the name of the Borrower and on its behalf by the Mayor of the Town of Grantsville. The corporate seal of the Borrower shall be affixed to the Bonds, attested by the signature of the Clerk-Treasurer of the Town of Grantsville (the "Town Clerk"). The principal of and interest on the Bonds shall be paid by the Borrower by electronic funds transfer, check or draft mailed (by depositing such check or draft, correctly addressed and postage prepaid, in the United States mails on or before the payment date) to the registered owner at its address as it appears on the books kept for that purpose at the office of the Clerk-Treasurer in the Town of Grantsville, Maryland in the event any official whose signature appears on a Bond ceases to be an official prior to the delivery of such Bond, or shall have become such official after the date of this Ordinance, such Bond shall, nevertheless, be the valid and legally binding obligation of the Borrower in accordance with its terms.

Section 4. Except as provided hereinafter or in any ordinance or ordinances of the Borrower adopted prior to the issuance of the Bonds, the Bonds shall be issued in substantially the form provided for in Exhibit F of each Loan Agreement. Appropriate variations and insertions to provide dates, numbers and amounts, and modifications not altering its substance may be made by the Town Mayor of the Town provided that the face amount of the Bonds shall not exceed the limits set forth in Section 2 of this Ordinance. All of the covenants contained in Exhibit F of each Loan Agreement are hereby adopted by the Borrower as and for the form of obligation to be incurred by the Borrower, and the covenants and conditions contained therein are hereby made binding upon the Borrower, including the promise to pay therein contained.

Section 5. The Bonds shall be sold to the Administration at private (negotiated) sale, without public bidding, in accordance with the provisions of the Act. The Town Mayor with the Consent of the Town Council of the Town is authorized and directed to enter into such agreements with the Administration as they shall deem to be in the best interests of the Town in order to accomplish the public purposes of this Ordinance.

Section 6. The Town Mayor of the Town is expressly authorized and empowered to take any and all action necessary to complete and close the delivery of the Bonds. The Town Mayor of the Town is expressly authorized to make such changes or modifications in the forms adopted herein as may be necessary or appropriate.

Section 7. The Town Mayor, or in his absence, the Clerk-Treasurer of the Town, is hereby designated to receive payment on behalf of the Town of the proceeds of the sale of the Bonds. Such proceeds shall be used and applied by the Town exclusively and solely for the public purposes described in Section 1 of this Ordinance. If the proceeds received from the sale of the Bonds exceed the amount needed for such public purposes, the unexpended excess shall be applied as soon as may be practicable to the prepayment of the Bonds as provided for in Section 2 of this Ordinance, unless a supplemental ordinance is passed and approved by the Town to provide for the expenditure of that excess for some other valid purpose authorized by the Act and the Charter.

Section 8. The principal of and interest on the Water Quality Bond and the Drinking Water Bond shall be payable in the first instance from funds received from the imposition and collection of wastewater and water user charges, respectively, including any and all fees for the use of the wastewater system or public water system, respectively, or connection thereto established by the Town in accordance with the Charter. In the event that such charges and fees are insufficient to meet the debt service requirements on the Bonds the principal and interest on the Bonds shall be payable in accordance with the Loan Agreement. If, in any fiscal year during which the Bonds may be outstanding, either of such funds are insufficient promptly to meet the debt service requirements of the respective Bond the Town shall levy ad valorem taxes, in accordance with the Charter, upon all assessable property liable to taxation in the Town at the regular tax-levying period in rate and amount sufficient to meet and pay promptly the principal of and interest on such Bond when due in each such fiscal year. If the proceeds from the collection of taxes so levied in any such fiscal year are inadequate for such payment, additional taxes shall be levied in the succeeding fiscal year to make up such deficiency. The full faith and credit and unlimited taxing power of the Town are hereby irrevocably pledged to the payment of the principal of and interest on the Bonds as and when they become due and payable and to the levy and collection of the taxes herein above described as and when such taxes may become necessary in order to provide sufficient funds to meet the debt service requirements of the Bonds. The Town hereby covenants and agrees with the registered owner of the Bonds to levy and collect the taxes hereinabove described and to take any further action that may be appropriate from time to time during the period that the Bonds remain outstanding and unpaid to provide the funds necessary to pay promptly the principal thereof and the interest due thereon.

Section 9. The Town hereby covenants and agrees to pay all administrative fees and expenses charged by the Administration under the Loan Agreements.

Section 10. The prior Ordinance referenced in the Recitals introduced at the May 7, 2001, meeting is of no legal effect.

Section 11. This Ordinance shall become effective twenty (20) days following its enactment by the Council of the Town of Grantsville, Maryland, provided that it is published at least twice in a newspaper having a general circulation in the Town.
